This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

REPORT ON CANADIAN ARCHIVES.

DOUGLAS BRYMNER, LL.D., F.R.S.C., ARCHIVIST.

Minister of Agriculture,

Sir,—I have the honour to present the report on Archives for 1892.

Since the last report there have been received and are now on the shelves, transcripts of the State Papers for Lower Canada to 1825, a continuation of the administration of Monk and in addition those of Maitland, as acting Governors, Lord Dalhousie as Governor-in-chief, Burton as President of the Council and the resumption of office by Lord Dalhousie in September, 1825. The papers during that period deal with matters of great interest; the proposed Union in 1822 of the two Provinces, with the arguments for and against the proposal, which it is well known did not take effect till twenty years later, the report on grievances, the questions between Upper and Lower Canada respecting the revenue and other subjects held at the time to be of vital importance. The last volume received for Lower Canada, shelf marked Q. 173, contains correspondence from the various public offices. Work is now in progress on the subsequent volumes, those to 1830 being nearly completed, as appears by the monthly reports transmitted by the Honourable the High Commissioner. For Upper Canada, transcripts have been received to 1829, covering the period of Sir Peregrine Maitland's administration and the beginning of that of Sir John Colborne, and work is now well advanced on subsequent volumes, which include the correspondence, accounts, diagrams, &c., of the Upper Canada Company, from the date of its establishment in 1825.

From the frequent inquiries respecting the instructions to the Governors, which were nowhere to be found in a collected form, directions were given to have an exhaustive search made and special orders were issued as to the arrangement and method of copying, so as to have the complete set of instructions, unencumbered with repetitions, where the instructions to one Governor were simply duplicated, with the necessary change of name, &c. The instructions were scattered through various sets of papers in the Colonial Office, but they have now been brought together, arranged chronologically, those noted only, not copied, which contained no change, variations given where these were found, and only such instructions subsequent to the first copied, where such a course seemed to be necessary. The instructions, from 1763 to 1867, are now bound in four volumes, being one each for the Province of Quebec, for Lower Canada, for Upper Canada and for the Province of Canada, after the Union of the two Provinces had been effected. A similar course has been followed with the Governors' Commissions, which were found among the Chancery Patents in the Legal Search Room of the Public Record office, each commission forming part of a parchment roll. They have been bound in one volume and, like the instructions, extend from 1763 to 1867, the date of Confederation, so that the commissions and instructions are at once accessible.

The minutes of the Executive Council are of great importance, but only a few are to be found scattered amongst the ordinary State Papers. These minutes form part of the Board of Trade Papers. Three volumes from 1764 to 1766, have been received and work is now well advanced on the others, so that investigators, when these latter have been received, will have at command a complete view of the decisions and publicly stated motives of the governing body during the period in which it existed.

A reference to the list of documents and books presented during the year will show the extent of the interest taken in the work. Among the manuscripts presented is an important collection of the correspondence of Mr. A. W. Cochrane, one of Sir George Prevost's secretaries in Nova Scotia, for which we are indebted to the thoughtfulness and consideration of the Honourable Senator Almon; Captain Bagot, grandson of Sir Charles Bagot, Governor of Canada from 1842, has sent an exceptionally valuable collection of original manuscripts, letter-books and other documents throwing light upon the events occurring during Sir Charles Bagot's administration. We are also indebted to Dr. Herbert Nelson for some interesting documents from the collection of papers in his possession.

The reports on settlements and surveys are continued in this report on the same principle as those previously given. The names of applicants and grantees being in alphabetical order, and the pages given in the calendar of each volume in which they are contained, the descendants of the original settlers need have no difficulty in obtaining all the information furnished in the reports. Much of that is, however, very meagre, although, even so, it may be found useful in tracing the descent of families making inquiries. The lists given in Note A, are those of applicants for lands before the Province of Quebec was divided and are in continuation of those in the report for 1891.

As in that report, the documents calendared cover the same period in each Province. It is, in fact, impossible to separate them without detriment to the accuracy so necessary in reports of this nature, as although certain local subjects are distinct, the general interests are so closely connected, especially in relation to Imperial concerns and to foreign governments, that this course must of necessity be followed to the date of the reunion of the Provinces, when the documents form part of one general collection, and must be treated as such when permission is obtained from the Imperial authorities to have transcripts made of the documents subsequent to 1842, to which date permission has been given to have copies made. The observations on the documents calendared or published in full in this report will, therefore, be treated as a whole, where that is required by their nature, those of a local character being treated separately.

In Lower Canada events have been brought down to the period of the arrival of Sir Robert Shore Milnes, Lieutenant-Governor, administering during the absence of General Prescott, the Governor-in-chief.

One of Sir Robert's first efforts appears to have been directed towards the increase of the revenues from the properties of the Crown, these having been granted in aid of the civil expenditure of the Province. In this view, therefore, it seems desirable to give details of the transactions with regard to these properties as affecting the finances, which in the frequent cases of deficits were supplemented by the British Government on requisition from the Governors or administrators. The conjoined rents of the St. Maurice Forges and of the King's Wharf did not exceed £20 a year on Sir Robert's arrival, but he was able to report in one of his early letters, that instead of that trifling sum, he had succeeded in raising the amount to upwards of £1,400 sterling, and that he hoped to increase the rental of the King's Posts from £400 to between £2,000 and £3,000. In regard to the King's Wharf it was determined to retain part of it for military purposes, and for the erection of a Custom-house, which the increase of trade appeared to render necessary, and instead of letting either the Wharf or the Forges by private arrangement, these and all other properties should be disposed of by public competition. The possession of the St. Maurice Forges was an object of keen rivalry between the then lessees (Messrs Monro and Bell) and the Batiscan Iron Co., each offering to give a higher rent than any that might be offered by the other company. The lessees offered an annual rent of £550 and the expenditure of £1,500 on improvements; the Bastican Iron Co. offered £800, without an obligation to expend any sum for improvements. This offer was communicated to Monro and Bell, with the notice that a fixed rent must be named, without any proposal for ameliorations, the final offer to be submitted not later than the 22nd of May, that is ten days after the date of the letter, with sufficient security. The Batiscan Company declined to make any advance on their offer of £800 and Monro & Bell, having offered £50 more than the highest rent proposed to be paid by their competitors, were adjudged the lease at £850 annual rent for five years. When the lease was about to expire, Thomas Dunn, the acting Governor, Sir Robert Milnes being absent on leave, found himself in an awkward position, as he had purchased for his sons shares in the Bastiscan Company, and fearing that whatever course he took, either to guard the revenue or to sign a lease for an insufficient amount, he would be censured, tried to throw the onus on the Executive Council, but recommended the postponement of the sale until after the arrival of the Governor or Lieutenant-Governor. In the report of the Committee of Council, reference was made to a previous report made on the 1st of May, 1805, in which two points were mentioned likely to affect the disposal of the lease, the principal being the apprehended scarcity of ore and of wood for smelting, the other being the condition that the new lessees should pay their predecessors for the moveable property on hand, to the amount of £4,000, or such other sum as might be determined by arbitration. On the other hand, the value of the property was to be largely augmented by additions to the lands included in the lease. It was further recommended that the term of the existing lease should be extended to the 1st of April, the rent (£850) remaining the same, an extension at once agreed to by Messrs Monro & Bell, who, it is stated, were willing, even anxious, to continue lessees indefinitely on the same terms. The Council further reported that the term should be extended to twenty years and that the lease should be publicly disposed of in June, 1806, (the 11th of that month being subsequently fixed upon). The recommendation by Dunn for an indefinite postponement was not agreed to, but a short delay took place on the ground that the surveys were not in such a state of readiness as to admit of the sale on the date first fixed on. On the 1st of October the sale actually took place, the lease being adjudged, after three previous bids, for £60 instead of the then existing rent of £850, Monro & Bell being the successful bidders. In communicating the result to the Colonial

Office, in a letter dated 5th November, 1806, Dunn says: "The sale.....took " place on the 1st instant, * when two bidders only appearing besides Messrs. Monro " & Bell, the former lessees, it was knocked down to the latter at sixty pounds cur- " rency per annum. Although I exceedingly lament the loss which the Provincial " revenue will sustain by granting the lease upon terms so very disproportionate to " its actual value, I should not feel myself justified in withholding it after so fair and " public a sale. I have, therefore, directed the Attorney-General to prepare the " draft of the lease accordingly, which I trust will be honoured with your approba- " tion." (Q. 100, p. 398). The answer by Mr. Windham, then Colonial Secretary, contained only a mild expression of regret at the result. The want of precaution at the sale had not, however, passed without remark. Mr. Allcock, the Chief Justice, had recommended Mr. President Dunn to have the upset price fixed at £850, and that no adjudication should be made without three bids of £25 each, but the President refused to insert such conditions. The Chief Justice adds: "This has occasioned a " good deal of murmuring and dissatisfaction throughout the town and in short " throughout the Province, because these rents had been given up by His Majesty, " for the use of the Colony and to go in aid of the Civil Government." (Q. 101-2, p. 425). However, he said, the lease was not yet signed and he would take care that the terms of the sale should be rigidly scrutinized. Lord Castlereagh, who succeeded Mr. Windham, took a much more serious view of the matter than his predecessor. In the despatch dated 4th July, 1807, His Lordship says: "With regard " to the appointment of Mr. Fargue, your stepson, to succeed Mr. Lees, as Store- " keeper in the Indian Department, I think it my duty to withhold the communicat- " ing to you any approbation of this nomination, till I shall receive a more satisfac- " tory account with regard to the letting by auction the Government Forges. It " must be evident that works which had let on lease for £850 a year, and which the " lessee offered to hold on annually at the same sum, could not have been suffered to " be disposed of for £60 a year, if due attention had been paid to His Majesty's " interests, and such a lease must be considered as unduly obtained and therefore " void. And this circumstance is the more surprising as I am well informed " that a rent of £1,500 a year might have been easily obtained and that " offers were in agitation amounting to £2,000 a year." (Q. 102, p. 256). The reports and correspondence on the subject are voluminous. On the side of Messrs. Monro & Bell, these gentlemen maintained, that there never had been a fairer sale, and argued, by implication at least, that although from circumstances they had agreed to pay a rent of £850, yet that the reduced rent of £60 a year was the real value, the notices of the sale having, as is shown by the report of the Committee of Council, been advertised not only in the Provincial but also in papers in Great Britain and the United States. In discussing the subject, Messrs. Monro & Bell say: " It must be recollected that to embark in a Manufacture of " which one is wholly ignorant, to pay down under the conditions of sale to the old " Lessees the Sum of £400 besides the value of the ore drawn and prepared for the " Consumption of the ensuing year, the vast Sum to be immediately expended in " necessary repairs, &c., require more enterprise and capital than is commonly to " be found in Canada, and We doubt much, if His Majesty's Ministers were to wish " it, and that his Courts of Justice could set aside the sale, under the indemnifications which it is not denied we should be entitled to, that any individual or set of indi-

* An error, the sale took place on the 1st October.

"viduals will be found in Canada capable of reimbursing to His Majesty that Indem-"nification, paying in the £4,000 besides the Cost of ore which by the Conditions "of the old Lease the new Lessees must pay upon getting into possession, of imme-"diately laying out the large sum of Money necessary for the future Maintenance of "the Works, and who would at the same time be willing to give even the appar-"ently small sum, as it is stated, of £60 per annum."

The statement in Lord Castlereagh's letter that £1,500 or even £2,000 a year might have been obtained for the lease, instead of the £60 actually offered, Mr. Dunn meets by a detailed account of the position and circumstances of the men who had been preparing to make such a proposition. By this statement it is made to appear that the prime mover in trying to get possession of the forges, did so "with no better views than those of a common swindler," and had secured the co-operation of men of no means, some of them respectable, but others of doubtful reputation. "Most fortunately," says Mr. Dunn, "they disagreed among themselves before the "Sale of the Lease actually took place and their project fell to the ground." There were no other men of capital in the Province, besides Monro & Bell, inclined to take up these works, and he could say from dear-bought experience, that the Batiscan Company was in no position to do so.

The importance of the increase obtained by Sir Robert Milnes, and on which he relied as one means of reducing the amount necessary to be drawn from the Imperial Government, may be estimated by the statement contained in his letter of the 1st November, 1800 (Note B, p. 14), which shows that the whole amount received at that date from the Territorial Revenues of the Crown was only £1,500, the total amount from all sources £13,199 19s. 1d. and the expenditure £25,000, showing a deficiency of almost precisely £12,000.

At Note B, is a dispatch by Sir Robert Milnes, describing the state of Lower Canada in 1800, which being printed in full need only be referred to. In the answer by the Duke of Portland, dated 6th January, 1801, (Q. 86–1, p. 3), His Grace enumerates the causes of the popular influence in Lower Canada mentioned by Milnes, and expresses the belief that no remedy can be found for the insignificant influence, in a political and social point of view, of the seigniors, except by the exertions, abilities and ambitions of the individual seigniors to emerge from that condition, aided by motives for exertion, and the holding out of all possible encouragement to those in whom suitable dispositions to take advantage of the possibilities thus afforded were to be found. In this view, therefore, His Grace was surprised that the establishment of the Canadian battalion in Lower Canada had met with no better success, its principal object having been to draw the Canadian gentlemen from their indolent and inactive habits and to attach them to the King's service. It was the intention, had any eagerness been shown to complete the first, to have formed a second and third of the same sort. Defects in the organisation of the militia are also pointed out and the remedies, but these appear to be sufficiently indicated in the calendar of the letter at Q. 86–1, p. 3.

To add to the difficulties of the position in which Milnes was placed was the opposition, according to his dispatch of the 26th of March, 1801, (Q. 86–1, p. 142) of Chief Justice Osgoode, who is charged with having laid aside all decorum and of having made use of disrespectful language towards the Lieutenant-Governor in a large private party and of having publicly violently opposed measures which he knew had received his (Milnes') decided approbation. The causes of this conduct on the part of the Chief Justice are attributed to the refusal by Sir Robert Milnes to dismiss Judge de Bonne from his seat on the Bench and to his disappointment at not being allowed to act as sole adviser and proposer of every government measure. Whoever was at fault, and the misunderstanding between the two highest officials continued till the retirement of Osgoode in 1802, the effect on the government of the Province could not be otherwise than prejudicial. The division of power between the civil and military authorities was regarded as of great disadvantage, and attention was called frequently by residents and others to the benefit that would arise to the administration of affairs were the old policy reverted to of placing the military and civil government in the hands of a Commander-in-chief. In a letter, dated the 28th July, 1806, signed "Mercator," which from a comparison of the handwriting I am inclined to attribute to Hon. John Young, a member of the Executive Council, this view is strongly urged on the attention of the Colonial Secretary, various reasons being adduced, one of these the jealousy that must and, as a matter of fact, did exist between the military and civil heads of the respective offices; the exact words of the letter respecting the other reasons it would appear proper to give in full. "The energy of the Government is not only weakened and rendered less "respectable by this unnecessary separation, but the Civil Governor is destitute of "the means of maintaining that Stile and Hospitality in which his predecessors "lived, and which, in this country, is an essential requisite to attract and to secure "Respect.

"The Canadians, a military people and always accustomed to a military govern- "ment, hold not in sufficient estimation a person placed at the head of affairs, who "does not at the same time command the troops, and a great relaxation has, of late "years, been permitted to take place amongst them. Paying no taxes, except upon "articles of consumption, they are scarcely sensible of the weight of any government, "in the present circumstances of the colony." The disputes between the Administrator and the military authorities on the death of General Hunter afford ample proof of the statement that jealousies existed, and this is confirmed by a letter from Milnes of 22nd July, 1807 (Q. 106–2, p. 425.)

On the sailing of Milnes, on leave of absence, Thomas Dunn, as President of the Council, became Administrator, but his government was not satisfactory to some, at least, of his fellow councillors. Chief Justice Allcock between whom and Milnes a good understanding did not appear to exist, following in this respect the steps of his immediate predecessor, Chief Justice Osgoode, criticised very severely the personal peculiarities of Mr. Dunn, and his want of the qualities necessary in the important situation he held (Q. 106–2, p. 386). Prescott, still the nominal Governor-in-chief and who during his active tenure of office was also commander of the Forces, sailed on the 29th of July, 1799, and was succeeded in his civil office by Sir Robert Shore Milnes, and in his military capacity by General Hunter, who arrived a few days before Prescott sailed and on the 16th August reached York (Toronto) to assume the government of that Province. The divided duties of General Hunter led to difficulties in carrying on the administration of Upper Canada, and to a difference of opinion between him and Milnes in respect to payments from the military chest and to other subjects which partook of a partly political or civil and partly military character. Hunter died on the 21st of August, 1805, the military command being assumed temporarily by Lieutenant-Colonel Bowes and afterwards by Lieutenant-Colonel Isaac Brock, between both of whom and Mr. President Dunn, there arose the same class of disputes as with General Hunter, respecting the expenditure of military funds for civil purposes. Acting apparently on the urgent representations made as to the evils arising from a divided command, the Colonial Secretary, Lord Castlereagh, informed General Prescott on the 10th of August, 1807, that the existing state of affairs rendered "it absolutely necessary that a different arrangement should "be made in respect to the government of the North American Provinces," and intimating that the King intended to send out an officer to succeed him (Prescott) in the Government. How tenderly were regarded the interests of Prescott, so far as the emoluments were concerned, in an office which so far as can be seen he had held as a sinecure for so many years, may be judged by the words announcing his supercession: "You will, I trust, feel in its true light the motives which at this "period have suggested this measure, and I lament that the imperious exigency of "circumstances should necessitate an arrangement which may interfere with your "arrangements."

The critical condition of affairs in the two Provinces that rendered this necessary is treated of in another part of this report in discussing the apprehended hostilities arising out of the desire of the French to regain possession of Canada and of the demands of the United States for the renunciation of the right of search hitherto exercised by Great Britain.

To judge by the current histories of Upper Canada, the knowledge of the domestic politics of that Province at the beginning of this century, appears to be very limited, only a few vague generalities being given. It has, therefore, been thought desirable to publish at some length the correspondence during the administration of President Grant and part of that of Lieutenant-Governor Gore. The leader of the opposition to government, appears to have been Mr. Justice Thorpe, who is referred to in laudatory terms in the histories of the Province. Without expressing any opinion as to the correctness or otherwise of this appreciation of his conduct, a reference to the correspondence in note D, will show the tone of his letters. The position of Mr. Thorpe as a hot political partisan and a judge of the highest court would not now be tolerated. At any time, however legal it might be, in the sense of not being contrary to any statute, it must have been prejudicial in its effect of undermining respect for judicial decisions, as however impartial the judge might be on the Bench, the public would regard his decisions as influenced, if not dictated, by his political tendencies. His attack on General Hunter, as having nearly ruined the Province by his rapaciousness and that he and his Scotch tools were execrated; that there were no roads, no post, no religion, no morals, no education, no trade, no agriculture, no industry attended to, was a prelude to his attacks on succeeding administrations, and in a postscript to the letter in which these words occur (note D, p. 39) he boasts that he had taken the reins of the Legislature, "though like Phaeton I seized them precipitately, I shall not burn myself and hope "to save others." In letter No. 8, of the same note D, p. 40, he repeats the charge, this time including President Grant, who had been selected for the office on the death of Hunter, although not without opposition from Mr. Peter Russell, who maintained that he was entitled to the position and in this claim was supported by Mr. Thorpe.

In 1802, Mr. Thorpe was appointed to be one of the judges in Prince Edward Island, to succeed Mr. Justice Cochrane, appointed a puisné judge in Upper Canada. He had not arrived on the island in January, 1803, when Mr. Cochrane wrote, and probably arrived in spring. He did not remain there long, and his removal seemed to be mutually satisfactory, to the islanders as well as to himself. Of the population he speaks in no favourable terms, owing, not improbably to their not paying sufficient deference to his pretensions, as may be gathered from the following passage in a letter to Mr. Cooke, the Under Secretary, dated at York, 1st October, 1805:—

"I never can be sufficiently thankful for your sending me from Prince Edward Island, the worst people in the world are there. I fear you will have more trouble than the Island can ever recompense you for. I wished to draw a bill to settle the boundaries of the townships, but it was impossible to please the various interests, and in truth they were such a set of miscreants, that what would be a satisfaction to others, would be calamity to them, and, determined to do no more, I blessed you for sending me away and departed."

At the date of the letter quoted, he could only have reached Upper Canada, for he had written to Mr. Cooke, on the 15th of the previous June from Newfoundland, applying for a seat on the Bench in Upper Canada, as successor to Allcock or Elmsley, but short as was the time that had elapsed since his arrival, he had no doubts or hesitation in giving his views on the state of affairs in the Province. "There is," he says, "no governor, no general, no bishop, no chief justice, the "Council have made a President," [Grant], but from a kind of cabal amongst them, "they have appointed a man that does not appear to be the eldest member and who "seems quite inefficient." How he regarded Lieutenant-Governor Gore may be seen from the correspondence in note D. In consequence of the determined opposition shown by Mr. Justice Thorpe, Lieutenant-Governor Gore believed it to be his duty to suspend him from his judicial functions, a step approved by Lord Castlereagh, who however, desired Gore to intimate to Mr. Thorpe that His Lordship hoped to be enabled to recommend him to some other professional situation, "under an "assurance that he will confine himself to the duty of his profession."

Previous to the confirmation of his suspension, a report had reached Quebec that he was to be transferred to the King's Bench there, on which Chief Justice Allcock thought it his duty to give his opinion to Lord Castlereagh. As the opinion of a brother judge, the passage relating to Mr. Thorpe is given in full. The Chief Justice says:

"A report prevails here (from what authority I have not the least knowledge) that Mr. Justice Thorpe is to be removed from Upper Canada to a seat in the King's Bench here. Although I did not much credit that report, I think it necessary I should inform Your Lordship, that I fear such an appointment would have the worst possible effect in this place. I have sufficient knowledge of Mr. Thorpe's conduct in the Upper Province to enable me to say that but for Lieutenant-Governor Gore's wise and decided measures, His Majesty's Government there would have had difficulties before this time to encounter of a most unpleasant nature, the whole of which I impute to Mr. Thorpe. If he was to come here and disseminate the same principles he has there, he would soon raise a faction that would annoy and distress the King's Government excessively."

The correspondence and extracts will furnish evidence of the state of politics in Upper Canada at that date and afford an opportunity to form a dispassionate opinion of the conduct of the Lieutenant-Governor on the one side and of Mr. Thorpe and his leading associates on the other. For the suspension of Mr. Thorpe was not the only active step taken to put a stop to the opposition. Other officials were also suspended. Mr. Willcocks, the Sheriff, for seditious utterances, Mr. Wyatt, the Surveyor-General, on other charges, although it seems not unreasonable to suppose that the real ground for his suspension, practically dismissal, was his adherence to Thorpe and the others. It may be stated with respect to Wyatt, that being aware his name was Charles Perkin, I had doubts as to the correctness of his signature C. B. as given in the transcripts, believing at first that this was an incorrect copy. But a comparison of a large number of his signatures shews that he always signed in this way, copies made at the time of correspondence from his office and letters addressed to him bear the same initials. Wyatt remonstrated in vain against his removal, but without effect, and in 1816, after Gore's return, he sued the ex-Lieutenant-Governor for libel. The report bears that Charles Perkin Wyatt sued Francis Gore for the publication of a false and malicious libel and for having suspended him from his office as Surveyor-General of the Crown Lands in Upper Canada, so that no doubt can exist of the identity of the plaintiff with the person who signs C. B. Wyatt. (See Annual Register, volume lviii, p. 294 of Chronicle.) By the report of the proceedings it will be seen that he obtained damages to the amount of £300, not for acts of Gore as Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada, but for a libel contained in a pamphlet published in London. Willcocks, the dismissed sheriff, joined the invading forces from the United States in the war of 1812, and made use of his local knowledge to assist the enemy; John Mills Jackson wrote a volume, inveighing against the Government of Upper Canada, which was immediately answered by a pamphlet written in equally severe terms, signed "An American Loyalist." Both of these are among the Archives, the original among the printed books, under the title "Jackson" in the catalogue, the answer among the pamphlets with the same title as a cross reference.

The right of the Governor of Upper Canada to expend the revenues of the Province without a previous legislative appropriation was firmly opposed by the Assembly. An address on the subject may be referred to in note D, p. 33 of this report. In the letter transmitting this address (Note D, p. 32), Mr. President Grant, acknowleges the justice of the demand made by the Assembly, although he thought the language intemperate, the fault, as he considered it, not arising from hostility to the acts of Government, but from a want of knowledge of the proper manner of calling attention to the subject. A schedule of the money "misapplied" was attached to the address, but it would seem from what followed that the expenditure was not so much a misapplication as a breach of the privileges of the House. The address asked that this sum (£617.13.7) should not only be replaced in the Provincial Treasury, but that the President should direct that no money should be issued from it in future "without the assent of Parliament, or a vote of the Commons House of Assembly." This course, it is evident, was thought by President Grant to be only reasonable and that the sums mentioned in the schedule should be withdrawn as charges against the taxes and duties imposed by Provincial authority, believing that the Legislature would itself appropriate the necessary amount. (The text of the letter is in Note D, pp. 32–33). To the address a conciliatory answer was returned (p. 35, the proposed answer at p. 37). Apparently the charge of inefficiency brought by Mr. Justice Thorpe against Grant as administrator was justified, as it is fully corroborated by Lieutenant-Governor Gore in his despatch to Mr. Windham, at the close of the first session of the Legislature after he had taken office. Lieutenant-Governor Gore says in his official report :—" After " the violent and turbulent conduct of the House of Assembly, during the adminis- " tration of Mr. President Grant, it affords me the highest satisfaction to inform you, " that the session has passed over without any attempt of the House of Assembly to " interfere with the measures, or to embarrass the Executive Government." This was no doubt due, in part at least, to the judicious conduct of Gore in replacing, though still without instructions on the subject, the sum applied to public purposes by the late General Hunter, without the concurrence of the other branches of the Legislature. The House was satisfied and by resolution withdrew its claim to that sum, but established the right to grant or refuse supplies, thus asserting and maintaining the great constitutional safeguard against the encroachments of the Crown on the rights of the people. Gore adds that the resolution passed without dissent, except from Mr. Justice Thorpe, " who has uniformly opposed every measure that could " promote the peace, or strengthen the hands of this Government." How long an able administrator could have prevented the assertion of such a principle, it is difficult to conjecture, nor is it now of much practical importance. The power of the purse in England as an attribute of Parliament was recognized at a very early period. In the time of Edward III. (1340-5), it was only maintained after a protracted struggle; the appropriation of supplies was gained in the time of Richard II., but the great struggle which settled the question for all time, began in the reign of James I. and continued in that of Charles I., that Parliament had the power to refuse supply until grievances were redressed and that the granting of that supply included also the supervision of the expenditure, so that whether the similar claim set up by the Legislature of Upper Canada had come sooner or later, it was inevitable that it should become a fixed principle of representative Government, there as elsewhere.

In regard to the settling of lands in Lower Canada, the Colonial Secretary had called for a report on the subject of an allowance to the Executive Councillors in addition to their salaries, as a remuneration for the time occupied and the labour involved in deciding on the applications. In answer Milnes reported on the 14th August, 1800, that the decision on petitions, " the most laborious and difficult part of the land business " had been concluded. Those who had the larger part of the labour were the Chief Justice, the Lord Bishop, Mr. Finlay, Mr. Young, Mr. Baby and Mr. Dunn. Mr. McGill had come to Quebec from Montreal for a month. He recommended that the six Councillors mentioned (excluding Mr. McGill whose loss of time and the expense he incurred in coming to Quebec must have been considerable, apart from the neglect of his important private business) should be granted a whole township with the usual conditions as to associates, &c., or half a township (exclusive of Crown and Clergy Reserves) without conditions, except the payment for survey and of the old fees. He recommended, however, that these half townships should not be granted out of the remainders of townships already granted for reasons given in a subsequent letter (Q. 85, p. 166). In this subsequent letter, dated the 4th of November, 1800, he attaches great importance to obtaining the highest price possible for the lands first sold, and adds: "As the remaining " Parts of those townships are of far the greatest value both on account of their " having been actually surveyed and subdivided, and of the settlements made in their " vicinity, the competition for them cannot fail of proving very advantageous to " Government and will probably influence very essentially the value of Lands through"out the Province." (Q. 85, p. 248.) He then refers to the proposal to fund the proceeds of the sales of these lands for the benefit of the Province, and expresses his anxiety for instructions to carry this proposal into effect. In a letter dated ——— January, 1801, (No. 11), the Colonial Secretary approved of the design to enhance the value of the townships sold, pointing out how, in his opinion, this could be best done, and directing that the proceeds of all such sales should be remitted to the Treasury for investment on account of the Provincial expenditure, further directing that no patent should issue until the whole of the purchase money had been paid. His Grace further directed that the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor or administrator and members of the Executive Council for the time being, should be constituted conservators of the Crown and Church Lands, should keep the accounts for each strictly separate and apart, the proceeds of the one to be used for the purposes of the Province and of the other for church purposes in accordance with the provisions of the Act of 1791, for the maintenance and support of a Protestant Clergy, and must, therefore, be invested in trust for these purposes and these alone. Before coming to a decision on the amount of the grant to be made to each of the Councillors engaged in the land granting department, Sir Robert Milnes was instructed to send an estimate of the value of each township. On the 24th of February, 1801, he accordingly did so, and informed the Colonial Secretary, that a township of ten miles square was calculated after excluding the Crown and Church reserves, to contain about 44,000 acres, worth on the average, for those whose outline only had been run, fifteen pence currency an acre, the total value of which, deducting the cost of survey and subdivision and the fees, was somewhat under £2,500. He further explained the method adopted to evade the regulations for granting lands to leaders and associates, by an underhand arrangement with the principal leader, by which he was able to become possessor of five-sixths of the township, or nearly 37,000 acres, instead of the 1,200 intended to be his share. As he thought it to be below the dignity of an Executive Councillor to enter into an underhand agreement, he recommended that whatever was granted should be to each solely, not in association with others, the amount granted to each to be in accordance with his attendance. In June, the Colonial Secretary informed Milnes that the King had decided to grant to each of the six Executive Councillors recommended by him, a grant of a quarter of a township without associates, yielding, after the deduction of expenses, about £600, leaving to him the determination as to what would be a fair allowance for the others.

The policy of extinguishing the feudal tenure of lands was advocated by Milnes at an early period, and an Act passed by the Legislative Assembly for the relief of holders of land en roture had his entire approval. The preamble to the Act sets forth, "That the collection of the lods et ventes, now due in His Majesty's Domain, "to a certain extent and under certain modifications, is just and expedient, but with-"out limitation would be injurious in certain cases." The text of the Act, being in the third volume of the Statutes, 41 George III., chap. 3, it is unnecessary to do more than refer to it here, the effect of it, apart from the relief of those in arrear, being that to which Milnes attached importance. "It is a measure," he says, "in every "respect of sound policy, but I consider it having been carried, as a material step "towards the abolishing in this Province the Feudal Tenure." The advantages arising from this abolition are elaborated in a report from the Attorney-General, to which reference should be made. (Q. 86–1, p. 175.) Before the bill passed the Legislative Council, Chief Justice Osgoode, the Speaker, protested against its adoption, his reasons being given under five heads, the last of which only need be quoted here, the whole being in Volume Q. 86–1, p. 172, among the archives. In this article the Chief Justice lays it down as a reason for the rejection of the bill: "Be- "cause it is an established rule as well of decency as of policy, that every act of "grace or remission emanating from the clemency or bounty of the Crown, should "originate from the Crown. But by the present Bill, which from its title purports "to be a Bill of relief, the Crown debtors will naturally transfer their gratitude from "the Sovereign to whom it is due to those who have spontaneously brought forward "the measure, namely, the representatives." For the protest, answer, proceedings in the Assembly and Council, &c., see Volume Q. 86–1, pp. 157 to 175, 197, 199.

There appears to have been a considerable amount of friction between the Chief Justice and the Lieutenant-Governor, the latter being supported by all the Executive Councillors as against Osgoode. An address by the Assembly to have a papier terrier or land roll prepared of the immoveable property held en roture within the Censive of His Majesty's Domain, was presented to the Lieutenant-Governor, who approved of the preparation and referred to the law officers the question of the method to be adopted to carry out the object. Their report was referred to a Committee of the whole Council, which agreed on a report, signed by Osgoode, as Chairman. But appended to the report was a protest by Osgoode in these terms: "Where- "as by the Documents communicated to the Committee it appears that the confec- "tion of the Papier Terrier and Censier is to be directed in consequence of an ad- "dress to His Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor from the House of Assembly, "and as a concurrence in such consequential direction may be inferred from the "above Report, I do protest against such Inference. For His Majesty not having "divested himself of the management of his territorial Revenue, and as the said Ad- "dress neither states authority nor inducement for their interference, in my judg- "ment, such interference was irregular and therefore not calculated to meet with "the sanction it has received." The report was laid before the Council, which referred it to the Committee to report on the protest added by Osgoode. The report of the Committee, after the formal introduction that the reference had been received and considered, concludes: "The Committee humbly but decidedly offer it as their "opinion that the said writing in its form and substance as well as in the mode of its "introduction is irregular and improper, that it is irrevelant (irrelevant) to the imme- "diate objects which had been referred for their Report, that in so far as it condemns "a measure which had been previously determined upon by His Majesty's Govern- "ment it fails in decorum and Respect and that it ought not to be received or admitted "to be entered or filed with the Minutes of His Majesty's Executive Council, they, "therefore humbly recommend that the said writing be expunged from the foot of "the said Report." (For the documents referred to, see Q. 86–1, pp. 205 to 217, and Q. 86–2, pp. 219 to 227.) Incidentally the question arose as to the practice of allowing protests to be entered in the Minutes of the Executive Council, Osgoode holding that the practice of the House of Lords should be followed. The matter was referred to the decision of the Colonial Secretary, who in his letter of the 13th July, approved of the course of the Assembly, as justified by Lord Dorchester's message of April, 1794, extenuated Osgoode's conduct, as proceeding from laudable motives, considers the measure as declaratory of the rights of the Crown and at the same time rendering their exercise less burdensome to the subject. The rule as to entering protests on the Minutes of the Executive Council being one of permanent interest, it may be well to give the decision, which, besides, is in very few words. The Duke of Portland, then Colonial Secretary, says: "It appears to me that no "better Rule can be laid down than that by which His Majesty's Privy Council here "is guided in similar cases. Altho' the most unreserved Liberty of Speech is allowed "to all the Members of that Board in the same manner as it is granted to the Exe- "cutive Councillors of Lower Canada by His Majesty's Instructions, I have reason "to believe that not a single Instance of a Protest is to be found on the Minutes of "the Privy Council and occasions most certainly have not unfrequently occurred "(and indeed must of necessity often occur) where the sentiments of the Members "present diametrically differ from each other. Having thus stated to you what "appears to have been the invariable Practice here in cases similar to that in which "Mr. Osgoode's Protest was entered, I think it unnecessary to enter into any dis- "cussion on the Question of a Right which has never been attempted to be exercised, "nor has ever been laid claim to." (Q. 87–1, p. 2.) A controversy had still been carried on by Osgoode, as shewn in a letter from Milnes of the 12th of June, not received by the Colonial Secretary until the 30th of July. It is unnecessary, however, to do more than to refer to that letter with its enclosures to be found in Q. 87–1, pp. 105 to 140, in which the whole question of the entering of protests on the Minutes of the Executive Council is discussed.

In accordance with the views of the Colonial Secretary, as expressed in his letter, No. 11 of January, 1801, on the policy of enhancing the value of residues of the townships that had been partly disposed of, Milnes reported on the 24th of June, 1802, (No. 23), that he had submitted the subject to Council, that it was proposed to offer, in the first intance, upwards of 82,000 acres at the minimum price of two shillings and sixpence an acre, yielding at that moderate price upwards of £10,000 for Provincial purposes, the quantity offered bearing a very small proportion to the total amount, although, it was remarked, lands already surveyed and sub-divided were much more valuable than others. The letter and proceedings of Council are in Q. 89, pp. 79, 81. The motive of offering this quantity of land is stated in the introduction to the report to be with a view of stamping a value on the land to be disposed of in future. The quantity mentioned in the letter from Milnes is 82,000 and in the resolutions of the Committee of Council, 80,000 acres. There are two clauses in the report to which attention may be drawn as they gave occasion to much complaint. These are :

"5. That the purchaser should, previous to the passing of the patent, take and "subscribe the oaths and declaration required by the Royal Instructions.

"6. That there should be a clause inserted in the patent, whereby the patentee "covenants that his Heirs, inheriting the lands so purchased, shall also take and "subscribe the said oaths and Declaration, then thereunto required."

Attention had already been called to the inconvenience that would arise to natural born subjects by the enforcement of these rules, in event of their absence or the distance of their residence from the place at which the oaths were to be administered, Milnes having pointed this out in a letter (No. 57) to the Duke of Portland, dated 11th August, 1801, in which he asked that the Governor and Council might be authorised to dispense with the taking of the oaths in certain circumstances. The request was repeated in October, 1802. (Q. 89, p. 172.) So far as the correspondence shows, no answer was made to these representations.

The establishment of two systems of law, the French and the English, in the determination of certain classes of questions led to doubts as to which was applicable to cases arising out of disputes concerning lands held in free and common soccage, the question being whether these were governed in respect to descent and dower by the laws of England or by those of Canada. The question was submitted on the 1st of July, 1803 (No. 69) by Milnes to the Colonial Secretary (Q. 92. p. 159), at the same time transmitting the various and contradictory opinions of the Judges. Chief Justice Sewell and Justices Dunn, Williams, Ogden and Davidson held that the laws of England should govern; Chief Justice Monk and Justice Panet and De Bonne took the opposite view, each of these opinions being supported by elaborate arguments, which follow the covering letter from Milnes. On the 9th of January, 1804, the Colonial Secretary transmitted the report of the Attorney and Solicitor General for his guidance, (Q. 93. p. 55, which laid it down "that the English law of "descent and dower must regulate a soccage tenure in Canada." (Q. 93. p. 194.) Much of the correspondence in regard to lands is taken up with disputes as to the division of the fees, but on this topic it is unnecessary to enlarge, the calendar will enable any one desirous to prosecute a search on this subject to obtain easy access to all the documents relating to it.

With respect to the Jesuit Estates the grant to Lord Amherst had not been completed. It was impossible to do so without creating ill feeling in all classes of the community who held that these estates had been granted exclusively for the purposes of education. Reference on this point may be made to the correspondence calendared in previous reports. One of the most important of the documents thus referred to, is a petition, dated 19th November, 1787, a translation of which was transmitted by Lord Dorchester in his dispatch (No. 50) to Lord Sydney, dated the 9th of January, 1789. (Q. 35. p. 62.) In the calendar in the report for 1890 a short summary is given of the petition, which states in emphatic terms, the claims believed to be possessed by the population of Canada to the Jesuit Estates. In the memorial signed by 195 persons transmitting the mémoire for the inhabitants it is stated that the document transmitted called in the translation "Case", also signed by 195 persons, "establishes the right of his Majesty's faithful subjects of Canada to "be educated in this College, and at the same time defines those of the Reverend "Fathers, the Jesuits, who under the antient Government were only Professors or "successive administrators thereof." The "Case" elaborates these two points in three articles, the titles of which are given in the Calendar of State Papers, Q. 35. (See report for 1890, p. 204 of calendar.) The statement and citations in the first article cover twenty-three closely written pages of foolscap in the original translation, the conclusion being in these words: "As Canadians and citizens they have a "Right therein by their Titles and the Laws; the College of Quebec having been "founded for their education, it is their Patrimony which they have cleared and Cul-"tivated; even as subjects they have a Right to a public education, which exists in "every Government. It is with truth and justice they declare that neither the Jesuits "nor their creditors have any right to dispose or confiscate the College and its depen-"dancies to the prejudice of His Majesty's faithful subjects, the Canadians." The second article treating of the causes that have deprived the Canadians of their education in the College since the Conquest, need not be enlarged on here. On the third article, the means to restore education in the College to Canadians, the statement is repeated several times that the Jesuits were only professors or managers of public property for purposes of education, the emphatic words used in one of the allegations being: "It must have been an error when it was said, that the estates and "edifice of the College for education belonged to the Jesuits, who were no more than "rectors and Professors or Managers". "Would it", the case continues, "have "entered into the generous minds of the citizens, of a hundred associates, or of any "one who had founded the College for Education, that they gave the property thereof "freely and fully to the Jesuits, who according to their Institutions could not have "it in any other manner than as dependant upon the General of the Society of all the "Jesuits throughout the Universe." The petitioners then demand that the troops should be dislodged, and prayed that a lawful meeting should be held of natives or residents in the Province, having an essential interest therein, heads of families, "for the purpose of electing a proper number to represent them as Directors or "managers of the said College and its Estates, to preserve them..... cause exactly "to be fulfilled the wishes of this laudable Foundation by soliciting the approbation "of Government and to restore the antient Professors of the College or to name others, "and regulate the recompense due to their talents and attentions." Copies of the original French petition and case (mémoire) are in volume Q. 84 beginning at page 87. In 1793, a petition was addressed to the House of Assembly by the inhabitants of Montreal, the prayer of which was to a similar effect as that in the petition from Quebec of 1787, although in a less elaborate form, and this being approved of by the Assembly a petition was forwarded by that body to the King praying that on the reversion of the Jesuit property means should be taken to apply it to the education of youth in the Province, a purpose it alleged apparently congenial to the original intention of the donors. Other documents will be found accompanying the letter from Milnes of the 31st January 1799 (No. 16) in Q. 84, p. 41; a list of these is in the calendar of that volume in the report on Archives for 1891, State Papers, Lower Canada, pages 194, 195. With the views held by the inhabitants of at least the three towns of Quebec, Three Rivers and Montreal, as shown by petitions, and there is no doubt by the rural population also, the unpopularity of the proposed grant to Lord Amherst is easily understood. In the report of the Committee of the Executive Council, a postponement of the issue of the grant is recommended until all the documents relating to the properties are laid before the King, but a further reason for the suggested postponement is to be found in the letter from Sir Robert Milnes, accompanying this report and the other documents. In it he says that he did not feel justified in submitting to the Executive Council the policy of the grant to Lord Amherst, "but they have individually acquainted me with their opinion that it "would be a most unpopular measure, and I feel that I should be wanting in my "duty were I now to omit stating to Your Grace my apprehensions that whenever "the grant shall actually pass, it will occasion very general dissatisfaction through-"out the province, the consequences of which may be greatly extended by the turn "of affairs on this continent." (Q. 84, p. 41.) He then proposes, seeing the magnitude of the estates, to divide them, giving such share as commissioners might decide to be sufficient to procure the benefit intended for Lord Amherst, which would satisfy him, the rest to be reserved for public uses, so as to satisfy the minds of the inhabitants. A personal investigation, however, into the value of the estates, made in the course of a tour during the months of January and February of 1800, led him to withdraw this proposal, as the whole of the estates did not produce such an amount as could be divided with advantage. As a consequence in a letter dated the 5th of April, of the same year, he suggests another method of carrying out the King's intentions with respect to Lord Amherst, but is even more emphatic in his recommendation to have the means of education increased, not only for young men preparing for the liberal professions, but also for the whole population. The death of the last surviving Jesuit, father Cazot, removed, in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor, one of the arguments of the House of Assembly, from which he expected no further opposition to the grant for Lord Amherst, however unpopular that measure might be. He also urges the postponement of the issue of the patent, until a more certain account of the value of the lands can be transmitted. "I feel myself "called upon," he says, "to report to Your Grace, that the absolute want of the "means of a liberal education is so severely felt that it will at all events be very "grating to the Canadians to see so large a property converted to other purposes "and that it would considerably lessen their dissatisfaction could any measures "with respect to the establishment of a college be at the same time held out to them." (Q. 84, p. 270.)

In a letter from the Anglican Bishop of Quebec, dated 19th October, 1799. (Q. 84, p. 183), His Lordship calls attention to the disadvantage under which the Province has long laboured from the want of schools, not only Grammar schools for young men intended for the learned professions, or who from their rank may hereafter fill situations of great political importance, but for a not less important branch of the community. "It is well known," he says, "that the lower orders of the people "in this Province are, for the most part, deplorably ignorant: that the very slender "portion of instruction which their children obtain is almost entirely confined, "amongst those who do not live in the towns, to the girls alone; and more especially "it is notorious that they have hitherto made no progress towards the attainment "of the language of the country under whose government they have the happiness "to live." The injurious line of demarcation thus drawn between the two sections of the community is pointed out, dividing as it did into two separate people those who should naturally form but one, and he proposes a remedy, that a certain number of able English teachers should be paid by Government and placed in each city, town and considerable village, with the obligation of teaching English gratis. This communication was referred to the Executive Council and on the 22nd was reported on by a committee, the report approved of and ordered to be entered on the minutes. The committee's report is very short, so that it may be given in full. It is in these words: "The Committee having taken into consideration the paper referred, and being duly apprised of its important tendency to promote the welfare of the Province, do most seriously recommend that the plan suggested may be agreed to." In forwarding the documents on this subject, Sir Robert suggested that a grant of lands should be made for the establishment of Grammar Schools and of a College at Quebec. This, he believed, would not only add to the popularity of His Majesty's Government, but would also be highly beneficial in a political and moral light, and especially as a means of encouraging [the use of] the English language throughout the Province. In July, the Colonial Secretary stated in a dispatch to Milnes, that the proposals of the Bishop recommended by the Council were approved of and he he was authorized to grant the necessary sums from the Provincial funds for payment of the teachers' salaries for free schools to be established throughout the Province, especially for teaching the English language, the number to be thus taught not to be limited but general. In addition schools of a higher grade were to be established on the mode of the English Public Schools, and so soon as it became expedient, other and more enlarged institutions should be founded. The effect of these proposals, which the Lieutenant-Governor had officially made public, had the happiest result according to Sir Robert's dispatch of the 23rd of February, 1801, and although the grant to Lord Amherst would always be an unpopular act, yet this was a peculiarly favourable moment for carrying it out, the order for the establishment of a competent number of free schools, &c., having had the effect of setting aside all reference to the Jesuit estates. A bill was in course of preparation in the Assembly for erecting school-houses in the different parishes, which if not opposed by the Roman Catholic clergy would probably be adopted. On the 5th of July, 1803, (Q. 92, p. 205), Milnes reported that he had referred to the Executive Council, the question of the manner of appropriating lands for education and the extent of the grants. In transmitting the report he remarked on the very extensive scale which the Committee proposed for the necessary reservations, but added that no pecuniary assistance was asked from the parent state, and that in proportion as the waste lands were rendered productive, an essential benefit must arise to the Province, trusting that for these reasons the plan would be recommended for His Majesty's consideration. The report, which accompanied this letter, considered the requirements of three classes of schools. 1. The parish schools to teach reading, writing and the keeping of accounts. 2. Grammar schools, where pupils of the middle class may learn to speak and write their mother tongue with critical precision and to acquire such a knowledge of foreign languages, living and dead, as may be useful in their future career. 3. A superior seminary or university, where youths of a higher rank may receive an education to fit them for the important and dignified stations, to which their situation in society authorized them to aspire. The first was already provided for; with regard to the second, the Committee could not think that less than eight such schools would answer the purpose, namely, one at some place below Quebec, one at Quebec, one at Three Rivers, one at Montreal, one at the new settlement on Missisquoi Bay, and three more to be afterwards distributed. Those at Quebec and Montreal should be erected immediately, as the Province did not afford the means of giving even the rudiments of a liberal education, except through one or two private schools limited in plan and uncertain in duration. A parent was obliged, therefore, to engage a private tutor, which few could afford, or to send the child to Europe among strangers at the most momentous period of life, or "lastly, must resort to the desperate expedient of sending him to the United States, that he may learn to contemn the religion and hate the Government of his native country." To establish schools at Quebec and Montreal on the model of Westminster, Winchester, and Eton, the Committee recommended the grant of lands to yield £20,000 currency for each of these two, a smaller sum might be sufficient for the other six. With regard to a university, the Committee thought it premature to formulate any plan, but recommended, that an appropriation should be made to cover any plan that might be adopted. (For report see Q. 92 beginning at page 210.)

The labours of Mr. Joseph Bouchette, as Surveyor-General, appear to make some reference to his services desirable. The duties of the office, in view of the settlement of the country were important, and for some years before the death of his predecessor, Major Holland, the infirm state of the latter's health unfitted him for the active discharge of the work for which he was responsible, but it was not until after his death that any official investigation was made as to the condition of the office, consideration for his merit and past services preventing such an examination. When it was at last made, the committee of the Executive Council, to which it was entrusted, reported that the office was in an unsatisfactory condition, and that the system adopted by Major Holland's assistant would, there was reason to apprehend, give rise to much litigation, and Sir Robert Milnes says, "it will require a person of much ability, as well as of great integrity, to establish such a system in the department for the future, as shall equally ensure the rights of the Crown and of individuals." Such a one was found in the person of Mr. Bouchette, to whom the commission of Deputy Surveyor-General was given, in room of Collins deceased, and the manner in which from the first he managed the affairs of that important department is best shown by quoting the words of the Lieutenant-Governor in his dispatch of 22nd April, 1802. "Mr. Bouchette," he says, "has fully answered the expectations "which were formed of him both by the Committee and myself, so that since his ap- "pointment, every facility has been given to that part of the public business which "relates to the granting of the waste lands of the Crown." (Q. 88, p. 70.)

Joseph Bouchette whose appointment to the office of Deputy Surveyor-General was made on the 15th of February, 1802, was the son of a Canadian, as stated by Simcoe in a letter to Lord Pelham of the 2nd May, 1802, to whose fidelity Lord Dorchester trusted his personal safety and in that the preservation of Canada, during the American Rebellion. He commanded the naval force on the lakes of Upper Canada, a post of great anxiety and inadequate profit, in which he conducted himself with great integrity. (Q. 90, p. 289.)

Joseph had from an early age been actively employed in different capacities. In 1791, he was a provincial land surveyor and a draughtsman under his uncle, Major Holland. In 1794, he received a commission as lieutenant in the Provincial navy, serving for five years, part of which time he was in command of one of His Majesty's vessels and saved during that time H.M.S. "Onondaga" off York (Toronto) harbour when deserted by the officers and crew. He was employed in hydrographic surveys of the harbours of Lake Ontario by Simcoe, to his entire satisfaction, and was for some time in command of a row galley on the St. Lawrence, with a detachment of troops to guard against apprehended hostile attempts. Besides the naval, he was also engaged in military service, was lieutenant, adjutant, and instructor of the Canadian militia at Quebec and was subsequently appointed to the command of an artillery company. As already stated, he was appointed Deputy Surveyor-General in 1802, and promoted to the rank of Surveyor-General in 1804, in which capacity he perfected a system of survey and alleged, the correctness of which statement there seems no reason to doubt, that in the three years he had transacted more business than was done in the twenty years preceding.

The promotion to the office of Surveyor-General was actually made by the Lieutenant-Governor in the month of August, 1803, but the appointment was not officially approved of by the Ministry until 1804, although Mr. Bouchette was in the active discharge of the duties of his office during the interval. The establishment was then very limited, and in November, of 1804, the Council recommended the appointment of two clerks and a messenger, the total establishment, in addition of course to the Surveyor-General himself; the salaries recommended were for the one clerk ten shillings a day, and for the other £150 sterling a year, the charge for the messenger to be £40 a year, but that was to include the cost of his board to be provided by the Surveyor-General. These sums, the Committee were afraid, might beconsidered extravagant, but it was hoped they would be sanctioned and "not be thought too much for the purpose of procuring and attaching persons who can be depended on in the public service." On the 2nd of May following, the arrangements and expenditure were sanctioned. (Q. 97. p. 38.)

Whilst in London in 1807, Mr. Bouchette urgently called attention to the importance of having the boundary between the Province of Lower Canada and the United States determined, and pointed out in plain terms the difficulties that would arise were this not settled. But the boundary was not settled for nearly forty years later, the two countries being repeatedly on the verge of war from disputes arising out of this question. A reference to the memorandum he submitted may be found interesting, if not now useful. It is in Q. 106-2 p. 437, followed by extract from a speech of the Governor of Vermont, indicating the claims set up by that State. Some days after, he sent the "Heads of a plan of defence respecting the two Canadas." (Q. 106-2, enclosed in letter of 9th August, p. 479.) In the latter end of August, 1807, he left London to take ship at Portsmouth, but was too late and went on to Plymouth; there he could only find a ship bound for St. John, N.B., a misfortune which was afterwards of great advantage. He anticipated a laborious and expensive journey across the country to get to Quebec, although affording him an opportunity of acquiring a more correct knowledge of that communication. How thoroughly his anticipations in this latter expectation were verified, is shown in the topographical description of the various provinces, which he published in 1831, and although it is now fully sixty years since that date, the work is still regarded as an authority on the topography of the country, including the two Canadas and the Maritime Provinces.

The subject of immigration, by name, was little noticed by the Legislatures of either Province, the object of granting the lands to individuals being their settlement by private effort. The list of applicants for lands published at the end of each volume calendared and in the notes in this and previous report, may assist in determining with what success these efforts met. But certain causes and individuals may be noted, as affecting this object.

Colonel Thomas Talbot, who had been in Upper Canada with Lieut.-Governor Simcoe left the Province in 1794, having had a promise of the grant of an extensive tract of land. On his return in the spring of 1801 he, however, found that the promise had not been fulfilled and wrote to the Duke of Kent to that effect. He had arrived, he said, at his favourite settlement (the letter is dated from Skittiewaabaa, Upper Canada) and had found his situation all he could have wished. In order to avoid payment of the fees under the new regulations, which rendered the possession of lands more expensive and difficult than when he left, he asked the Duke to adopt a plan which he points out, as he thought he was equally entitled to the rank of Hidalgo as other adventurers in a new country. The plan he proposed to the Duke was to obtain for himself the grant by royal patent of the Township of Houghton in the County of Norfolk on Lake Erie, or any adjacent township not granted, exempt from fees and obligations of settlement; then to transfer the patent to him (Talbot), transmitted through the proper channel to have the provincial deeds made out for possession. He mentioned the Township of Houghton as being near his place of residence, this would place "the once gay Tom Talbot" under great obligation; he was out, he said, every morning at sunrise in his smock frock, felling and burning the forest to form a farm, and adds: "Could I but be seen by some of my St. James' friends when I come home to my frugal supper, as black as any chimney sweeper, they would exclaim, what a damned blockhead you have been Tom, but no, as I actually eat my homely fare with more zest than I ever did the best dinners in London." (Q. 291, p. 517.) The Duke of Kent made the application, but not in the form asked for by Colonel Talbot, but for a direct grant free from the fees, &c., on the ground that the grant had been promised in Simcoe's time, and through oversight not carried into effect. A similar application had been made to the Duke of Cumberland, and the reasons for the refusal of both of the royal brothers to make such a request to the King, throws a curious light on the relation between George III. and his sons. Writing to Lord Hobart on the 11th of October, 1801, the Duke of Kent states the difficulty felt by Colonel Talbot with respect to the obligations he would incur, and says: "To obviate this, from his ignorance of the difficulty there is "for any of His Majesty's sons to address him with a request of any sort, but more "especially of the nature of that which he points out, he has made an application to "my Brother to ask for a township in his own name to be hereafter transferred to him. "But this is quite out of the question, for the Duke of Cumberland by no means "wishes that his name should appear in this transaction." Both of the royal Dukes, however, were anxious that Talbot's wishes for exemption should be granted, for which the Duke of Kent believed there was sufficient justification. The request was complied with, and an order sent that steps should be taken to carry it out. On the 27th October, 1802, Colonel Talbot proposed to Mr. Sullivan a government scheme for attracting settlers to Upper Canada, which he offered to superintend and direct. (For statement of Talbot's services, see Simcoe's letter of 11th February, 1803. Q. 296, p. 286.) In the spring of 1803, he was granted the land he asked for, but as accounts are to be found in printed form of his proceedings, it is unnecessary to enter into them more fully here.

The exertions made by Lord Selkirk to promote emigration are well known, and his publications on the subject are accessible. In 1802, His Lordship laid before Government proposals for an extensive emigration from Ireland to Canada. His proposal (Q. 293, p. 172), was to establish a colony, expressly for Irish Catholics in some unoccupied part of North America, where everything should be arranged to suit their religious and national prejudices, that encouragement should be held out to settlers and the expense of their passage be paid from the public purse. Were the plan adopted he would undertake to settle the proposed colony, and if Government would defray the expense of their passage, he would pledge himself to procure any number of settlers that might be deemed advisable. In supplementary observations, sent a few days later, he suggested that the proper place for the colony should be in the neighbourhood of Lake Winnipeg. The obstacle to this was the monopoly of the Hudson's Bay Company, for which he proposed a remedy. (Q. 293, p. 178, see also letter p. 169.) The letter was addressed to Lord Pelham who transferred it to Lord Hobart with notes by Mr. King, who did not agree with the scheme, as he did not think colonizing en masse would do, nor that new districts or separate colonies could be formed. Every person settling must be under the laws and executive authority of the Province. As for the fur trade, it took good care of itself and there was a "salutary neglect" which beat all the care in the world. This particular proposal, therefore, came to nothing.

In the meantime an intended emigration from the West Highlands of Scotland, under whose direction does not appear, was reported by the collector and comptroller of Customs at Fort William, but the Board of Customs in Edinburgh appear to have placed such obstructions in the way as to prevent the emigration from taking place.

In July, 1802, Lord Selkirk applied for lands at the Falls of St. Mary (Sault Ste. Marie), and also for a grant in Prince Edward Island. In August, he entered into details of his plans; he would make it his study, he said, to learn the means of finding German settlers, of Scotch he had no doubt of securing a sufficiency, as great numbers were about to emigrate from the Highlands, but was sorry to learn on a visit there that so many had gone to Carolina and others were preparing to follow next year. He could not absolutely state the number of people he could settle, but if terms were not unfavourable he could engage in a few years from 800 to 1,200 families, and if he should obtain the grant of the minerals he would not scruple to undertake still more. (Q. 293, p. 219.) In accordance with this proposal His Lordship sent an agent to examine the situation at the Falls of St. Mary, who was recommended to the protection of General Hunter by Lord Hobart. In November, His Lordship wrote that he had succeeded in overcoming to some extent the habit of the Highlanders to go to whatever place their friends had settled, from which cause so great a proportion went still to Carolina and New York. On condition he accompanied them, 100 families had consented to accept his offers, who otherwise would have gone to Carolina. (Q. 293, p. 256.) Lord Selkirk's plans for emigration it seems unnecessary to trace further. His pamphlet respecting Highland Emigration and the settlement of Prince Edward Island published in 1805, will furnish information of the ideas he entertained on this subject.

In March, 1803, Lord Hobart informed General Hunter, that a body of Highlanders, mostly Macdonnels and partly disbanded soldiers of the late Glengarry Fencible Regiment, with their families and connections, were about to follow to Upper Canada some of their relations already settled there. Their merit and services, His Lordship said, give them strong claims to every mark of favour and consideration, and he had no doubt they would prove as valuable settlers as their connections now residing in the district of Glengarry "of whose industry and general good conduct very favourable representations have been received here." (Q. 294, p. 141). In an undated letter (endorsed as written from Edinburgh in March, 1804), the Reverend Alexander MacDonell wrote to Mr. Sullivan, that as his suggestion had been agreed to of keeping "Scots Catholics" in Canada entirely under the spiritual direction of pastors selected from among their own countrymen, who had been educated in Great Britain, and that a wish had been expressed that he should assume the direction accordingly, he was ready to sail in the first vessel from the Clyde, and could take a well qualified schoolmaster with him, should Government decide to defray the expense. The proposed emigration in a body of the disbanded soldiers of the Glengarry Fencibles was prevented by unexplained circumstances, but the Reverend Alexander MacDonell did not on that account abandon his determination to join his countrymen settled in Glengarry in Upper Canada, and Lieut.-Governor Hunter was instructed to give him every assistance that was possible, which he replied should be attended to on the arrival of Mr. MacDonell, at the same time expressing his disappointment that the disbanded soldiers had been prevented from coming. The Glengarry Fencible Regiment, he said, "served some short time under my command in Ireland in 1798, when I found them to be a remarkably well-behaved and well-disposed set of people." (Q-299, p. 49.)

Mr. MacDonell arrived in Upper Canada during the summer of 1804, with, to quote his own words, "instructions from Lord Hobart to take upon him the spiri-"tual charge of the Scotch Highland Catholics settled in the Province." He was to fix his residence in the Highland Settlement of the Eastern District, that is in Glengarry, but to visit occasionally other Highland settlements. The memorial from which this is taken describes Mr. MacDonell as "Chaplain to His Majesty's late Glengarry Regiment." The object of the memorial was to obtain the assistance promised by Government to enable Mr. MacDonell to procure a few clergymen and schoolmasters of their own countrymen for the Highlanders, and to call attention to the great extent of the work thrown on him, which it was impossible he could perform alone. Besides those at his own immediate place of residence, there were settlements at York, Kingston, Niagara, Johnstown and Newcastle. In the Eastern District, the Highland settlement included the whole tract between the St. Lawrence and the Ottawa, composing the Counties of Glengarry, Stormont and Prescott, with a population of 10,000 rapidly increasing. (Q. 305, p. 4, see also the account by Bishop MacDonell of the settlement of Glengarry, among the Archives. The catalogue of the printed books may be referred to under the title "MacDonell," and under the same title is a statement among the manuscripts series M.)

In 1803, a proposal was made for a Swiss settlement in Upper Canada, in 1805 Sir George Mackenzie made inquiries as to the prospect of sending a number of his tenants there, and in 1807 a petition was sent by Lancashire labourers for assistance to emigrate, but, so far as the documents show, no result followed these movements.

Great importance was evidently attached to the cultivation and preparation of flax and hemp to be used for cordage for the Royal Navy. The correspondence relating to both Provinces clearly establishes this fact. The most liberal encouragement was given to persons who intended to enter on its cultivation, and premiums were offered of considerable amounts for the best samples sent to Britain. Some remarks on this subject may be found in the report for 1891, pp. xlii and xliii.

The sums proposed to be invested in this industry were comparatively large. Mr. Philip Robin, junior, of the Island of Jersey (presumably one of the family of Robin, Pipon & Co., engaged in the fisheries) proposed to invest £10,000 sterling in the cultivation and preparation of hemp, should sufficient encouragement be offered by Government. The attention of Mr. Robin, it was stated by Messrs. LeMesurier, who forwarded his application and engaged to become security for the fulfilment of his engagements, had long been directed to this object, but the length of time required before returns could be received had hitherto deterred him from turning this knowledge to account, so that it was necessary for Government to assist with advances during the first years. He desired that all the transactions should be between him and the Imperial Government owing to the failure of all previous attempts made under the supervision of the Provincial authorities. This latter statement is not borne out by the correspondence, as the Colonial Secretary writing some months after the date of the application on behalf of Mr. Robin, expresses his satisfaction at the progress made and hoped that the Legislature would take measures to promote effectually this very important object. In accordance with this desire on the part of His Lordship, an Act was passed in the following session, and the subject, says Sir Robert Milnes, was taken up with considerable spirit in the districts of Quebec and Montreal, in which committees had been established, which had jointly issued instructions in English and French, "On the mode of cultivating and preparing hemp," shorter instructions being published in the Official Gazette by the Montreal Committee, with the following advertisement, in English and French as are all the documents issued by the committees. "Notice is hereby given "to persons inclined to raise Hemp, that seed will be delivered gratis, at Quebec and "Montreal, to such persons as will engage to sow the same, not exceeding two and "one-half bushels to one person, and that nine pence per pound will be paid for "good clean Hemp of the growth of Lower Canada, equal to samples of Russia clean "Hemp, to be seen at Quebec and Montreal and delivered on or before the 30th Sep-"tember, 1803, and twelve shillings and sixpence per bushel for good ripe Hemp Seed "delivered on or before the 1st January, 1803." The Act (George III., 1802, Cap. V.) provides for the application of £1,200 currency, to enable the inhabitants "to enter "on the culture of hemp with facility and advantage." Premiums were also offered by societies, and at page xliii of the Report for 1891, already referred to, it will be seen that in 1804, Mr. Isaac Winslow Clarke, Chairman of the Montreal Committee, received the gold medal from the Society of Arts &c., for hemp grown in Lower Canada, the other medals being awarded to Upper Canadians.

That the interest in the subject was widespread is apparent from the evidence afforded by the correspondence. Sir Joseph Banks, the President of the Royal Society and a man of distinguished attainments, in reply to a reference from the Board of Trade, gave some information that will help to account for the abandonment of this industry in the Canadas, in spite of every effort to foster and encourage its prosecution. In respect to the probability of obtaining a supply from the British Colonies in America he is not hopeful. On this head he quotes from a communication from Stephen Shairp, Esq., which says: "In countries where the hemp is "grown, the peasants are glebi adscripti" [serfs], "whence it is that no large farms can "exist there and hired labourers are not easy to be procured. Hemp, therefore, is "seldom cultivated in large fields, but generally in small patches near the house of the "peasants each of whom raises as much as he thinks he can, with the assistance of his "family, prepare for the market, and no more." Mr. Shairp gives further details respecting the mode of collecting for the market, &c., and after pointing out the immense value of this industry to Russia, adds: "A stoppage of this trade would "paralyze the Empire in every vein, for it extends to the most minute ramifications." Hence Sir Joseph concludes that the exportation of hemp from Russia cannot be stopped under any conceivable circumstances, and that however low the price paid to the British or Colonial producer, Russian hemp will be offered at a still lower rate. Sir Joseph then enters into calculation of the cost, founded on those made by Chief Justice Elmsley for Upper Canada, and shows that the price when delivered for the Navy is greatly in excess of that at which Russian hemp can be obtained. His final conclusion is that hemp should not be grown in a populous country, as for every ton raised there is a deduction of sixteen quarters (128 bushels) from the food of the inhabitants. (The letter in Q. 90, p. 323, may be read with advantage, as it shows how impossible it was then, and it is to be presumed even now, to compete in the market with hemp of Russian growth, the hemp produced in Canada being at present restricted to that grown in small quantities on a limited area.

The reports of the ropemakers (Q. 93, pp. 151, 154) agreed as to the tensile strength of the hemp, which for some purposes was, they considered, better suited than any other, but the imperfect manner in which it was prepared for the market seriously diminished its value.

Among the applicants for land to be set apart for him as a bounty for raising hemp was Philemon Wright, the founder, it may be said, of the lumber industry on the Ottawa, and whose descendants still occupy positions of note in that district. His application was for Kettle Island, opposite Templeton, a few miles below the present City of Ottawa, and so much fit land in the townships of Hull and Templeton as could be found for the cultivation of that plant. The committee, however, in view of the prohibition either to grant, or to give leave to occupy, islands, refused the first part of the petition and adjourned the consideration of the second. The proposals made by Mr. Wright were: 1. To engage to sow 100 acres in ten years or less, 10 acres to be sown next spring (1803). 2. To erect a water or horse mill for preparing the hemp. No return to be asked for the loan of the seed for the first season, a grant of 10,000 acres of arable land on the Grand or Ottawa River, independent of the premium or other encouragement offered by Government. He pointed out the great expense that must be incurred by erecting mills and procuring workmen from New England, and urged that if his proposals were agreed to, the land should be set apart at once so that he could have it prepared without delay for cultivation.

The counter propositions of the Committee were: That Mr. Wright should raise hemp in the township of Hull for ten years to the extent of ten acres annually and receive 200 acres for each ton of good merchantable hemp delivered and inspected, but the amount on which the grant is to be based is not to exceed 100 tons (that is 20,000 acres as the maximum); he could sell the hemp to the best advantage; he was to receive no additional bounty from the Provincial or British Government, but that did not debar him from receiving premiums offered by agricultural societies or any other private bounty. The Committee recommended that 20 bushels of seed should be advanced for the first crop, to be returned next year if required, Mr. Wright agreed to the counter proposals, so far as regarded the annual sowing of ten acres, but asked leave to modify his proposals after a year's experience. The plan proposed by Mr. Wright of sowing in drills, was negatived by the Lords of Trade on the ground that whilst better seed might be produced, the expense of cultivation would be increased and the quality of the fibre injured by the plants sending out numerous side shoots, the broadcast system and thick sowing being the best to pursue. Other applicants in Lower Canada will be found mentioned in the calendar, a reference to which will enable investigators to obtain access to the text of the documents.

In Upper Canada a similar disposition was shown to enter upon the cultivation of hemp. Colonel Talbot, the founder of the Talbot settlement, selected the township of Yarmouth in Western Canada, now Ontario, as suitable for its growth, and proposed to extend its cultivation through the whole township. So far as the volumes calendared in this report are concerned, the references to the cultivation of hemp in Upper Canada are few and the information meagre, yet the proof that it was engaged in to a certain extent is undoubted, one of the evidences being the giving of medals to farmers in Upper Canada by the Society of Arts, etc., for the quality of hemp produced. (See Report for 1891, p. xliii.)

The question of impressment only comes up incidentally, although it was carried to a high degree, many of the vessels in Quebec being left so short-handed that their sailing late in the season was attended with very serious danger owing to the weakness and consequent inefficiency of their crews. Nor were the seamen taken without resistance, so that bloodshed was frequent, and occasionally a life was taken, of which an instance may be found in the calendar of a previous report. Even the protection afforded by law in the case of persons specially exempted from being thus kidnapped was not always sufficient to preserve their liberties, the press gang not caring to distinguish too closely between those who might and those who might not be pressed into His Majesty's naval service in time of war. Two cases are mentioned in the documents calendared in this report. One reported on by Sir Robert Shore Milnes in his letter of the 15th of November, 1804, (Q. 96, p. 2) was that of John Queen, apprentice to a hatter named John Digouard at Quebec, a boy under eighteen and who had never been at sea. He had been carried off by the press gang of H.M.S "Orpheus," and the Lieutenant-Governor applies for his return and for the redress which he holds to be due for such a violation of law. The other case was that of a son of Judge Panet, who had been pressed in London, two years before, and was serving still as a common seaman on board H.M.S. "Excellent" in the Mediterranean. Sir Robert stated that he had already made application for the return of the young gentleman through private channels and now wrote officially. (For the danger to the navigation of merchant vessels caused by the practice of impressing, reference may be made to this letter Q. 96, p. 2.) In consequence of the representation made by Milnes, Lord Camden took immediate steps to have the young man delivered up, and on the 22nd of May he was informed that young Panet had been discharged from the "Excellent." What became of Queen is not on record.

The difficulty of obtaining means to build Gaols and Court-houses in Lower Canada was attempted to be overcome by lotteries for raising the necessary funds. But the proposals to that effect were not agreed to. The substitutes that could be made use of as places of detention were not satisfactory; as they neither afforded security for the custody of the prisoners, nor the shelter that humanity required. In 1796, the Grand Jury of Montreal, whose attention had been called to the subject by an indictment laid before them against the gaoler for the escape of prisoners, visited the gaol and in a presentment at the September term of 1796, represented that the outside walls of the building were so decayed as to be not only insufficient for the safe custody of prisoners, but that it was absolutely impossible to make them secure without being rebuilt. The Grand Jury of Quebec made a similar presentment respecting the gaol there, entering into minute details of its condition. The occupants of each floor were described, some under sentence for aggravated crimes, murder, &c., others confined for venial offences, but all shut up together. The jurors, after enumerating the sufferings endured by the prisoners from cold in the severe weather, called for the interference of Government to establish a properly arranged gaol, in which a division of the prisoners could be made, and the sentence of hard labour be carried into effect. The presentment further alleges, that these prisoners suffer no other punishment than deprivation of liberty, "their friends or "relations being allowed to carry them all sorts of provisions, and from their remaining so long in a state of idleness, mixed as they now are with other offenders, they "are in great danger of leaving the gaol at the period of their confinement more "hardened in vice than when they were committed."

In 1804, the Grand Jury of Montreal made another presentment, which gives a picture of the state of the gaol, which, if correct, showed plainly the necessity for a new building, and of its correctness there is no reason to doubt. The presentment states: "That the present gaol is only the ruins of the former one, which was "burned, repaired and patched up in such a manner that the prisoners are sheltered "from the inclemency of the weather, but by no means prevented from going out "of it whenever they feel so inclined." The exposure of the inhabitants to all sorts of outrage is represented as a strong reason for a new gaol being built, and the assistance of the court is requested to obtain the remedy so imperatively required. The Chief Justice, Monk, forwarded the presentment to the Lieutenant-Governor, with a recommendation that its prayer should be given effect to, and Sheriff Gray was asked for a report on the subject. From this report it appears that the same building had existed under the French rule, that it had then, as well as subsequently, suffered from fire, and that although the sum of £615 had been recently expended on repairs it was still inadequate to the security of prisoners.

In accordance with the reports, &c., an Act was passed in 1805, by which Commissioners were appointed to have a gaol erected in each of the cities of Quebec and Montreal, the cost in each case being restricted to £9,000 currency, the amount required to be levied by duties on goods imported into any part of the Province. On the question of erecting the gaols in these two cities, there was no difference of opinion in the House of Assembly, but on that of the ways and means for carrying out the object proposed, a discussion at once arose, the members of the Assembly connected with trade being urgent for the imposition of a land tax, the land-holders, English and Canadian maintaining that the amount required should be raised by means of import duties, which latter proposal was embodied in the Bill. Petitions were then sent to Legislative Council by the merchants of Quebec and Montreal against the Bill and leave asked to plead at the Bar of the House which was refused, and the Bill passed the Upper Chamber unanimously. The Lieutenant-Governor was then petitioned to reserve the Bill for His Majesty's consideration, but on the report of the Attorney-General, to whom the question was referred, it was decided to grant the royal sanction without reservation, and the Bill became law. For the arguments for and against the policy of imposing import duties, reference may be made to the letter of Sir Robert Milnes of the 12th of April, 1805, (No. 22), in which a very full account of the discussions is given, as well as of his own reasons for giving his assent. (Q. 97, p. 59.) Copy of the petition of the merchants of Montreal to the Council against the Bill is in Q. 99, p. 100, that from the merchants of Quebec to Milnes, being a duplicate of that from Montreal, has not been copied. In view of the importance attached to this impost by the mercantile community reference may be made to the memorial by merchants in London trading to Canada for the disallowance of the Bill in Q. 99, p. 285, the covering letter from Mr. Inglis of the firm of Phyn, Inglis & Co., being at p. 284.

In the previous reports information was given respecting canals for the transport first of military stores and afterwards of merchandise, some additional papers on that subject are calendared in this report. Among these is a memorandum by Sir Alexander Mackenzie on navigation by the Upper St. Lawrence. His proposal made in the most general terms is contained in Q. 293, p. 120, but no plan of any kind is suggested, beyond the fact of the feasibility of opening a navigation from Montreal to Lake Ontario, with a length of canal of fourteen miles, of easy construction, as against upwards of ninety miles from Albany to the same lake, and he urges men of capital in London, who would no doubt be appealed to for means to carry on so vast a work as the latter, for which the resources of the projectors in the United States were inadequate, not to be tempted to assist a foreign, to the detriment of the mother country. Colonel Mann, commanding the Royal Engineers, to whom the proposal was referred, remarked on its vagueness, but agreed that at a moderate cost such a system of navigation as was proposed by Sir Alexander Mackenzie was practicable, the improvement in navigation being in many places of easy accomplishment even without the expense of canals or locks, but he attached the greatest importance to the construction of the canal from Montreal to Lachine. He assumed, an assumption that appears to be forced and non-natural, that Sir Alexander, in speaking of a canalage of fourteen miles, means that distance in a continuous line, and needlessly controverts such a statement. "It is possible," he says, "he may mean the sum of all the different lengths to be cut through at "different places may not exceed fourteen miles," which to those who know the ground, and Colonel Mann was one of these, would appear to be precisely what Sir Alexander did mean. Colonel Mann's condition, before giving an estimate of the cost and of the time necessary for the accomplishment of the work, that the propositions should be very explicit, was but reasonable. The result of cutting a canal across a neck of land above the Cascades, he stated to have been satisfactory, as the cost would soon be repaid out of the tolls, but doubted very much if this would follow the construction of fourteen miles of canals and locks, a doubt which he attributed to his want of commercial knowledge, as a reason for his diffidence in pronouncing an opinion. Whatever may have been Sir Alexander's exact plans, his scheme has been substantially carried out with the addition of the Lachine Canal to which Colonel Mann attached so much importance. The communication between Lake Ontario and Montreal, besides that from the Upper Lakes by the Welland Canal, has been completed on a liberal scale, enlargements of the canals and locks having been made more than once, and the navigation otherwise improved. Reference may be made respecting canal projects to the reports on Archives for 1886 and 1890.

The state of religion, so far as Protestants were concerned, was not satisfactory either in Upper or Lower Canada. The first Anglican Bishop complained frequently and bitterly of the treatment accorded to the Church of England. In his letter of the 6th of June, 1803, (Q. 92, p. 253), printed in full at note C., in this report, he draws a comparison between the position of the Roman Catholic Church and the Church of England in Lower Canada, in which he says: "Compared with the re-"spectable establishments, the substantial revenues and the extensive powers and pri-"vileges of the Church of Rome, the Church of England sinks into a merely tolerated "sect, etc.," and calls attention to the use of the title of Bishop of Quebec by the Roman Catholic dignitary, his official title being, he states, "the superintendent of the Church of Rome," who under the immediate sanction of the Pope's Bull has entered upon his episcopal functions, and exercises without control all the patronage and other privileges attached to the rank of a Bishop. (See the letter referred to and Appendices B, C and D.) An interesting conversation and report of a second will be found between Mgr. Plessis and Attorney-General Sewell, beginning at page 23 of Note C., and reference may also be made to the other documents printed in in that note. In forwarding the two reports from the Attorney-General of the versation between him and Mgr. Plessis, the Coadjutor, Sir Robert Milnes st that both the Bishop and Coadjutor would accept the terms offered, and forwa petition from Mgr. Denaut, the Roman Catholic Bishop, praying that he and successors should be civilly recognized as Bishops of the Roman Catholic Churc Quebec, "and enjoy such prerogatives, rights and temporal emoluments as Y "Majesty shall graciously attach to that dignity." (The petition, with a translatio at the end of Note B.) In the letter of the 4th of July, 1805, (No. 28), forwar this petition, Sir Robert Milnes wrote, in reference to the application by the Bis for an increase to his allowance, that as a condition precedent to such an incr "he shall implicitly conform to the 44th article of His Majesty's instructions, w "requires that no person whatever shall have the cure of souls without a license "had and obtained from the Governor, etc., and which hitherto has never beer "forced, but which I was directed by His Grace the Duke of Portland to endeavo "effect by every means which prudence can suggest." Further on in the same le he says, "I have every reason to believe that both the Bishop and Coadjutor w "not hesitate in accepting the terms, if it were not for their dread of the pop "clamour, and their fear of being accused of relinquishing the pretensions of t "Church for considerations of private advantage, scruples which I have little d "they will lay aside, if the object is steadily followed up." The letter of Milnes f which these are extracts has been very fully calendared, and deals besides questions relating to the Bishop, with that of the properties held by the semina with reports attached dealing with both subjects. It may be added that Denaut died on the 18th of January, 1806, and was succeeded by Mgr. Plessis, C jutor, who took the prescribed oaths on the 27th of the same month, M. P being appointed to the office of Coadjutor and taking the oaths on the 8th of Fe ary following, although at first some doubts were entertained as to the propriet M. Panet's appointment.

In compliance with repeated representations on the subject of the wa church accommodation for the Protestant inhabitants of Quebec, made by the Bishop, to which a slight reference was made in the report for 1891, the Colc Secretary, the Duke of Portland, wrote to Milnes, as there stated, on the 24t July, 1799, authorizing the building of a Metropolitan Church at the seat of Gov ment, on the site of the late Church of the Recollets, and to apply for that pur a sum not to exceed £400 annually, having no doubt that the inhabitants would tribute to the extent of their means towards the accomplishment of so laudabl object. As the law did not authorize the collection of tithes, it was the duty of Provincial Legislature to make some provision for the officiating clergy. T means, however, he believed would be more easily found than suitable persons the office, a point on which he was in correspondence with the Society for the pagation of the Gospel. How correct was this view may be seen by a referenc the Calendars for both Provinces, which show the almost impossibility of obtai efficient clergy for the parishes as they were formed.

A commission was appointed to superintend the building of the Metropol Church at Quebec, and in June, 1800, the commissioners reported that they fixed on a plan and obtained estimates of the cost, which amounted to £4,925 19s lependent of several articles unprovided for. These were: the steps, the pu reading desk and clerk's desk; balustrade before the altar; enclosure walls; pay of master mason. In the report it is stated that the extent of the building necessary for the accommodation of the congregation, civil and military, had not been exceeded, nor was the material used other than a proper degree of stability demanded. The Commissioners, it continues, "have not aspired to ornament, but have directed their "views merely to decent simplicity." (Q. 85, p. 198.) The dimensions of the proposed church were to be 130 feet long, 60 feet broad, and 34 feet high from the basement. (P. 200.) The Commissioners further represented that the estimate so far exceeded the means at their disposal, that a more ample sum in the first instance, had become necessary, the additional expense caused by frequent interruptions to the work would, they hoped, excuse them from the charge of presumption. Sir Robert Milnes, in forwarding this memorial, supported its prayer, having already in his letter of 12th November, 1799, (No. 11), when he submitted the names of the Commissioners forewarned the Colonial Secretary that little could be effected from private contributions, and that in the climate of Quebec, it was necessary to advance a considerable sum the first year, so that the building might be in a sufficient state of forwardness to secure it from being damaged by the inclemency of the winter. (Q. 84, p. 4.) He represented also, in his letter of October, 1800, the "singular attention" paid by the Lord Bishop and the other Commissioners to keep the expense down to the lowest point possible. (Q. 85, p. 196.) Should the grant, he continues, be restricted to £400 a year, the time occupied in completing the building, at the cost shewn by the estimates, would be twelve years. In the meantime the foundation had been laid and some part of the additional materials purchased for continuing the work, these operations having been rendered possible by the payment to the Commissioners of £800, that is the allowance for two years. In January, 1801, the Colonial Secretary, in view of the enhanced cost that would be caused by delay, authorized Milnes to advance such larger sums as he might think proper to enable the work to be completed without interruption, but His Grace repeated, "I must observe that as the King's bounty on this occasion was intended to encour-"age and accompany the exertions of His Majesty's Protestant subjects in Lower "Canada, it is expected that such a proportion of the estimated expense of building "the church will be defrayed by them as their circumstances may reasonably enable "them to afford for the completion of a work so important to their interests and so "worthy of their liberality." (Q. 86–1, p. 10.) No result, so far as appears in the correspondence, or a result so trifling as not to be noticed, followed this appeal.

On the 7th of April, 1802, the Commissioners sent a second report, showing the greatly increased cost over the first estimate, owing to want of experience in the erection of buildings of that kind, together with the additional expense of living and the consequently enhanced price of labour. This representation was forwarded by Milnes, who corroborated the statements contained in it, and in view of the importance he attached to the completion of the church proposed to continue the larger payments over the first limitation, as authorized by the Duke of Portland's letter of the 6th of January, 1801. (For this letter see Q. 86–1, p. 10, in which the month only is given). In accounting for the laxity of the Protestant population to contribute towards the expense of building the church, the Lieutenant-Governor's letter of the 17th of May shows the policy of the British Government to have been to place the Church of England on the footing of the Established Church in Canada, to which, it was hoped, all the protestant inhabitants would adhere. This is only one, however, of many evidences, of such a policy. After pointing out the important advantages that would result from putting the church establishment on a respectable footing, as one reason for continuing the advances, the letter continues: "It "may be proper here to remark to Your Lordship that a great proportion of the "Protestants in Lower Canada are not of the Established Church, and that the circum- "stances of those who are, will not enable them to contribute by voluntary sub- "scriptions such a sum to the present building as might materially lessen the advances "looked for from Government. But although a majority of the Protestants are not "declared members of the Church of England, yet there clearly appears so general a "disposition to conform to it, that I consider the probable event of uniting His "Majesty's Protestant subjects of all descriptions in one communion, as by no means "the least advantage to be expected from putting the establishment upon its proper "foundation." (Q. 88, p. 150).

On the 28th of April, 1803, another memorial was sent from the Commissioners with statements showing the cost incurred and still to be met. The first statement shows the amount expended for the various services, materials, workmanship, &c., and it may not be uninteresting to local historians to know the amounts expended for stone from the different quarries. Up to the 31st of March, 1803, the stone from Cape Diamond cost £496.6.6; from Beauport, £78; from Ange Gardien, £547.11.8; from Pointe aux Trembles, £825.10; and from Cap Rouge, £182.18.6. The total cost to that date was (actual and estimated for one month) £15,059.5.10 currency, or £13,553.7.3 sterling, the amount still required to complete the building being estimated at £2,551.5.3 currency, or £2,296.2.8¾ sterling.

The dimensions previously given, as those intended for the building, do not agree with the declared statement which accompanies the present memorial. The dimensions there given, as may be seen by reference to a previous paragraph, were to be: length 130 feet, breadth 60 and height 34 from the basement. In the detailed statement these were stated to be respectively 135 feet, 73 feet and from the ground to the top of the cornice, 42 feet 6 inches, with a tower and spire of a total height from the ground of 152 feet, but the depth of the foundation walls to the ground is not stated. All the other dimensions, the parts of the building in which the different qualities of stone had been used &c., are minutely detailed, and the causes of the great additional expense to that first estimated is stated.

To the erection of this church was attached so much importance from an ecclesiastical point of view that no apology seems to be necessary for the length of the remarks on the subject, and the light in which it was to be regarded was one looked upon by the Anglican Bishop with great anxiety. In a letter from his Lordship, given in full in note C, the following considerations are submitted to the Lieutenant-Governor: "I would beg to suggest the necessity of determining whether the Church "now building at Quebec shall be considered as really a Metropolitan or merely as a "parochial church, if a Metropolitan church whether it can consistently be left "without a Chapter? without a portion of that dignity which should constitute its "appropriate character." And further on, as may be seen by reference to the letter reappears the assertion of the policy of uniting all Protestants with the Church of England, which the establishment of a Cathedral and Chapter, the Bishop believed, would do much to bring about. For the answer to this letter, forwarded by Milnes to the Colonial Secretary, reference may be made to Lord Hobart's letter of the 9th of January, 1804, printed in full in note C, page 22.

On the 14th of August, 1804, Sir Robert Milnes wrote (Q. 94 p. 231), that the church would be completed for consecration in the course of the month, and that the Bishop requested a verger might be appointed to be paid £30 a year by Government, a request which was promptly acceded to. A return, only noted, in Q. 97, p. 50, shows the incomes of the Protestant clergy. The Rectors of Quebec and Three Rivers received a salary of £200 each without any extra allowance, the same for Montreal, with £80 from the parish, William Henry (Sorel) £100, with £50 from the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, and the evening lecturer at Quebec £100. These salaries, especially that to the Rector of Quebec, were considered to be inadequate, and Sir Robert Milnes urged strongly that an increase should be granted, as the Roman Catholic Curates [curés, that is rectors] had twice, many of them four times the income of the Anglican clergy, who were most of them married men, whereas the former not being permitted to marry had no families to maintain.

For further correspondence on the general topic of ecclesiastical affairs in Lower Canada, reference may be made to the calendar, in which full abstracts are usually given of the letters on the subject, of the establishment of the Church of England as a National Church for Canada, which in subsequent years led to long and embittered controversies, ending in the secularisation of the Clergy Reserves, and the complete severance, by legislative enactment, of all connection between Church and State.

Reverting for a moment to the more local history of the Metropolitan Church in Quebec, the correspondence shows that the Commissioners in 1802 asked, what they believed to be in accordance with the ordinary practice upon the erection of new churches at the respective seats of Government in the several Provinces of America, for a gift by the King of Communion plate and altar cloth, with a Bible and Books of Common Prayer for the Governor, the Lieutenant-Governor, the members of the Privy Council and the officiating clergyman, hoping that the first Cathedral Church which had ever been erected in America would be gratified with marks of the royal favour and protection, hitherto bestowed on parish churches on their first establishment. Almost by return mail, a despatch from the Colonial Secretary of 5th October, 1802, (Q. 89, p. 102) informed the Lieutenant-Governor that the King had been graciously pleased to comply with the request, and that the Treasury had been desired to take the necessary steps to have His Majesty's wishes carried out. In January, 1803, the Lieutenant-Governor acknowledged the receipt of the despatch, and asked that a pulpit cloth might be added to the objects already specified, at the same time sending the dimensions of the various cloths asked for. In August, 1804, the gifts had not yet been received, and it was not till July, 1808, that a letter, covering the invoices, was written, stating that the packages containing the gift had been ordered to be sent to Portsmouth for shipment by the first ship of war sailing for Quebec. The invoice of Messrs. Rundell, Bridge & Rundell gives a complete description of the plate sent, but the date, not given in the invoices for the Prayer Books, &c., and for the altar and other cloths, gives an interesting view of the official delays of the period. In October, 1802, the order was given to have the gift prepared. Messrs. Rundell had their part of the order completed in February, 1803, not an undue delay, as will be seen by an examination of the description. In July, 1808, five years and five months after the completion of the work, orders were given to send the packages to Portsmouth for shipment. On the 18th September, 1809, Governor Craig wrote that the gift had not been received and feared some accident had occasioned the extraordinary delay. Precisely when the delivery was made does not appear from the correspondence, but Mr. Barrow, Secretary to the Admiralty, wrote on the 18th December, 1809, to the Treasury, that Captain Heneker, of H. M. S. "Mermaid," had informed him that the plate for the Lord Bishop of Quebec had been delivered to him through the Governor-in-chief, when is not stated, but a reference to the log of the "Mermaid" among the Admiralty Papers in the Record Office shows that she had arrived at Quebec on the 2nd of November, 1809, the inference being that the gift was delivered a day or two after her arrival, fully seven years having elapsed from the date the order was given. The invoice of Messrs. Rundell, Bridge & Rundell is in these words:

"A rich chased service of Communion Plate for the Metropolitan Church at "Quebec.

"A very superb octagon salver with chased device, in the centre in high relief, "of the Lord's Supper, with Our Saviour & the twelve Apostles & the four Evan- "gelists chased out in compartments on the border, with elegant fluted antique "borders & ornaments with the Arms and Supporters of His Majesty and those of "the See.

"A pair of superb Altar Candlesticks with rich chased devices & cherub in the "corners, elegant large tripod feet with His Majesty's Arms, the Arms of the See & "Glories chased out in compartments, chased devices of Rams' heads & winged "Beasts' paws at the corners of the base.

"An elegant circular shaped Salver on chased foot, with Glory in centre chased "fluted borders and kneeling Cherubims at the sides, with the Arms of His Majesty "and those of the See.

"2 large elegant chased Flaggons for Wine, with antique vine leaf borders & "Cherub handles, fluted ornaments of King's Arms, Glories &c.

"2 elegant antique Chalices with pattens for covers, vine leaf ornaments, chased "borders and Arms, Glories, &c.

"A wainscot case to contain the whole partitioned and lined with white leather, "Iron clamps to do, Brass name plate, &c."

The altar cloths, &c., were on an equally liberal scale, being all of crimson velvet and gold and no expense seems to have been spared for the Bibles and Prayer Books, but no price is given in any of the invoices.

On the 6th of November, 1802, a petition was presented from "His Majesty's "faithful subjects of the Congregation of the Church of Scotland in the City of Quebec," signed by the Rev. Alexander Spark, the minister, and by the members, to the number of 150, praying for a site for building a church and a grant of land for an endowment, the ground of the application being that they were "Members of and "united to the National Church of Scotland," and the petition concludes with the hope that His Majesty might consider a small portion of these waste lands properly bestowed, when granted for the maintenance of a branch of a National Church acknowledged and protected by His Majesty. In supporting the prayer of the petition, the same line of policy, always held in view to make the Church of England the National Church of Canada again appears. Sir Robert Milnes says: "Permit me to "add, that in my opinion the affording to the members of the Church of Scotland "the means of erecting a separate Place of Worship, will be no obstacle to the gradual "and general conformity to the established Church, of which I expressed a hope in "a former dispatch, on the contrary it appears to me that a rejection of their appli- "cation in this particular, might rather tend to strengthen their prejudices against "a union so much to be desired." The memorial to the Lieut.-Governor, asking that the petition might be forwarded to the King, was signed by a Committee, described as deputed by the Congregation of the Church of Scotland. A similar petition for a site on which to build a Church for the Congregation de Notre Dame was presented by Mgr. Plessis. After some delay in consequence of difficulties arising from the choice of a site within the walls, both petitions were granted, the sites for both being on the land forming part of the Jesuit College grounds in the upper town of Quebec.

In the Report for 1891 are some remarks, with a report on the subject of the marriage laws of Upper Canada, in which there was only a brief reference to the correspondence, but the documents calendared in this volume give additional details of matters in Lower Canada, as viewed by the Anglican Bishop, and seem to call for some remark. In his letter of the 24th of October, 1804, the Lord Bishop of Quebec states, that to legalise certain marriages celebrated in Lower Canada by dissenting ministers and justices of the peace, two bills were introduced into the Council, one by himself to give effect to these marriages, the other by the Chief Justice for the relief of Protestant dissenters professing the religion of the Church of Scotland. Copies of the bills as originally introduced are appended to the letter from the Bishops (Q. 96, pp. 171 &c.). The bill, as it was finally assented to, is in the volume of the Statutes passed during the session of 1804, and may be compared with the two original bills introduced into the Legislative Council, which are in Q. 96, pp. 209 and 213 respectively. The preamble to the bill introduced by the Chief Justice sufficiently indicates its scope and object. It is in these words: "Whereas the Church of Scotland is by law "the established Church of one of the three Kingdoms, the union whereof forms the "Mother Country of this Province, and whereas it is reasonable.....that His Ma- "jesty's subjects resident in this Province and professing the religion of the said Church "should have the full and free exercise and enjoyment of the same," &c. The bill proceeds to enact that all restrictions now imposed on the ministers of that church concerning the celebration of marriage and other ecclesiastical functions should be removed. A substantive bill was also introduced recognising the status of the Church of Scotland as an established Church in Canada, with all the rights which that implied. A reference to the Journals of Assembly for 1804 will show that the principle on which the bills of the Chief Justice were framed was adopted by the Assembly, but rejected by the Council, on the grounds stated in the letter from the Bishop: "Both these bills (that of the Bishop and that of the Chief Justice) passed "the Legislative Council ... .the former of these which was an enacting bill and "which contained temporary provisions for the celebration of marriage in certain "parts of the Province, where there are no resident Protestant Ministers, the "Assembly, in opposition to the decision of the judges, endeavoured to transform "into a declaratory Act, and mutilated it of everything but the clause that "went to legalise past marriages. The last was purposely so changed as to make it "impossible for the Legislative Council to adopt the amendments without virtually "establishing the Church of Scotland in this Province.. .. By this proceeding the Min- "isters of the Church Scotland have been refused the privilege of solemnizing marriage, "and many thousands of His Majesty's subjects in the new settlements are deprived of "the means of entering into the marriage state, unless they travel a great, and to them "almost an impracticable distance." Beyond legalising past marriages it will be seen by reference to the Act that no remedy was applied and that the restrictions on the celebration of marriages &c. continued to exist in full force.

The want of clergymen of the Church of England in Upper Canada engaged the attention of the Bishop of Lincoln, who used every exertion to obtain competent men to supply that want, but with very indifferent success in England. In Canada, the Bishop of Quebec had little hope of a supply, few of those born there, he said, being so educated as to fit them for the office and still fewer of those who came to settle. Places of worship of the Church of England were few. A sum of £1,000 sterling was granted by Parliament in 1795 and 1796 for the building of churches in Upper Canada, these were to be erected at Newark (Niagara), York (Toronto), Cornwall and Sandwich.

The appropriations, stated in General Hunter's letter of 20th May, 1802, were for Sandwich £200, Niagara £100, York £300, New Johnstown £200, and Cornwall £200, an addition, as will be observed, of New Johnstown to the four previously mentioned. But up to that time only Sandwich had been in a position to draw the allowance of £200 and the £800 of a balance lapsed but was afterwards re-voted.

Bishop Strachan filled so important a place in Canadian politics that a notice of his first settlement in Upper Canada can scarcely be omitted. In a dispatch from General Hunter to Lord Hobart dated at Quebec, the 4th of August, 1803, he writes: "I have appointed the Reverend John Strachan, who was lately ordained here by "the Lord Bishop of Quebec, to be the Resident Minister of the Church of England "at Cornwall, in the Eastern District of Upper Canada, in the room of the Reverend "James Sutherland Rudd, removed to a living in the Province of Lower Canada." (Q. 296, p. 251.)

In the report on Archives for 1890 (Note C) are copies of correspondence respecting the Fur Trade printed in full; this correspondence as that in reports of 1886 and 1889 may be read in connection with the present remarks. The correspondence in the report for 1890 was brought down to 1785, although in previous reports information was given of events subsequent to that period, after the original associated partners had separated into two companies, known respectively as the N. W. and the X. Y. Company, a separation which took place in 1798, both companies being hostile to the Hudson's Bay Company as well as to each other. This state of hostility and the unregulated competition which prevailed led to acts of violence, attended with consequences which were of a lamentable nature. The condition of affairs in the North-West became, in fact, almost intolerable, so that shortly after the formation of the two independent companies efforts were made to bring about a re-union or to give such advantages to those who were prepared to join as would throw obstacles in the way of the others. In January, 1802, Sir Alexander Mackenzie who was in London for the prosecution of this object, laid proposals before Lord Hobart, the Colonial Secretary, for the establishment of a permanent fishery and trade in furs, &c., in the interior and on the West Coast of North America. In forwarding what he called "Preliminaries," Sir Alexander anticipated difficulties in bringing about the coalition of the two companies at Montreal. Those who declined to enter into the proposed company he suggested should be at liberty to do as they pleased, provided he obtained the licenses for carrying on the trade. In this way, he believed he could secure those whose personal exertions were essential, "indeed infinitely more essential than the capital of the others, since the former can "only be replaced by juniors successively growing up in the service, during a period "of six to ten years, whereas the latter and any larger sum that may be found "necessary can be raised at any time." (Q. 90, p. 37.) According to the preliminaries, it was proposed to form a supreme civil and military establishment on the island of Nootka, at King George's Sound, in latitude 50° north, with two subordinates, one in the River Columbia, latitude 46°, the other in Sea Otter Harbour, latitude 55°. He proposed either a repeal of the Acts giving an exclusive right to the East India and South Sea Companies of fishery, trade and navigation in the Pacific Ocean and on the West Coast of North America, or failing that to obtain irrevocable and unlimited licenses from these companies, to carry on trade and fishing, and to establish factories and agents in Canton or elsewhere for the sale or barter of their imports or exports. Further, a clause provided for obtaining a license of traffic from the Hudson Bay Company, with a right to the latter to have a manifest presented and examination made at the first port of entry within the limits of its jurisdiction, but not at any other station or trading post. Reference has been made in the Report on Archives for 1889 and some account will be found in it of the establishment of trading posts on the Pacific for the prosecution of the fur trade with China, &c. (Report 1889, p. xxxiv.) The project of establishing a communication between the Atlantic and Pacific had long been a favourite idea with Sir Alexander Mackenzie, as shown in his account of his voyage to the Frozen Ocean and other publications and documents. It may not, therefore, be without interest to quote in full the fourth clause of the "Preliminaries," with the observations on that clause. He desires Government to constrain the Hudson's Bay Company:—

"To grant these licences to a company of British merchants, to be established in London under the name of "The Fishery and Fur Company," which company for the purpose of combining the Fishery, in the Pacific with the Fur trade of the Interior from the East to the West Coasts of the Continent of North America would at once equiping (equip) whalers in England, and by means of the establishments already made and in activity at Montreal on the East and advanced posts and Trading Houses in the Interior towards the West Coast to which they might extend and where other establishments to be made at King George Sound, Nootka Island, under the protection of the Supreme Government and on the River Columbia and Sea Otter Harbour under the protection of the subordinate Governments of these places, would open and establish a commercial communication through the Continent of North America between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans to the incalculable advantage and furtherance both of the Pacific Fishery of America and American Fur Trade of Great Britain, in part directly and in part indirectly, through the channel of the possessions and factories of the East India Company in China, &c., it being perfectly understood that none of these maritime or inland establishments shall be made on territory in the possession of any other European nation, nor within the limits of the United States of North America or of the Hudson's Bay Company."

The observations on articles three and four need not be given in full; the principal parts may, however, be quoted. In reference to the demand for license for traffic, to be granted by the Hudson's Bay Company, the proposal states the reason:

"On the ground that the right of transit between the Mother Country and her Colonies, through her own proper Territory and Colonies, is an attribute of Sovereignty neither surrendered nor meant to have been surrendered to the Hudson Bay Company, according to its charter, the exercise of which is not desirable on any principle of Political Economy, while it is necessary and would be highly beneficial as being the shortest way to and from countries without its limits for the purpose of facilitating the intercourse between Great Britain and those Countries, in the Exchange of the manufactures of the former for the raw products of the latter."

In his observations on article 4, Sir Alexander says:

"There are at present two companies at Montreal, engaged in the North American Fur Trade, both of which are chiefly composed of men, who by personal exertions, no less hazardous than laborious and persevering, have contributed to the extension of it into formerly unknown parts; and who, if not the only men able to extend it to the Pacific are at least the most likely to succeed, as the best qualified to undertake it.

"These companies have not heretofore had an idea of embarking in the Pacific Fishery, but if they should succeed in combining the Fur Trade of the East with that of West, they would find it highly beneficial to combine the latter, if not both, with the Whale Fishery," &c.

Sir Alexander Mackenzie did not, however, succeed in forming his company.

On the 25th of October, 1802, he wrote to Mr. Sullivan, evidently smarting under a sense of disappointment that his exertions had been fruitless. The papers he sent would, he said, show that he had not succeeded, as also the improbability of his being able to succeed in bringing about the union of the two fur companies, recommended by Lord Hobart as the first step towards the accomplishment of his favourite project. "Without the aid of Government by granting the licences to one "of the contending Parties, with the condition that the othe r Party should have the "option of sharing, in the proportion of the Trade they might then be carrying on "to that part of His Majesty's Dominions, I see no means of bringing about a coali- "tion for several years to come by which time the trade may be reduced, if not "ruined, and the opportunity of making the Western establishment lost perhaps for "ever."

In a letter addressed to Mr. Ryland, the Lieutenant-Governor's secretary, by Mr. Richardson (of Messrs. Forsyth, Richardson & Co.), dated the 21st of October, the relation of hostility between the two companies is clearly stated. The new company (popularly known as the X. Y. Company) was viewed, he says, by the old (the North West Company) with a jealousy and rancour improper in the subjects of the same Empire. He complains that among the means employed to give effect to these feelings, is the false and malicious impression they have made on the minds of the Indians, by which the lives of their associates, clerks and servants and the safety of their property were endangered. The Indians, he continues, had been incited to commit pillage and to fire upon the canoes of the new company; clerks were enticed away and then used to impose upon others; resistance to pillage led to fatal effects of which an instance is given and a continuance of such a state of affairs, he held, must lead to the most lamentable consequences. There is no desire expressed for a coalition of the two companies but, although not definitely stated, there is no reason to doubt, from the tone of the letter that the greatest repugnance was felt to the adoption of such a measure.

The dissensions between the two companies do not appear, in the beginning at least, to have had a prejudicial effect on the traffic, for on the 30th October, 1802, Milnes in a dispatch to Lord Hobart gives an account of the flourishing state of the fur trade, so far, he says, from diminishing it appears to increase, new tracts of country have been visited by the merchants employed in this traffic, which have furnished new sources of supply, a large proportion of the furs taken in the North West being brought to Quebec for shipment. The dispatch (No. 33) gives a large amount of information on the state of the fur trade under the French government and from the Conquest to the date on which it was written and may be referred to with advantage by any who are directing their attention to this subject (Q. 89, p. 144). The tables enclosed in the dispatch show, first, the names and numbers of the posts occupied in the Indian country (exclusive of the King's posts), the number of partners, clerks and men employed, the latitude and longitude of each post being also given. The grand total shows that there were 117 posts, 20 partners, 161 clerks and interpreters, 877 common men, in all of a permanent staff 1058 men, thus divided, 95 in the territory of the United States from the south side of Lake Superior to the division of the waters falling into the Mississippi on the one side and Hudson's Bay on the other; 76 on the waters falling into the St. Lawrence from the Kaministiquia, and also from the St. Maurice; 630 on the waters falling into Hudson's Bay, and 257 on the waters falling into the North Sea by the Mackenzie river. Besides these there were 80 or 100 Canadians and Iroquois hunters, not servants, ranging free over the country and about 540 men employed in canoes on the Ottawa river. The average duties paid annually on landing in Britain amounted to upwards of £22,000 sterling and the price paid for the furs exported from Quebec in 1801, at the London sales, was £371,139.11.4.

The despatch was received on the 29th November, and on the 15th of December the Colonial Secretary desired Lieutenant-Governor Milnes to give early consideration to the subject of establishing a chartered company, and to communicate his ideas fully thereon (Q. 89, p. 178.) In September, 1803, Sir Robert Milnes forwarded to Mr. Sullivan, Under Secretary, a statement by the North West Company, showing the great exertion the company had made to open up new means of communication. The letter is calendared at some length and the important part of the company's memorandum given in full, so that it is only necessary to refer to them (Q. 92, pp. 283 and 286.)

The table, of which an abstract has been given, shews that in the territory of the United States 95 permanent men were employed by the NorthWest Company. In order to put a stop to this trade the Superintendent of Indian Affairs for Upper Louisiana issued a proclamation on the 25th of August, 1805, forbidding the entry of traders or others into the River Missouri, not being citizens of the United States of America, imposing the obligation on all British traders of abjuring their allegiance or to be excluded from the trade, and they were apprehensive that the same measure would be adopted to put a stop to the whole trade west of the Mississippi, which would ruin them. They complained still more that the proclamation was issued at the very time they had arrived at St. Louis, after having paid the duties at Michilimakinak, the frontier post, and that no warning of such restraint was given, the restriction being practically a confiscation of their goods. Even transit was virtually prohibited to the trading grounds, as the canoemen, engaged to transport the merchandise, would not be allowed to navigate the river, so that other men, citizens of the United States, must be employed at a ruinous cost. The proclamation they held to be a violation of the Treaty of amity, between Great Britain and the United States, and Mr. President Dunn in forwarding the complaint to Mr. Merry, the British Minister Plenipotentiary at Washington, took the same view of the step as being a violation of the third article of the Treaty of 1794, and particularly of the stipulations of the explanatory article of 4th May, 1796. These stipulations are well known, but the evidence of the two articles referred to as bearing on the complaints of the traders should be considered side by side with their argument for entire liberty of trade with the Indians. The words of the memorial from the traders are:

"That by said treaty" (of amity and commerce), "the trade with the Indians within the territory of Great Britain and the United States respectively is declared to be open and free to the subjects and citizens of their respective Governments, and no distinction whatever is made, because of the allegiance which such subjects and citizens owe and ought to bear to their particular Governments."

The third article of the treaty of 1794 (known as Jay's Treaty), provided that it should at all times be free to His Majesty's subjects, to the citizens of the United States and to the Indians dwelling on either side of the boundary line, to pass and repass by land or inland navigation into the respective countries of the two nations (the Hudson's Bay territory being excepted) to navigate the lakes, &c., and "freely to carry on commerce with each other."

The treaty concluded by Pickering with the Indians in 1795, provided that no person should be permitted to reside as a trader at any of the towns or hunting camps of the tribes with whom the treaty was made, who is not furnished with a license for that purpose under the authority of the United States. This stipulation excited doubts whether in its operation it might not interfere with the execution of the third article of the treaty concluded a year previous, and to remove these doubts the explanatory article was added to that treaty. The article, after the formal introduction as to motive, &c., sets out that the Commissioners appointed to settle its terms "do by these presents explicitly agree and declare:

"That no stipulations in any treaty subsequently concluded by either of the contracting parties with any other state or nation, or with any Indian tribe, can be understood to derogate in any manner from the rights of free intercourse and commerce secured by the aforesaid third article of the Treaty of amity, commerce and navigation to the subjects of His Majesty and to the citizens of the United States and to the Indians dwelling on either side of the boundary line aforesaid, but that the said persons shall remain at full liberty freely to pass and repass by land or inland navigation, into the respective territories and countries of the contracting parties on either side of the said boundary line, and freely to carry on trade and commerce with each other, according to the stipulations of the said third article of the treaty of amity, commerce and navigation."

A comparison of the claims of the traders with the terms of the treaty will enable a judgment to be formed of the justice or otherwise of their representation. Mr. President Dunn transmitted the complaint to Mr. Merry, the Minister Plenipotentiary, but informed the Colonial Secretary, to whom he had sent a copy of this letter and of the memorial, that it did not appear that the Indian Superintendent (Wilkinson) was acting under the directions of the United States Government. On the 20th of February, 1806, the Lords of Trade addressed a note to Sir George Shee, Under Secretary, to know what representations had been made by the Lieutenant-Governor to the Secretary of State on the subject of the complaint by the traders, but so far as the documents calendared in this report extend, there is no record of the result of the representation made by the merchants. Mr. Inglis, a Canadian merchant in London, anticipated, however, that the Government of the United States would justify the procedure by alleging that the district in question was not their territory when the treaty was made.

The want of jurisdiction in the Indian Country, as the territory was called which was the scene of the operations of the fur traders, allowed crime to go unpunished, and numerous representations were made in respect to the evils of this practical immunity from punishment. In Sir Alexander Mackenzie's letter of the 25th of October, 1802, he says, in view of the improbability of the two companies amalgamating, that as speedily as possible, a jurisdiction should be established to prevent the contending fur companies from abusing the power either might possess, so as to secure to each the fruits of fair, honest and industrious exertion; it would also, he believed, tend to put a stop to the increasing animosity between the two companies. Mr. Richardson, of the other company, also pressed for the establishment of a competent jurisdiction and instanced the case of one of the clerks in his company who had killed a clerk of the other in defending the property in his care. The young man had come to Montreal to be tried, but there being no jurisdiction there for such trial, "he remains in the deplorable predicament that neither his innocence nor his "guilt can be legally ascertained." He also proposed that a military post should be established at Thunder Bay, on Lake Superior, as an additional means of securing peace.

The Grand Juries of Quebec and Montreal had repeatedly called attention to the want of jurisdiction; as they are all substantially to the same effect, it is sufficient to quote that made by the Grand Jury of Montreal in the Session of 1802. In this the number of people from the Canadas, chiefly from Lower Canada, was urged as one reason for establishing in the Indian Country a court of competent jurisdiction for the trial of offences committed in these territories, including Hudson's Bay. The presentment states, that in these territories "there does not exist a tribunal for the "cognizance of crimes or criminal offences and consequently no accusations for offences "of that nature committed therein, either by persons from the Canadas or otherwise; "the offences (for the want of such a Tribunal) cannot be tried in the Territory "where the facts were committed, nor are they cognizable in either of the Canadas, "although immediately adjoining thereto, from the operation of the general princi- "ple of English jurisprudence that criminal offences which shall have happened "beyond their limits, cannot be enquired into by any Tribunal within such limits; "consequently in such cases no remedy appears to exist but such as is applicable "under the special statute of the 33rd Henry 8th, chap. 4, by the issuing of a special "commission in England by His Majesty, where alone the facts can be legally en- "quired into and decided upon by a competent Court and Jury." No jurisdiction, or one so distant as to be practically inaccessible, he held, had been a great incite- ment to crime, whilst on the other hand innocent men might be unjustly accused without any means of vindicating their character. These points are enlarged on and the conclusion arrived at that courts of competent jurisdiction for the trial of offences committed in the Indian Country should be established in the Canadas. (Q. 293, p. 239.)

Sir Robert Milnes in his letter of 30th October, 1802, (Q. 89, p. 144), strongly supported the representation of the Grand Jury, and added that

"Under such circumstances every species of offence is to be apprehended from Trespasse to Murder and also that the national character of the English will be de- based among the Indians, and that the numerous tribes of those people will in con- sequence thereof be more easily wrought upon by foreign emissaries employed by the Enemies of Great Britain." (See also Q. 89, p. 162.)

In consequence of these representations Lord Hobart in his despatch of 1st December, 1802, (No. 13, Q. 89, p. 170) promised that immediate steps should be taken to remedy the existing state of affairs, but Milnes became impatient for a decision as, writing in September, 1803, to the Under Secretary, he reminded him of the promise, the great increase and extent of the fur trade rendering such an Act daily more necessary. (Q. 92, p. 283.) The Act to give jurisdiction to the Courts of Upper and Lower Canada had, however, been assented to on the 11th of the pre- ceding month (11th August, 1803, 43 George III., Cap. 138) and under it several cases were tried. The preamble stated that crimes and offences had been committed in the Indian territories, &c., and that from the want of jurisdiction in any of the Provinces "great crimes and offences have gone and may hereafter go unpunished "and greatly increase," the enacting clause being the offences committed in these territories, &c., "shall be tried in the same manner and subject to the same Punish" ment as if the same had been committed within the Provinces of Upper and Lower " Canada." In the course of a letter by Mr. Coltman forwarding his report on the disputes between the Hudson's Bay Company and the North-West Company, he attributes the disasters in the territories to the Hudson's Bay Company having held in abeyance its right to jurisdiction and that this neglect was the reason for passing the Act just quoted. (The whole of Mr. Coltman's report is in Q. 151, the report with correspondence filling entirely that volume.) Doubts having been raised as to the powers of the Courts under the Act 43 George III., a further Act to remove these was assented to in July, 1821. (1 and 2 George IV., Cap. 66.) The union of the North-West with the Hudson's Bay Company took place about this time and the disorders arising from their competition ceased, but these events belong to a later period than that now under consideration.

The transfer of the control of the Indian Department from the military to the civil authority caused a considerable amount of friction. In Upper Canada, according to a letter from H. W. Ryland, the Indian Department was, at that date (31st January, 1800, Q. 85, p. 328), entirely under the control and management of the Lieutenant-Governor, but in Lower Canada was entirely under the direction of the Commander-in-chief, so much so, that Major Deschambault had been dismissed from his office as Superintendent of Indian Affairs, because he had been appointed a Provincial aide-de-camp, although the two employments were perfectly compatible, and an officer in the Canadian Volunteers had been appointed, whose regimental duties conflicted with those in the Indian Department. This state of things was, however, changed shortly after, instructions having been sent in July that the civil governor was to take over the administration of Indian Affairs in Lower Canada as was the case in Upper Canada, and Sir Robert Milnes understood that this change was to make no alteration in the payments necessary in the administration of the department, that is, that these should be made from the military chest. General Hunter, commanding the forces, took an opposite view, holding that he as Commander-in-chief had nothing to do with Indian Affairs, the expenses of which were to be defrayed from the civil revenues. General Hunter at the same time refused to issue provisions and other articles required for the Indian service and stopped all barrack and other allowances heretofore drawn by the officers of that department. Milnes relied on the instructions sent to Prescott when the management was transferred to the civil administration in Upper Canada, but Hunter answered that these were addressed to Prescott as Governor-General of British North America and, therefore, did not apply to him. (Q. 85, p. 224.) Differences of opinion also arose as to the patronage in the department, the Duke of Kent having laid claim to the power of appointment, both in Lower and Upper Canada. On the 23rd February, 1801, Sir Robert Milnes in his dispatch to the Duke of Portland (No. 43, Q. 86–1, p. 132), stated that in room of Mr. Bunbury, he had appointed Lieut.-Colonel Deschambault, then deputy superintendent of the Abenaki and St. François Indians to be deputy agent for Indian Affairs in Lower Canada, Major de Salaberry to succeed Colonel Deschambault. The Duke of Kent as Commander-in-chief, held that the patronage was vested in him, but it so happened that the appointment he wished to make of Major de Salaberry was that which had actually been made by Milnes for the same officer, so that an immediate conflict of claims was avoided. But Sir Robert points out at the same time the prejudice that might have arisen to Lieut.-Colonel Deschambault's interests, had the Duke's claim been established before another situation had been found for the incumbent of the office in question.

The Duke had a more pronounced dispute with General Hunter, respecting the appointment of Colonel Connolly to the office of Deputy Superintendent General of Indian Affairs for Upper and Lower Canada, from which he was superseded by General Hunter, as Governor. In 1799, the Duke of Kent had appointed Colonel Connolly, displacing Captain Claus, who had had long experience in the Indian Department. Governor Hunter, in reply in December to the notification of the appointment informed the Duke that the removal of Captain Claus and the appointment of Colonel Connolly would be highly prejudicial to His Majesty's service (Q. 287-1, p. 21), and at the same time wrote to the Duke of Portland, practically stating that he would not recognize Connolly and had sent his orders to Sir John Johnson to that effect. On these representations the Duke of York wrote to the Duke of Kent to cancel Connolly's appointment, which was accordingly done, much to the displeasure of the Duke of Kent, who still maintained his right to the patronage, but finally the claim was abandoned, the practice relied upon by the Duke, in the case of his predecessors in the office of Commander-in-chief having been changed when the control was taken from the military and vested in the civil authority.

The disputes of the Six Nations on the Grand River, respecting their lands were aggravated by the occasional ebullitions of Joseph Brant, who when under the influence of liquor does not appear to have been guarded in the tone of his language. One of these outbursts led to a formal complaint against him, but Claus was satisfied on investigation that the dispute had ended, and that the expressions complained of were made "when he was in liquor and in a passion, to a party opposed to him and his measures." (Q. 295, p. 26.) Much more serious were the claims of these tribes to dispose of their lands without control, and it was only yielding to their wishes and whilst adopting the official regulations that the lands must be transferred first to the Crown, which agreed to give titles to the purchasers from the Indians without reserve, that peace was maintained, but a notice was issued "that no cases which "have been or shall be granted or pretended to be granted, by or under the author-"ity of any Indian Nation will be admitted or allowed of." (Q. 298, p. 44.)

The Grand River Indians being dissatisfied with the state of their affairs, the question was referred to a Committee of Council, which reported on the Indian lands sold by Mr. Russell, under the circumstances just stated. From this it appears that no trust had been properly created and no security given for the fulfilment of the obligations taken by the grantees, and it was recommended that suits should be entered against each of them to enforce the conditions contained in the grant. The letter and enclosures are voluminous and may be referred to (Q. 299, pp. 140 to 163.) In June, 1804, Captain John Norton (Teyoninhokarawen), furnished with introductions, proceeded first to Edinburgh to solicit the assistance of Lord Moira in advocating the claims of the Six Nations, but was by His Lordship sent to Lord Camden, as the proper authority to hear and consider the claims. Norton presented a memorial to Lord Camden accordingly, which after setting out their services and the forfeiture of their lands within the limits assigned to the United States by the treaty of 1783, continues: "In this situation Capt. Brant and other chiefs and warriors of the Six Nations "made application for a grant within the British Province of Upper Canada, and His "Excellency the late General Haldimand granted to them and their posterity the Grand "River or Ouse from its source to its entry into Lake Erie, extending six miles on each "side of the river and forming a space of land about a hundred miles in length by twelve "in breadth." The memorial continues, that on the establishment of civil government when deeds were issued to the loyalists, Brant and other chiefs applied for the same, but the deed was so limited that they declined to accept it. Complaint is made that the lands tranferred to Government with the express condition of being granted to the purchasers from the Indians were still retained and that the tribes are not allowed to lease their lands, a permission which would be a great benefit to the more industrious among them, and the request was made that they should be confirmed in possession of the land according to the original grant. An important clause of the memorial may be quoted in full:

"Were every tribe and family to have their several portions confirmed to them, there is not the smallest doubt, that the major part of the Six Nations, more than one-half of whom remain within the American line, would soon remove to their brethren, now in the British territory, which can be expected from the present unsettled and undecided nature of their grant, and possession."

The subject was referred to Hunter for a report, but the answer deals only with the lands sold by Russell, reference to which has already been made. (Q. 299, pp. 140 to 163.) Norton was advised to leave London and the matter would be attended to, but he declined on various grounds, the chief being that he was unwilling to return until some settlement had been made. He was thus enabled to present another memorial to the Privy Council in September, to which reference may be made (Q 299, p. 329, see also letter to Lord Camden, p. 336). In May, 1805, Norton was still in London pressing the claims of the Six Nations, and had been advised to bring the case before Parliament, but eager as he was "to promote the good of my country," he did not wish his ignorant zeal to lead him into irregularities. (Q. 303, p. 95). By the end of May, Norton appears to have given up hope of an early settlement and proposed to return to Canada. In his letter stating this proposal, Norton enclosed an extract from a letter of D. W. Smith the Surveyor-General, which is rather vague, the grant he says, as well as he could recollect, was to be six miles on each side of the Grand River, "and to prevent too much intricacy by the "windings of the river, a general course was agreed upon by the Indians at the old "land board." (Q. 303, p. 104). On the 22nd of June following, Norton wrote again to Mr. Cooke, Under Secretary, stating that Lord Dorchester had expressed himself in these terms: "That should it be necessary for the satisfaction of the Five Nations "that the terms of their grant from Sir Frederick Haldimand be enlarged, His "Lordship would readily concur, but not to have them curtailed on any account "whatever, that he saw no reason why the Five Nations on the Grand River should "not have the same right to lease their lands and receive tenants thereon as the "people of Caughnawaga and Lake of Two Mountains." In the meantime advices were received from Upper Canada, that the Indians had disavowed Norton's proceedings and had signed documents that they were satisfied. These declarations he alleged to have obtained by unfair means and entered into a long and elaborate statement on the subject, to which it appears to be only necessary to refer. (Q. 303, p. 125).

On the 14th of March, 1806, Chief Justice Allcock, in a letter to Sir George Shee, gives his opinion on the rights of the Indians over the lands on the Grand River, which sets out the case clearly from his point of view, and to which reference should be made, the Chief Justice having been Chairman of the Executive Council by which the case was considered. His belief, which he briefly states, may be given in his own words. After stating that he had carefully examined all the documents to be found on the subject and had given it his most deliberate consideration, he says :—

"I have no difficulty in bringing my own mind to the conclusion, that these lands had been set apart by Government as Hunting Grounds for the Indians, with the fullest liberty also to cultivate and use any part of them at their pleasure and that the Government stood pledged not to grant these lands to any other persons or permit any act to be done by which the Indians could be disturbed in the quiet possession of this large tract of land, or suffer any of the white people (as the Indians call them) to break in upon them. At the same time I conceived no act had been done on the part of the Crown, which could be construed to invest the Indians with any power to lease those lands, much less to sell the inheritance."

He then gives an account of the causes which led to Government consenting to sell portions of the lands; that the price should be secured by mortgage, with interest at six per cent to be distributed annually among the Indians and the money arising from this interest was invested in the three per cent consols for their benefit, the first investment amounting to £9,244 5s. 11d. Reference may be made to the Minutes of Council of 13th August, 1806 (Q. 308, pp. 252, 255) which contain an account by Claus of the proceedings of a Council held by the Six Nations and report on the same by the Executive Council. An examination of the calendar of volumes Q. 309 and 310, will enable the inquirer at once to obtain the documents which give the information respecting the demands of the Indians, no settlement of which is shown in the papers now calendared.

The purchase of land belonging to the Missisauga Indians, between the township of Etobicoke and Burlington Bay incidentally throws light on the difficulties of communication in the Province in the early years of this century. The tract, it was estimated, contained about 70,000 acres, subsequently ascertained to contain upwards of 80,000 acres. The possession of this land was found necessary "not "only for the making of roads, but during part of the year for having any commu- "nication between the seat of Government and the western parts of the Province." The sum agreed on for the purchase was £1,000 currency, but Mr. President Grant recommended it to be increased to £1,700 for the reasons stated in his letter (Q. 303, p. 35). The provisional agreement, Indian Councils, &c., are in the same volume, pp. 38 to 56. The recommendation to pay the additional £700 was approved of and carried into effect during Gore's administration.

The policy of attaching the seigniors to the British Government by civil appointments had been urged by successive Governors, and a certain portion of the members of the Executive Council was almost from the beginning of British rule allotted to the French Canadians. This is so well established a fact as to require only to be referred to. A few commissions had been granted in the army, but these were very few and the pecuniary circumstances of the seigniors were not such as to enable them to expend the amount necessary to purchase commissions and to make suitable allowance for their sons, the pay of a junior officer being by no means equal to keeping up the appearance deemed requisite whilst associating with his brother officers. A quotation from the letter of Sir Robert Milnes (Q. 89, p. 172) dated on the 30th October, 1802, and briefly summarized in the calendar, may not be without interest, as it gives a glimpse of the services of a family, one of whose members gained so brilliant a victory at Chateauguay over the United States troops during the war of 1812. "At the earnest request of M. de Salaberry, who was major of the "1st Battalion of Royal Canadian Volunteers, I am induced to solicit your Lordship's "recommendation of his son Maurice de Salaberry in order that he may obtain an "Ensigncy in any Established Regiment in the Service. The Father of this young "Gentleman is of one of the best Families in this Country, he served during the "American War" [the Revolutionary War] "and was wounded at St. John's; and "I cannot but think it might be of considerable advantage if the sons of the Cana-"dian Gentry could be introduced into His Majesty's Regular Service. The elder "Brother of M. de Salaberry, through the Interest of His Royal Highness the Duke "of Kent, obtained a commission in the year 1794, and is now a Captain in one of "the Battalions of the 60th Regiment in the West Indies, where he has been ever "since, and the Gentleman whom I have the honour to recommend to Your Lord-"ship was an Ensign (as well as his younger Brother) in the Canadian Volunteers, "but his Father is not in circumstances which enable him to purchase for him." The result of the application does not appear in the correspondence, so far as that is calendared.

The disadvantages arising from the want of a Court of Equity in Upper Canada were frequently and strongly represented. In July, 1801, Mr. Justice Allcock wrote to Mr. King, Under Secretary, that a bill for its establishment was in preparation, and in August following, General Hunter transmitted the draught of the bill, representing the urgent need that existed for such a court, and that it was necessary, at the same time to have a qualified judge appointed as Chancellor, it being requisite that he be possessed of the knowledge to fit him for instructing the Bar and officials in their duties, the knowledge of the law among the practitioners being very limited, not one of whom had been within the walls of a Court of Chancery. He recommended Allcock, who had applied for the office of Chief Justice, in succession to Osgoode. The draught of the bill is in Q. 290–1, p. 96*a*, and observations at p. 107, the letter at p. 88.

In December, 1801, Allcock again wrote to Mr. King, reminding him that he had been promised one of the Chief Justiceships, as one of the conditions on which he had come to Canada, and this was the situation he preferred, but if the emoluments of Chancellor were made equal to those of the Chief Justice and he had a seat in the Legislative Council, he would accept the office of Chancellor, although the other was "infinitely the preferable situation." (Q. 293, p. 128.)

Hunter's letter, draught and observations were referred to a Committee of the Privy Council, which reported, that the institution of an office of Judge of the Court of Chancery distinct from the Chancellor was so novel as not to be adopted without very serious consideration. The clauses objected to are apparently those numbered 2 and 3 in the draught act. The Governor of Upper Canada, it continued, is by virtue of his commission vested with authority to exercise an equity jurisdiction to the full extent pointed out in Lieut. Governor Hunter's letter and can call for the assistance of any of the judges or law officers of the Province to frame regulations and to establish a table of fees, the latter of which must, however, be submitted for His Majesty's approbation. On the 15th of September, 1804, General Hunter refers to the disapproval of the draught act, and points out that no answer has yet been received in respect to the table of fees prepared according to instructions to be laid before the King, and adds that the necessity which had existed for establishing an equitable jurisdiction had largely increased, and that Mr. Allcock, then in London, would be able fully to explain the position of affairs. (Q. 299, p. 140.) On the 14th of March, 1806, Mr. Allcock, who was still in London, wrote to Sir George Shee, Under Secretary, on the subject, and the words of the letter may be quoted with advantage. These are:—

"During the whole of my residence in the Province from the year 1798, cases were continually occurring, in which justice was completely disappointed for want of a Court of Equity. But, Sir, it must be evident to every man, who thinks on the subject but for a moment, that in our English Colony, where the law of England has been declared by the Legislature to be the law of the land, the occasions must be very numerous, in which a Court of Common Law cannot administer substantial justice. It is now fourteen years since Upper Canada has been erected into a Province, and as yet there has been no Court of Equity in it. Whilst I sat in the Court of King's Bench there, many verdicts were obtained against defendants, contrary to the equity of the case, in which a court of law cannot afford any relief, particularly in ejectment causes. There were many of these cases, in which the decree of a court of equity must, as a matter quite of course, not only have relieved the party from the verdict, but have arranged many other points in question between the parties, and which because a court of law could not interfere, remain to this moment undecided, to the serious injury of one (of) the parties and of consequence in failure of justice. The complaints of the King's subjects in Upper Canada that they had not an equitable jurisdiction to resort to, have been very numerous indeed, of which the late General Hunter heard very much and I very much more, and I had held out so many assurances for years (being authorized so to do) that a Court of Equity would soon be established, that I feared my assurances at last ceased to be much attended to. The merchants of Lower Canada, having very considerable debts due them in Upper Canada upon mortgages, complained loudly and very frequently that there was no jurisdiction in which they could foreclose these mortgages, and I believe they have more than once made the most urgent applications to the King's Ministers in England praying that an equitable jurisdiction might be established."

After referring to the disapproval of the bill which he had draughted, he says it was settled that on his return to Upper Canada he was to have sat with the Lieutenant-Governor to aid him in the business of a Court of Equity. Mr. Harrison of the Temple, to whom the letter was referred, expressed surprise that such a Court had not been established when English laws were introduced, but now, owing to the delay, the Lieutenant-Governor should be directed immediately to establish such a Court, taking on himself the office of Chancellor, calling to his assistance the Chief Justice or any of the judges he might think proper. The selection of any particular officer as an executive judge would, he held, involve increased present expense and no future advantage but the reverse. In January, 1807, Mr. W. Dummer Powell sent a memorandum on the subject, to which reference may be made, his remarks and proposals being introductory to his application for the office of Judge in Chancery, as the only magistrate in the country bred in a Court of Equity, and who had been largely concerned in settling land cases. (Q. 310, p. 31). On the 5th of August, 1807, the report of the committee was considered by the King in Council and approved of, disapproving of the draught Act for establishing a Court of Chancery, the Governor being already vested with sufficient authority to exercise an equity jurisdiction, &c. (Q. 310, p. 235.) No further documents on this subject are among those calendared in this report.

Mr. Justice Cochrane was appointed a puisné judge in Upper Canada in July, 1803, but he did not occupy that position for any length of time, as by the foundering of a vessel on Lake Ontario, not the first instance on record of such a casualty, he and other officials and the whole crew perished. According to the account given by General Hunter, Judge Cochrane, Mr. Gray, the Solicitor-General, another gentleman of the Bar, and other respectable persons, sailed in H. M. S. "Speedy" from York (Toronto) on the 7th October, 1804. The total number on board, passengers, officers and crew, was twenty. The object of the journey was to hold the assizes in the district of Newcastle about half way down the lake. Writing on the 12th of November, five weeks after the vessel sailed, General Hunter said they had never since been heard of. "It is now beyond a doubt that they must have perished on "Lake Ontario, but no person hath survived to give an account of the time or the "manner in which this melancholy accident took place." The sea-going qualities of His Majesty's ships on the lake at that time must have been, to judge from this and other accidents, of a very inferior description, and to justify the title given to the old ten-gun brigs, of being floating coffins. Nothing was heard more of the ship or her crew and passengers, and in the beginning of 1805 Mr. Darcy Boulton was appointed Solicitor-General in succession to Mr. Gray.

A reference to the calendar will serve to show that the condition of Upper Canada was improving, that roads were being opened up through the country, bridges built and markets established in Toronto. The statements of Mr. Justice Thorpe, therefore, these projects will show to have been greatly exaggerated, at least, as whatever may have been the deficiency in means of communication throughout the Province, efforts were made to improve them. In a country of such extent, so thinly peopled with a scattered population and limited resources, the utmost that could be done was to establish the main avenues of communication and in so far the evidence appears to show that these were not neglected. In 1804, it was felt that the time had come when the legislative business of the Province should be transacted in buildings more suitable than those used for that purpose. There was not, it was complained, a single building for any one public office; the offices were held in the private houses of the officers, the Executive Council met in a small room in the clerk's house where their discussions could be overheard, the buildings were of wood, unsafe for the preservation of records, and an annual rent was paid of £350. The two Houses of the Legislature met in the building used also for the Court of Appeal, Court of King's Bench, District Court and Quarter Sessions and for a church besides, the whole extent of the building containing only two rooms. Among the documents in series C, in the volume relating to the Civil Government of Upper Canada, is a letter from Edward Walsh, surgeon in the 49th regiment, containing an elevation, not unlike the building so long used, and ground plan, the cost of the building in wood and brick, it was estimated would be £1,000 sterling. In July of that year (1804) Lieut. General Hunter sent the estimate from Major-General Mann of the cost of the proposed buildings, towards which the Legislature had offered to contribute annually £400 sterling. The data upon which General Mann based his calculation was for a building of from 270 to 300 feet long and 36 to 40 feet broad; to be of plain, substantial and durable material, the walls of stone and the arches of brick, to be as far as possible guarded from accidents by fire; perfectly secure and dry vaults to be made for the offices requiring them for the deposit of public records; with rooms for the following services:—Legislative and Executive Councils, House of Assembly, Courts of King's Bench and Quarter Sessions, with proper offices to each; offices for the Secretary of the Province, Surveyor-General and auditor of patents for land. The accommodation for the ordinary departmental offices, it will be observed, is not provided for. The cost at that date, as contrasted, not compared, with the new legislative and departmental buildings recently erected in Toronto at the sole cost of the Province, will give an idea of the progress that has been made during the period of little more than eighty years since the erection of the first public buildings.

The abrogation of the treaty of Amiens which secured a short peace, renewed the anxiety in Canada. War was declared by Great Britain with France and Spain and apprehension was felt, that hostilities were on the point of breaking out with the United States. The attempts of the French on Canada as shown to exist down to 1797, in the Report for 1891, scarcely seem to have been relaxed even when the treaty was in force in Europe. In 1801, before the short peace, Lieutenant-Governor Milnes, in a separate and secret letter to the Colonial Secretary, transmitted information received from a certain Colonel Graham, to which neither he nor Major-General Barton, commanding at Montreal, attached much importance. Milnes, however, obtained information after Graham had left Quebec, which he had visited to have a personal interview with Milnes, corroborating previous information received from him as to the real destination of the arms brought by Ira Allen of Vermont in the "Olive Branch," which had been seized and was under trial before the Admiralty Court. A deposition respecting the secret meetings held in Vermont to concert measures for the seizure of Quebec, Ira Allen being implicated in the scheme, is in Q. 87–1, p. 161. Graham's information is printed in full in the report for 1891, taken from the series C of the Archives, but there being no signature, the author's name was not known. The information is in two papers Nos. 28 and 29 of Note D in that report, pp. 83 and 84. On the 16th of September (1801) Milnes reported additional corroboration to the information furnished by Graham, that persons were plotting for the subversion of Canada. A society composed, to use the words of the Lieutenant-Governor, of "a parcel of Americans," had been formed in Montreal, proceeding on the principles of Jacobinism and Illuminism, having one Rogers as the leader, who, it was believed, was the only one acquainted with the real objects of the society, which had increased from five to sixty-one members. Six of these were arrested, and held for trial, but Rogers escaped. The Attorney-General (Sewell) to whom the matter was referred, made a long report on the subject, the text of which is in Q. 87–2 beginning at page 383. A few extracts may, however, be given here. The McLean, mentioned in the first extract, was executed for high treason on the 21st of July, 1797 (see report on Archives for 1891, p. xlii). The society spoken of by Milnes, "was formed of sundry individuals of desperate fortunes and among them "were many of the persons concerned in McLane's conspiracy, particularly Ira "Allen and Stephen Thorn, who were then lately arrived from France." An account is then given of Rogers, a schoolmaster from New England who had settled a short time before at Carillon, about 40 miles west of Montreal. The pretext on which he founded the society was to search for treasure, but the Attorney-General concludes from all the circumstances that the society was formed on the model of the propaganda established by the Jacobins of France in the countries of which they desired to obtain possession. Some of the depositions which accompany the report speak unhesitatingly and strongly of the complicity of Ira Allen in this conspiracy and that his object and that of the marauders whom he had collected in Vermont was not so much the possession of Canada, as the opportunity an invasion presented for obtaining a large amount of plunder.

According to the letter of the Lieutenant-Governor of the 28th October, 1801, this was the main motive of the Vermont adventurers, and if his statement be borne out, that not a single Canadian name was found amongst the list of conspirators, the evidence of its wholly foreign character would be proved and the belief of Sir Robert Milnes that Ira Allen was an emissary of the French Jacobins be fully confirmed. The apparent inaction of the Magistrates of Montreal, coupled with the exaggerated reports of the extent of the conspiracy, caused the greatest alarm, police associations were formed of the respectable inhabitants, General Hunter deposited, at the request of Milnes, 600 stand of arms for the use of the militia, who had been reviewed by the Lieutenant-Governor in different parts of the Province to the number of 12,000 men. In the course of his tour he had the satisfaction of observing the loyalty of the Canadian militia, so that he ventured on his return to Quebec to issue an order for one-eighth of the militia in and about Montreal. The response was instant and hearty. Sir Robert says, and the words are worth quoting: "The Canadian militia have not only shown themselves willing to come "forward in the numbers required, but have volunteered to increase that number to "any amount whenever Government may require their assistance." The precautions taken and the preparations, which could not be concealed, to meet any attack were successful; in November Milnes wrote that the schemes in the Province had been "done away," and from all the accounts received from Lower Canada and Vermont, he was in hopes that no further schemes of that nature would at that time be formed. On the 31st of July, 1802, he published the proclamation of the restoration of Peace (the Treaty had been signed in the preceding March) and that he had ordered a day of thanksgiving for the blessings it conferred. It was evident, however, to the statesmen of Europe, that Bonaparte, who in August, 1802, had been elected Consul for life, had no intention of maintaining permanent peace, but aimed at universal conquest, and in May of 1803 the British Ambassador left Paris, a step followed by a declaration of war. Even whilst the peace subsisted, the French republicans were making efforts to obtain possession of Canada, for on the 1st of June, 1803, long before any steps consequent on the declaration of war could have been taken, emissaries from France were in the Provinces, bent on sapping the loyalty of the inhabitants. On the 5th of May, a week before the British Ambassador left Paris, six or eight men, holding commissions from the Republic of France, were reported to be at Chambly; these men had been officers with Humbert, in the intended attack on Ireland, and they seem to have made no concealment of their uniforms, which were green and gold. Several of them had gone to Montreal, taking names different from those by which they were known in Chambly, and they openly avowed their hostility to the British Government in Canada. A letter from Mr. Auldjo, then in London, dated the 15th of March, 1803, gives warning that Bonaparte is sending emissaries to Canada. Two are specially named, Mr. de Léry, an officer of French artillery, and M. Villtray or Villeray, he is not sure which, a Canadian born, who was in Philadelphia and Upper Canada last summer, but was afraid to come on to Lower Canada. Mr. de Léry would come on pretext of seeing his friends. Further, Judge Panet sent extracts from a letter to his brother by M. Imbert, who had left Canada at the time of the conquest and was now settled in France, informing him that the French as earnestly desired to repossess Canada as they did to obtain Louisiana. The Judge points out that by a sudden dash the French might succeed in taking possession of Canada, if favoured by the Canadian habitants, and that a strong military force was necessary to restrain the disaffected and to encourage the friends of Government. The extracts given by Mr. Justice Pasquet from these letters, are of importance as showing in a clear light the feelings of the French people and corroborating the information sent to the Provincial Government respecting the presence of French emissaries in the Province. I translate:

"I may tell you that I continue to preserve an attachment for the country in which you live, so great that I wish to see it return to the government of the French, regarding it as a colony essential to trade and as an outlet for merchandise and for men, it would constantly furnish the means of speculation which would improve the futures of the citizens whom war and revolution have reduced to wretchedness. I believe the well thinking in your colony would be glad to see again their former compatriots travelling on their Continent." *

This letter is not dated, but is believed to have been written a little before the peace.

The letter from which the next extract is taken was written on the 12th of January, 1803, and may also be given in full. Both show the motives, which, partly at least, actuated those who were urging the policy of regaining Canada, the opportunities for speculation being strongly accentuated in both letters as of immense consequence for the French.

"I had for a moment the hope that the First Consul would have redemanded this Colony at the time of the general treaty of peace, as he had flattered me he would do in a reply I received from him, when informing me that he had sent my memorial to the Minister of Marine, to make use of on that occasion. I have observed with pain that the definitive treaty took place without reference to this question. There were, however, many reasons for not losing sight of so important an object, especially having treated with Spain for the Mississippi, which has returned to France. What a difference it would make as an outlet for the products of France, and for giving the means of speculation to an infinite number of Frenchmen, who have no resources in their own country.†

These extracts will serve to show that the precautions in Canada were not taken without sufficient reason and that the reports of emissaries being in the Provinces were not mere idle gossip, originating in the heated brains of terrified visionaries.

A new militia bill was passed during the session of the Legislature of 1803, to take the place of Lord Dorchester's Act of 1796, which had been carried with difficulty through the two Houses and had ever since that time remained a dead letter. But Milnes in a letter dated 10th June, 1803, expressed his apprehensions that the provisions of the Act of 1803 would require great caution and management to carry them into execution, owing to the weak state, in point of numbers, of the regular

* "Je vous dirai que je conserve toujours un attachement pour 'le pays' que vous habitez, au point que je voudrois le voir rentrer au pouvoir des François, le regardant comme une Colonie très essentielle pour le commerce et comme un débouché de marchandizes et d'hommes, qui auraient sans cesse des moyens de speculations qui ameliioreroient les futures des citoyens que la guerre et la revolution ont reduit à la misère. Je pense que les hommes qui pensent bien dans votre Colonie seroient fort aises de revoir leurs anciens compatriotes voyager dans leur Continent."

military force stationed in the Province. He believed, however, that the new Act afforded better means for a closer connection between the masses of the people and the executive authority, and would continue to review the militia, seeing the good effect that had already produced. He had also encouraged the formation of Volunteer companies, three of which were already embodied at Montreal, clothed at their own expense. Three more were about to offer at Quebec and one at Three Rivers, so that he had great hopes that the backwardness to serve in the militia would be gradually got the better of. He suggests that at a subsequent period additional pecuniary help should be afforded by the Imperial Government towards the objects in view, that is, strengthening the defences of the Province, but in the meantime the issue of arms from the King's stores would be sufficient. A fortnight later (24th June, 1803) in a letter to Lord Hobart, (Q. 92, p. 16), marked "Secret," Sir Robert enters into greater detail of the state of affairs. The last communication he had received at that date was a circular and proceedings in Parliament in March, but the indications these documents afforded, pointed so strongly to a renewal of the war with France, that he considered it necessary to take preparatory measures to meet such a contingency. He proposed to revive the Alien Act, in view of the belief, apparently well founded, that spies had been introduced into the Province. He also proposed to suspend taking any material steps towards carrying the Militia Act into force, "As in case of a war with France, it will not be the moment "to attempt any new measures" especially, as he repeats, with the small military force in the Province. Only two regiments, the Sixth and Forty-first, with a corps of Artillery were then stationed there, not exceeding 1,000 men in all, the garrison of Quebec consisting of the 41st with about 400 rank and file and about 190 of the Artillery. Although the Canadians were much more reconciled to the British Government than at any former period, and in event of a war with the United States would of themselves turn out, yet against the French it might be different, and the conduct of the lower orders depended greatly on the preponderance of a military force, to prevent them from joining the enemy at whose mercy they might believe themselves to be placed. He then discusses the probability of a dash being made by the French Navy up the St. Lawrence to capture the military stores at Quebec, which amounted in value to a million sterling, and such an attempt, seeing the temper of the present rulers of France, was one that might reasonably be apprehended. In the meantime a strict watch was kept on all suspicious strangers, and the consul general at New York communicated such information as reached him. Mr. Richardson, a magistrate of Montreal, was appointed secret agent, and seems to have conducted his operations with zeal and judgment. Among the agents employed by Mr. Richardson was a man named Rous, who had been notorious for assisting British soldiers, when deserting, but was not unwilling to accept service, for a consideration, under the British authorities. Mr. Barclay wrote on the 2nd of December, 1803, that Jerome Bonaparte, brother to the First Consul, Napoleon, had returned to New York on the 26th November, ostensibly for the southward, but intending, it was stated, to go to Albany, after spending a few days privately in New Jersey, and from Albany to communicate with the French in Lower Canada, and that it was probable he would go to the American line, near Lake Champlain, where a Frenchman named Rous lived, the same just mentioned, with whom McLean, who was executed, was particularly intimate. A close examination was made all along the frontier on Lake Champlain, and at Albany, but neither Jerome nor his companion had yet arrived, although expected at Albany during the winter. (The description of both is given in full at page 215 of this Report). In February, Milnes wrote that no positive intelligence had then been obtained that the French Government had actually been tampering with dis-affected persons in Canada. The prosecution of the project to attack Canada, depending on the success of the French arms in Europe, and its abandonment for the present, seems to require a glance at the state of maritime affairs in France, the reason given by Pichon, chargé d'affaires at Washington, for the present abandonment of the attempt being that Great Britain was too powerful yet at sea. Early in 1803, even before the declaration of war, the most active measures were taken by the French and British to increase the efficiency of their respective navies. On the part of the former, Napoleon had ordered the port of Flushing to be ready to receive and equip a squadron of ten 74-gun ships, which were ordered to be immediately laid down in various French dockyards. Gunboats and flat-bottomed vessels were to be built along the Scheldt, the Weser and the Elbe; in Brest there were 21 serviceable line-of-battle ships; three ships were nearly ready in the port of L'Orient and two more were ordered. Similar activity was shown at all other French ports. The result of this was that France had soon a force of 66 ships, 47 actually afloat and the others in a state of forwardness for action. Napoleon had not anticipated that the outbreak of hostilities would take place before September, but, as already stated war was declared in May and most active measures taken to carry it on On the 17th of that month, Cornwallis sailed with a formidable fleet to blockade Brest, and other fleets were stationed at different points to watch the motions of the enemy. It is unnecessary to follow the course of events in 1803, the actions during the year not being of prime importance, the engagements being chiefly those taking place between detached cruisers, and not involving the fleets. It was during the year 1804, that Napoleon became emperor and that the invasion of the British isles was to be made, a project which was rendered abortive by the constant vigilance of the British naval commanders, and the observation of Napoleon himself of the disparity between the efficiency of the navies of the two nations sufficiently accounts for Pichon's statement to Rous, that Britain was too powerful yet at sea to admit of Canada being attacked. In the meantime every precaution was taken there to guard against any hostile designs that might be entertained and to watch carefully that no French spies should gain access to the Provinces without detection, and for this and other purposes Mr. Richardson secured the services of apparently two ex-spies of the French, certainly of one, Rous or Rouse, for the name is given in both forms, the name of the other is not stated, he being only mentioned as No. 2. So far as can be judged from the reports made by Mr. Richardson, Rous was the most efficient, as he obtained information from Genet, who had been French Minister at Washington, as well as Pichon, the chargé d'affaires, and no suspicion seems to have been entertained of the correctness of his information, the barbarities committed by the French soldiers at St. Domingo having, he stated, cured him of his wish to see the French in Canada. The person known as No. 2, reported that Fouquet who had been using incendiary language whilst passing and repassing by L'Acadie (a settlement near Napierville on the Richelieu), was in reality an emissary sent in by the French consul at Boston, and that it was he who had spread the report that the United States, having got Louisiana, where desirous to extend their boundaries to the St. Lawrence, in which they would be assisted by France. The policy of Jefferson, then President of the United States, is thus described by Mr. Richardson, a description corroborated by what may be found in Jefferson's correspondence of that date: "The present conduct of Jefferson in several instances is far from friendly, but he is too great a " coward to risk an actual breach with Great Britain, unless the latter were to expe" rience serious injury from Bonaparte's invasion."

Rous (No. 3) also believed Fouquet to be a French agent, but had no belief in the invasion of Canada during that year. It was remarked as a coincidence which strengthened this belief, that Fouquet was about the frontiers at the time Jerome Bonaparte was expected. Of the propriety of making use of the tools whose employment he felt himself obliged to sanction, Milnes appeared to entertain some doubt, as he wrote what may be regarded as an apology beforehand for the course he was taking in this respect. " Considering," he says, " the smallness of the military force stationed in this Province, it appears to me of great consequence to secure such channels of information as may serve to detect and frustrate the more secret attempts of the enemy." (Q. 94, p. 34.)

In September, 1804, Mr. Merry, the British Minister to the United States, warned Milnes that a plot was in progress in both Provinces, the information being received from one Mathew Wing, a Canadian then settled in Saratoga County, New York. According to this informant, cattle and horses were being sent into the United States in large numbers, the proceeds of the sales of these to be used for the purchase of arms in Springfield, New England. The arms were to be prepared during the winter and conveyed to Lower Canada on rafts; part of the design was to seize the Governor, or Commander-in-chief when he should be on his route between Quebec and York in Upper Canada. General Hunter was at that time Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada and Commander of the forces in both Provinces. Wing also stated that one of the principal promoters of the intended insurrection (whose name he would not disclose) had furnished Jerome Bonaparte with all the information necessary for forming the plan of attack and had concerted with him to have a large ship loaded with arms at the expense of France, to sail under British colours, to be manned by Irishmen, to leave early in spring and to land the arms at Wolfe's Cove. From the tone of Mr. Merry's letter, it seems clear that he did not place too great reliance on Wing's statement, but sent it for what it was worth. Milnes in sending a copy of Mr. Merry's letter to the Colonial Secretary, stated that from the intelligence he had received from Rouse, employed as already mentioned in obtaining secret intelligence, he was satisfied there was not the smallest ground for believing Wing's statements, but he assured Mr. Merry that he would take steps still further to ascertain their truth. The account given by the Lieutenant-Governor to Mr. Merry of the feelings of the population in Canada at that critical time was reassuring. " I must," he says, " in justice to the Canadians observe, that the state " of the country has never been more tranquil, and the deportment of the people " throughout the Province more apparently loyal than it is at the present moment, " and the knowledge I have of the character of the Canadians, who are naturally
" a very quiet people and much attached to their homes, leads me firmly to believe " that they never would be induced to dispose of their cattle and horses for the pur" poses mentioned by Wing." The latter hypothesis was fully confirmed by the returns of the export of horses; with respect to cattle he never heard of any being exported to the United States from Canada. It was inevitable at a time of doubt and uncertainty as to the course that might be adopted, that such reports as that of Wing should be spread by people anxious to obtain money for furnishing information of plots which if they did not exist must be invented to secure a reward. That this was the fact in the case of Wing, admits of little doubt. Mr. Merry received information concerning the alleged sales of horses and cattle which corroborated the statements of Milnes, although such corroboration was not necessary, and added the further contradiction to Wing's story of the extensive purchase of arms at Springfield, that no such purchases had been made, nor even any inquiry as to the possibility of obtaining them.

That the cause of the abandonment of the attempt on Canada was due to the naval superiority of Great Britain may be safely conjectured from the information brought by Rouse, sent specially to Washington to ascertain the French designs. That Rouse, in his capacity of spy, did his work well seems to be proved by the confirmation which events gave to his reports. Rouse, according to his statement to Mr. Richardson, obtained access to, and gained the confidence of the French Minister at Washington, from whom he learned that the French had no immediate designs against Canada and certainly none for that year (1805.) They had designs for obtaining possession of the Province, but when these would be carried into execution depended on the events of the war [in Europe.] The Minister's words, as reported by Rouse in respect to the fleet, were very emphatic: "They never will risk a fleet in the St. Lawrence further than to land troops, and then go to sea immediately after. The great efforts of the French squadron which may go to sea this year will be in the West Indies." In certain contingencies the squadron was to attack Jamaica, failing that to harass the other islands and to make an effort against the negroes of St. Domingo. In any case, the Canadians were to keep absolutely quiet, as in event of a serious movement word would be sent in sufficient season. Emissaries would not be sent into the country at present; many who went in before were adventurers who had done more harm than good. Cazeau, the new consul at Portsmouth, New Hampshire, would have charge of any expedition that might be intended against Canada; that the French general would consult with Cazeau as to the measures that might be adopted for an invasion, and the Minister gave Rouse Cazeau's address, to serve as an introduction, by which he could obtain all information regarding French designs. Mr. Richardson was inclined to believe in the correctness of Rouse's reports, and apparently with justice.

Pitt, who had assumed the reins of power, having effected treaties of alliance with Austria, Russia and Sweden, the only great power which combined with France was Spain, which declared war against Great Britain, of which Milnes was informed by a letter from the Colonial Secretary, dated on the 11th of January, 1805, received on the 19th May following, a proclamation announcing the declaration of war was ordered on the 22nd of May to be published in the official Gazette, and means were at the same time agreed upon between the Lieutenant-Governor and the General in command of the forces for the defence of the Province in case of invasion or of an internal rising, of which no great apprehension appears to have been felt.

From the beginning of the war comparatively large amounts were contributed by Canadians of all creeds and classes towards the funds necessary for its prosecution. Among the names in the first subscription list are those of the leading English-speaking merchants, who gave liberally, the French-speaking inhabitants being also worthily represented. The religious institutions and the clergy joined heartily in the movement, the Seminary of St. Sulpice giving £500 as a gift and engaging to contribute £300 annually during the war, the largest single contribution, the annual subscriptions of the others ranging from £5 up to £25. (Q. 85, pp. 321 to 324, the list beginning at the latter.) Some time after, Sir Robert Milnes forwarded the following letter from Lieutenant-Colonel de Longueuil, with bill of exchange for the amount mentioned. The letter, addressed to Sir Robert Shore Milnes, Lieut.-Governor, &c., is in these terms:—

"SIR,—I have the honour to enclose a Bill of Exchange on the Pay Master "General for Five hundred Pounds sterling, with my humble request that Your "Excellency will be pleased to transmit the same to His Majesty's Treasury, as a con- "tribution from the officers and privates of the 1st Batt. of Royal Canadian Volun- "teers, towards the support of the present war. I am very respectfully, &c."

The victories at sea over the French navy had the effect of securing peace for some time, and during that period no great alacrity appears to have been shown in volunteering for military service, the danger seemed so far off and the probability of its near approach very slight. But as soon as the indications were that the United States had some intention to enter the field, the martial spirit that was latent became aroused, and Colonel Isaac Brock, who was then in command of the forces, expressed no doubt of being able to raise an efficient force in both Provinces, to whom arms might safely be entrusted. In view of the unfriendly acts of the United States Government, Brock believed that the result of the discussion then in progress would settle the question of peace or war. War was at least possible and the weakness of the Provinces for defence was notorious. In Lower Canada the whole number of militia then armed and "anyway instructed," did not exceed 300 men; as many thousands, he conceived, could be easily selected and formed into corps. The fortifications at Quebec, too, were so decayed as to be unable to stand an enemy's fire. He, therefore, called on the civil government to assist in remedying this defect, which would require the work of 600 to 1,000 men daily for from six weeks to two months, besides a vast number of carts, etc., the garrison being altogether inadequate to attempt such work. The reports of the officers of Engineers show that throughout both Provinces the same ruinous state of the fortifications existed. Should war with the United States take place, Brock believed that no serious attempt would be made before May, but unless the works were finished by October, they must be discontinued and not resumed till May, when it would be too late to complete them for defence. Should the work be done by October, there would be time to arm and form the inhabitants into some kind of order. On the 25th of July, Brock's letter (dated the 17th) was reported on at once by Council, and the determination arrived at, it appears best to give in extenso:—

"That in the absence of all information from either His Majesty's Ministers of State, or from His Majesty's Minister Plenipotentiary resident in America, or from any source other than the affair between the "Leopard" and "Chesapeake," and the Proclamation of the President of the United States, the Board feels itself totally incompetent to form any well-founded opinion on the probable events to result from the recent occurrences stated in Colonel Brock's said letter, consequently the committee is obliged to leave the question upon the probability or improbability of a war breaking out between the two countries, to be judged of when future official communications or the acts of either of the Powers shall furnish the means of forming a judgment thereon.

"If the Executive Government should by any means become possessed of information, or of any Facts or circumstances which should induce an Inclination of opinion that Hostilities were likely to commence between the two Powers, the Committee doubts not in such case Your Honour would feel yourself called upon and would show yourself most cheerfully disposed to co-operate with all the Energy the Executive Government possesses with Colonel Brock in attaining all the objects he has or may have in view. In the meantime the Committee begs leave to observe that Colonel Brock must be fully aware of the means he possesses in his situation Commanding the Troops, of calling in aid to the Garrison by hiring labourers and workmen, if in his Judgment the Exigencies of the present Case require it, without any concurrence on the part of the Civil Government, to this might also be added that Voluntary assistance which Colonel Brock suggests would be cheerfully given."

A reference to Dunn's letter to Castlereagh will throw some additional light on the course of the Council. (Q. 104, p. 140.)

The affair between the "Leopard" and the "Chesapeake" has been so fully discussed from both sides, that there is no need to speak of it here except to remark that before any representations had reached the British Government from the Government of the United States the act was formally disavowed by the former and reparation offered, an act not met with the return on the part of the United States which it ought to have received. Vice-Admiral Berkeley who had issued the order to search the "Chesapeake," was recalled, and every indication of friendship manifested.

Whether on account of the resolution of the Council, or for other reasons, Brock declined to accept the responsibility of commanding the troops in Upper Canada, a position assumed by Francis Gore, the Lieutenant-Governor, although he held no military rank. The position of Gore, as it appeared to him from the most recent information that had reached him, was most critical. Vice-Admiral Berkeley wrote him that war with the United States was inevitable. A categorical demand had been made for the renunciation of the right of search, which if refused was to be considered a declaration of war; the Vice-Admiral believed it to be impossible that the British Government could accede to such a demand. "The return of Mr. "Munroe" (Monroe) he says, "or the messenger from England will probably be "the signal for war," and added that if Canada should be taken there was a secret agreement that it was to be transferred to the French, or erected into a separate kingdom to be governed by a Frenchman.

Upper Canada was in a still more defenceless condition than Lower Canada, but Gore had, even before the receipt of Berkeley's letter been taking measures for defence. He had ordered provisions for the Indians to be thrown into Amherstburg and St. Joseph's, and called a general council of the Western Nations to meet at Amherstburg. By the time it met he presumed the question of peace or war would have been settled. But there was a deficiency of arms for the militia. Brock had sent only 4,000 stand from Quebec, so that it was decided not to call out any of the force, and of regular troops there was only 400 men, being the 41st Regiment and a small detachment of Artillery to guard an immense territory accessible at all points, the imaginary line being the frontier between Canada and the United States.

It was under these circumstances, as stated elsewhere, that Sir J. H. Craig was selected to fulfil the actual, instead of the nominal, offices held by Prescott, of Governor and Commander-in-chief of the Provinces. Before sailing he communicated his views on the defences, in a note, in which he expressed doubts whether an effectual resistance could be made to an attack at any other point than Quebec; even there Lord Castlereagh was doubtful if a prolonged resistance were advisable. He approves, so far as can be judged, of the formation of independent companies of Canadians, officered by gentlemen of the country, as preferable to more numerous corps, though their efficiency could only be tested by experience; asks to what extent he is to take measures to complete the defences of Quebec; desires to have two armed vessels, as necessary for the service of the river and requests that authority may be given him to direct the Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada in the general policy with regard to the United States and as to all movements of militia and volunteers in that Province, and generally to every object connected with a state of hostility, so that the general force should be under one uniform system. (Q. 104 p. 153.) A second note, undated, calls attention to the necessity that may arise for the transference of the control of Indian affairs from the Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada to the Commander-in-chief, the note concluding with these words: "In event of hostilities "with America, the line to be observed with regard to the Indians will become an "object of the most important consideration; they must be restrained or encouraged "to action as may be judged most expedient at the moment or as the conduct of the "Americans themselves may render necessary. Of (as?) this, as every other part of "the war will fall under his responsibility, he is desirous of being the judge; he can- "not feel satisfied, while liable to be led by engagements entered into by others "without his concurrence."

Sir J. H. Craig arrived in Quebec on the 18th of October, but from illness did not take the oaths of office till the 24th. A muster, which, to use his own expression, they call a review of the militia was held and he was told that, except in a few cases, the disposition was commendable, but on that head he could express no opinion of his own. No return of the actual number present was made, but it was estimated that with the 5th Battalion, ordered to hold itself in readiness, there would be a total of 37,000 militia. Military stores were, however, entirely insufficient. Of small arms only 7,000 were in store, Upper Canada had lately received 4,000 or 5,000 and demanded more which could not be spared; an additional supply of 7,000 was wanted. There were no accoutrements; without them no selected body of militia can serve effectually or will serve otherwise than with disgust and dissatisfaction. About 10,000 are wanted in Upper Canada, which is in the same condition as the Lower Province. Of flints the supply even for the regulars was insufficient, not to speak of the militia; of these 250,000 were wanted, as also a supply of blankets. (Q. 106, p. 5.) The letter shows clearly how unprepared Canada was at this time for defensive, far less for offensive operations.

The opinion of Mr. Joseph Bouchette, the Surveyor-General of Lower Canada on this point is, however, entitled to great weight, as he not only knew thoroughly the topography of the country, but was intimately acquainted with the feelings and sentiments of the population of Lower Canada. Writing to Mr. Cooke, the Under Secretary for the Colonies, he calls attention to the proposal to place General Moreau, at the head of 6,000 men, for the purpose of attacking Canada, in event of war with the United States, and expressed his belief that no one was better calculated than Moreau to lead such a force, but he proceeds, and the result of the war of 1812 showed how correct were his prognostications: "I conceive he can "have but a very little chance of succeeding, as a much greater force will be "required to ensure the Americans any degree of success whatsoever. If they "talked of fifteen or twenty thousand men, divided as follows, I should feel more "alarm, that is to say, six or seven thousand men headed by General Moreau to pro- "ceed to Montreal, an equal force to go up the Kennebec River and down by the "River Chaudiere to take post before Quebec, erecting batteries opposite to the "town at Point Levy, and three or four thousand to go down by the River St. "Francis, with an intention of forming a junction with Moreau's army at Three "Rivers in case of his success in taking Montreal." But even with this formidable demonstration, he does not believe in the successful result of such an enterprise, but the contrary, should proper steps be taken. "By augmenting the military force in "the two Canadas to ten thousand strong, if no more can be spared, added to about "twenty or twenty-five thousand active militia in Lower Canada, and about twelve "or fourteen thousand in Upper Canada, besides Indians, the Americans would find "it a very difficult task to take either of the Provinces, but more especially Lower "Canada. With respect to Upper Canada, they have more in their power and less "militia to oppose them, and also the advantage of turnpike roads leading to the "different garrisons which they at present occupy on the frontier, a circumstance "highly in their favour. Nevertheless, I am convinced that by a judicious distri- "bution of the troops and militia of that Province and augmenting the naval force "on the lakes, added to the state and commanding position of Fort George, situated "on the west side of Niagara River, a most powerful resistance can be made, and I "trust that time will show that Canada is not so easy a prey to the Americans as "they consider it to be." (Q. 106, p. 507.)

Even before the arrival of Craig, preparations were actively carried on in anticipation of hostilities. The muster, or review, of the militia reported on by Craig, had been ordered by Dunn; Gore who had taken charge of the forces in Upper Canada, thought it his duty to pay a visit to Montreal, to meet and consult with Brock as to the arrangements necessary for the protection of Upper Canada. Colonel Brock told Sir Francis Gore "unceremoniously" that the responsibility lay with him (Gore). No account is given of the subsequent conference, but it seems not improbable that it was as a result of this that the preparatory steps already referred to were taken. Gore also reported that it was impossible to say what the "sovereign People" in the United States would do. Emmett was very busy and had some warm friends in the Province. The threatened war, however, did not take place then, nor till the date of Madison's administration in 1812.

The description given by Brock of the ruinous state of the fortifications was by no means exaggerated. In 1805, Lord Chatham (the second Earl, who was Master General of the Ordnance from 1801 to 1806), sent a confidential letter to Lord Camden on the defences of Quebec, but those desirous of studying the subject should refer to the letter itself with its enclosures in Q. 99, pp. 206 to 225*a*. It was in reference to the works on these defences that the correspondence betweeen Brock, Dunn and the Executive Council took place, which has already been mentioned.

Fort Erie, in the then state of transit was regarded as an important point for defence, being at the head of the communication between Lakes Ontario and Erie and essential as a temporary depot of all the provisions, stores and merchandise which passed up and down these lakes. Colonel Mann reported that the fort was completely in ruins, and that temporary repairs could no longer be resorted to. These had kept a part of the building from falling entirely to pieces, but what time and decay had failed to accomplish had been completed by a storm on the 6th of January preceding, and the whole was now in ruins, except one stone building constructed in 1797. Colonel Mann estimated that the fortifications and buildings would cost £9,649 3s. 0d. Colonel Mann's report, with a plan, is in Q. 296, following Hunter's letter at p. 257. The approval of the report was communicated by the Colonial Secretary on the 9th January, 1804, and the work ordered to proceed.

The fortifications in Lower Canada were in an equally bad condition, but it may be sufficient to refer to Major-General (formerly Colonel) Mann's reports, with the accompanying plans. For St John's, on the Chambly, and Montreal see Q. 299, pp. 72, &c., plans at 81*a* and 81*b*, for Quebec pp. 82 to 105. For reserves for military purposes at Montreal see, pp. 114, &c. With the letter of the 15th of January, 1805, are reports of surveys, returns, &c., of all the military stores, a study of which, with that of the reports on fortifications, will give very complete information respecting defensive preparations in the Canada of that period.

The maintenance of the walls round the City of Montreal was felt to be a great inconvenience and disadvantage, and frequent representations were made to the Executive Government on the subject. So far back as 1791, General Mann, then a Captain of the Royal Engineers, reported that whilst in the infant state of the colony, the works round Montreal were useful as a protection against the Indians, they were no longer required for that purpose, and that their ruinous condition made them rather a nuisance than a benefit. Part of the material of the walls he recommended should be preserved, the rest to be used for filling up the ditch, or for any other purpose in the re-forming of the town. Citadel Hill, he considered, should be levelled and barracks built on part of it, or by levelling the hill to an easy slope Notre Dame street might be opened to the Quebec suburbs, forming a good entrance and a great improvement to the town. The cross streets should lead to the mountain and a road be preserved along the front of the river, which in time would form a fine quay or promenade. The whole report may be studied with advantage by local historians. (Q. 86-2, p. 277.) In July, 1793, Mr. Dundas approved of the removal of the walls, but directed Lord Dorchester to ascertain whether the owners of the adjoining property had or had not the right, as they maintained, to have their property extended on the removal. In 1797, Prescott, Lieut.-Governor, informed the Legislature that the petition for the extension of property consequent on the removal of the walls had been granted, desired the Assembly to take measures to prevent litigation between owners past and present and stated that the officer commanding Royal Engineers would be directed to prepare a plan of the town and fortifications, which would show the reserves proposed to be made for the use of the Crown. The bill for this purpose, prepared by the Attorney-General and transmitted to the Colonial Secretary is in Q. 86-2 in English at page 290 and in French at page 318. In November (1797) the Colonial Secretary wrote that the bill had been received and would be returned with such directions as might be necessary, which were sent in August, 1798. In 1801, a bill for the removal of the walls, in accordance with these last directions, was passed by the Legislature, with some amendments, but reserved by Sir Robert Milnes in case any further consideration in a military point of view might be thought necessary. This, and two other reserved acts, were assented to by His Majesty without change or modification, a decision communicated to Milnes on the 6th of May, 1802, and on the 10th of June, 1803, a proclamation was issued giving effect to the reserved bills. A plan of the town and fortifications of Montreal at this period (1802) is in Q. 299, p. 81*b*.

On the 6th of June, 1803, a destructive fire took place in Montreal. It broke out in the house of a man named Chevalier in St. Lawrence Main Street, on the north east side, toward the upper end. The wind was high and variable; the houses and outhouses on both sides of the street soon took fire. At a quarter to four the roof of the gaol was burning, soon followed by the English Church on the north-east and the Roman Catholic Chapel on the south-west side. These, to use the words of the report by the magistrates, were "instantaneously consumed." It was with difficulty the Court-house was saved. Besides the gaol and two church buildings, the Roman Catholic college and eleven houses were burned in the lower part of the town. About ten o'clock at night the fire was under control, at the house adjoining that occupied by Mr. Justice Ogden. In the suburbs, where it originated, the fire was extinguished by sunset, after destroying thirteen houses, besides outhouses, stables, &c. Other fires followed during the summer, of so alarming a character, that it seemed evident they did not arise from accident but from design and a reward of £500 was offered for the apprehension of the offenders. With the exception of the first, which took place in June, these fires broke out during the first week of August, and the magistrates offered a reward of £250, making with that offered by the Governor £750 for the detection of the criminals. The succession of fires is thus reported. On Monday, 1st August, a little after one in the morning, fire broke out and consumed two houses; on Tuesday morning at 6 o'clock, a stable was discovered to be on fire, but was pulled down, and the fire extinguished; on Wednesday several houses were burned, one man killed and a number more or less seriously wounded. On Friday other fires broke out, entirely destroying a number of houses, and it was with difficulty the lower part of the town was saved from a serious conflagration. Patrols were established and precautions taken to guard against a repetition of the fires. Nothing further appears in the correspondence in relation to this subject.

Another fire may be noticed here, that of the Convent of the Ursuline Nuns at Three Rivers, on the 2nd of October, 1806, of which, however, no details are given.

In accordance with instructions, from the Hon. John Carling, then Minister of Agriculture, I proceeded to London, which I reached on the 18th of October last for the purpose of continuing investigations of the documents relating to the Dominion. Since that time I have been daily at work on the examination of the papers, but it is not yet sufficiently advanced to permit of a satisfactory report being made.

The whole respectfully submitted,

DOUGLAS BRYMNER,
Archivist.

LIEUT. GOVERNOR MILNES TO THE DUKE OF PORTLAND.

(Canadian Archives, Series Q., Vol. 85, p. 228.)

QUEBEC 1st November 1800.

MY LORD,—On my first taking upon myself the administration of the affairs of this Province, I was extremely struck with the wavering state in which I found the Interests of Government. I have since been at much pains to discover the real cause of this situation of things, which I plainly saw lay deeper than, I believe, is generally supposed by His Majesty's Ministers, and I am so forcibly impressed with a persuasion that this subject ought to be attended to, that I feel it my duty to lay before Your Grace such remarks as have occurred to me respecting it, in order that Your Grace may be fully apprized of the real state of the Country, and take such measures as you may think fit to strengthen the Executive Power in Lower Canada.

However excellent in itself the new Constitution may be which His Majesty has graciously been pleased to Grant to the Province, I conceive the Foundation of it must rest upon a due proportion being maintained between the Aristocracy and the Lower Orders of the People, without which it will become a dangerous weapon in the hands of the latter. Several causes at present unite in daily lessening the Power and Influence of the Aristocratical Body in Lower Canada. I cannot however but think that measures might be adopted to counterbalance in some degree this tendency, and I shall hereafter have the Honour to point them out to Your Grace; but in order to make myself clearly understood, I must first explain what I consider to be the principal causes by which the Influence of the Aristocracy in this country has gradually been reduced to its present state. The first and most important of these, I am of opinion, arises from the manner in which the Province was originally settled; that is from the independent Tenure by which the cultivators (who form the great Body of the People and are distinguished by the appellation of Habitans) hold their Lands; and, on the other hand, from the inconsiderable power retained by those called the Seigneurs, and the little disposition they feel to increase their Influence or improve their Fortunes by Trade. Hence by degrees, the Canadian Gentry have nearly become extinct, and few of them on their own Territory have the means of living in a more affluent and imposing style than the simple Habitants, who feel themselves in every respect as independent as the seigneur himself, with whom they have no further connexion than merely the obligation of having their corn ground at his Mills, paying the Toll of a fourteenth bushel, which they consider more as a burdensome Tax than as a Return to him for the Land conceded by his family to their Ancestors forever, upon no harder conditions than the obligation above mentioned, a trifling Rent, and that of paying a Twelfth to the Seigneur upon any transfer of the Lands.

The second cause which I apprehend tends to lessen the Influence of Government in this Province is the prevalence of the Roman Catholic Religion, and the Independence of the Priesthood; this Independence I find goes considerably further than what was intended by the Royal Instructions wherein it is particularly declared to be His Majesty's pleasure, "that no person whatsoever is to have Holy Orders "conferred upon him or to have the Care of Souls, without a license first had and "obtained from the Governor," &c., &c., but this Instruction has hitherto never been enforced, by which means the whole Patronage of the Church has been thrown into the hands of the Roman Catholic Bishops, and all connexion between the Government and the People through that channel is cut off, as the Priests do not consider themselves at all amenable to any other power than the Catholic Bishop.

A singular Instance lately occurred of this Independence : A Priest at Terrebonne, near Montreal, interfered in the most indecent manner in the late election for the County of Effingham. He exerted all his Influence to prevent the Solicitor General from being chosen, and violently supported a man who had been expelled from the House of Assembly on account of his having been convicted of Conspiracy, and who was consequently considered as a dishonoured Person. Upon this man being chosen, the Priest actually went so far as to perform High Mass in the Parish Church, to return thanks, as he termed it, "for the re-election of this Martyr." In Justice to the Canadian Bishop I must add, that upon my representation he did everything that was proper to be done on the occasion.

Another circumstance which has greatly tended to lessen the Influence of Government since the Conquest, has arisen from the necessity which then existed of disembodying the Militia, but as I am by no means of opinion, considering the circumstances which took place a few years since that it would be either practicable or prudent to call on the Militia at this particular moment, I shall not enter further into this subject at present, though I shall hereafter revert to the Militia, even in its present state, as a means by which a certain degree of Influence might still perhaps be established in the several parishes.

It may be unnecessary to observe to Your Grace how much more Important the above facts are become since the establishment of the new Constitution. In the time of French Government, an Ordinance issued in the name of the King was sufficient to enforce the Execution of any measure that was deemed expedient, without any discussion taking place upon the subject, or its entering into the mind of the unlettered Habitant, to doubt for a moment the propriety of the measure. But since the establishment of the present Constitution in the year 1792 the case is very different, everything being previously discussed in the House of Assembly, and unless a certain preponderance can be maintained in that House, which at present is by no means as firmly established as I could wish, the Power of the Executive Government will insensibly become nothing. Very few of the Seigneurs, as I have already hinted, have sufficient Interest to ensure their own Election or the Election of anyone to whom they give their support in the House of Assembly; and the uneducated Habitant has even a better chance of being nominated (though he cannot perhaps sign his name) than the first officer under the Crown. There was a moment when I even despaired of getting the Attorney General into the present Assembly, and though it is undoubtedly better composed than the last, it is far from being so respectable a Body as Government might wish.

The Canadian Habitants are, I verily believe, an Industrious, peaceable and well disposed People, but they are, from their want of education and extreme simplicity, liable to be misled by designing and artful men; and were they once made sensible of their own Independence, the worst consequences might ensue. They are, in fact, the sole proprietors of nearly all the cultivated Lands in Lower Canada. The Seigneurs and Ecclesiastical Bodies to whom the Lands were originally granted, having conceded the greater part of the Lands for ever, with little or no reserve, to the Cultivator, in small Parcels of from one to two hundred acres, retaining only, as I have already observed, the Property and Profits of the Mills, a certain proportion of the Produce, which is sometimes paid in kind and in various ways, and the Sods and Ventes; and this species of property attached to the Seigniorial Rights, is by the Ancient French Laws of Inheritance (which occasion frequent subdivisions of Property) in a few Generations become quite inconsiderable, whereby the situation of the Seigneur has in many Instances been reduced below that of the Vassal. Each Habitant cultivates as much Land as he can manage, with the assistance of his own Family, and as is necessary for its support; and having thus within themselves from year to year all the necessaries

f life, there cannot be a more independent Race of people, nor do I believe there is n any part of the world a country in which equality of situation is so nearly stablished. Except in the Towns of Quebec, Montreal and Three Rivers, little or o difference is observable in the affluence of the Canadians, but what may in some measure arise from the local circumstances of more or less favourable situation, a richer soil, or a greater or less degree of exertion.

The counties are divided into Parishes, each Parish chiefly extending about three leagues along the River St. Lawrence and Chambly, and to each of which there is a Parochial Church; the principal person in every Parish is in general the Priest, another next the Captain of Militia, and it is through the latter that any business is transacted by Government.

Having endeavoured to give Your Grace some insight into the actual state of this country, which I could more fully enlarge upon if I was not apprehensive of intruding too much upon your time until I have received your permission so to do, I shall proceed to point out the means by which I imagine the Influence of Government might be immediately extended to the distant parts of the Province, and though I am conscious this cannot be effected without a certain expense to the Mother Country, I consider that expense as inconsiderable when compared to the sums it would require to quell any disturbance that might for want of timely precaution take place in the Province. The apprehensions of such an event though not immediate, is strongly impressed on the minds of some of the best Friends of Government.

I am well aware the chief object to be depended upon to increase the Influence of the Crown, will be by means of the Waste Lands; and in that point of View the delay that has taken place in the Land Business is greatly to be regretted, and it becomes an object of peculiar Importance to Government that no further delay may occur to prevent the clearing and settling of the immense Tracts that are now in the hands of the Crown undisposed of, as their being granted in free and common soccage will in time (if judiciously granted) form in this Province a body of people of the Protestant Religion that will naturally feel themselves more immediately connected with the English Government, but as this cannot be expected to have any immediate effect, I am inclined to think that in the meantime much may be done first through the Catholic Priests, and secondly by means of the Militia.

The Present Catholic Bishop is extremely well disposed to Government, he is allowed by His Majesty £200 per annum, as Superintendent of the Catholic Church, in addition to which he receives from Government a Rent of £150 a year for the use of the Bishop's Palace at Quebec, which is occupied by Public Officers; he has lately applied to us for an enclosure of this Rent, signifying at the same time that his Income is very inadequate to the situation and the calls which are made upon it, which I have reason to believe is a just statement.

This application offers an occasion of attaching the Canadian Bishop more particularly to Government, if by such an encrease of his appointments as His Majesty shall graciously be pleased to allow his situation was made more easy, at the same time requiring of him a strict attention to that part of His Majesty's Instructions to the governor which I have before mentioned. This I am of opinion would tend very much to encrease that consideration which the Priests themselves ought to feel, and to encourage in their Parishioners, for the Executive Government, at the same time that it would ensure the co-operation of the Canadian Bishop. But in order to carry this point, particular care must be taken to secure a proper moment, and if the Bishop should be decidely averse to make the sacrifice required of him, it ought perhaps be deferred to the Peace.

The Priests have a 26th of all the Grain, which may be valued at £25 or £26,000 year, which alone must make their influence very considerable, and especially as e Religious Bodies are in possession of nearly One Fourth of all the Seigniorial ghts granted before the Conquest (excepting those of the Jesuit Estates lately ken into the possession of the Crown, as will appear by the Inclosure): there are 3 Parishes and 120 Parish Priests.

With regard to the Militia, it will be more difficult to give Your Grace a clear and distinct idea of the mode in which I am inclined to think use may be made of this Body to support the Interests of Government through the Province and to disseminate Principles of Loyalty amongst the Canadians in opposition to that spirit of Democracy which has lately gained so much ground in many parts of the world, but fortunately has not at present made any material progress in Canada.

The Population of Lower Canada is computed at about One Hundred and Sixty Thousand Souls, nine tenths of whom reside in the Parishes before described, distinct from the Towns, and from these are drawn the Canadian Militia, which amount to 37,904 between the ages of 16 and 60. In the Parishes here alluded to, there are 232 Captains of Militia, who are chosen from amongst the most respectable of the Canadian Habitants (the Etat Major amounting to 16 being in general chosen from among the Seigneurs); and here it is necessary to inform Your Grace how far under the dominion of France the Body of the People were regulated in all Public Matters by the Officers of Militia; the Captains of Militia being the persons employed to issue and enforce the Public ordinances, and the Curés, and through the authority thus delegated to them by Government, possessed considerable influence in their respective Parishes.

Although under His Majesty's Government these powers have in a great measure been withdrawn, especially since the establishment of the new Constitution, there still remains in the minds of the Canadians, a certain consequence attached to the character of Captain of Militia, and as I have before observed to Your Grace it is still customary on all public occasions to employ this useful Class of People to perform many services for Government, which they had hitherto done without other Reward than merely that arising in their own minds from the honour and respectability of the appointment; but this tho' sufficient to render it desirable is, as they feel, by no means an equal return for the considerable Portion of their time so employed. If then by means of an honorary and pecuniary reward, or by any plan that may be so approved of by the Executive Council, this class of the Canadians would be brought to consider themselves as the immediate Officers of the Crown, and peculiarly attached to the Interest of Government, there is no doubt that such an influence, from the circumstance of being equally diffused over the whole Province would effectually tend to keep alive among the great Body of the people, that spirit of Zeal and Loyalty for Monarchical Government which I believe to be natural to the Canadians, but which for want of an immediate class to whom they can look up, and from their having no immediate connexion with the Executive Power, is in danger of becoming extinct.

That Loyalty is a lively principle in the hearts of the Canadians I have no doubt, if I may judge from the expressions of satisfaction which are shewn by all Ranks, whenever the Representative of His Majesty only passes through the Country; this I myself experienced (though at that time generally unknown) in the Tour I lately made through the Province.

There are several other means besides those I have already stated by which I am convinced a proper bias may be maintained in the minds of the Canadians, so as I should hope would secure the Province against any internal Commotion or Disaffection, the details of which I shall reserve until I shall receive Your Grace's sanction to trouble you further on this head; particularly as in order to give Your Grace a complete idea of this subject and the extent of my plan, it will be necessary to solicit your attention while I lay before you a sketch of the relative Expences of the Civil Department of Lower Canada, and the Military expenditures of the Canadas, by which it will appear how little proportion exists in the expences of those Departments, and what a considerable saving may hereafter accrue to Government, if according to the Plan proposed, and by a more liberal allotment to the Civil Expenditure, such an Influence could be attained over the minds of the Canadians as might in the course of time not only secure the Province from any Interior Commotion or disaffection but likewise ensure the co-operation of the Inhabitants in the defence of the Province gainst the attempts of a foreign Enemy without the aid of such a Considerable ilitary Establishment as the Mother-Country has hitherto maintained in this part f His Majesty's Dominions.

The deficiency of the Revenue, upon the average of the last Five years of the ivil Expenditure, amounts, as will appear in the paper I have the honour to transnit, to £12,000 per annum, and the Military expence of the two Canadas, according o the best Information I can collect to about £260,000, this Expence would, in case f any Tumult or Insurrection in the Country, or of a war with the neighbouring States, most probably be double its present amount, and this Consideration alone hows, how infinitely important it is to the Mother-Country, that Your Grace should e made acquainted, while there is yet time, with every means by which the Influence of the Crown may be increased and the hands of the Executive Power strengthened.

But there is another Consideration of perhaps greater importance than any above mentioned: Could such an Influence be obtained throughout the Province by means of the Priests and the Captains of Militia, as I have ventured to look forward o, that Influence when fully established might also be employed so as at all Times o ensure a Majority in favour of the Government in the House of Assembly, and to ecure the election in that House of such men, as from their Education and knowledge of Business are most likely to see the real Interests of the Province in heir true light, and not to be deluded by the fallacious arguments of any popular peaker from giving their entire support to the Executive Government. The defect f such an Influence over the Elections lessens the respectability of that Assembly n a very great degree, and particularly as from the absolute want which has so ong existed of the means of Education and the inability of the Canadians to support he Expence that would attend sending their sons to the Mother-Country for that urpose, there are at present scarcely any rising men, and but few men of Talent mong the Canadian Gentry.

From this and other Causes the Business of the House of Assembly is transacted ith so little system, or regularity, that the oldest members are sometimes unable o form a judgment of what is likely to be Result of their deliberations on the most ommon subjects.

While a due Preponderance on the side of Government is so manifestly wantng in the Assembly, it is considered by the well-wishers of Government as a ortunate circumstance that the Revenue is not equal to the Expenditure, and Your Grace will immediately see the necessity on this account of preserving, in appearance at least, that disposition in a greater or less degree, as there is no reason to pprehend that in case the Province could be induced to tax itself in a degree equal o the calls of the Executive Government, the Right of Regulation and Control ver the whole would probobly be aspired to by the Assembly, which could not fail f producing the most injurious consequences to the Colonial Government, rendering from that moment dependent on the will of a popular Assembly.

The burthen which is at present thrown upon the Mother-Country will be fully Compensated for, whenever the sums that shall arise from the sale of the Waste Lands begin to come in, and particularly if (as appears by the despatch of the 13th July, 1797, to Gen. Prescott, to have been in contemplation) it should be determined o appropriate the moneys arising from these sales to the purchase of Stock in the English Funds, and the Interest of this Stock to go in aid of the Civil Expenditure of the Province, in such manner as the Lords of His Majesty's Treasury may direct.

The Quantity of Land which from first to last will have been at the disposal of Government is computed at about One hundred and fifty Townships, equal to Ten million of Acres, which have actually been applied for, including as is supposed the principal part of the Ungranted Lands in Lower Canada that are deemed convenient and fit for cultivation.

Of the above about Thirty-five Townships only are in contemplation to be granted in the original Terms proposed in the year 1792, consequently one hundred and fifteen Townships will remain for the future disposition of the Crown, exc of the Church and Crown reserves, consisting of five sevenths set apart Townships already granted.

The Wealth, Power and Influence that must accrue to the Parent State these Lands became settled is an object of self evident magnitude, and must in make a full return for whatever will be found necessary in the meanwhile to s and secure so valuable a colony.

I flatter myself there can be no doubt that the Liberality with whic Majesty has lately been pleased to provide the means of Education in the Pro will go a great way to secure the affection and Loyalty of the rising Gene who would otherwise be in danger of imbibing Principles inimical to His Ma mild and paternal Government, by the necessity which has hitherto existed o being sent to the neighbouring states for Education.

The respectable footing upon which the Protestant Church is about to in Quebec will likewise tend to increase Consideration which ought to prevail Established Church.

When I began this Dispatch I did not foresee the length into which I ha evitably been drawn, but trust I shall stand excused in the opinion of Your by the motives that have actuated me in this research, and I may truly say no other view than a full and conscientious discharge of all the duties that to the situation which His Majesty has been pleased to entrust to me.

I have the Honour to be, My Lord,

Your Grace's most obedient and most humble servant

Remarks.

The Revenue from the source No. 1 has been of late improved and may still improve under the same management, in the following particulars :

Leases of the Forges St. Maurice formerly £20.16.0 now leased for £850 pr. annum for five years. Lease of a part of the King's wharf for years at £310 per annum.

The remainder given up for the uses of the Military Department estimated at £ per annum.

The King's Post now leased for £400 pr. annum, there is reason to believe, may be leased for a much larger sum.

The Lots et Ventes or Mutation Fines in the King's Domain at Quebec and elsewhere now unproductive may if attended to and collected (or an equivalent in lieu thereof) produce a considerable addition to the Revenue.

The Revenue under the 14th of the King (if the Act of Consolidation should be ratified) will be blended with the other funds provided by the Provincial Legislature, any deficiency must be made good thereby, but on the other hand the surplus, if any (and which is the more probable) will be at the disposal of the Legislature.

The Revenue No. 3 is in the same predicament. The sum of £5,000 stg. having been voted to be raised by the Legislature of the Province, and accepted by Government as a fund towards the administration of Justice and support of the Civil Government may be considered as its acknowledged proportion of the expences.

NOTE C.

ECCLESIASTICAL AFFAIRS IN LOWER CANADA

No. 1.—LIEUT. GOVERNOR MILNES TO LORD HOBART.

QUEBEC, 15th August 1803.

MY LORD,—I have the honour to transmit Your Lordship a copy of a letter from the Lord Bishop of Quebec, respecting the situation of ecclesiastical affairs in this Province.

The Bishop in his present letter has entered so fully into this important subject as to leave little for me to say concerning it, and indeed I view the matter as to entirely depending on whatever may be His Majesty's determination with regard to the Church Establishment of Lower Canada, that I consider it unnecessary for me to do more than to transmit Your Lordship's statement for the purpose of its being submitted to His Majesty's consideration, at the same time persuaded that the highly respectable character of the Bishop, and the uniform support he has afforded to the Executive Government of the Province, will add no inconsiderable weight to whatever he may suggest for the better regulation and establishment of Ecclesiastical affairs in this Diocese.

Concerning the Roman Catholic clergy in Lower Canada, it is necessary I should mention to Your Lordship that, so far as I can learn, no authority, or interference with respect to them has hitherto been exercised by any of His Majesty's Representatives in this Province, I have therefore judged it advisable for the present, to leave all matters relating to them in the state in which I found them. Having in my Dispatch marked separate and secret of the 1st November, 1800, (Q. 85. p. 228) to His Grace the Duke of Portland, entered at large into the actual situation of the Roman Catholic Clergy of Lower Canada, I beg leave on the present occasion, to refer Your Lordship to that Dispatch.

I have the honour to be, my Lord,
Your Lordship's most obedient most humble servant
ROBT. S. MILNES.

No. 2.—ANGLICAN BISHOP OF QUEBEC TO LIEUT. GOVERNOR MILNES.

SANSBRUIT, 6th June, 1803.

SIR,—It is not without reluctance that I come forward at the present moment to request Your Excellency's attention to the situation of ecclesiastical affairs in this Province, not because I entertain any doubt respecting the importance, or the urgency of the several matters which I wish to lay before you, but because the time in which His Majesty's Bounty is largely employed in completing a Metropolitan Church at Quebec may appear to be ill-chosen for soliciting higher distinction and more extensive protection.

But, after maturely considering the subject in its different relations, and weighing, with the best deliberation in my power, its political, as well as its religious and moral, influence upon the general interests of His Majesty's subjects in these Provinces, I feel myself impelled, by a sense of superior duty, to surmount my scruples, and submit to Your Excellency's consideration the several points which appear to me to be of more immediate moment.

The Instructions which have been successively issued to His Majesty's Representatives (as far at least as they have been to my knowledge), the provision made by Parliament for the future maintenance of a Protestant Clergy, the erecting of those Provinces into a Bishop's see, and the assurance given to the Bishop upon his appointment to it, have spoken with uniform decision the intentions of His Majesty's Government with respect to the actual Establishment of the Church of England here.

I need not observe to Your Excellency that what has been thus obviously intended, has hitherto been very imperfectly effected.

Compared with the respectable Establishments, the substantial Revenues, and the intensive power and privileges of the Church of Rome, the Church of England sinks into a merely tolerated Sect; possessing at the present moment, not one shilling of Revenue which it can properly call its own; without Laws to controul the conduct of its own Members, or even to regulate the ordinary proceedings of Vestries and Church Wardens; without any provision for organizing or conducting the necessary proceedings of an Ecclesiastical Court or power to enforce their Execution. And what is worst of all, and what cannot but alarm and afflict the mind of every serious and reflecting man, without a body of Clergy, either by their number sufficient for the Exigencies of the State, or, by any acknowledged right, or legitimate authority, capable of maintaining their own usefulness or supporting the dignity of a Church Establishment.

I am perfectly aware, Sir, that we must look to the Provincial Parliament for such local laws and regulations, as are above alluded to. But, without meaning any improper reflection upon that body, I may be permitted to say, that as it is at present constituted, the Church of England must not expect any material assistance from it; unless that Church shall first be raised from its present depression, and shall derive, from the proper authority, that weight which alone can give it its constitutional preponderance, as the Established religion of the country—its rights being at once clearly ascertained and legally secured.

A variety of circumstances of which Your Excellency has perfect information and into the details of which it is not therefore either necessary or proper that I should enter, will, I trust, completely justify this language.

I shall proceed to submit such objects as appear to me to call in a more peculiar manner for immediate consideration.

And first, I would beg to suggest the necessity of determining whether the Church now building at Quebec shall be considered as really a Metropolitan or merely as a Parochial Church; whether it can consistently be left without a chapter? without some portion of that dignity which should constitute its appropriate character?

If a Parochial Church merely, whether the intention of actually establishing the Church of England in Canada and of supporting a Bishop's see will not appear to be in reality totally abandoned.

To enumerate the manifold advantages which would be derived to the country from such an establishment would carry me too far.

I will mention of only one or two of primary importance. But I must first beg permission to observe to Your Excellency that it is not the interests of the Protestant inhabitants of Quebec, Montreal, Three Rivers, William Henry, and the settlers in the new Townships (the last already amounting to many thousands [Appendix A.] and rapidly increasing) which are involved in this question—important as these interests are—but those also of the whole Province of Upper Canada, which is at least equally concerned in the event of such an establishment.

In both Provinces the majority of His Majesty's subjects are Dissenters; and of these there is a great variety of sects. I speak not my own opinion only, but many of the best informed persons in both Provinces, when I say that an effectual and respectable establishment of the Church of England would go near to unite the whole body of Dissenters within its pale. Upon such a union I need make no comment; o religious benefits (great as they must be) I say nothing. Its political advant in times like these, would be incalculable. His Majesty could have no bond sure for the allegiance and fidelity of his Subjects in these distant Provinces.

Another main advantage would be the facilitating of the necessary suppl clergymen.

Where there is no hope of advancement there can be little expectation of en ing the services of men of ability and worth. Respectable and useful ministe our Church will not easily be induced to spend their lives in the wilds of this c try without any prospect of ever going to such more convenient and more hon able stations as their labours and virtues may be found to deserve.

That primitive zeal which could induce men wholly to forego every comfo this life for the purpose of propagating the true Religion, I fear, is rarely to be f amongst us; at least it may not have been my good fortune to find it. But difficulty of providing Clergymen for the new settlement would, I believe, be enti removed if a liberal and proper Church establishment held out to them a reason hope of reaping some fair emolument and some honourable distinction as the rew of an exemplary and meritorious discharge of their duty.

Whenever this subject comes to be considered I hope it will be considered that in the present state of Society, the dignity of Religion itself, as well as respectability of the Church is compromised, when its principal Ministers are much straitened in their incomes.

Your Excellency, I persuade myself, will be of opinion that the salaries of Rectors of Quebec and Montreal are now a great deal too low. They have n been augmented since they were first fixed, although the price of many of the ne saries of life is at present three times as much as it was at that period.

Two hundred pounds a year is very inadequate to the support of that resp able rank in society, which the Rectors of the Capital of this Province and of rich and flourishing City of Montreal ought undoubtedly to maintain.

The number of poor in both these cities, who have no provision by the l form a strong claim upon the charity of the Ministers of a benevolent religi claim which, in the instance alluded to, is well known to be duly attended to. duty of both parishes is very heavy; too much for a man at all advanced in and the assistance of a curate could not be obtained for less than half the Rec salary.

I think the salary at Three Rivers, which is equal to those at Quebec Montreal, at present sufficient for the situation, but that at William Henry, w is only £100 a year, is certainly too low.

I would next advert to the jurisdiction of the Bishop.

The late proceedings of the Court of King's Bench at Montreal, in a c against the Rev. Mr. Tunstall, accused of cruelty in the treatment of his wife (fol ed by a petition from the principal parishioners for his removal from the Liv proved him guilty of such gross misconduct as loudly called for the animadver of the Bishop and demanded the authoritative decision of an Ecclesiastical C Upon that occasion Your Excellency saw the difficulties that oppose the organi of such a Court; and the painful situation to which the Bishop must have reduced, if he had not happily found a resource in Your Excellency's concurr and support.

Circumstances of a still worse complexion have since threatened still gre difficulties.

Advocates in the temporal Courts are, indeed, in this Country by their C mission, Proctors, but for a registrar, or any inferior officer of the Court, there at present no means of provision.

This seems to deserve attention.

If the Establishment should take place, I would beg leave to propose that Bishop and Dean and Chapter, with the addition of a few more of the clergy, shou incorporated, for the purpose of taking the future superintendence and manage of the lands reserved for the Church; the entire disposition of the fund arising therefrom being left with the Governor and Council of the respective Provinces.

Let me be permitted further to add, that as I humbly conceive, material and general advantage would result from the endowing of the Bishopric and the Chapter, with a portion of the Waste Lands of the Crown, reducing, in proportion, whatever salaries are, or may be, paid to either, out of the Army Extraordinaries or otherwise.

In hazarding such a suggestion as this, after the ample provision that has been made by Parliament for the support of a Protestant Clergy, I am not without apprehension that my motives may appear to be less disinterested than they ought to be; or than in reality they are. Such a conception will, however, I trust be obviated, if it be considered that a revenue from the reserved lands is yet entirely future; that some time must yet elapse before it can be rendered in any degree considerable; that the present dependent state of the Church is ill adapted to give due solidity, or procure proper respect to the Establishment; that such endowments as might be made would ultimately bear no proportion to the whole possessions of the Church, and that it is not meant thereby to augment the actual income of any individual.

I am sorry to be under the necessity of occupying so much of Your Excellency's time.

I suppress much that appears to me to be not unworthy of your attention, but there remains one point, which, although I introduce it with pain, because I may again appear to be personally interested, yet seems to me to have growing consequences of so much importance and extent, that I conceive it to be my duty humbly, but most earnestly, to recommend it to Your Excellency's consideration.

His Majesty was graciously pleased in the year 1793, to erect these Provinces and their dependencies into a Bishop's see, "to be called thenceforth" (Letters patent) "the Bishopric of Quebec." By successive Acts of his Government he had been pleased to provide for "the establishment of the Church of England, both in principle and practice," and for the future maintenance of its clergy.

It appeared to be His Majesty's gracious intention to leave to his subjects of the Romish Church "a toleration of the free exercise of their religion, but not the pow-"ers and privileges of it as an established Church, for that is a preference which "His Majesty deemed to belong to the Church of England alone."

Reserving to himself his just supremacy, His Majesty was pleased to "forbid, "under very severe penalties, all appeals to a correspondence with any foreign "Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction, of that nature or kind soever"; to prohibit "the exer-"cise of any Episcopal or Vicarial power, within the Province, by any person pro-"fessing the religion of the Church of Rome, such only excepted as are essentially "and indispensably necessary to the free exercise of the Romish Religion, and that "not without a licence or permission from the Governor for and during His Majesty's "will and pleasure" to direct "that no person should have Holy Orders conferred "upon him, or the care of souls, without a licence from the Governor," and "that "all the right or claim in any person whatever, other than His Majesty, to present "or appoint to any vacant benefice (Patronage of civil right excepted) should be "entirely abolished."

But what has Your Excellency found to be, in truth and in fact, the existing state of things?

"The Superintendent of the Church of Rome" (for such I understand to be his legitimate and proper appellation) is in the actual enjoyment of all the power and privileges of the most plenary Episcopal authority, under which he visits not this Province only, or that of Upper Canada, but the Provinces also of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

It is under the immediate sanction of the Pope's Bull, that he and his coadjutor enter upon the exercise of their Episcopal functions. He selects, as I understand, without any licence from His Majesty's representative, or any reference to him, whomsoever he thinks proper for Holy Orders and the care of souls.

He disposes absolutely, if I am not misinformed, of the whole Patronage of his extensive Diocese; and since the settlement of the French Emigrant Priests

(Appendix B.) in this Province, he has come forward with decision not only to assume himself in the public prints the title of "Bishop of Quebec," but to add the splendid style of "Monseigneur Sa Grandeur, le reverendissime et illustrissime." (C) His coadjutor wears the habit, and assumes the rank of a Bishop and likewise receives the title of Monseigneur.

Books (D) in the English as well as in the French language, inculcating the doctrines and discipline of the Church of Rome, are publickly advertised, under his authority for "the use of the Diocese of Quebec."

I am far from wishing that the Roman Catholic Clergy should be deprived of any of those privileges so liberally conceded to them for the free exercise of their worship, or of any reasonable indulgence that they enjoy; I would rather (if it were permitted) express a wish that the Superintendent's allowance from Government were better suited to His Majesty's distinguished bounty. But if in addition to his extraordinary power and influence, he be permitted to continue this high style of dignity, it is natural to ask what becomes of the Establishment of the Church of England? If the Roman Bishop be recognized as the "Bishop of Quebec," what becomes of the Diocese which His Majesty has solemnly created, and of the Bishop whom he has been graciously pleased to appoint thereto? To authorize the Establishment of two Bishops of the same Diocese, of different religious persuasions would be a solecism in Ecclesiastical Polity, which I believe never took place in the Christian world; to attempt the union of different Churches with the State would be, I hardly conceive, an experiment in the science of Government not less dangerous than novel.

If all that has been thus unwarrantably assumed were permitted to be continued and by such permission were virtually to receive the sanction of His Majesty's Government, it would be an indulgence which (I speak with all humility and deference) would appear to contravene the laws and constitution of our country; it would be to place "the Pope's Bishop (for such he is) above the King's; it would be, in my poor opinion, to do all that can be done to perpetuate the reign of error, and to establish the empire of superstition; and consequently it would be to grant an indulgence to the Canadians more injurious to themselves than even to the English Inhabitants; for whatever would have a tendency gradually to introduce reformation of the Romish Church would be the greatest benefit Canadians could receive.

I intreat Your Excellency not to consider me as under the influence of an intolerant and uncharitable spirit in what I have here advanced: I am indeed attached to the Church of England by principle and not less by experience: Not to insist in this place upon the superior purity of her faith and doctrines, I believe her to be the best friend to the security and happiness, both of the governing and the governed, of any that exists in the world.

It is my bounded duty to watch over her interests. I now make what I intend should be, on my part, a last appeal on her behalf: I have the honour to make that appeal where it can be perfectly judged, and will be candidly accepted. Again disclaiming, therefore, every wish to see the Romish Church deprived of any privilege which can be thought necessary to the complete and liberal toleration of its worship, I do not hesitate to conclude that unless some immediate and effetual remedy be applied to the abuses which have been gradually introduced; unless both the positive and relative situation of the Church of England, in this country, be speedily and radically changed, all reasonable hope of maintaining the Establishment of that Church will, in my judgment be irrevocably lost.

The Roman Catholic Religion will be to all intents and purposes the established Religion of the Country; rapidly declining, as it should seem, in other parts of the world, it will not only find a safe asylum here, but be raised to the preeminence and laid upon the broadest and most substantial Basis.

Such, Sir, after long and, I think, unprejudiced reflection, upon this subject is my decided opinion.

I have thought it my duty explicitly to state it. But these observations, as well as the measures that I have ventured to suggest, are submitted, with the utmost deference, to Your Excellency's wisdom: And, with the strongest persuasion that whatever shall appear to involve the real interests, present and future, of the people committed to your care, will be thought not unworthy of your favourable consideration.

I have the honour to be with highest regard, Sir,
Your Excellency's most obedient and humble servant
J. QUEBEC.

Appendix (A).

Upon a moderate calculation, the Settlers in the new Townships may be estimated at from eleven to fifteen thousand. And when it is considered that there are at the present moment thirteen hundred thousand acres of land actually under Patent, and that probably near two millions more will soon be added, it must be evident that at no very distant period, the Protestants in this Province will outnumber the Papists.

With respect to Upper Canada, I have reason to believe, upon the most respectable authority, that the number of people in that Province is from sixty to eighty thousand, and that there is an annual influx of five hundred Families.

Appendix (B).

I have carefully examined the Quebec Gazette from the end of the year 1793, and I do not find any instance in which the Bishops themselves have assumed these titles before the publication of the Coadjutor's sermon, in Janry., 1799. In June 1794, indeed, Mr. Gravé, a Frenchman, giving an account of the death of Mr. Brian "ancien Evêque de Quebec," a Frenchman also, in the Gazette, stiles him "l'illustrissime et reverendissime Père en Dieu," and Mr. Desjardins, a French Emigré, upon the death of Mr. Hubert, does the same thing. But I am speaking of the open assumption of these titles, and the style of the Diocese by the Bishops themselves.

Of French Books advertized, by authority, "à l'usage du Diocèse de Quebec," I find no instance before Sept. 1800, nor of English Books, "for the use of the Diocese of Quebec" before Nov. in the same year. To July 1796 their style was "pour l'usage des Congreganistes," in Feby., 1800, simply "avec approbation."

The annexed extracts (C and D) from the Quebec Gazette of the 15th April 1802, and from a supplement of about the same date, will exhibit specimens of the stile now in use.

No. 3.—LORD HOBART TO LIEUT. GOVERNOR MILNES.

DOWNING STREET 9th Jan. 1804.

SIR,—After a full consideration of the important topics discussed in the communication of the Bishop of Quebec, which accompanied your Dispatch No. 65. I have the honour to state to you that, with every disposition to pay due attention to the suggestions of so respectable a character, it has not been judged expedient, under present circumstances, to recommend that any question should be agitated which might tend to excite differences between the heads of the Protestant and Roman Catholic Church, and it is therefore extremely desirable that you should point out to the two Bishops the propriety of abstaining from any acts that might have the effect of producing mutual uneasiness, or of creating any irritation in the minds of the clergy or the persons professing the Religions which they respectively superintend.

It will be highly proper that you should signify to the Catholic Bishop the impropriety of his assuming new Titles, or the exercise of any additional Powers; and it would be right that you should intimate to him that, although no express orders have been issued upon the subject, it is expected that if any such have been recently taken up, that they should not be persevered in.

The French Emigrant Priests should also be reminded that their residence in Canada is only upon sufferance, and it is therefor the more incumbent upon them to observe the utmost circumspection in their Proceedings, as they must be aware the indulgence with which they have been treated by the British Government is liable to be withdrawn if they should render themselves undeserving of it by anything questionable in their conduct.

The advantage of uniting the whole Body of Protestant Dissenters both in Upper and Lower Canada, within the pale of the Church of England, is justly appreciated by the Bishop of Quebec, and it is understood that the Protestants in Lower Canada are confined to the Towns, whilst the Body of the People in the Upper Province, chiefly Protestants, are actually estimated at from sixty to eighty thousand in number, with a large annual influx of Families. A consideration arises with respect to the Policy of fixing the seat of the Protestant Church Establishment, and the Residence of the Bishop in that Province. Upon this point I request to receive your sentiments and those of the Bishop, with whom you will naturally consult.

I am to desire that you will obtain and transmit to me for His Majesty's information, a Return of the Incomes of the Livings in Lower Canada, specifying not merely the nominal salaries, but also, as far as it can be ascertained, a full account of the actual Receipts of the several Incumbents derived from their situations.

I have considered, with the attention it so justly deserves, your Dispatch to the Duke of Portland, of the 1st November, 1800, and should be glad to receive from you any additional light upon the points therein adverted to, and particularly how far any alteration has taken place in Lower Canada since that period, with respect to the Roman Catholic Clergy.

The plan in contemplation for the Establishment and Endowment of an extensive Institution for the purpose of Education in the higher Branches, and which you have been authorized to commence by the erection of Seminaries at Quebec and Montreal, will tend greatly to promote the objects recommended by the Bishop of Quebec.

With respect to the several other matters which he represents as highly interesting to the Protestant Church Establishment in Canada, it appears advisable to suspend any determination concerning them until a more favourable opportunity shall arrive.

No. 4.—CONVERSATION, MGR. PLESSIS AND ATTORNEY GENERAL SEWELL.

First Report.

To His Excellency Sir ROBERT SHORE MILNES, Baronet, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Lower Canada &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,—

In obedience to your commands, I have the honour to report to Your Excellency the conversation which passed yesterday between the Reverend Mr. Plessis, Titular Roman Catholic Bishop of Carrothe,* and myself, upon the present state of the Church of Rome. With the exception of some few remarks upon indifferent subjects, the dialogue was as follows:—

Plessis. I have lately spoken to the Governor respecting the present situation of our Church, and he has referred me to you on the subject.

Attorney General. The Governor has given me permission to explain my own private sentiments on the subject to you; what I think you may ask, and I will answer candidly. But before I state what I have to say, let me observe that the object is of the last importance to your Church, and (I admit also) important to the Government. It is highly necessary for you to have the means of protecting your Church, to the Government to have a good understanding with the Ministers of a Church it has acknowledged by the Quebec Act, and at the same time to have them under its controul. Let me also remark that the Government having permitted the free exercise of the Roman Catholic Religion ought, I think, to avow its officers, but not, however, at the expense of the King's Rights or of the Established Church. You cannot expect, nor ever obtain, anything that is inconsistent with the rights of the Crown, nor can the Government ever allow to you what it denies to the Church of England.

Plessis: Your position may be correct. The Governor thinks the Bishops should act under the King's Commission and I see no objection to it.

Attorney General. My principle is this, I would not interfere with you in concerns purely spiritual, but in all that is temporal or mixed, I would subject you to the King's authority. There are difficulties, I know, on both sides; on one hand, the Crown will never consent to your emancipation from its power, nor will it ever give you more than the rights of the Church of England, which has grown with the Constitution, and whose power, restrained as it is, is highly serviceable to the general interests of the state; on the other hand, your Bishop will be loth to abandon what he conceives to be his right, I mean particularly the nomination to Cures; yet that he must do so, for no such power is vested in the Bishops of England, and if permitted would be highly dangerous.

* Bishop in partibus of Carrothe in Palestine.

Plessis. You said conceives to be his right; why so?

Attorney General. The statute of the 1st of Eliz., Cap. 1, made for the dominions which the Crown then had, or might thereafter acquire, explains what I mean. But I shall not conceal my opinion: it is that the Bishop has no power, and I shall be happy to shew you the grounds of this opinion at a future day, should anything arise out of this conversation.

Plessis. I know the 1st of Eliz., but I confess I did not know that it was extended to the Dominions which the Crown might thereafter acquire.

Attorney General. It certainly is. It was made at the time when England had most reason to be dissatisfied with the Roman Catholic Religion, immediately after the death of Mary:—It provided for the emancipation of all English subjects from the Papal power in all times and places.

Plessis. Had Mary followed the advice of Cardinal Pole, the Statute never would have been passed; she would not then have disgraced herself and her religion by her cruelties.

Attorney General. Whether he influenced her or not, Mary's conduct tended to establish the reformation most firmly, and happily to blend the Church and State of England as they are at present.

Plessis. How are Rectors (Curés) appointed in England?

Attorney General. Where the King is patron, and he is of all livings not in the possession of individuals, by title, he presents to the Bishop, who, if there be no legal cause of refusal inducts the Clerk presented. If there be cause, he certifies that cause to the King, and if the King is satisfied he presents another, but if not, a writ issues to the Bishop requiring him to certify his cause of refusal into the King's Courts, who try the merits of the refusal and declare it good or bad according to law; on this footing I would place your Church.

Plessis. The King then would become the Collator to every Benefice. The King of France was to Consistorial Offices, but not to Cures.

Attorney General. He was to many Curés, but not to all, because many of his subjects, lay as well as ecclesiastical characters, were the Patrons.

Plessis. The Bishop ought not to be obliged to certify his cause of refusal. In France, where the Patron was a layman, he was bound to present five Clerks successively before the Bishop was obliged to give any reason for refusing them. When the sixth was presented, he was bound to assign the cause of his refusal. If the Patron was an ecclesiastic, he shewed cause on the presentation of the third.

Attorney General. Neither of these rules extended to the King. I think I can shew you that to your satisfaction. It would not be decent to refuse the presentation of the Sovereign, without cause, nor ought a Bishop ever to be ashamed of assigning the reason of his refusal in any case.

Plessis. Presentation by the Crown agrees with the tenets of the Church of England, but not with ours. It would be against our spiritual duty. Bishops in France have always presented to the livings in their dioceses—in the late concordat between the Sovereign Pontiff and Bonaparte, their right to present is recognized.

Attorney General. As to Bonaparte and the Pope I will say nothing,—except that the former (thank God) is no example to us. But I formally deny that it is contrary to receive a presentation from the Crown. It was the daily practice in France with respect not only to the Crown but even to private patrons of all descriptions. I am no Catholic, but my professional duty has led me to weigh well this objection according to your own principles. My answer is very short:—The Bishop ordains in the first instance, which qualifies the character for the living:—the Prelate and not the Crown makes the Priest: the Crown selects only from your own Priesthood the person whom it thinks fit for the Appointment, and if there be no cause of repeal the Bishop invests him with everything necessary to enable him to perform the functions of his Cure. The reciprocal selection of the person by the Bishop in the first instance for the Priesthood and of the Crown for the living in the second instance preserves a just balance between both.

Plessis. In our Church some orders qualify the individual to say Mass, others confess, others formal.

Attorney General. I beg leave to interrupt you. When the Crown presents a person not admitted to orders sufficient for the appointment to which he is nominated, the Bishop has legal cause to refuse.

Plessis. If the King presents in all cases, the Bishop will never have a chance of advancing a faithful pastor.

Attorney General. The Bishop once acknowledged the head of his department will be that in fact. You know the attention that ever has been and ever will be paid to the heads of departments in our Government. The Bishop's representation to the Government in such a case would secure the promotion of the person he wished to promote.

Plessis. Your Bishop has certainly greater power. The Gazette lately informed us that he had presented Mr. Rudd to a living at William Henry.

Attorney General. The Gazette is certainly the King's paper, and its contents generally to be relied on, and that in this instance is the case. Mr. Rudd has been appointed to William Henry, but it was the Governor, and not the Bishop, who presented him. Be assured that all livings in the Church of England in this Province are in the King's gift.

Plessis. Governors do not always pay attention to the recommendations which they receive. I remember Chief Justice Osgoode complained heavily, that Mr. Perrault had been appointed Prothonotary of the King's Bench, contrary to his recommendation.

Attorney General. Mr. Osgoode's complaint confirms what I say. The conduct observed toward him was an exception to the general rule, and therefore he complained.

Plessis. Our general Church Government is aristocratic, but the Government of a Bishop is monarchical. He has the power of enacting Reglemens which must be obeyed. You will not probably admit this position.

Attorney General. The power of a Bishop extends to a forcing by his Reglemens the general principles of Government adopted by the Church. He cannot legislate, he can only enforce obedience to what is already enacted, to the Canons and to the Municipal laws of the Country.

Plessis. That is true, but our Canons are different, materially different from yours.

Attorney General. I cannot admit that. It was enacted in the Reign of our Henry the 8th that the Canons then in force and not repugnant to the principles of the reformation should continue in force until a review of them should be made, which never has been accomplished, so that the Church of England is now governed by the Canons in force prior to the reformation, which form the greater and most essential part of the Canons which govern the Church of Rome.

Plessis. You state incorrectly; your Church, for instance, does not acknowledge the Canons enacted by the Council of Trent.

Attorney General. The Gallican Church certainly does not.

Plessis. Yet the Canons of the Council of Trent certainly were in force in France.

Attorney General. Yes, the greater part, but that was because the Kings of France enacted them in their Ordinances. On this head, you cannot suffer, for those Ordinances are at this moment component parts of the Municipal law of Canada.

Plessis. I once saw in the hands of Mr. Ryland (the Governor's Secretary) the King's Instructions, in which it is said that no priest shall be removed from his cure, unless he has been previously convicted, in some of His Majesty's Courts, of felony. There may be many instances, in which a priest ought to be removed, who has not been guilty of felony. The difficulties would be less if the Bishop had a jurisdiction over his Clergy an "officialité," which, perhaps, never would be granted.

Attorney General. I have already requested you to understand that in all I say I speak my own private sentiments and no more. With this remark, I have no hesitation to say that the Government ought in policy to give the Bishop a jurisdiction lergy, subject always to the controlling power of the King's Bench, and eration of the Writs of Prohibition and Appeal. The Court of the England are subject to the King's Bench.

s. If the Writ of Prohibition is similar to the "Appel comme d'Abus," in t a shadow of authority will remain to the Bishop. Every act of a Bishop tely held in France abuse of his authority and constantly set aside in the ts.

ey General. The Writ of Prohibition is very different from the "Appel bus." By that all questions were reexamined as well in fact as in law. of Prohibition is a Prerogative Writ issued out of the King's Bench to e ecclesiastical and other inferior courts from proceeding in causes institu- them in which they have no jurisdiction or in which they proceed contrary o what Court the Appeal should be is a subject for consideration.

s. You know that all Curés at present are removable at the pleasure of . In the first establishment of this Colony it was otherwise, but after- n the erection of the Seminary of Quebec, Monseigneur De la Val got it is at present. If the King presents, the Curé ought to be removable op's pleasure.

ey General. I think very different. The spirit of the Colonial Institu- s every office during pleasure nominally, but that pleasure is well known during good behaviour, and a rector in England is removable only for t. It seems expedient to me, that a Curé should know his parishioners onsider himself as fixed among them. In times of difficulty a Curé long ith his flock can guide them better than a new comer. Mutual confidence result of a short and transitory acquaintance; and without that nothing an be done by the pastor at such a moment. I will tell you also frankly dependent upon the will of the Bishop, would be little subject to the f Government. If this was the case, the situation of the Curé would not e, nor could you expect that the better class of people would educate their he Church. Your Court of the Bishop would be perfectly unnecessary, resentation of the Crown an idle ceremony, if the Bishop could afterwards hen he pleased.

is. The situation of a Curé under such restriction would be better than, situation of the Bishops of Canada at present. For myself, I have enough, cure which gives me all I want, but Bishop Denaud is in poverty, holding nd acting as a parish priest, in direct contradiction to the Canons.

rney General. My mind upon that subject is completely made up. The ent recognizes your religion and making its officers officers of the Crown, rovide for them as for all others. The Bishop should have enough to m to live in a splendour suited to his rank, and the coadjutor a salary in n.

is. I do not want to see the Bishop in splendour, but I wish to see him nt. I do not wish to see him in the Legislative or Executive Council, but lesiastic only, entitled to the rank which is due to him in society.

rney General. When I said splendour, I qualified the expression, by calling endour suited to his rank." I mean by that, that his income should be that leman, and equal to a proper expenditure. There is in fact no such thing our in Canada.

is. We mean the same thing. But there is a great delicacy in this matter. shop was pensioned and relinquished the right of nominating the Curés, e would not hesitate to say that he had sold his Church.

rney General. To stop the public clamour is a useless attempt. If matters were to be staid for fear of popular abuse, Government would be able to do little; the governed but seldom approve. In our instance, if the matter is s it ought to be viewed, the world must be satisfied that, instead of hing a right you have in fact never to relinquish, you abandon the shadow receive the substance; surely, this is sufficient answer to any vulgar declamation inst a Bishop who makes terms highly advantageous to his Church and must be isfactory to himself.

Plessis. I don't know; it is his affair.

Attorney General. There is one idea which I wish to suggest. If you ever an to fix the officers of your Church upon any footing, this is the moment. The esent Lieut. Governor is a gentleman of most liberal principles, he has been ng enough in the country to know all that relates to it, is well disposed to serve you, and is on the point of going to England where this matter must be settled.

Plessis. I am well aware of all this. Whatever is to be done must be done now.

Attorney General. If I say what I ought not to say, you will excuse me, but I feel convinced that if you forego this opportunity, it will never return. It is your interest to avail yourself of the present moment, and make the best terms you can.

Plessis. You cannot say anything which can either hurt or offend me. I consider this a free conversation on both sides, for effecting a very important object, which, without an unreserved communication, can never be effected.

Attorney General. I will not take up any more of your time at this moment.

Plessis. I am much obliged by the time you have bestowed on me. Something must be done, and tho' we may differ in the detail, I think we shall not in the outline, and if we do differ we must be temperate, and in that case we shall ultimately agree. I am, however, a subordinate officer, I must first write to the Bishop, and when I know his sentiments I will wait upon you.

Attorney General. Do so, but pray keep in mind what I have said, that you never can obtain anything inconsistent with the prerogatives of the Crown, nor at all events any right that a Bishop of the Church of England does not possess.

All which is most respectfully submitted by, Sir,

Your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

J. SEWELL,
Atty. General, Lower Canada.

Quebec 26 April 1805.

Second Report.

To His Excellency Sir ROBERT SHORE MILNES, Baronet, Lieut. Governor of the Province of Lower Canada &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,—

I have the honour, in obedience to your commands, to report to Your Excellency the substance of the conversation which passed between Mr. Plessis, the Roman Catholic Bishop of Carrothe and myself on the 21st inst.

He entered at first into a general view of the state of the Roman Catholic Church in this Province, its toleration by law, under the Capitulation and the Quebec Act, and the assistance afforded to its support by this, inferring from thence that it was an established religion, and consequently that the Crown ought not only to recognize its officers, but to invest them with all the powers to which they had formerly been entitled under the Government of France. In answer to this I briefly observed that things were so much changed since that period, by the introduction of a Protestant Government, that no idea of the kind could be entertained for a moment. I recalled to his recollection what I had said in our first conversation, respecting the Church of England, and asked if he conceived it possible for the Roman Catholic Church to obtain what was denied to the National Establishment, intimating to him at the same time that he ought to be contented with much less.

In the further progress of our conversation he entered into a specific enumeration what the members of the Church thought themselves entitled to, and I shall detail his demands with my answers, generally, but as accurately, and at the same time as distinctly as I can. Our Dialogue was too long to admit an attempt on my part to relate it more particularly.

1st. "That the Bishop should be created a Corporation by some title which "would distinguish him from the Protestant Lord Bishop of Quebec."

To this I answered, That there was no Catholic Bishop of Quebec, nor could the Government, in my opinion, recognize such a character, without an Act of the Imperial Parliament. That a Superintendent of the Roman Catholic Church might be appointed, and an Assistant Superintendent, with such salary, rank and precedence as the Crown might think fit to grant, and that such titles would sufficiently distinguish them from the said Bishop of Quebec. That they would be civil officers of the Crown, and might take in silence from the Pope such ecclesiastical qualifications as in conscience they might require to enable them to execute the duties of their Ministry. That I could say nothing about their corporate capacity, but conceived that their offices, like all other Colonial appointments, would be held during pleasure.

2ndly. "That the Bishop should appoint his own Grand Vicaires and Subordi- "nate Officers."

To this I answered that I saw no material objection, provided it was done in each instance with the approbation of the Governor, and that the appointments were for spiritual purposes only. That the Lord Bishop of Quebec was authorized by Letters Patent to appoint his Commissaries, but that it was a point of importance which would require consideration.

3rdly. "That the Bishop should have an Ecclesiastical Court for the Government "of his Clergy."

Upon this head, I referred him to our first conversation, adding that my opinion was still the same,—That Government ought in policy to give the Bishop a Jurisdiction over his Clergy, subject to the controuling power of the King's Bench, by the Writ of Prohibition &c. and to the revision of his Sentences by Writ of Appeal.

4. "That the Bishop should have authority to superintend and direct the adminis- "tration of the revenues of the religious Communities."

To this I answered, That the revenues of the religious Communautés, so long as they remained, was their own. That their submission to the Bishop as their spiritual director, would very nearly effect all that he could desire. But I requested him at the same time to observe, that no arrangement which he might make with the Executive Government could change the law in this respect,—That the King was legally the visitor of every communauté, and if he thought proper to delegate his authority to the Bishop, that it must necessarily be exercised subject to his controul, in such way as he might see fit to appoint. I added that I saw no objection to its being so delegated.

5thly. "That the Bishop should be empowered to regulate the fees to be received "by Curés upon Baptisms, Marriages, Funerals" &c.

To this I answered that by the Edict of 1695, the Bishops of France had been authorized to fix the fees to be taken by Curés upon the celebration of Marriage &c. notwithstanding the Ordinance of Blois, but that this Edict had been enactment subsequent to the establishment of the Sovereign Council of Quebec, and not being enregistered by that Council was not in force in Canada. That by the Ordonnance de Blois it was enacted that the usage of each particular parish should decide the quantum of fees to be taken in such cases by the curé, and that this was the law of Canada upon this subject at present, as the Ordonnance de Blois had been enacted before the establishment of the Sovereign Council, and was a part of the system with which the first Colonists emigrated from France. That it was not in the power of the Executive Government to change the law in this respect.

6. "That the Bishop should finally audit and controul the accounts of all moneys "expended in the building and reparation of Churches and parsonage houses" &c.

I answered that all contestations respecting the building and reparation of Churches &c. were by law cognizable in the King's Courts, and that they in my inion were the proper final auditors of all accounts of moneys so expended. That ch expenditures were in fact taxes levied upon the parishioners for their use, under e authority of the Civil Law of the Province, and that the syndics of every parish ere, in my opinion, answerable to the Parish in an Action of Account for every enny that came to their hands either for building or reparation. That I did not herefore see how such a power could be vested in the Bishop by grant from the Crown.

7. "That the Bishop should retain the nomination to livings, but not present "without the concurrence of the Governor."

I answered that this was impossible. That the nomination and presentation must remain in the Crown exclusively.

8thly. "That livings should not be permanent but held during pleasure."

I answered, by referring him to what I had said upon this point at our first interview. That nominally a living should be held during pleasure, which should continue unquestionably, during good behaviour.

9. "That the Bishop should have two or more Coadjutors."

I answered that one was sufficient and he could not expect more.

10. "That the Salary or Pension to the Bishop should be £1500 and to the "Coadjutor £750 pr. ann."

I answered, That upon this point I could not say anything, but that I had every reason to presume that Government would be liberal.

11. "That the School Act should be reversed and the Superintendence of pro- "testant Schools vested in the Lord Bishop of Quebec, and the superintendence of "Catholic Schools in the Catholic Bishop of Quebec."

I answered very briefly that this was impossible.

12. "That the Bishop should be empowered to erect parishes."

To this I answered, That the right of erecting parishes was clearly vested in he Crown exclusively, which was an authority common to the Church of England nd the Church of Rome. That parishes were certainly ecclesiastical divisions of he Province, but there was an absolute necessity that every circuit of land which became a parish should be and remain forever a parish as to both Churches, much ivil matter being engrafted upon them which had equal relation to both. That he power of dividing the Province into Parishes for the service even of the Estab- lished Church not being vested in the Lord Bishop of Quebec could not be granted o the Titular Catholic Bishop.

All which, nevertheless, is most respectfully submitted by, Sir,

Your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant

No. 5.—LIEUT. GOVERNOR MILNES TO LORD CAMDEN.

Quebec 27th July 1805

My Lord,—It is with the highest satisfaction that previous to my departure from Quebec, I am enabled to transmit to Your Lordship the Petition of Mr. Denaut to His Majesty which I have the honour to enclose, and which I flatter myself will give an opening to the final arrangement of those objects with regard to the Roman Catholic Clergy which I have had in view for several years past, and had the honour to submit to Your Lordship's consideration in my dispatch No. 28.

I feel myself called upon in justice to Mr. Denaut to state to Your Lordship that I have found him uniformly candid and open in the course of several conversations we have had on this subject, and I believe there is no man more truly attached to he Government than he is.

Your Lordship will observe that in signing the inclosed Petition to His Majesty, Mr. Denaut styles himself "Bishop of the Roman Catholic Church," and prays that e may be formally acknowledged as "Bishop of the Roman Catholic Church of Quebec," a title by which he is not acknowledged in the King's Instructions to th Governor where he is only called Superintendent of the Romish Church.

But, though the title is not allowed by the Instructions, it has always been use in courtesy, except in official letters from the Governor, and Mons. Denaut, as we as his Predecessors, has usually been addressed by the Title of Monseigneur, not onl by the society in general but also by the Persons administering the Government. have endeavoured to make M. Denaut understand the due distinction, but as he ha always been in the habit of signing as Bishop of Quebec, I did not insist on different signature from the present, being unwilling on this occasion to hurt th feelings of a man of his advanced age who has in this instance conducted himse with so much propriety.

(p. 8.) REQUÊTE DE MGR. DENAUT AU ROY.

A Son Très Excellente Majesté du Roi. L'humble Requête de Pierre Denaut Evêqu de l'Eglise Catholique Romaine, Lequel prend la liberté de s'approcher du Trône de Votre Majesté pour lui re contrer très respectueusement.

Que la Religion Catholique Romaine ayant été introduite en Canada avec se premiers Colons, sous l'ancien Gouvernement de France, l'Evêché de Québec fu erigé en mil six cent soixante-quatre, et a été successivement rempli par des Evêques dont le sixième est mort en mil sept cent soixante, époque de la Conquête de ce pay par les armes de Votre Majesté.

Que depuis cette date, les Catholiques, qui forment plus de dix-neuf vingtième de la population de Votre Province du Bas Canada, ont continué, par la Bonté d Votre Majesté, d'avoir des Evêques, lesquels, après le serment d'Allegiance, prêt entre les mains des Représantants de Votre Majesté en cette Province en Conseil, ont toujours exercé leurs fonctions avec la permission de Votre Majesté et sous la Protection de différens Gouverneurs, qu'il a plû à Votre Majesté d'établir pour l'administration de cette Province, et que votre suppliant est le quatrième Evêque qui conduit cette Eglise, depuis que le Canada est heureusement passé à la Couronne de la Grande Bretagne.

Que l'extension prodigieuse de cette Province, et l'accroissement rapide de sa population exigent plus que jamais que l'Evêque Catholique soit revêtu de tels droits et Dignité, que Votre Majesté trouvera convenable pour conduire et contenir le Clergé et le Peuple, et pour imprimer plus fortement dans les esprits ces principes d'attachement et de Loyauté envers leur Souverain et d'obéissance aux Loix, dont les Evêques de ce Pays ont constamment et hautement fait profession.

Que cependant, ni votre suppliant qui conduit depuis huit ans cette Eglise, ni ses prédécesseurs depuis la Conquête, ni les Curés des Paroisses, n'ont eu de la part de Votre Majesté, cette autorisation spéciale, dont ils ont souvent senti le besoin, pour prévenir les doutes qui pourroient s'élever dans les Cours de Justice, touchant l'exercise de leurs fonctions civils.

Ce considéré, qu'il plaise à Votre Majesté de permettre que votre suppliant approche de Votre Majesté, et la prie très humblement de donner tels Ordres et Instructions, que dans sa sagesse Royale, Elle estimera nécessaires, pour que Votre suppliant et ses successeurs soient civilement reconnu comme Evêques de l'Eglise Catholique Romaine de Québec, et jouissent de telles prerogatives, droits et émolumens temporel que Votre Majesté voudra gracieusement attacher à cette Dignité.

Pour plus amples détails votre suppliant prie Votre Majesté de s'en rapporter aux informations que Son Excellence Sir Robert Shore Milnes Baronet le Lieutenant Gouverneur de Votre Majesté en cette Province veut bien se charger de donner à Votre Majesté.

Et Votre Suppliant continuera d'addresser au Ciel les vœux les plus ardens pour la prospérité de Votre Gracieuse Majesté de son Auguste Famille et de son Empire

PIERRE DENAUT

QUÉBEC, 18 juillet 1805. Evêque de l'Eglise Catholique Romaine.

As my departure from Quebec is fixed for the beginning of next month, the multiplicity of Business which arises at this moment will not allow me sufficient time to enter at length into every particular relating to this most interesting subject which includes so many various points of consideration, I shall therefore defer troubling Your Lordship any further at present in the hope of being allowed to lay them personally before you, or, if Your Lordship should permit me, to furnish you on my arrival in England with such statements as Your Lordship may desire to have.

I have the honour to be, My Lord,
Your Lordship's most obedient and most humble servant
ROBT. S. MILNES.

(Translation.)

PETITION OF MGR. DENAUT TO THE KING.

To His Most Excellent Majesty the King, the humble petition of Pierre Denaut, Bishop of the Roman Catholic Church,

Who takes the liberty to approach Your Majesty's Throne to represent most respectfully,

That the Roman Catholic Religion having been introduced into Canada with its first settlers, under the former Government of France, the Bishopric of Quebec was erected in sixteen hundred and sixty-four, and has been successively filled by Bishops, of whom the sixth died in seventeen hundred and sixty, the date of the conquest of this country by Your Majesty's arms.

That since that date, the Catholics, who form upwards of nineteen twentieths of the population of your Province of Lower Canada, have continued, by Your Majesty's goodness, who, after taking the oath of allegiance before Your Majesty's representatives in this Province in Council, have always exercised their functions with Your Majesty's permission and under the protection of different Governors, whom it has pleased Your Majesty to appoint for the administration of this Province, and that your petitioner is the fourth Bishop who directs this Church, since Canada happily passed to the Crown of Great Britain.

That the prodigious extension of this Province and the rapid increase of its population require more than ever that the Catholic Bishop should be invested with such rights and dignity, as Your Majesty may think suitable to direct and rule the Clergy and the people, and to impress more strongly on their minds these principles of attachment and loyalty towards their Sovereign and of obedience to the laws, which the Bishops of this country have constantly and strongly professed.

That nevertheless neither your petitioner, who for eight years has guided this Church, nor his predecessors from the Conquest, nor the rectors of parishes, have had from Your Majesty that special authorisation, of which they have frequently felt the need, to prevent the doubts which might arise in the Courts of Justice in respect to the exercise of their civil functions.

Wherefore may it please Your Majesty to permit your petitioner to approach Your Majesty, and to pray him humbly to give such orders and instructions, as in his royal wisdom he may deem necessary, that your petitioner and his successors be civilly recognised as Bishops of the Roman Catholic Church of Quebec and enjoy such prerogatives, rights and temporal emoluments as Your Majesty shall graciously attach to that dignity.

For fuller details, your petitioner prays Your Majesty to refer to the information which His Excellency Sir Robert Shore Milnes, Baronet, Your Majesty's Lieutenant Governor may undertake to give to Your Majesty.

And your petitioner shall continue to address to Heaven the most ardent prayers for the prosperity of Your Gracious Majesty, of his august family and of his Empire.

PIERRE DENAUT
Bishop of the Roman Catholic Church.

POLITICAL STATE OF UPPER CANADA IN 1806-7.

No. 1.—ALEXANDER GRANT, PRESIDENT, TO LORD CASTLEREAGH.

(No. 14.) YORK, UPPER CANADA 14th March, 1806.

MY LORD,—It will be necessary for me to submit a short statement of the Revenue of this Province for the better understanding the purport of an address of the House of Assembly and the schedule of Accounts to which it refers, with my answer thereto, which I have now the honour to transmit to your Lordship.

The Revenue of this Province arises in part from certain Duties, which previous to the eighteenth year of His Majesty's Reign, had been imposed on the Province of Quebec by the authority of the British Parliament, and partly from Taxes and Duties imposed by the Legislature of this Province, together with an eighth part of the Duties laid on Goods imported into Lower Canada under the authority of its Legislature by virtue of an agreement between the two Provinces.

From the establishment of this Province to the year 1803, the Taxes and Duties imposed by its Legislature, together with the eighth part of the Duties above mentioned, amounting to about three thousand Pounds annually, were considered as solely at the disposal of the Parliament of this Province, and were, for the greater part, from year to year, appropriated by it for specific purposes within the same, the Residue of such Taxes and Duties remaining in the hands of the Receiver General, subject to future appropriations by the same authority.

In 1803, by direction of Lieutenant Governor Hunter, accounts of a nature similar to those stated in the before mentioned schedule (being expenses incidental to the administration of Justice and the Civil Government of the Province) were charged against and paid out of the Residue in the hands of the Receiver General, without any appropriation by the Legislature of the Province for that purpose.

For two years such charges were laid before that Legislature, and no complaint was made for the want of Parliamentary appropriation of the above mentioned Residue. When the Administration of the Government of this Province devolved on me, confiding in the Judgment and Ability of Lieutenant Governor Hunter, I did not feel myself at Liberty, in my Temporary situation, to discontinue what he had authorized.

In what manner the House of Assembly considered this matter at the last session of the Legislature, the address sufficiently indicates; the answer given by me to that address was, to the best of my judgment, suited to the occasion.

The Language of that address is intemperate, especially when the Bounty of Great Britain to this Province is taken into consideration. But I should be sorry if your Lordship supposed that the Members of the House of Assembly for the greater part are inimical to the measures of Government, they wish to do what is right, but sequestered from the World, and some of them not having had the benefit of a Liberal Education, they are ready to be too easily influenced by the persuasion of others who, by their means, endeavour to perplex, if not to distress, the administration of the Government of this Province.

I must, however, respecting the subject of the address, candidly confess, and since the prorogation of the Legislature, I have taken every means to be informed, that I cannot discover any authority by which the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the Government, possesses the power of appropriating to specific purposes any part of the Revenue raised for this Province by the Acts of its Legislature, without the assent of that Legislature to such appropriation. I therefore cannot help offering it to your Lordship, after the best consideration that I am able to give this subject, as my opinion, that matters should be put on the same footing as they were, from the establishment of the Province to the year 1803, and that the items of expenditure charged in the year 1805, mentioned in the address of the House of Assembly, and stated in the schedule, should be withdrawn as charges against the Taxes and Duties imposed by Provincial authority; this would give complete satisfaction, and I have little doubt, but that in such case, as in Lower Canada, the Legislature would appropriate a sum, according to its abilities, for the support of the Civil Government of this Province, out of the Revenue which is raised by its authority: I make this observation with the greater confidence, as One hundred Pounds Currency has last Session of the Legislature been appropriated out of the Revenue for the payment of the Salaries due to the Sheriffs of the Eastern and Western Districts of this Province, which salaries were not, nor ever had been, charged against that Revenue in the Public accounts.

I will, so soon as they can be prepared, transmit to your Lordship, the Acts passed in the last Session of this Legislature.

I have the Honour to be,
My Lord,
With every sentiment of obedience and Respect,
Your Lordship's most obedient and Most Humble Servant,
ALXR. GRANT, President, Administering the Province of Upper Canada.

No. 2.—ADDRESS OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF UPPER CANADA.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR,—

We His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects the Commons of Upper Canada in Parliament assembled, have, conformably to our early assurance to your Honour, taken into consideration the Public Accounts of the Province; and have, on a due investigation of the same, to represent to you the first and most constitutional privilege of the Commons has been violated in the application of Moneys out of the Provincial Treasury to various purposes, without the assent of Parliament or a vote of the Commons House of Assembly.

To comment on this departure from constituted authority and fiscal establishment must be more than painful to all who appreciate the advantages of our happy constitution; and who wish their continuance to the latest posterity: but however studious we may be to refrain from Stricture, we cannot suppress the mixed emotion of our relative condition. We feel it as the representatives of a free people. We lament it as the subjects of a beneficent Sovereign, and we hope that you in your relations to both will more than sympathize in so extraordinary an occurrence.

We beg leave to annex hereto a schedule of the Moneys so misapplied, amounting to Six hundred and seventeen Pounds, thirteen shillings and seven pence, and we trust that you will not only order the sum to be replaced in the Provincial Treasury, but will also direct that no moneys be issued thereout in future without the assent of Parliament, or a vote of the Commons House of Assembly.

No. 3.—ANSWER BY PRESIDENT GRANT.

Gentlemen of the Commons House of Assembly.

I learn with Regret from your Address of the 1st of March, that a Degree of Dissatisfaction prevails in the Commons House of Assembly, with respect to the application of a Sum of Money, stated to amount to Six hundred and seventeen Pounds, thirteen shillings and seven pence. At the time of my accession to the Administration of the Government, I found that various Items, similar to those in the Schedule accompanying your Address, had been charged against the Provincial Revenue, and acquiesced in for two years preceding, and I directed the usual mode to be followed in making up the accounts which I ordered to be laid before you during the present Session. The money in Question has been undoubtedly applied to purposes useful and necessary for the general concerns of the Province. As I am however desirous to give every reasonable satisfaction to the House of Assembly, I shall direct the matter to be immediately investigated, and if there has been error in stating the Accounts, take measures to have it corrected and obviated for the time to come.

ALEX. GRANT.

YORK, UPPER CANADA
3rd March 1806.

No. 4.—MEMORANDUM ON ASSEMBLY'S ADDRESS.

(Canadian Archives, Series Q., Vol. 304, p. 22.)

Upper Canada.

Upon the accession of Mr. Grant to the Chair of the Council, and the administration of the Government upon the death of the Lieutenant Governor General Hunter, he put himself into the hands of the confidential friends of the deceased, and swerved from no rule practiced upon during his life. There is an annual for carrying into effect the Gaol delivery throughout the Province which has usually been paid by the Governor's warrant on the Receiver General, and by him accounted for to the Legislature without any previous appropriation. I believe it has been usual to charge the Contingencies of the Governor's Office, Proclamations, Opinions, &c., to another account controlled only by the Treasury. The General had been advised to a measure of some delicacy, to force patentees to come forward and pay for their patents. This measure had occasioned a sensation so lively throughout the Province that it was thought expedient immediately after the death of General Hunter, to modify or depart entirely from its execution. Under such circumstances, it was doubtless imprudent to call upon the Assembly for payment of the charge incurred in the abortive proceeding; but the friends of General Hunter thought proper to keep the transaction out of view, and warrants were granted by Mr. President Grant, for the payment of these sums, precisely as it had been usual to grant them for defraying the charge of carrying Justice into the District; had they not been blended, I apprehend, no exception would have been taken to the irregularity, or want of a specific appropriation for the service of the Colony. But unfortunately, war had been declared by one part of his Majesty's Servants against the other, and this indiscretion was seized upon as a means of annoyance. The Terms of the address occasioned Indignation among some, and alarm among others, of the president's friends, when neither was necessary. Mr. Atty. Gen. called upon me with the address and proposed answer. The latter was weak and wavering, where it should have been manly and firm, and e contra was peremptory and pledged the Government on a point out of its control. I remarked these errors to Mr. Attorney who acquiesced, and urged me to give him, on paper, my Idea of the proper answer. I did so, but to my great surprise learned that it had been overruled, and the President sent the answer, which occasions the Doors of the House to be shut against the usher when he came to summon its attendance on the Chair for prorogation. I took the liberty to observe to Mr. Atty. Gen., that the Executive Government should never be permitted to descend from its elevation to equivocate with the Commons; that if error had been committed, it should be frankly acknowledged, but by way of cure they should never resort to promise, or even Insinuation of address (redress?) which they could not absolutely command; upon this principle, I condemned the hesitation to admit the facts, which they knew to have been truly stated by the Commons and that they should have pledged themselves to refund, having as little right to appropriate the moneys of Great Britain as of the Colony, without authority. I therefore gave him a draft, the substance of which accompanies this, and I recommended to the consideration of the Administration, one plain Rule of Conduct, always to examine how every Proposition may affect the prerogative of the Crown, or the welfare of the Mother Country, and, then, how to give it effect, with the least Injury to the real Good, the feelings and prejudices of the Colonist. I have reason to suppose that had my advice been adopted, the president would have gained a victory, for in talking over the business with some of the Members after prorogation they assured me that a large majority would have voted not only the requisite contingent, but thanks to the president for his candour and prudent counsel; and Mr. Gore would have been saved the perplexity entailed on him by leaving the subject open to controversy at the present session.

No. 5.—PROPOSED ANSWER TO THE ADDRESS.

(Canadian Archives, Series Q., Vol. 304, p. 26.)

GENTLEMEN,—In answer to your address on the subject of the disbursement of certain sums of money amounting to £——, without authority from the Legislature, I can only say that on being called to the administration of the Government on the decease of Lieut. General Hunter, I found the practice established and pursued it.

I shall lose no time in transmitting your address to the Secretary of State, to be laid before His Majesty, and doubt not but that orders will be received, to replace those moneys at the disposal of the Legislature.

But, Gentlemen, I cannot forbear submitting to your serious consideration, whether it would not best become the dignity of the Commons House of Assembly to cover by a vote, such part of this expenditure as is admitted to have been made, for purposes purely provincial and, before you separate, to provide, with the concurrence of the other Branches of the Legislature, for similar contingencies during the current year.

(Extracts.)
(No. 6.)

YORK, UPPER CANADA,
1st October, 1806.

SIR,—Altho' from my short residence here, I am unable to lay before you an accurate account of the present situation of this Province, yet I think it proper to mention such particulars concerning it, so far as my own observation, and information on which I think I can depend, have enabled me to collect.

It is stated to me that the Inhabitants of this Province may be arranged under the following divisions:—

1st. Such persons and their descendants who took up arms in the Royal Cause, during the American War, together with others, who then on account of their loyalty, were compelled to seek for protection under the British Government.

2nd. Persons who have emigrated from Europe, chiefly from the Northern parts of Scotland.

3rd. Emigrants from the United States of America.

There are also an inconsiderable number of Germans, with a few French emigrant followers of Count de Puisaye to be added to the number.

With respect to the first of these divisions, I am informed that, in general, they live comfortably, and that some of them, comparatively speaking, are opulent; it is from them that the Magistrates, Clerks of the Peace, and other Civil Officers in the respective districts of this Province are selected, many of them being Americans, are skilful in clearing the Land, a species of knowledge so highly advantageous in this country.

The second division of Inhabitants are stated to me to be but indifferent Farmers, but that by extreme frugality, the greater number of them have rendered themselves comfortable and independent; They are of the Roman Catholic Religion, guided and influenced very much by a Missionary Priest, by the name of McDonell, formerly chaplain of Glengarry Fencible Regiment, of whom I have received a very favourable character, that Gentleman has, I am told, a plan to propose, of settling some of the children of those Emigrants near to the seat of Government, which is a measure that appears to me to be extremely desirable.

The last Division, viz., Emigrants from the United States of America, have not all of them been represented to me in the same favourable point of view some indeed of that description, viz., Quakers, Dutch farmers from Pennsylvania and many others have, it is said, proved peaceable and Industrious settlers, but it is stated also, that there are a considerable number from that Country of a different description, who have come here adventurers, and have brought the very worst principles of their own Constitution along with them, and from what I have experienced, even during my very short residence here, endeavour to oppose and perplex His Majesty's Government.

It may perhaps be an object worthy of consideration, whether Lands here should continue to be bestowed, perhaps too liberally, for the inconsiderable sum of sixpence an acre, under the unpopular name of Fees, which is the only inducement to persons of the above description to settle in this Colony; and whether it might not be better to sell the Lands for a fixed, but moderate, price, as I am informed is the case in some of the American States and also in Lower Canada.

With respect to the followers of the Count de Puisay, their number is extremely inconsiderable; they live quietly, but some of them not very comfortably, such of them as have applied to agriculture have, it is said, suffered inconveniences from their want of skill in clearing the Lands.

Having made such enquiries as I thought necessary, respecting the Inhabitants, I must turn my attention to the Roads, or rather communications, within this Province, for the making what correctly speaking can be called Roads, is far beyond the present strength and means of the Colony. The Provincial Legislature, last Session, appropriated sixteen hundred pounds of this currency for that purpose; on that head it has been represented to me, that great part of the communications have been offered by settlers on the next adjoining Farms, and that the large Grants of waste Land, which have been obtained by persons not residing in the Province, have in many parts been found an insurmountable barrier to this very necessary species of improvement.

In justice to the Executive Government, I must observe that Mr. President Grant, with the advice of his Council, divided the Tract of Land lately purchased from the Mississagua Indians into lots containing each of them two hundred acres, which have been granted with an express condition, that no settler should obtain a Patent for the Lot which he might occupy, until such settler should build a House of certain dimensions, clear a certain quantity of Land, as well as that part of a Road, or communication to be made next adjoining to such Lot, and such is the advantageous situation of that Tract, that the Executive Government have already found settlers to occupy nearly every Lot, and it will soon, I trust, afford a most ample supply of Provisions for the seat of Government.

Respecting the Indians, I shall only at present observe, that their conduct is harmless, that they look up to the British Government for protection, and unless when misled by evil disposed persons, are perfectly ready to comply with whatever Government may desire, such persons, however, I am told, are not wanting to deceive them.

I have thus endeavoured to lay before you a faithful representation of some particulars respecting the present knowledge of this Colony, so far as they have come to my knowledge or observation, but I cannot conclude without mentioning that I am informed (for as yet I can speak but from observation) that by far by far the greater part of the Inhabitants of this Province are quiet and industrious.

In the meanwhile, with other Investigations, I shall make it my business to discover the plans the late Lieutenant Governor meant to have pursued, to whose exertions, I have every reason to believe, however unpleasant they may have been to some Individuals, this Province is under the highest obligations.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
With great respect,
Your most obedt Servant

No. 7.—JUDGE THORPE TO EDWARD COOKE, UNDER SECRETARY.

YORK, UPPER CANADA,
24th January, 1806.

DEAR SIR,—For the last time, I must trespass on your time for five minutes, as I think it my duty to inform you on the situation of this Colony, before the new Governor leaves you; from a minute enquiry for five months, I find that Govr. Hunter has nearly ruined this province, his whole system was rapaciousness, to accumulate money by grants of land was all he thought of; the loyalist that was entitled to land without fees, could not get any, but the alien that could pay was sure of succeeding; unjust and arbitrary, he dissatisfied the people, and oppressed the officers of Government, he had a few Scotch instruments about him (Mr. McGill and Mr. Scott) that he made subservient to his purposes, and by every other individual he and his tools were execrated. Nothing has been done for the Colony, no roads, bad water communication, no Post, no Religion, no Morals, no Education, no Trade, no Agriculture, no Industry attended to; Mr. McGill and Mr. Scott have made a person of their own President, the same measures are followed up, and the effects will soon appear, for every thing you wish will be defended, and the Houses of Assembly will feel their power, which is always (in the Colonies) a bad thing; all this, and much more, you will soon know, therefore in this state of things, I think it absolutely necessary to set about conciliating the people in every way. I have had some public opportunities which did not escape me, and in private I will cultivate all that are deserving, or that can be made useful; by which means I now pledge myself to you, that whoever comes out shall find everything smooth, and that in twelve months or less, I will be ready to carry any measure you may desire through the Legislature; all this I state on the supposition that Ld. Castlereagh will not be induced to place any one over me on the Bench, but if Parliamentary interest should prevail on him to neglect my exertions, I must entreat of my friends to beg of his Lordship to remove me to any other place, where I can do my duty and render some service.

I have the honour to be, Dear Sir,
With respect and regard, your truly obliged and Obedient, humble servant,
ROBT. THORPE.

P.S. I hope for the sake of England and the advancement of this Colony that the new Governor will be a Civilian and a politician, it is worth four thousand a year. The Lower Province six thousand—there might be two good military appointments, a Lieutenant General below, a Brigadier here.

From the Gentleman having delayed who was to take this to New York, I have an opportunity of stating that the Clerk of the Crown is dead.

5th February, 1806. The Houses of Assembly are sitting and from want of a person to direct, the lower one is quite wild, in a quiet way I have the reins so as to prevent mischief tho' like Phaeton I seized them precipitately. I shall not burn myself & hope to save others.

No. 8.—JUDGE THORPE TO LORD CASTLEREAGH.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, March 4th, 1806.

MY LORD,—I feel it absolutely necessary to inform Your Lordship on the wretched state of this Province; a weak Government has made the House of Assembly strong, and instead of conciliating and reconciling, a sudden prorogation has exasperated in such a manner that appeals will be made to the people; the situation of a new Governor will be most disagreeable, and as I am certain the members will return next year in the utmost violence, it will be fortunate if the Governor has not left London that he may read the Journals of the House and take your Lordship's opinion on the claims of the Loyalists, the Military claimants, the increased Fees, the distribution of them and the Publick accounts.

The system of the last Government was extortion and oppression, carried with a strong arm, the desire of the present was to continue it, but from the imbecility of those directing everything has been exposed; my Lord, I perceived what would happen and considered it my duty to gain the good opinion of the people, and the confidence of the representatives, that I might assist in repressing violence and restoring harmony; in this I have succeeded so completely that if the Governor will only yield a little, I will promise your Lordship to ensure his comfort.

A Bill came from the Secretary of State to enable aliens to hold Royal Grants, which was so badly managed, that the House of Assembly would not suffer it to be read, but if it is an object with your Lordship, by a little modification we can get it carried; also the Government have been long desired to attend to the culture of Hemp, but this like every other thing that could tend to serve the Province, or render it valuable to Great Britain has been neglected, therefore, My Lord, the first step I took, after having sufficiently gained the confidence of the people, was to establish an agricultural Society, extending over the whole Province, and as your Lordship will see by the enclosed Resolutions, have taken care to impress an early attention to Hemp; the next thing to be attended to is a road through the Province, which appears to me to have been neglected, for the purpose of keeping up a most useless and expensive Marine on the Lake, which burden may be taken off Great Britain as soon as roads are established, and the only certain and expeditious mode of doing this (in my humble apprehension) is by a Lottery, the prizes in which would be small grants of land, by this means I think the value of the Crown Lands would be much increased, the Marine fund would be much diminished and population and prosperity at once given to the Province.

Now, my Lord, one thing more, and when I write on this, it rejoices me to think I address a Lawyer whose initiation I remember twenty years since under Dr. Christian, and whose mind I know to have been formed and stored by the greatest lawyer and the purest statesman that England ever produced; then I have only to inform your Lordship that there is no Court of Chancery, and you will quickly perceive how lame and imperfect the justice of the Province must be, but when I call to your mind that all the land is held in Free and Common Soccage Tenure which no simple contract debt can affect and that the person is protected from arrest by Provincial Statute, except the creditor can swear that the Individual is going to leave the Province, you will at once perceive the necessity for opening a Court in which a Mortgage can be foreclosed; in truth, until this is done, no one can enforce payment, nor can the character of the Province be freed from the utmost ignominy; I must here remark that the Lands in Lower Canada are liable like personal property, to debt, as they are under the French law which is built on the Roman and makes rent and personal property subject to simple contract debts.

Pray my Lord, pardon this long letter, the situation of the Province demanded it, one circumstance more, as it belongs to my Department, and I have done—the Clerk of the Crown and Court of King's Bench is dead, Mr. Warren Baldwin who is deputy, and has been so for some years, is the only educated and qualified person in the Province to succeed him; therefore as the Clerk is a person of great consequence to the Court I must beg strongly to recommend him for the appointment, unless Your Lordship intends to send an adequate person from England, in which case I would not presume to interfere, yet justice and humanity loudly call in this man's favour, as his admirable character entitles him, and the subsistence of a large family resting on it, will ensure your Lordship's protection.

As for myself, one word; I have been in America four years, a country where Judges and Juries never have agreed, yet but two Juries have ever differed from my direction, and an appeal was never made from any one decision, my conduct is known in your office, and I am personally known to Your Lordship, however, if anything could induce you to sting me to the heart by placing any one over me, I entreat of you to take me from this, where I should feel perpetual mortification.

I have the honour to be, My Lord, with great respect and esteem,

Your Lordship's most obliged and grateful humble servant,

ROBT. THORPE.

No. 10.—JUDGE THORPE TO EDWARD COOKE.

5 March 1806.

Dear Sir,—I expected that the avarice and imbecility of our Government would be highly injurious, but it has far surpassed my fears, the House of Assembly has been suddenly prorogued, and disaffection and discontent will be loud through the Province. We too well know the miseries that arise, when the people are taught to interfere but I hope to avert the storm if you send out a sensible Governor with a little discretion about him.

I have written in great hurry to Lord Castlereagh, one thing I forgot; does his Lordship consider the sums of money raised by duties on articles coming into the Province, under the 14 of the King—Chapter 88—and by the 15 of the King—Chapter 40—ought to be appropriated by the House of Assembly for the use of the Province ? or are the sums to be raised at the disposal of the Governor ? the opinion and wishes of Lord Castlereagh on this point I think of great moment to know. I enclose some Resolutions which will show you I have set Agriculture in the way of improvement, pray set the Societies in England in the way of assisting us and directing our attention to anything serviceable to Great Britain. Will Lord Castlereagh help us if we apply properly ? I have given a proposal about Roads which I hope you will approve of; by Government allowing a small quantity of Land as prizes in a Lottery, a sufficient sum will be raised to make one good road through the Province, which will wonderfully assist every exertion and bring the waste Land into great value, I can think of no other mode to accomplish this necessary step for a new country, which has been so long criminally neglected.

A Court of Chancery is absolutely necessary, the Constitution is imperfect without it, Justice cannot be obtained, nor can the King's Grant when fraudulently obtained, or improperly granted be regularly cancelled in any other Court, I hear it has been delayed on account of four hundred a year being asked for the Judge, but there is such a strong necessity for its establishment, that I will undertake it for the sake of public justice, without fee, or reward. I only look for a support by my own labour until my Estate clears itself.

Unless you wish to entail misery on the new Governor, let no representation induce Lord Castlereagh to do any thing for Mr. McGill or Mr. Scott, until the Governor knows them and the present state of this Province.

Mr. Alcock is appointed to Lower Canada, he became Chief Justice of this place from the seat I now fill on the Bench, but I do not press that as an inducement for Lord Castlereagh to place me there; I hope the knowledge I have shown in my profession, the exertion I have made for the Government and the confidence the publick have of my ability and integrity, will have its full weight with his Lordship; but if anything should induce him to disgrace me, by sending any one over me, I only beg you will intercede to have me removed, for to remain would kill me.

I am dear Sir with great respect and esteem,
Your truly obliged and obedient humble servant
ROBERT THORPE.

P.S. On the points mentioned to Lord Castlereagh and yourself, if too much hurried to write, have the goodness to request of Mr. Gordon to let me know your mind ; if you intend I should be Chief Justice.

No. 11.—CHIEF JUSTICE ALLCOCK TO SIR GEORGE SHEE.

Piccadilly, 14 Mar. 1806.

Sir,—On the subject of the Court of Chancery in Upper Canada, respecting which you desired me to communicate my sentiments, I have, in addition to what is stated in Gen. Hunter's letter, dated 15th Sept. 1804, the honour to observe, that during the whole of my Residence in the Province for the year 1798, cases were continually occurring, in which Justice was completely disappointed for want of a Court of Equity.

But, Sir, it must be manifest to every Man, who thinks on this subject but for a Moment, that in one English Colony, where the Law of England has been declared by the Legislature to be the law of the land, the occasions must be very numerous, in which a Court of Common Law cannot administer substantial justice.

It is fourteen years since Upper Canada has been erected into a Province, and as yet there has been no Court of Equity in it.

Whilst I sat in the Court of King's Bench there many verdicts were obtained against Defendants, contrary to the Equity of case, & in which a Court of Law could not afford any Relief, particularly in Ejectment causes.

There were many of these cases, in which the Decree of a Court of Equity must, as a matter quite of course, not only have relieved the party from the verdict, but have arranged many other points in question between the parties, & which, because a Court of Law could not interfere, remain to this moment undecided, to the serious Injury of one of the parties & of consequence in failure of justice.

The complaints of the King's subjects in Upper Canada that they had not an equitable Jurisdiction to resort to, have been very numerous indeed, of which the late Gen. Hunter heard very much, & I very much more, & I had held out so many assurances for years (being authorized so to do) that a Court of Equity would soon be established, that, I fear, my assurances at last ceased to be much attended to.

The Merchants of Lower Canada having very considerable debts due them in Upper Canada upon Mortgages, complained loudly and very frequently that there was no jurisdiction in which they could foreclose those Mortgages & I believe they have more than once made the most urgent applications to the King's Ministers in England, praying that an equitable jurisdiction might be established.

At the desire of Gen. Hunter, I drew out a system for the Establishment of such a Court & also a Table of Fees. These papers were remitted to England for the approbation of his Majesty's Ministers, & I thought I understood from Mr. Cooke, that the whole had been or would be approved.

At all events it was settled, before the vacancy in Lower Canada was known of here, that a Court of Chancery should be opened on my Return to Upper Canada & I was to have sat with the Lieut. Governor to aid him in the Business of that Court.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your most obedt. humble Servt.

H. ALLCOCK,
late Chief Justice of Upper Canada.

No. 12.—W. HARRISON TO SIR GEORGE SHEE.

(Canadian Archives, Series Q., Vol. 305, p. 119.)

TEMPLE, April 1st 1806.

SIR,—I have considered Mr. Allcock's letter on the subject of establishing a Court of Chancery in Upper Canada, on which you desired to have my sentiments.

It seems extraordinary that a Court was not established at the time of the introduction of the English Laws. The separation of our jurisdictions into legal and equitable makes such a Court a most essential part of our establishment & making cases of hardship & instances of failure of justice must occur until it is established.

The Governor will naturally require positive directions on the subject as it has been delayed so long. It seems to me therefore proper that he should be ordered by the Secretary of State immediately to establish such a Court, taking upon himself the office of Chancellor & calling to his assistance either the Chief Justice or any of the Judges to assist him in establishing the regulations of officers & detail of practice & also to assist him in the hearing of any causes in which he may wish to have their advice.

Many difficulties will at first occur in establishing such a court with Officers & a Bar not as the habit of a Court of Equity, but these difficulties will lessen every day and it appears to me more adviseable that the establishment of Upper Canada should be made in this respect to conform to that of the English Colonies, than to introduce any particular officer as an equity judge at an encreased expence & with no future advantage & probable future inconvenience which it is not necessary for me to advert to.

Mr. Alcock's letter alludes to papers on the subject which it would be adviseable to refer to and if on review it appears that the establishment of the Court as to Officers & fees has been approved of by the Attorney & Solicitor General, who ought as it seems to me to be referred to in such a case, the Governor may be directed to form the establishment accordingly.

I have the honour to be, with great respect,
Your obedt. and humble Servant,
W. HARRISON.

No. 13.—JUDGE THORPE TO ADAM GORDON.

(Canadian Archives, Series Q., Vol. 305, p. 124.)

YORK, UPPER CANADA,
April 2nd, 1806.

DEAR SIR,—By a circular letter from the kind of Government we have here, I was informed of your being appointed Agent, which gave me great pleasure; I know the exertions you have made to render the officers of Government comfortable in the payment of their bills, therefore am convinced of the service you will render, & the satisfaction your appointment will create; It would be fortunate if all the agencies were placed in the same way as rapidly as they become vacant, it would increase the respectability of our bills and the certainty of payment would prevent expence & distress.

We want a Colony agent to transact the business of the Province in London, & I think (if it is worth your acceptance) that I could get the Legislature to appoint you the salary will be one hundred a year only but I think very little business.

I enclose you an account of the proceedings in the last Parliament, the mind of the people is greatly roused; General Hunter's was a military Government, he had no Idea but collecting Dollars, these weak people attempt to continue the system, which brought on an exposure and all its commotion; I had exerted myself much, & have succeeded in gaining the confidence of the people beyond my expectation, this was quite necessary to save the new Governor from great annoyance, and as I expect to be Chief Justice, it was both my duty and inclination.

We have no regular Post, and seldom hear of the incessant glories of Great Britain, Mr. Lewis used to send me a newspaper, but I never get anything here.

I am Dear Sir with great respect & regard
Your obliged, humble servant
ROBT. THORPE.

No. 11.—JUDGE THORPE TO EDWARD COOKE.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, 1st April, 1806.

DEAR SIR,—When I last wrote, I conceived I would not have been obliged to trouble you for a long time, but the present temper of the American States renders more particularly necessary that you should have an accurate account of this rovince. Before the Legislature met I mentioned my fears; after the prorogation informed you how much they were realized; the public mind is greatly agitated. he enclosed account of the Parliamentary proceedings (printed in the States) which xposes a good deal will make it worse, and a Newspaper which the people are about o establish will soon blow up the flame; yet be assured the people are well inclined o the British Government and the Province valuable, if Justice was done to the one, nd exertions made for the other; but the extortion, partiality and negligence of Gov. Hunter, which his weak and wicked tools have followed up with the President, whom they made (without any right) for their own purposes, has been exposed and has set the people mad; a Governor to enrich himself by the plunder of Eastern princes may be viciously grand, but the rapacity that would squeeze the pitiful Dollars out of the Western poor was miserably mean and contemptibly wicked; but Gen. Hunter did not act with common propriety to the Secretary of State, for he created places for his own purposes without any leave; he made Mr. McGill Inspector General a place worth four hundred a year, because it was useful to him but unnecessary and oppressive to the people. I hope nothing will be done for the Officers of Government here, until the Governor comes out, as it will be very injurious if he is shackled with any of them, particularly in the Council, only let him see the place, know the people and feel the pulse of the public, and he will be able to make truer and more beneficial representations, than any you can now receive; a few sensible men coming in the Governor's suite will throw a new portion of health into the Province, which is absolutely necessary, for the people will no longer endure a Military system nor the overbearing reptiles who have been the servile instruments to enforce it.

The expence of the useless Marine on the Lake is enormous, if you look into the Army extraordinaries you will be amazed at the amount, the President is now building a Ship for his son in law that will cost three thousand pounds. Surely the money of England should not be lavished at this time in such a place as this, as a pretext for keeping up this patronage the roads have been unattended to, but even now one ship on each Lake is sufficient.

I fear the people are going to meet in all the counties to address the King, and even the Indians to complain of grievances; however I will labour to keep every thing quiet, at least until the Governor arrives. I have done the entire of the Criminal and Nisi prius business for the Chief Justice since I have arrived (in truth it was necessary for the Crown and people that some one should act that knew a little, for the Attorney General is as incapable in his profession, as he is injurious out of it) and I hope you will think that I have made good use of the opportunities the situation affords; I was told that the people were disaffected to the Government, and the juries for ever in opposition to the Bench; I directed my charge strongly to this feeling, to rouse them to a sense of their duty and to a proper estimation of the connection and constitution of Gt. Britain, which instantly produced the enclosed address from the petit jury, a circumstance unique; now you can well judge what I have had to do and what I have done. Having accomplished all that was necessary I shall retire to little Farm new Town, and there wait Lord Castlereagh's determination, should his Lordship recommend any other person to be Chief Justice, I shall remain in retirement, only attending my duty in the King's Bench, or on Circuit, until I can prevail on his Lordship to change my situation. I hope you approve of my plan for Roads, and feel the necessity for a Court of Chancery.

Tho' most anxious to hear from England I must remain in uncertainty for we have no regular post and I fear my letters are suppressed.

I have the honour to be Dr. Sir, with great respect and regard Your truly obliged
ROBT. THORPE.

York, Saturday, April 5, 1806.

On Monday the 27th ulto. the following address from the Petit Jury of the Home District, was presented to the Honourable Mr. Justice Thorpe.

To the Honourable Mr. Justice Thorpe.

Honoured Sir,—Deeply impressed with the paternal and salutary admonitions contained in your benevolent and instructive charge to that part of his Majesty's subjects, convened as persons at this present Court, We cannot suppress the testimony, pleasure and gratitude we feel at your appointment as one of his Majesty's Justices in this Province. Convinced as we are, of the high pre-eminence of the British Judicial Code, we beg leave to assure your Honour, that we want nothing but clear expositions of our duty, to direct us in the entire and perfect dispensation of Justice, so far as facts and our powers as persons may enable us.

Permit us, Honourable Sir, whilst paying this tribute to yourself to say, that we have the most lively sense of the general and particular protection of person, property and individual right, which the British Government affords to all its subjects; and that our feelings, loyalty and our attachments are in unison.

Gentlemen,—I Delight in the sentiments of your address; they are truly gratifying to me, they are highly honourable to you; they have driven calumny to shame, and established the purest principles, with the most upright conduct for universal imitation throughout the Province.

These are the paths to publick prosperity, these are the ways to preserve liberty and property and secure them undiminished to yourselves and posterity.

Our only contention shall be, who will make the greatest exertion to maintain the connection, the Law, and the constitution of Great Britain, and render to the Province and People the most valuable service.

Be assured Gentlemen, I am most truly your friend,

ROBERT THORPE.

DEAR SIR,—I have this momemt heard of Mr. Pitt's death, and of the change in nistry; I suspect you will not remain in Office if your old friends are out, there- e should hope (if you approve of it) that the business part of my letters to Ld. stlereagh & yourself, would be communicated to the new Secretary, as I conceive essential, not only to the prosperity but to the tranquillity of the Province, that its tuation should be known and some change adopted. It is a great public calamity u do not remain in the Department, and an unfortunate system to change the der Secretary just at the time he becomes master of the Colonial business.

Before Ld. Castlereagh leaves his office I presume he will fill up the vacant ppointments, and I have no doubt of his kindness and your continued friendship to me.

With great respect and esteem

I am most truly your obliged servt.

* * * * * * * *

Report says Mr. Scott, the Attorney General, is the Chief Justice; from what misrepresentation of him or from what pique against me Ld. Castlereagh has done this I know not, but this you will soon know, that he is perfectly unequal to the situation, that the Governor will be dreadfully perplexed by such an appointment, that the Province will be universally dissatisfied with him, and I think you will soon find out that the Province would have been perfectly satisfied had I been appointed, and if you knew but half the situation of it, you would be convinced that it was no time to add fuel to the flame, and throw the new Governor into a state of wretched- ness; but we expect the new Governor every day and I suppose he will soon inform the Secretary of every thing, however if from the accounts received Mr. Windham approves of my plans sent to Ld. Castlereagh and Mr. Cooke, or has anything new to propose, and thinks my assistance will be wanted, he should appoint me without delay to both Councils, that it may be in time for the meeting of the Legislature, he will be the best judge of these matters; If there is a Court of Chancery (and the Province cannot go on much longer without it), I suppose I shall have no competitor for that as I suppose none of these people would have the folly to propose for it; however I know something ought to be done soon to quiet the minds of the people, as for myself, I shall retire as much as possible until I can render the Government some service, for let what will be done now, I feel that within myself which will obtain justice to come to me at last, for be assured the Government here cannot be directed by an enfeebled old ignorant Methodist Preacher long, I lament you are not informed about the present temper and precarious situation of this Province.

I hear my friend Sir G. Shee is under Secretary to Mr. Windham, he knows how active and willing I am to serve the Government, he will soon know more from my enemies (for such I have because I set my face against oppression), how adequate I am to my situation the Secretary could give, and that I have the voice of the people from one end to the other of the Province—Sir George Shee knows how the Judges recommended me before and on my opposition for the Chancery Court, the Chancellor and Chief Baron of Ireland would answer for my being qualified.

I certainly feel hurt at this contemptible creature being put over my head, and only hope for redress I shall not be obliged to go to London from my helpless family to represent it fairly.

I am Dr. Sir with great regard

NIAGARA UPPER CANADA
Oct. 22nd 1806.

DEAR SIR GEORGE,—When our friend who is now a Saint in Heaven (if humanity is ever raised to such celestial eminence) first introduced me to your attention, you caused me to be sent to America, and your last directions were, that I should be assiduous in gaining and sending information to the Secretary; I laboured incessantly and I believe discharged my duty to the Colony, and with the approbation of the Secretary. When I came to this country I found that Gen. Hunter had ruled like a military despot, not like a Governor appointed to govern a Province with a British Constitution, the House of Assembly began to be roused, and the ferment of the people became more violent; I felt for the situation of the new Governor and supposing I would be appointed Chief Justice, & be obliged to assist his Administration, I cultivated the members of the Assembly and soothed the mind of the people; but a being has been put over my head, & made Chief Justice, who has neither talent, learning, nerve, nor manner, and also from being despicable in the mind of the people, can have no weight with Juries and consequently will reduce the Bench to insignificance; a Court of Chancery is very much wanted, & was to be opened; it is reported the Chief Justice is to preside, the consequence will be, that the public mind will be again agitated and the House of Assembly will violently petition against it, the measures of Government will be treated as last year, when even the bills from the Secretary's office were not supposed to be read in the House of Assembly, and this luxuriant Province (which might be one of the most valuable ramifications of the Empire) will continue convulsed within itself, and a useless expence to Gt. Britain; no one can be more miserably situated, I am only returning from circuit, a vacancy has taken place in the Assembly and the people are determined to bring me into the House, I have not seen the Governor yet, but have written to inform him that I will not accept of any situation unless I can render him some service in administering his Government, yet how will that be possible for I could not coincide with men whose measures have always been arbitrary and oppressive, nor would I be guilty of any dereliction of principle for all that could be bestowed, therefore the only mode I see for escaping this dilemma is from your goodness, by getting me removed, my salary here after deduction is only seven hundred and fifty, of that is expended on Circuit (the allowance not being adequate) even out of this pittance I have been obliged to pay one hundred a year for a house I have not one acre of Land & within fifteen in family however I get on as respectably as I ought, when a Barrister will make fifteen hundred a year; perhaps a court may be established at the Cape of Good Hope, and you would send me there but I would leave this delightful climate & magnificently beautiful & fertile country for any spot to find repose in, provided it was not such a climate as would quickly endanger my loss to my poor children. I can with truth say I have not disgraced your patronage, nor the memory of those great men who voluntarily became responsible for my talents and legal acquirements, and could you see the testimonies of approbation that have issued from all ranks wherever I went you would be satisfied and acknowledge I have not deserved the neglect I have experienced, but I have been stung to the heart by those in office, from whom I had the strongest professions of regard.

I have the honour to be most truly
Your grateful & highly obliged humble serv.

No. 19.—LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE TO MR. WINDHAM.

(Canadian Archives, Series Q., Vol. 305, p. 61.)

(No. 9.)

YORK, UPPER CANADA
29th October, 1806.

SIR,—In my dispatch of the first of October (No. 6) I endeavoured to give you some idea of the situation in which I found this Province; I therein signified that some discontents did prevail, and that I was apprehensive they were fomented by persons amongst us, who wish'd to perplex His Majesty's Government. I then being almost an entire stranger, did not venture to say more, well aware of the danger of being misled by partial representations.

It becomes us now not to be silent. The addresses and answers that have been circulated in this Province by means of the public nawspapers (which I herewith transmit) speak for themselves and shew what opinions are encouraged and supported by, I am sorry to say, a Judge of this Province, and at a time when his influence must be the greatest on the public mind. He has not been in this Colony much more than Twelve months, he only saw Lt. Governor Hunter at Quebec a short time before his death, whose character and memory he has endeavoured, both in Public and in private, to degrade, and can only know by report many of the circumstances he thinks proper to allude to, respecting the Government of this Province.

It is on his first Circuit that he thus addresses the Public.

There is reason to believe he will be elected a member of the House of Assembly; and next year his circuit as Judge will comprehend the remaining part of the Colony.

What grievances he alludes to, I do not know, the most respectable persons, with whom I have conversed, do not complain of any.

It is but justice to General Hunter's character, whom I had not the honour of knowing, to say, that so far as I am able to judge, his conduct was firm and decided, and appears to have been directed to the promoting of the good of this country.

It is with the utmost reluctance that I trouble you with this unpleasant subject, my duty calls on me to be watchful, my wish is to redress grievances, if any should exist; and to act with firmness, yet with moderation, whatever may occur. Lest, however, this Gentleman should continue to follow that line of conduct he has hitherto pursued, I should esteem it a favour, to be honoured at an early period with your sentiments and Instructions, respecting such measures as may be deemed most prudent for me in such cases to follow.

The most respectable People in this Province are looking up to me for protection, and indeed have called upon me for the sake of public tranquillity to oppose and discountenance those principles and their supporters, which at this moment agitate the lower classes of the community; I confess I am anxious on the present occasion, but I trust you will do me the justice to believe, that it is an anxiety to do my duty and to support His Majesty's Interest in this Colony.

Permit me to add, that Mr. Thorpe has signified to me, that he has communicated to Mr. Cooke every circumstance relative to the Government of this Province; for my own part, I have nothing to conceal, but at the same time prudence and a regard to my honour, requires me to wish that His Majesty's Ministers may receive full information, and not be guided by a partial representation.

I have the honour to be, with great respect,
Your most obedient servant,

FRANCIS GORE,
Lt. Governor.

No. 20.—ADDRESS TO LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE.

YORK, 30th August 1806.

On Saturday the 23rd instant arrived here His Excellency Francis Gore, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of His Majesty's Province of Upper Canada. His Excellency landed at twelve o'clock, with the honours due to his rank; and was sworn into office at the Government buildings on Monday last.

On Wednesday the 27th instant, Wm. Weekes Esq. Member of Parliament, for the County of York, Durham and Simcoe, on the part of the Inhabitants of the Home District, presented to His Excellency the following address:

To His Excellency FRANCIS GORE Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,—

We, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Inhabitants of the Home District, beg leave to congratulate your Excellency on your safe arrival in this Province; and to express to you the unfeigned assurance of our unshaken loyalty and attachment to His Majesty's person and Government. We also beg leave to add, that we feel the most lively gratification in observing in your Excellency's appointment, the high prerogative of Regal authority unconnected with a Military establishment: and we indulge ourselves in the hope of experiencing, in your Administration of this Government, the paternal solicitude of a Gracious Sovereign for the prosperity of the Province, in unison with the affection of a grateful people.

In approaching your Excellency with a zealous attachment to a constitution which neither innovation can impair, nor anarchy deform, we lament our being under the necessity of stating to you, that since the establishment of it in this Country, its system has been mistaken and its energy misused. In situations in which it were matter of dignity, as well as of duty, to promote the public good, private interest only has been regarded; and prerogative and privilege have been indiscriminately sacrificed at the shrine of arbitrary imposition.

We would willingly remove from our memory every impression of former occurrences, if it were as easy to forget our sufferings as to submit to them in silence; but we forbear at this period to solicit your Excellency's attention to their detail, pleased as we are in the expectation that a remembrance of the past will stand only as a contrast to the felicity of future times; and that under your Excellency's administration, neither weak capacities nor erring minds will gain influence or ascendancy in the Councils of the Province.

It is unnecessary for us to state, nor is your Excellency now to learn, that the institution of the Government, from which we receive our hereditary protection, has antiquity for its origin and the wisdom of ages for its support—That it has gained celebrity with time and perfection with experience, and that any deviation from its principles must be an abandonment to our ruin; but we trust it may not be deemed irrelevant to suggest, that many among us have supported it at the hazard of their lives, and at the expense of their property—that others have resorted to it from choice and have afforded to its establishment the labour of their years and the gleanings of their industry, and that it is the common concern of all to transmit it unimpaired from age to age, until, in the computation of its enjoyment, perpetuity and age become synominous to our posterity.

(Signed by 301 inhabitants of the Home District.)

To which His Excellency was pleased to return the following answer:

GENTLEMEN,—I thank you for your congratulations on my safe arrival in this Province; and I receive with pleasure your professions of attachment to His Majesty's Person and Government.

I highly approve the sentiments you profess of the British Constitution. My utmost endeavours will be exerted to administer it here with Impartiality, and to preserve it from Anarchy and Innovation.

FRANCIS GORE,
Lieut. Gov.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE

No. 21.—GRAND JURY, LONDON DISTRICT TO JUDGE THORPE.

(Canadian Archives, Series Q., Vol. 305, p. 201.)

The following address from the Grand Jury of the District of London was presented to the Honourable Mr. Justice Thorpe at the late Assizes.

To the Honourable Mr. Justice Thorpe.

We, the Grand Jury of the District of London request your acceptance of our warmest thanks for your excellent charge to us at this Assizes. We retain its impressions as a lesson of advantage to ourselves and of benefit to the public, and we flatter ourselves that in adhering to its import, party animosity will, throughout this district, yield to a general desire of social order and public tranquillity. It has afforded us infinite pleasure to observe, in the exercise of your high and important authority, that the character of the Judge suffers no abasement from an amenity of manners, and that the soothing monition of the Court produces a more sudden effect in reconciling the differences of the community, than a rigorous application of the law, or crude and ill digested efforts, to effect an exemplary punishment. We learn with much gratification that our Sovereign has been pleased to appoint a Civil Governor to this Province, and we hope, under his administration, such change of measures will take place, as may tend to bury in oblivion, the remembrance of proceedings, heretofore sanctioned by authority, and yet no less derogatory to the prerogative of the Crown than invasive of the privileges of the subject. We entreat you to lay before his Excellency such of those acts as have come within your knowledge, with our earnest expectations that on his Excellency's consideration of them, Justice will extend its influence pure and unmixed even to this remote part of his Majesty's dominion, and that all descriptions of his People will impartially enjoy the rigour and perfection of a happy Constitution. We beg you will also accept of our warmest wishes for your health and safe return to your family.

We have the honour to be,
Your Honour's most obedient and very humble servants
In behalf of the Grand Jury,
JONATHAN WILLIAMS
Foreman.

Grand Jury Room, 17th September 1806.

To which His Honour was pleased to return the following answer:

To the Grand Jury of the London District.

GENTLEMEN,—To be the humble instrument of restoring harmony and happiness to your District, is an excess of gratification.

The act of governing is a difficult science, knowledge is not intuitive, and the days of inspiration have passed away; therefore, when there was neither talent, education, information, or even manner in the administration, little could be expected and nothing was produced; but there is an ultimate point of depression as well as exaltation from whence all human affairs naturally advance or recede, therefore, proportionate to your depression, we may expect your progress in prosperity will advance with accelerated velocity.

I shall lay before the Governor every thing you desire, and I have not the slightest doubt but that I shall find in him such power of mind, such political acquirements, such official habits, and such good dispositions as are fitted to make an infant Province a pre-eminent state, wealthy and powerful, abounding in blessings to its inhabitants, and valuable to that great Empire from which we receive every thing estimable and to which we are anxious to make the most grateful returns.

I am, Gentlemen, very truly, your obliged, obedient and very humble servant

ROBERT THORPE.

No. 22.—GRAND JURY, WESTERN DISTRICT TO JUDGE THORPE.

SANDWICH, 4th September, 1806.

SIR,—We, the Grand Jury of the Western District, being deeply impressed with a high sense of your solicitude for the welfare and prosperity of this District, have to return you our grateful thanks for your polite address from the Bench, and for the very handsome manner in which you have pointed out the means of increasing our wealth and accelerating our future happiness; and we feel highly sensible, that those sentiments, which you have so emphatically expressed, will not fail to have a due effect on the community, and that tranquillity and industry will prove the prominent characteristic of a people enjoying the blessings of our happy constitution and anxious to perpetuate it to posterity.

We beg leave to add that we also feel ourselves highly obliged for the interest you have evinced for our agricultural concerns; and that it is our earnest determination to pursue every measure which may promote its celerity, and arouse into active industry the energy of the country.

We request you will carry with you into retirement our most sincere regards for your domestic happiness, and the assurance of our solicitude for your long enjoyment of the public situation in which you so eminently distinguish yourself as the Guardian of the Laws, and the Minister of Justice.

We have the honour to be, Sir, with high respect and esteem,

Your most obedient servants

To the Grand Jury of the Western District.

SANDWICH, September 4th 1806.

GENTLEMEN,—In truth I am solicitous for your prosperity, and had I wanted incentive to exertion, your partiality has furnished the most powerful; the praise of men, themselves the most praiseworthy, is the highest encouragement.

We must be indefatigable in Agricultural pursuits, your soil to industry is a mine, to non-exertion a waste; we shall soon attain abundance for home and superfluity for abroad; roads to facilitate your efforts will, I trust, be quickly opened: may our Governor be Promethean heat and animate the Province from the centre to the extremity.

I will labour to convince you, Gentlemen, that your confidence has not been misplaced in your obliged, obedient and very humble servant

ROBERT THORPE.

No. 23.—PETIT JURY, WESTERN DISTRICT, TO JUDGE THORPE.

(Canadian Archives, Series Q., Vol. 305, p. 206.)

To the Honble. Mr. Justice Thorpe.

We the Petit Jury of the Western District, having with much gratification attended to your charge to the Grand Jury on the opening of your Commission of these Assizes; and having in the various causes in which we were called upon to discharge the function of Jurors, received from you such explanation of our duty, as enabled us to discriminate between controversy and claim, between accusation and offence; beg leave to return you our sincere thanks, and to assure you of our veneration for these Laws which you have so ably expounded, and which we have laboured to carry into effect.

We assure you that the lessons of morality, and the principles of social order, which you were pleased to convey to us shall be not only remembered by ourselves, but also diffused among our relations and friends, and that it shall be our constant endeavour to circulate through every part of the community, sentiments so incentive to our present happiness, and so conducive to our prosperity.

To the Petit Jury of the Western District.

GENTLEMEN,—Every sentiment in your kind address is gratifying to me, honourable to you, and valuable to the community.

You respect and uphold the Law, you love and diffuse morality, you set the best example for social order, and reward the exertion of others by the warmest panegyric.

Public purity, private virtue, and active industry, lead to greatness, happiness and riches, that you may long enjoy the blessings you so truly deserve is the fervent desire of your obliged, obedient and very humble servant

No. 24.—PETIT JURY OF NIAGARA TO JUDGE THORPE.

To the Honble. Justice Thorpe.

We the Petit Jury of the District of Niagara, beg leave to make to you at the close of the Assizes, our warmest acknowledgments for your explanation to us of the important matter of our duty, and also to assure you, that instruction conveyed with such perspicuity and delivered with such urbanity, shall always be held by us in grateful remembrance.

We admire the constitution, on which you have so happily descanted in proportion as we contemplate its system and its tendency to secure to us the enjoyment of the most valuable rights and the exercise of the most distinguished privileges.

It is to us no small consolation, in returning to our domestic concerns, that the execution of these laws, which we from duty as well as choice are solicitous to maintain, are entrusted to one so capable of deliberating on their import, and so tenacious of preserving them inviolable; and we hope that neither the efforts of the misguided, nor the representations of the ignorant, will ever shake these rules of evidence, which give to the trial by Jury a certainty of decision and a standard of Justice.

To the Petit Jury of the Niagara District.

GENTLEMEN,—I was anxious to assist you in the faithful discharge of your important duty, and your approbation of my exertion is more than reward.

Your admiration of the constitution, of which you are so valuable a branch, and your veneration of these Laws, which you so strictly uphold, is wisdom and security.

While we commiserate the misery of the Eastern & contemplate the happiness of the Western Hemisphere, let us be grateful to the Almighty for our accumulated blessings, and fervently pray that England may be an example, and France a warning to our latest posterity.

Be assured, Gentlemen, I shall persevere in that line of conduct, which h conciliated your regard, and advanced me in your esteem.

I am your obliged obedient humble servant

(Canadian Archives, Series Q., Vol. 305, p. 210.)

At a meeting of Freeholders held at Moore's Hotel on the 20th October, 180 for the purpose of considering of a proper person to represent them in Parliamen William Willcocks, Esquire, in the Chair, it was resolved unanimously, that M Justice Thorpe be requested to represent the Counties of York, Durham an Simcoe, in the place of our late lamented William Weekes, Esquire, deceased, whe it was also resolved, That the meeting should be adjourned to the 7th and the noti appear in the next Gazette.

WILLIAM WILLCOCKS
Chairman.

At a meeting, pursuant to the said adjournment (the Chairman bei unavoidably absent) the following address was unanimously agreed upon:—

To the Hon. Mr. Justice Thorpe.

SIR,—Overwhelmed with grief at the unexpected death of our late able an upright Representative, Freeholders of the Counties of York, Durham and Simcoe, feel that we have neglected our interests in the season of sorrow. Now awake i it is to you we turn; notwithstanding the great portion of consolation which we draw from the dawning of an impartial and energetic administration.

Fully persuaded that the great object of your heart, is the advancement o public prosperity, the observance of the laws, and the practice of religion an morality, we hasten with assurances of our warmest support, to invite you from you retreat to represent us in Parliament.

Permit us, however, to impress upon you, that as subjects of a gracious an beloved King; as a part of that Great Britain which has for so long a time stood th bulwark of Europe, and is now the solitary and inaccessible asylum of liberty; a the children of Englishmen, guided, protected and restrained by English Laws; i fine, as members of this community, as fathers and sons we are induced to plac this confidence in your virtue, from the firm hope, that equally insensible to th impulse of popular feeling and the influence of power, you will pursue what i right—this has been the body of your decisions, may it be the spirit of your counsels

(Signed by forty-two persons residing in the Town and Township of York.)

When William Jarvis, Esquire, was requested to wait on Mr. Justice Thorpe (wh at that instant had arrived from Niagara) to know his pleasure upon the subject o the above address; Mr. Jarvis returned with a favourable answer, which Mr. Jus tice Thorpe has since communicated in the following terms:—

GENTLEMEN,—With pleasure I accede to your desire, if you make me you Representative, I will faithfully discharge my duty; your confidence is not mi placed, may the first moment of dereliction be the last of my existence.

Your late worthy Representative I lament from my heart; in private he was warm Friend, at the Bar an able Advocate, and in Parliament a firm Patriot; it but just to draw consolation from our Governor, when the first act of his admi istration, granted to those on the U. E. list and their children what your late mo valuable Member so strenuously laboured to obtain; surely from this, we have eve reason to expect that the liberal intentions of our beloved Sovereign (whose chi glory is to reign triumphantly enthroned on the heart of a free people) will be fulfilled, honouring those who give, and those who receive, enriching the Province and strengthening the Empire.

Let us cherish this hope in the blossom, may it not be blasted in the ripening.

I am, Gentlemen, very truly

Your obliged and obedient humble servant

ROBERT THORPE.

No. 26.—JUDGE THORPE TO SIR GEORGE SHEE.

(Canadian Archives, Series Q., Vol. 305, p. 189.)

York, Upper Canada
December 1, 1806.

Dear Sir George,—I feel at this moment more true comfort in having followed the kind advice you gave me when I was first coming to America, than in all you ever have or can do for me, for in the turmoil and trouble with which I am now surrounded, I have this grand consolation, that whatever I have done, or whatever was done by the Government in the Colony where I was, or whatever I thought might be injurious, or could be beneficial, I have faithfully transmitted to the Colonial Department, in the full integrity of my heart. After the prorogation of the House of Assembly, I informed Mr. Cooke of the temper of the House, and of the ferment of the public mind, I promised to conciliate the one and harmonize the other; I think I have kept my word with him, the enclosed addresses will prove part, & will shew I had taken pains to prepare the people wherever I went to be favourably inclined to the new Lt. Governor, but unfortunately I did not arrive from the assizes, until the end of October. When in our first conversation, I found him imperious, self sufficient & ignorant, impressed with a high notion of the old system, surrounded with the same scotch Pedlars, that had insinuated themselves into favour with General Hunter, & that have so long irritated & oppressed the people; there is a chain of them linked from Halifax to Quebec, Montreal, Kingston, York, Niagara & so on to Detroit—this Shopkeeper Aristocracy has stunted the prosperity of the Province & goaded the people until they have turned from the greatest loyalty to the utmost disaffection. The system pursued is simply this, "get as many dollars as you can for the Governor by land &c. &c" therefore the Loyalists & military claimants who are to pay no fees, are unattended to—thus, the Royal intentions & promises have been violated; next to theirselves, their families & friends, they give unbounded tracts of land in the finest situations, at whatever rate of fees they chuse, & then barter this land to our greatest enemies in the States; next, they keep from the House of Assembly all account of the greatest part of the public money, thus denying them the first privilege given by the British act of Parliament, which established their Constitution; next, the Officers of Government they oppress, & by their coercion of the people, I think it my duty openly to declare to the Secretary of State that this Province has not only been rendered useless, but made burdensome to Gt. Britain, & is now driven to the verge of being severed from the Empire, for if there was a convulsion in the states, or a war with England I am convinced the people here would join. Now the present Lt. Governor seems to pursue the same plan, & the only thing wanted he has added, by desiring the printer not to publish anything without his Secretary's approbation, & the consequence is, another press has been sent for by the people, which will only be a vehicle for disseminating discontent; in the infant state of this Colony, when only indigent Military men were the inhabitants, all this was easily submitted to, but to be assured when a labouring man has land in six years he is independent, & in ten he has every comfort.

My sytem is this,—let the Governor & Executive Council (for there the chief mischief has been done) conciliate & accommodate the people, and fulfil the intentions of the Government of England to the Royalists & Military Claimants—let the fees be regulated under Mr. Wintham's direction by an Act of the Province, let the British Constitution, as intended, be amply dispensed to the people, let the public money be accounted for, and an exertion made to keep the appropriation of the greatest part with the Governor, this will free him from the perpetual imputation of embezzlement & allay ferment,—let the Indian & Marine Department be struck off, & some useless places which have been arrogantly established, & twenty thousand a year may be saved to Gt. Britain, & more satisfaction will be given to the Indians, & prosperity to the Province, because roads will be opened; let fifty thousand poor sufferers in Germany be sent there, & the cultivation of hemp encouraged sufficiently, & in less than ten years you will have more hemp than England can want, & better than Russia ever produced. I do solemnly declare from full investigation, that it is one of the finest & most extensive Provinces in the world, so intersected with water, that it is easy to have communication for thousands of miles, so capable of improvement, that in five years, we could free England from every expence, would take largely of her manufactures, & send her fur, lumber, flour and hemp in abundance—the people who are most loyally inclined (though it has been nearly squeezed out of them) will be most tractable, if you only lead them (they will no longer be driven) the Province under a sensible Governor (not an empty aid-de-camp) with English Constitution & Law will be wealthy & happy, the envy of America, the asylum to which in the first tumult thousands will fly with their property & in the first convulsion between the Northern & Southern States, it will be the post to rally round the Royal Standard, & be the means of reuniting a great portion of America again to Gt. Britain.

From this letter & the enclosures you will have my mind fully, you will have a true state of the Province, Government & People—you will perceive how I am received & considered as a Judge & a private Gentleman, the people will force me into the House of Assembly, this popularity is oppressive, when I can render no service to England by it, I have no object there, then for God's sake take me away, I beg it, from a remembrance of our friend who is in Heaven, for the happiness of my wife, sister, and seven children who are wasting their youth in a wilderness, & for the sake of my own tranquillity & peace of mind if my exertions deserve reward—pardon me for trespassing this long on your time, but as you have anxious wishes for the happiness and tranquillity of the Province, for preventing the waste of British revenue, & in justice to myself, I am sure you will let Mr. Windham (who has a mind fitted for political greatness) know the contents & from the constant communication I have made to the Colonial Department since 1802, he must be satisfied with my good intentions, & acknowledge my indefatigable exertions, though he may not approve of my plans or sanction my system.

I lament that poor Mr. Stanley is coming out as Attorney General, it is beneath him, & inadequate to his support, besides highly improper to go from the Bar to the Bench here (for there he ought to be) as the Council is always Attorney also, not as in England or Ireland, therefore you send a man to judge of persons & property where he has been for or against, as the Acting Attorney. Mr. Justice Powell is gone home, it is said to apply for a pension, he is not a good lawyer, & I have great reason to believe he is not a good subject, he has served long, & has a large family, & I believe wishes to reside in the States. I should hope he would be considered worthy of a pension & Mr. Stanley could come in his place, & would be of great value to Province, for we have not a lawyer here, the Solicitor General was not even a common attorney and knows nothing either text or margin, or if you remove me for Mr. Stanley, and send an active sensible (man) as Attorney General, it would greatly assist the Governor & for a few years the system might go on—but I fear I could do little with Mr. Gore, he appears weak, violent, prejudiced, entirely unaccustomed to governing, except a Troop of Horse, & the people have now so hung themselves round me, that I fear I would be in his way, yet any other man as Governor I could make happiest of the happy, & his income much better. If any person is to go to the Cape of Good Hope or to Buenos Ayres, or any vacancy in a good climate, I pray of you to think of me, or if Mr. Windham would want me in any other situation, he may depend on my energy, my zeal, my attachment and principle.

I have only now to say, that if you wish me to act here, you may depend on me for carrying any measure you may desire, because I know it will be beneficial to the Empire, and to assure you, that although I am at this moment most miserable, yet that I am most truly your grateful & attached friend and obliged humble servant,

ROBT. THORPE.

P.S. If you would desire Mr. Gordon to look over my letters to Mr. Cooke you will perceive my fears, & my motives for my exertions to attach the people to the Government.

Permit me to observe, that the present situation of this Province requires a firm conduct in the person administering the Government, for I ought not to conceal that there is a strong spirit of opposition existing, encouraged by persons from whom a different line of conduct might have been expected, and who since the death of General Hunter, by representations (which from the most positive proof, I know to be groundless and false) against the character and conduct of those placed in authority here, have endeavoured to oppose, perplex, and defeat the measures of the Government; under such circumstances, a want of obedience in the officers of the Crown must produce effects, the most pernicious and destructive.

Very soon after my arrival in this Province, I received information of a party, of which Mr. Justice Thorpe, Mr. Wyatt, and a Mr. Willcocks, the Sheriff, were the leaders, that were endeavouring by every means in their power, to perplex and embarrass the King's Government in this Colony.

The invitations made by Mr. Justice Thorpe and Mr. Wyatt to join the party, will appear from the letters of the Solicitor General (B) and Mr. St. George (C).

York 26th December, 1806.

Sir,—I received the honour of your Excellency's letter, alluding to the circumstance of Mr. Justice Thorpe having solicited me to join a party in opposition to the King's Government and by which letter you are pleased to desire that will specify in writing the inducement which Mr. Thorpe held out to me to j such a party. With promptitude I shall comply with your Excellency's desire giving a brief statement of the circumstances. During the sitting of the Provinci Parliament last winter rather a formidable opposition was raised to the measur of Government, previous to an expected Division in the House of Assembly (which I was a member) on a question somewhat important, Mr. Thorpe to occasion, in consequence of my defence of the Government on previous days, to a me what I could mean by attempting to defend the conduct of Government. I co temptuously heard him, but from the dignity of his station was induced to inform him that I should have thought he would have been forward in blaming me if I ha adopted any other line of conduct. He replied, "he could not refrain fro "observing that if I did not join the opposite party, he thought I should risk m "situation as Solicitor General"— 'tis difficult for me to say whether indignatio or surprise seized most on my feelings. I remarked that if I was dismissed f adhering to the Government I was acting in concern with, it would be a novel cas I treated the suggestion with contempt, neither could I desist from warmth at wha I deemed an Insult. He continued his attack, adding the most indignant Reflectio not only on the existing Government, but on the late Lieutenant Governor. H daily attendance at the house coupled with the general tenour of his condu evinced a determination on his part to aid in subverting the then Governmen and cast every obloquy on the previous one. Tho' his general conduct wa marked with the most determined disapprobation of every act of Governmen yet it is difficult to offer instances, as it was chiefly made apparent by Observatio or Gestures. I have one Instance on a Memorandum taken in the House of Assembl from his mouth during our sitting. The Speaker politely offered him a seat withi the Bar (not being a Member). The house were endeavouring to get informati respecting Fees payable by Grantees of the Crown. The Clerk of the Council wa at the Bar, on being questioned he refused replying, stating that his Oath of Offic precluded his examination. Mr. Thorpe, tho' not a Member, observed that th house could compel him to be examined notwithstanding his Oath, and cited Lor Stafford's case, where the Privy Council were obliged to answer.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

QUETTON ST. GEORGE TO LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE.

(p. 44.)

YORK 22nd December, 1806.

SIR,—I have received so many favours from the British Government that think myself bound to it in gratitude, and as a loyal subject of the King, my du obliges me in conscience to make you acquainted with what I know respecting so Individuals of this place.

A few days since I was desired to call at Mr. Wyatt the Surveyor General, af my arrival there Mr. Wyatt told me that I ought as a man of property join t Opposition to the Government; that the late Governor had acted improperly; th if Mr. Thorpe got into the House of Assembly, they expected he would hav Majority, and then the Government would go to the Devil.

Mr. Thorpe has stated to me that he condemned the conduct of the Secretary the Province, in not prosecuting the Chief Justice.

The violent abuses I have heard spoke against the Government and your Exc lency personally, I will not repeat, as I felt ashamed of myself for having listen to it.

I am, with respect, Sir,
Your most obedient servant

(Extract.)

After the violent and turbulent conduct of the House of Assembly, during the administration of Mr. President Grant, it affords me the highest satisfaction to inform you, without any attempt of the House of Assembly, to interfere with the measures, or to embarrass the Executive Government.

Not having had the honour to receive any directions from you, on the subject of Mr. President Grant's dispatch No. 14, I directed the sum of six hundred and seventeen Pounds thirteen shillings and seven pence to be replaced in the Provincial treasury, which had been applied to Public purposes by the late General Hunter, without the concurrence of the other Branches of the Legislature. This measure had the desired effect, by removing every possible ground of complaint, and the House of Assembly evinced its satisfaction, by withdrawing its claim to the appropriation of that sum. A resolution of the House passed to that effect, with only the dissentient voice of Mr. Justice Thorpe, who has uniformly opposed every measure that could promote the peace, or strengthen the hands of this Government.

I have every reason to believe, at the next sitting of the Legislature, that a sum of money, in proportion to the limited resources of the Colony, will be voted to his Majesty, for the support of the Civil Government of this Province.

I have the honour to be, Sir, with the greatest respect,

Your very obedient humble servant

No. 30.—LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE TO MR. WINDHAM.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, 13th March, 1807.

SIR,—It is a sense of my Duty, in the situation I have the honour to be placed, and my regard for His Majesty's interest, and I will add, for the safety of this Province, that have induced me to trouble you with a tedious narrative, respecting the character and conduct of Mr. Justice Thorpe, one of His Majesty's Judges of the Court of King's Bench; the particulars I have recited are numerous, some of them at first view unimportant, but taken together, disclose in the fullest manner, circumstances respecting that Gentleman, and this Province, which I conceive would be culpable in me to conceal, and I think it is highly necessary that you should be fully acquainted with. I therefore with earnestness solicit your attention to the following statement.

Very soon after the arrival of Mr. Thorpe in this Province, his public conduct attracted the notice of all considerate men; the publication purporting to be an Address from the Grand Jury of the Home District (A) in the first public exercise of his Functions as a Judge, evinced a strong disposition to make the Courts of Justice the theatres for Political harangues, and a subsequent one from the Petty Jury (B) (a thing hitherto unknown in this country) afforded a sufficient proof of a desire in the Judge, to encourage strictures on the Government from every description of persons, however incompetent they might be to form any correct opinion upon the subject, or however foreign such a subject might be, from the occasion for which they were convened.

As a proof that these were not the spontaneous effusions of the Bodies to whom they were ascribed, it is notorious that the address, as it was called, of the Grand Jury, was drawn up, and presented, by six or seven at most of that Body, without the concurrence of the rest, not in Court, but at the Judge's House, several days after the Court had risen.

Mr. Weekes, notorious for his revolutionary principles, soon became the most intimate and confidential friend of Mr. Thorpe, this Person who had been a Student at Law, in Ireland, and afterwards under the famous Mr. Aaron Burr at New York, was rather hastily and unadvisably admitted to the Bar, in this Province.

In the Session of the Legislature, held during the administration of Mr. President Grant, the House of Assembly was urged by Mr. Weekes to the most extravagant pretentions and the most violent proceedings. It was proposed to declare the appointment of Inspector of Public Provincial Accounts illegal, and to call the Inspector before the House, to answer for his conduct in the execution of his office; and they actually proceeded to examine complaints preferred before them by Mr. Wyatt, the Surveyor General, and Mr. Jarvis, the Secretary of Government, in the management and emoluments of their offices; and in the course of this investigation Mr. Wyatt carried his misconduct to such unpardonable extremity, as to produce his Commission and the Books of his office, without the permission or knowledge of the President; or even without the pretext for requisition from the House of Assembly (C).

It was generally believed, and it appears from his own declaration to the Solicitor General, and to the Chief Clerk in the Surveyor General's office, that in this extravagant conduct Mr. Thorpe was the prompter, who was constantly within the Bar of the House of Assembly (altho' not a member) and whenever the Partizans of such intemperate proceedings were at a loss, they were accustomed to leave their seats, to consult with him, and in one instance, when Mr. Small, the Clerk of the Executive Council, very properly refused, on account of his Oath of Office, to answer some questions that were put to him relative to the transactions in the Council Office, Mr. Thorpe, (who was not then a member) rose unsolicited to declare to the House, that Mr. Small could be compelled to answer and he had the effrontery to cite as a precedent the case of Lord Stafford (D).

Mr. Thorpe's intimacy with the Surveyor General, and the influence he had evidently over him, taught him to mistake the Functions and to overrate the Power of the House of Assembly, for, when I represented to Mr. Wyatt that his conduct had been highly improper and offensive to the Government, he told me "that the House of Assembly was omnipotent, and that it was his duty to obey it."

To act up in some measure to the high notions of authority they had imbibed from the Judge; the House of Assembly, in imitation of the British House of Commons, on occasions when the safety, or the liberties of the nation, are supposed to be in danger, resolved themselves into a Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Province. Yet with all the clamour raised by Mr. Justice Thorpe, Mr. Weekes and Mr. Wyatt, about grievances and oppression, words constantly in the mouths of our Provincial Demagogues, the result of this inquiry was to recommend some further indulgence as to time, to the Loyalists and Military Claimants for obtaining their Patents free of expense, and some greater facility to the sons of those Persons who had adhered to the Unity of the Empire, in their application for Land.

On the Western Circuit Mr. Thorpe's disposition and conduct were efficiently evinced by the address of the Grand Jury of the District of London (E), which he has ostentatiously given to the Public. The general impression, with respect to this address, more properly calculated for a Faction Political Committee, than a Court of Justice, is that the address of the Jury was prepared by Mr. Weekes, with the concurrence of the Judge, of which Mr. Thorpe's answer, if there were no other proof, seems to furnish internal evidence, and that by the solicitation of Mr. Weekes, the persons who were plain, uneducated men, were induced to subscribe their names to it, without being fully aware of its dangerous tendency.

On Mr. Thorpe's return to Niagara, the same indecent language against Persons, high in authority, and calumnies against the late General Hunter, Mr. President Grant, Chief Justice Allcock and Mr. Justice Powell, though wholly irrelevant to the cause before the Court, were again heard at the Bar and passed without reprehension from the Judge (F).

The indecency of Party Spleen and private animosity being permitted to take place in a Court of Justice, was not allowed to pass without animadversion by one of the Counsel (retain'd in the same cause with Mr. Weekes). This took place on a Monday, and his strictures at the time were little noticed by Mr. Weekes, who the next day made an excursion into the country, and after passing the evening and the greater part of the night of Tuesday at a Tavern with the Judge and some other of his friends, he, on the Wednesday, sent a challenge to his Brother Advocate, and in consequence fell, the victim of his own turbulence, and as is generally believed, of the indiscreet suggestions of the Party who met at the Tavern.

The opportunity this gave to Mr. Thorpe of openly standing forth as a Factious Demagogue, was not neglected; he was proposed by the Democratic Party as a proper Person to succeed Mr. Weekes in the House of Assembly; and by the most solemn assurances, that he would pursue the same line of conduct, he secured his Election. The solemn mockery of his invoking at the opening of the Poll, the shade of his departed friend, "as looking down from Heaven with pleasure on their exertions in the cause of liberty"; The seditious emblem of his Party (a Harp without the Crown) (G); Thorpe and the Constitution inscribed on badges, which were distributed to his partisans, and his almost Treasonable allusion to the American Revolution at the close of the Election (H), are indeed ample proof, that he was not an unworthy successor to Mr. Weekes.

I had urged to Mr. Thorpe the impropriety of a Judge becoming a candidate for a seat in a Popular Assembly, and if such a step was ever doubtful, the circumstances attending this Election suffice to shew it, in the strongest point of view. Mr. Thorpe on the hustings was frequently engaged in altercations with a Rival Candidate and his Electors, and was occasionally assailed with the severest and most humiliating sarcasms, on his private character, as well as his Public Conduct; he has lost for ever that respect which his situation on the Bench ought, and is calculated to inspire, and it is impossible to suppose, that in the exercise of his Judicial Functions, he can be indifferent between his Friends and his opponents; that he can forget the hostility and abuse of the one, or the favour and support of the other.

Two mechanics of low education and worse character are amongst Mr. Thorpe's intimate associates, one of them (Eliphatt Hale) was presented by the Grand Jury for blasphemy, and as I am informed escaped conviction only by the removal of a witness.

Mr. Thorpe's conduct, since he has been elected a Member of the House of Assembly, has been most inflammatory; and however it is to be lamented that the Government have not greater influence in the House of Assembly, for during the Session which has just closed, he had been unable to carry any one point to embarrass the Government. He moved an address which was most insidious and inflammatory, on the subject of those Persons who had adhered to the Unity of the Empire, which was rejected. In his proposal for vesting the Power of Appointing Trustees to the Public Schools in the House of Assembly instead of the Lieutenant Governor, after a violent Declamation and abuse of the Executive Government, he asserted, that it was the privilege of the House of Assembly to nominate to office; in this attempt he was supported by two only; and on a question relating to the Duties imposed by the 14th of the King (which Mr. Thorpe contended was at the disposal of the Provincial Legislature) he stood alone! and I am happy to observe, that in the instance of a Judge of the Court of King's Bench making an attempt to derogate from the authority of the British Parliament, he would not in a popular Assembly, prevail on a single person to join him, notwithstanding his Pathetic allusions to the Revolt of the American Colonies.

When the business of the Session was nearly concluded, an address was moved in the House of Assembly to relinquish their claim to about Six Hundred Pounds, which had been taken out of the Provincial Funds, and appropriated by the late General Hunter (to particular Colonial purposes) without the concurrence of the other Branches of the Legislature, this measure was opposed by Mr. Thorpe with his usual violence but without effect.

I have enclosed for your information, a statement of what passed, at the first interview I had, by appointment, with Mr. Justice Thorpe, soon after my arrival in this Province, and my remarks on what passed at that interview (No 1). Ho ever absurd and malevolent some part of Mr. Thorpe's assertions may be, and ho ever it may betray the Ignorance and indecent warmth of that Gentleman, the circumstances might be overlooked and forgiven, had his observations been reserv for my ear alone, but it is notorious that Mr. Thorpe, upon all occasions, is anxio to introduce and enforce those Topics, and that he has not only made them t constant subject of conversation in all Companies where he is admitted, but t

Theme of his Declamation in the House of Assembly, and the Rule of his Politic Conduct.

Mr. Thorpe having accused the late Government of Peculation, I call'd up him to state to me in writing, the particular acts of Peculation that Governme had been guilty of; I transmit Mr. Thorpe's answer and my observations on letter (No 2).

Such, Sir, is the career and such has hitherto been the conduct of a ma whose peculiar duty it is to inculcate subordination, and to recommend and enfor respect and submission to the Government. So has the confidence and liberality the British Government been abused and perverted by some of its officers in th Colony, and the friends of good order have seen with regret and indignation, Perso sent into the Province with large salaries and in high official situations, industrio only in doing mischief; spreading discontent amongst the Inhabitants; urging t Democratic Branch of the Constitution to the most extravagant assumptions authority and endeavouring, by every means in their power, to embarrass a weaken that Government, which they were sent to aid and support. Emissari sent by an Enemy to seduce the affections of the people would be much less dange ous, their suggestions would be received with caution, and listened to with suspicio but when the Common People hear a Judge declaiming openly against the King Government, and see him opposing all its measures, they cannot fail to think th something must be wrong; little accustomed to that eccentricity of character, wh honour, duty and even Interest lie prostrated at the feet of vanity; it is impossib for them not to suppose that this conduct must have some better foundation th the working of a perverse self importance, determined at all hazards to be dist guished.

The above narrative I am aware is long and unpleasant; I have stated eve circumstance from an anxiety that you may not be misguided by a partial repres tation. The documents to which I refer speak for themselves, and authenticate statement.

The next circuit commences early in August, when Mr. Thorpe will have anoth opportunity of disseminating his opinions, I therefore most earnestly request, th you will honour me with your Instructions relative to this Gentleman.

I have no hesitation in giving my opinion, that if His Majesty is pleased to perm
Mr. Thorpe to retain his situation in this Province, that the most serious evils m be apprehended. And I might not conceal from you, that I have been urged by t most respectable Gentlemen in this Colony, for the sake of Public tranquillity, suspend Mr. Thorpe from his situation as Judge; this advice I have resisted, havi time to receive your directions, before the commencement of the Circuit; and c fidently relying on your support to maintain order and authority in this Provin

ADDRESS, GRAND JURY OF THE HOME DISTRICT TO JUDGE THORPE.

(p. 72.)

To the Honourable Justice Thorpe.

We the Grand Jury of the Home District beg leave to return you our since acknowledgments for the most excellent charge you were so good as to give us this our first appearance before you on the Bench; a charge delivered with such complacency and dignity, has excited in us the most lively sensations of satisfaction and pleasing prepossessions.

The energy and clearness with which you laid open to us our duties, has created in us a fervent desire to fulfil them, and must forcibly impress the country at large with that submission which they owe to those Laws which are their protection, and the aiding and assisting those to whom the execution thereof is entrusted.

In a new country like this, rapidly progressing in population, in improvement and prosperity, a Country where all Ranks of Society should harmoniously unite for general and individual comfort and security, it has been afflicting to us to be under the imperious necessity of presenting to you at our first meeting, an indictment for riot and an assault on the legal Constituted Civil authority; but we fervently hope, the clear explication of the law, and the tender caution which you so impressively addressed to the Country, will prevent any, through the plea of ignorance or bad advice, from committing future outrage. And from the firmness we have witnessed in you, we rejoice in the anticipation of tranquillity from the effects thereof; confident that the Sword of the Law, while it protects the peaceful subject, will execute its just vengeance upon the Disturbers of the Public Repose.

for himself and fellows.

York, 30th October, 1805.

Answer.

Gentlemen,—In the discharge of my duty, to receive this kind and truly flattering work of your approbation, is highly grateful.

A young country particularly calls for care and attention; the bad habits of infancy are the miseries of age; but nurtured by your energy and zeal, we will advance to maturity, laden with the blessings of Constitution and Commerce; the best testimony of your services, the rich reward of your exertions.

As we love liberty, we must uphold the law, for liberty consists in freedom from restraint, except such as established law imposes for the good of the Community; therefore when the restraints of the law are overthrown, anarchy reigns, until the people in this lassitude of contention, succumb to tyranny, feeling the worst of Governments better than none.

Be assured we will convince the public we labour only for their happiness; disorder shall blushingly retreat to the barbarism from whence it sprung, leaving the Sword of Justice to rust in the scabbard, while the polish of tranquil civilization will illumine the Province.

We must toil together in the vineyard, we must train, we must prune, the People will gather the fruit.

I have the honour to be, Gentlemen,
Your obliged and very humble servant
ROBERT THORPE.

Address of the Petty Jury to Judge Thorpe.

(p. 75.)

To the Honourable Mr. Justice Thorpe.

Honoured Sir,—Deeply impressed with the paternal and salutary admonitions contained in your benevolent and instructive charge of that part of his Majesty's subjects, convened as Jurors at this present Court. We cannot suppress the testimony, pleasure and gratitude we feel at your appointment as one of his Majesty's Justices in this Province. Convinced as we are of the high pre-eminence of the British Judicial Code, we beg leave to assure your Honour, that we want nothing but clear exposition of our duty, to direct us in the entire and perfect dispensation of Justice, so far as facts and our powers of jurors may enable us.

Permit us, Honourable Sir, whilst paying this tribute to yourself, to say, that we have the most lively sense of the general and particular protection of person, property and individual right, which the British Government affords to all its subjects; and that our feelings, loyalty and our attachments are in unison.

While we have the honour to subscribe ourselves &c. &c. &c.

Answer.

To the Gentlemen of the Petit Jury.

GENTLEMEN,—I delight in the sentiments of your Address; they are truly gratifying to me, they are highly honourable to you; they have driven calumny to shame, and established the purest principles, with the most upright conduct for universal imitation throughout the Province.

These are the paths to public prosperity, these are the ways to preserve liberty and property and secure them undiminished to yourselves and posterity.

Our only contention shall be, who will make the greatest exertion to maintain the connection, the Law and the Constitution of Great Britain, and render to the Province and People the most valuable service.

Be assured, Gentlemen, I am truly your friend

ROBERT THORPE.

SIR,—In answer to your letter dated yesterday, I have the honour to acquaint you, for the information of his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, that C. B. Wyatt Esquire, the Surveyor General, appeared at the Bar of the Commons House of Assembly last Session, and there produced his Commission (which was read by a Member standing up in his place) and the Books said to belong to his office; the House was then in a Committee of the whole; no warrant had issued from the Chairman of the Committee to command the attendance of the Surveyor General to produce either his commission or the Books of his Office.

HON. ROBERT HAMILTON AND JOSEPH EDWARDS ESQUIRE TO LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE.

Copy of a Letter from the Honourable Robert Hamilton one of his Majesty's Legislative Councillors, Lieutenant of the County of Lincoln and a Magistrate for the District of Niagara and Joseph Edwards Esquire also a Magistrate for the said District, to His Excellency Francis Gore, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada.

SIR,—The very extraordinary circumstances which have occurred at the last assizes for this District, and which unfortunately have led to the death of a Member of the Society; we think it our duty, as we had the honour to be associated on the Bench with Mr. Justice Thorpe, to state to your Excellency. In a case in which Mr. Weekes the Attorney was employed, he took the opportunity while addressing the Court, to introduce the character of our worthy late Governor, Lieut. General Hunter, the Chief Justice Mr. Allcock, and several others of the most respectable characters in the Government of this Province, and to rail against them with the utmost degree of asperity. General Hunter he stigmatized with the epithet of "Gothic Barbarian whom the providence of God had removed from this world for his tyranny and Iniquity."

He stated Mr. Chief Justice Allcock as having a personal animosity against his present client and as having been the cause of the Indictment being preferred, and attempted to turn his character to ridicule by relating idle stories equally (as we believe) groundless and malevolent.

The presiding Judge sat with the greatest composure to hear this abuse, tho' totally irrelevant to the cause then before him, if he did not applaud, he certainly shewed no serious signs of disapprobation.

We his associates indignant at this indecent conduct from the Bar, and at the apathy in the Judge, would have left Bench to show our resentment, had not respect for the Court detained us, resolving however most determinedly never to be exposed to the like again, by declining this and all other duty with this Judge. Mr. Justice Thorpe had the day before requested the early attendance of the person whose signature is first to this paper, assigning as a reason, that he understood a very elaborate argument was to be given by Mr. Weekes. As the argument produced was elaborate only in malice and misrepresentation, we are tempted to believe that the Judge if not aiding in the falsification, was certainly previously acquainted with the matter it contained, and that it was not delivered without his privity and probable consent.

Your Excellency has doubtless been informed that this Mr. Weekes has since fallen a sacrifice to his malice and obstinacy; here too we fear the interference of the Judge, or of his part, operated in forwarding the melancholy event. We are assured that for some time after Mr. Dickson's replication to this speech in which he warmly reprobated such language as disrespectful in the highest degree to a Court of Justice, and most probably arising from private malevolence and the rancour in the speaker's mind, Mr. Weekes showed no signs of particular resentment to Mr. Dickson; that he even had left Niagara on his return to York and unexpectedly returned the following morning and gave a challenge from which no reasonable explanation could induce him to recede. We have strong reasons for thinking that the conversation of this Party, that perhaps some rash promise given when warm, produced that obstinacy which proved fatal to him.

In the above statement we have carefully recited facts to the best of our recollection. In matters of opinion we have to request you to excuse what may appear erroneous.

And we are with sincere respect
Your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servants
R. HAMILTON,
JOSEPH EDWARDS.

(G.)

THOMAS B. GOUGH TO THE ELECTORS OF YORK, DURHAM AND SIMCOE.

(p. 87.)

To the independent and respectable electors of the County of Durham, the East Riding of the County of York and the County of Simcoe, who honoured me with their support at the late election.

GENTLEMEN,—Permit me to return you my most sincere and grateful thanks, for your exertions in my behalf in the late contest; exertions as honourable to you as flattering to me; although your efforts have not, on this occasion, obtained their merited success, I pledge myself to pursue my endeavours where I hope and have a confidence of obtaining the object of your wishes.

You went to the husting, Gentlemen, under the banners of liberty, loyalty and union, with hearts animated with pure love of King and Constitution, and many of you have proved your attachment thereto by shedding your blood in their support; but your opponents were preceded by the standard of Discord, Anarchy and Rebellion, which in another part of the Empire has led thousands to a premature Death, and many who escaped the horrid carnage of the field expiated their Treasons in the vain attempt to sever the Crown from the Harp, by an ignominious exit at the Gallows and their heads were affixed as public spectacles, to warn the deluded; but charity and the honour of this country impels me to hope it was only the incautious indiscretion of the unthinking.

I have also to return my thanks to many, who on account of the lateness of my offering myself as a Candidate, had so far previously engaged themselves, as not to be able to retreat with consistency, though I had their warmest wishes, I could not avail myself of their support.

Persevere, my friends, in your attachment to your King, maintain the good order you have been accustomed to, pursue your industry, and cherish your domestic comforts; follow the dictates of reason, but be not deluded by discontented Demagogues and when other parts of the world may be desolated by the ravages of war, or agitated by internal commotion, you will be tranquil and secure.

I am, Gentlemen, with gratitude and respect,

Your faithful humble servant

THOMAS B. GOUGH.

YORK, 8th January, 1807.

The following is the answer to Mr. Gough's address (enclosure A). The answer is in Series Q., Vol. 310, p. 74.

At a meeting of the independent Freeholders of the East riding of the County of York, and the Counties of Durham & Simcoe, held at Hoyle's Tavern, Jan. 13th, 1807.

William Willcocks Esq, in the Chair.

The following resolutions were unanimously agreed to.

Resolved, That as part of an address signed Thomas B. Gough & published in the Gazette of the 10th January, tends to irritate and influence the public mind & as it might be used as an instrument for misrepresenting the loyal, independent & constitutional exertions of the Freeholders who voted for Mr. Justice Thorpe, We feel it our duty to declare, that the second part of said address is false, malevolent, calculated to sow the seeds of discontent & to diffuse ideas of the most dangerous tendency among the people.

Resolved 2. That the aforesaid Electors were not preceded by any Flag of Discord, Anarchy or Rebellion, but were preceded by the most appropriate & constitutional flags, neither borrowed or hired for the occasion, but constructed by themselves. The first large flag was blue, with G. R. and the King's Crown over it, the Union Cross in the corner & at the bottom the Royal motto Dieu et mon Droit. The second pink flag with The Freedom of Election worked on it, & three smaller ones of dark blue, with the Harp (as taken from a compartment in the British standard) surrounded with these words The King, the People, the Law, Thorpe & the Constitution, more loyal or constitutional symbols could not have been displayed upon any occasion.

Resolved 3. That we know no discontented Demagogues, nor if we did could not be deluded by them, many of us have fought, bled & sacrificed our families & properties for the British Government, we have exerted & ever will exert ourselves to preserve the freedom of election from all undue influence to the last moment of our lives shall be ready to support our King & Constitution.

Resolved. That the above Resolutions be published in the York Gazette.

W. WILLCOCKS, Chairman.

The printer was not permitted to insert the above Resolutions in the Gazette, not to print them in any shape.

Endorsed. The violent address of Mr. Gough the Government candidate, ordered by the Secretary to be printed & the mild reply of the independent Electors which was refused.

This will show the exasperating arbitrary propensity of the Government and the state of the press, which is turned to an instrument to calumniate & misrepresent the people who are most loyal and most attached to England tho' dreadfully oppressed after having made every sacrifice in life for their King.

WILLIAM ALLAN TO LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE.

YORK, 5th January, 1807.

SIR,—I consider it my duty as Returning Officer at the late Elections, to inform your Excellency that Mr. Justice Thorpe is returned as Member.

Mr. Justice Thorpe, after the closing of the Poll, made a long harangue to the people then present (mostly his voters) as I conceived tending to disseminate principles by no means favourable to the Government of this country, telling them "they did not know their value to Great Britain; there was no Law in this Country "to prevent their meetings; that the Habeas Corpus Act had never been suspended "here." He reminded them "of the separation of the United States from Great "Britain—He loved the people" &c., which appeared to me was intended to impress them with an idea, that their situation in this country might render them Independent of Great Britain.

As a Magistrate and a loyal subject, I have felt myself called upon to state the above circumstances to your Excellency.

I have the honour to be with due respect,
Your Excellency's most obedient servant

WM. ALLAN.

No. 1.—CONVERSATION BETWEEN JUDGE THORPE AND LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE.

(p. 99.)

Conversation which took place between the Lieutenant Governor and Mr. Justice Thorpe, in the presence of William Halton Esquire, the Lieutenant Governor's private Secretary.

31st October, 1806.

A. Mr. Justice Thorpe came by appointment and began by stating the great public benefit (as well as private advantage to the Governor) that would ensue upon Government purchasing a Tract of Indian Land between Sandwich and Malden, about seven miles square; and which might be particularly appropriated to the successful culture of Hemp.

B. Presented some Certificates from Persons who had grown hemp and could not obtain the promised Bounties, which caused dissatisfaction, also Memorials from the Grand Juries of London and Sandwich, about the very bad state of their respective Prisons and Roads.

C. He next observed with much warmth and emphasis, that the whole of the late Governor Hunter's Government had been a system of coercion, that then the little Magistrates about him had been taught to coerce; and that the People had been treated as if they had been soldiers.

D. When pressed by the Governor to be specific; he said a considerable part of the discontent arose from the manner in which Mr. McGill had treated the U. Es., and that he, in fact, was the man who had governed the Province, for that a U. E. might pass both the Governor and the Council, but, after that, Mr. McGill either put him on the U. E. list or not, just as he pleased.

E. That this delightful Province, which was intended to be a Bed of Down for those who had fought and bled for their King and their Country, had been stripped of its Down, and planted with Thorns, to enrich a few individuals.

F. That the U. Es. perceived with the greatest concern and discontent the very People against whom they had fought and contended in the Field, procuring Lands and living comfortably, while they themselves were starving.

That the U. Es. who came into the Province, were highly disgusted at seeing Mr. McGill so high in situation, when they had known him so low amongst them in America.

G. That Mr. McGill's appointment by General Hunter, to be Inspector General, was impudent, illegal, and an affront to the King, as two Departments for that purpose already existed; viz.: Mr. Russell, the Auditor General and the Executive Council.

H. That the House of Assembly were well aware of the illegality of Mr. McGill's being Inspector General, and that they meant to have made it subject of Debate last Session, had he not conciliated them, and prevented it.

I. That Mr. McGill's sitting in the Council was also illegal during Mr Grant's administration, inasmuch as he only sat, under a mandamus which specified, that he was only to sit in Council, when summoned to do so by the Governor, as a supernumerary.

K. That the same circumstances exactly applied to Mr. Chief Justice Scott's sitting in the Council.

L. That these two Gentlemen were the Persons who made Mr. Grant President that they had asked his opinion about it and he told them it was not legal; as the Seniority of Councillors depended on the priority of their taking the Oath, that Mr. Russell had taken the Oath first, but it did not much signify, which of the two old women administered the Government.

M. That both Mr. Scott and Mr. McGill had risen from the lowest situation and were exalted to the highest, to the great detriment of the Community, and that neither of them had any more right to sit in the Council than Mr. Halton or himself.

N. That there was a Book in the Council which would prove Mr. McGill having put names on or off the U. E. list, or altered them just as he pleased. That there was a Gentleman, an Englishman, and a man of honour, who could inform the Governor of the foregoing circumstances being true, and that Mr. Small was the man. (Note in red ink: See Mr. Small's letter marked O). On being asked if he had derived his information from Mr. Small, he replied he had not, but he had mentioned these matters to Mr. Small who was surprised at his having such information shook his head and allowed it to be true.

P. That from the uniform system of coercion that had been pursued the People were highly discontented, and from this cause it had been said that two hundred Americans might take the Province from one end to the other and he believed the Government to have been so bad that it could not have lasted more than three years.

That the last Government had not influence over three Members in the House not even to get a common Bill read, for which purpose he had been applied to that in his sittings as Judge the discontents of the People against it were very strong, and that altho' his own mind was full of their peculation and viciousness, he had thrown it only on their incapacity, and addressing the Governor very earnestly said, were his Sovereign sitting before him, he should think it his duty to inform him of these circumstances. (Note in red ink: See Remarks on Mr. Thorpe's letter of the 18th November, 1806).

That all the Offices had been ill treated; Mr. Wyatt's, Mr. Jarvis's and Mr. Small's, that Mr. Wyatt had great restrictions placed on him, tho' his Commission vested him with full powers, but that all depended on Caprice, for People stood [high] today and low tomorrow and the rate of fees just the same.

Q. That another source of discontent was the scandalous multiplication of Indictments for private benefit; because the Attorney General had got seven pounds ten for them.

R. That every thing here ought to be like England; and that such a disposition might probably allure the Northern States of America into the arms of Great Britain.

He believed General Hunter was clean handed (note in red ink: See Mr. Thorpe's letter of the 18th November, 1806), but as the people were ignorant to what purpose Twenty Dollars of every Fee for a common lot were appropriated, it left doubts and suspicions against him in the public mind; and People in conversation observed to each other, they could not comprehend how these Twenty Dollars were disposed of.

S. That taking fees in the above mode was a bad one, and that by proper management, they might be regulated and taken under an act of the House.

That some paltry abatement of fees, of five pounds, had been made to favour Lord Selkirk, which gave great dissatisfaction.

That Mr. Russell had agreed with him that everything had been carried on in a most scandalous manner, and also coincided with his Opinion of Mr. Scott and Mr. McGill, but he did not know whether Mr. Russell would acknowledge it now.

T. That the People of this Province were extremely well disposed, and that the smallest coincidence with their wishes would do a great deal.

That the Governor came into the Province at a very favourable period; the public mind being much irritated; and that by a different line of Conduct, he had it in his power to attach the people to him enthusiastically. When asked to Commit the Heads of his Conversation to writing, he declined doing it, as well as making any specific charges in the same way against Mr. McGill.

WM. HALTON.

A. That the successful culture of Hemp would be of great and general advantage to the Province is beyond a doubt, and the Legislature, as well as the Executive Government have shown every disposition to encourage it, but without any great effect hitherto. How the tract of Land here intended, could be applied to this purpose, is not explained—the lure he throws out of Private advantage to the Lieut. Governor looks very like a wish to make a job of it.

B. The Certificates to persons who had grown Hemp, and received them before the expiration of the Law; altho' they could not be presented in time to the Commissioners at York, ought in justice to be paid, and the Legislature will doubtless make the necessary appropriations for that purpose. With respect to Prisons and Roads, Provision is made by Law, by local assessment and labour for both these objects. But the Legislature has been too hasty in erecting new Districts at the solicitation of the Inhabitants, who now complain that they are not able to support the Burthen of their Organization. The subject is well worthy the attention of the Legislature, but though Mr. Thorpe has talked wildly enough about Roads in the House of Assembly, he has said nothing about Prisons, as he knows that an appropriation from the Provincial Fund for the benefit of any particular District would be rather an unpopular subject.

C. With the full benefit of the English Laws the system of Coercion (if he means anything else than a settled disposition to enforce the Laws) ascribed to General Hunter, and the subordinate Magistrates is impossible. General Hunter did indeed, and very properly, expect and strictly require every man in public office to do his duty.

D. With respect to the U. E. Loyalists and Military claimants, the Government of the Province, so far from having interposed any Barr to the intended Bounty of the Crown towards them, have indulged them much beyond the Intention of the original orders in their favour. In 1788 an order of the Governor and Council of Quebec extended to every description of Military Service the additional Quantity of Lands allowed to Officers of the 84th Regiment, and in 1789 another order directed that the children of the U. E. Loyalists, on their coming of age, should have 200 acres of Land free of Expense. But both these Orders were expressly confined to Persons who had duly improved their first locations, thereby evidently intending to limit the benefit of these orders to those then actually within the Province; partly no doubt upon this obvious principle, that those who shrank the hardships and toil of settling a new Country, ought not after it had been cultivated and the Lands made valuable by the labours of others, have the same indulgence as the original settlers. But instead of adhering to any principal of this kind, the Government of this Province, until the administration of General Hunter, departed both from the letter and spirit of those orders, and extended the Benefits of them to all who came into the country before the year 1798, at which period all grants under Provincial Authority were put an end to (except those to the children of U. E. Loyalists) by Instructions from His Majesty. Yet Mr. Thorpe and others of his stamp, not attending to, or probably ignorant of, these circumstances, cry out against the Government for stopping even here; and are at great pains to persuade Emigrants from Nova Scotia and others of His Majesty's Colonies, where they have probably had Lands, and every other Bounty originally bestowed upon the Loyalists, that they are injured and oppressed, because they cannot even now, obtain Lands free of expense.

M. The insinuations against Mr. McGill and Mr. Scott respecting their former exertions, betray the Rancour of a little mind. Even were they true, they could derogate nothing from their respectable character.

N. In making up the U. E. List many Errors were committed in all the Districts; the names of persons inserted who were merely Military claimants or who had been residents in Provinces not involved in the American war, or in some cases of those who had emigrated from the American States since the Treaty of 1783. It was doubtless the duty of Mr. McGill, as Inspector General to report such cases (and there were many) and to prevent the Government from being charged for the passing of Patents to People who had no just Titles to receive them free of expense.

F. That some persons engaged in promoting the American Revolution have obtained lands in this Province, must, I fear, be admitted, and that in general too much has been given to Emigrants from the American States, for the future Peace of the Province, though much to be regretted is too true; for the rest, if People are poor in this country, it must be because they will not be industrious. Diligence and Idleness will everywhere produce the same effect, the difference is not confined to any system of politics.

E. If this Province becomes a Bed of Thorns, it can only be from the Principles that Mr. Thorpe is most industrious in disseminating. He indeed is very busy in sowing and cherishing the seeds of Ingratitude and Disloyalty. How the arrangements in the Land Granting Department can have a tendency to enrich a few at the Expense of the Majority, it is impossible to conceive. Officers of course have had larger Grants than Privates, yet the latter have been provided with larger allotments than they had any reasonable claim to, and those who are not so unfortunate as to have such People as Mr. Thorpe in their neighbourhood (to make them imagine grievances where they felt none) are, as they have reason to be, very well satisfied.

G. That the appointment of Mr. McGill as Inspector General has been highly useful, experience has proved, and it is doubtful whether Mr. Thorpe has betrayed his Ignorance or his Independence most, in speaking of it in the manner he does.

H. It was he who urged, instead of preventing, the ridiculous attempt to persuade the House of Assembly to call in question the Legality of this appointment.

I. With respect to Mr. Grant, it would seem that in determining the seniority of the Executive Councillor, the circumstance of his name being first on the list transmitted, and made up at home, on the first organization of the Province must be decisive.

The Executive Council never did consult Mr. Thorpe on this subject.

I.K. The remark of Mr. McGill and Mr. Scott's sitting in Council only under particular circumstances seem altogether futile. Yet Mr. Thorpe has taken all possible pains to make it be believed that Mr. Grant was placed improperly at the head of the Government, and that in consequence every act of his administration was illegal.

P. Truth is always consistent, but what can be said of a man who in the course of one conversation asserts that the people are so discontented, that it had been said "two hundred Americans might take the Province" and (T.) a little after that the "people were extremely well disposed, and that the smallest coincidence with their "wishes would do a great deal"—the plain English of all this is, let me dictate to you, and everything will go well. I, the People, though not the actual language is in reality a characteristic motto of Mr. Thorpe and every other factious Demagogue.

Q. Almost scandalous assertion that many Indictments must here be tried at the Assizes that are in England decided at the Quarter Sessions is unavoidable, for where these involved a point of Law, there are few of the Magistrates in the country capable of forming a correct Opinion on the Question, and should they even happen to be right, their decision would not have the proper degree of weight.

R. In prosecution of the idea that everything here ought to be like England, Mr. Thorpe has been endeavouring to urge the Assembly of this Province to act [as] though it was the Representative Body of an Independent State, and even to arrogate to themselves a Right to dispose of the Property of the Crown, which the British Parliament has never assumed.

S. There is a most insidious attempt to introduce the House of Assembly into the Management and disposal of the waste Lands of the Crown.

Lt. Governor.

O. Copy of a letter from John Small Esq, clerk of the Executive Council to William Halton Esq, the Lieut. Governor's private secretary, dated Council office, 16th November, 1806.

SIR,—In obedience to His Excellency the Lieut. Governor's command, I inform you that there is a Book kept in the Council Office, called the U. E. list, in which several names have been, some expunged and others suspended; but how far Mr. Justice Thorpe can conceive himself justifiable in stating to His Excellency that Mr. McGill has put on and taken off, or altered names at his pleasure in this Book, I know not, but I positively deny acknowledging to him that such a statement was true.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your most obedient humble servant

No. 2.—JUDGE THORPE TO LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE.

YORK, 18th November, 1806.

SIR,—Altho' no person has any right peremptorily to desire me to specify in writing, the particular acts which brought conviction to my own mind on any general matter which had not been investigated before me judicially, yet as I am most anxious to gratify your Excellency, I will specify such acts as I have heard of, and can immediately recollect, as assisted in giving conviction to my own mind, that there was peculation in the late Government.

I must call your Excellency's recollection to the conversation which gave rise to this cursory observation, when on the subject of the late Government, I remarked it was insinuated that I wished to embarrass them (you know from what I have related it was my duty not to countenance them) but I did assure you, that I never had publicly spoken or written anything against them, until the London address forced some observation from me, and that I only imputed incapacity to them, altho' my own mind might have been impressed with a conviction that there was peculation, I also did assure you most truly that I did prevent the investigation of subjects, which would have severely annoyed them, because I knew these subjects would create still more discontent in the Province, I mentioned my surprise that General Hunter (who I believed to be as pure a man as to public money could be) would lay himself open to the insinuation of having embezzled public money, because he never brought into the public accounts, money raised by fees on Lands, nor by the Revenue sent from Lower Canada, thus having shown I did not mean to insinuate anything against the late General Hunter, I come to these things which I have so often heard of, that my mind is impressed with an idea, that there has been peculation in the Officers of Government, the immense tracts of land in the best situations, given to themselves, their families, relatives and friends, when others better entitled have been refused, their charging themselves, families, relations, and friends, smaller fees than others equally entitled; their charging fees to some and not to others in similar situations, their charging fees to those they had no right to charge, and after holding them for years, when threatened with prosecution their having refunded them, and their having taken fees and not accounting for them; various accounts, I have also heard, are completely kept back from the Public eye; these are what I can immediately call to memory, that impressed me with that conviction, but the investigation of such things I could not go into nor the proofs ever seek for, or suffer any one to relate, because some of them were to have been brought before the Court this last term, and on the issue many more might have followed, I repressed but could not control observation.

Permit me now to remind your Excellency, that our conversation was private and confidential, that the force of my observations tended to shew that the system pursued by the late Government had stunted the growth of the prosperity of the Province, had kept it useless to the Mother Country, and had brought it to the verge of being lost to Great Britain; also I endeavoured to impress on your mind, that at the very moment England wanted every guinea she could raise, to support her in the glorious contest she was engaged in, that these were useless and burthensome Departments here, which might be struck off, by which twenty thousand a year could be saved to England, and more justice and satisfaction given to the People here; I thought it but doing my duty to my King and the British Government to make that statement, and when I brought representations from Districts which I had passed thro' as Judge of Assize, I considered it my duty to your Excellency's Government to make such observations as might tend to benefit the Province, harmonize the People, preserve and render it valuable to Great Britain, and I must remark that I had not the slightest idea, that a cursory observation, on an impression made on my mind, the proofs of which I never could investigate, nor ever suffer to be related, should be the only point noticed, while the great objects I endeavoured to impress seem to have escaped attention.

Considering your Excellency as representing my Sovereign, from whom I should withhold nothing, I have put in writing the specific acts, to the points you desired, although your desire was conveyed in a tone very different from what that gracious Sovereign would have used to any gentleman in his dominions, and highly different indeed from the stile in which he would have applied to one of the Justices of his own Bench.

I have the honour to be with great respect,

Your Excellency's most obedient and Very humble Servant

ROBERT THORPE.

Remarks on Mr. Thorpe's Letter.

(p. 111.)

Altho' in his letter, Mr. Thorpe speaks but from report, and concerning some particulars that must have taken place about eight years before he came into this Province, yet I lost no time to examine into the reality of his statements. I was a stranger, and wished to obtain information, and was anxious to discover in whom I could confide; I now state the result of my inquiries.

The statements in Mr. Thorpe's letter, so far as they apply to the past operations of this Government, appear to me to be as follows:

First. Lieutenant Governor Hunter had not brought forward into the Public Accounts, fees received for Lands; nor the revenue received from Lower Canada; and that the Officers of Government had received fees for which they never did account.

Secondly. That immense tracts of Land had been given to the officers of Government, their relations and friends; smaller fees having been charged to them, than to others equally entitled.

Thirdly. That fees had been charged to some persons and not to others in similar situations, and to some persons who ought not to be charged at all, and that the last mentioned fees had been refunded when a prosecution had been threatened.

Fourthly. That articles for building had been taken from the King's Stores and applied to private uses.

To understand the statement in Mr. Thorpe's letter, it is necessary to observe that the word "Fees" is not only applied to what is paid to the different Officers of Government, on every Patent that is issued for Land, but also to a much larger payment to the Crown, upon the issuing of such Patents—it is to the last mentioned payment that Mr. Thorpe's observations can only apply.

As to the first charge made by Mr. Thorpe, with this explanation, I have to observe, that by Documents laid before me, it appears that a regular account of the fees paid to the Crown has been half yearly made up and transmitted by the Receiver General to the Lords of the Treasury; another that the Revenue from Lower Canada has been annually inserted in the public accounts laid before the Legislative Assembly; nor have I discovered that any of the above mentioned fees have not been accounted for by the Officers of Government.

With respect to the tracts of Land bestowed on the Officers of Government, as stated in his second charge; the fact upon investigation appears to be this: By His Majesty's permission in the year 1798, such persons as were then Members of the Executive Council, did receive a portion of Lands, which together with the Lands they had before attained by virtue of the King's instructions, amounted to six thousand acres; for such Lands payment was not only made of the fees that belonged to the Officers of the Land granting Department; since the above period, his Majesty has been pleased to grant to certain individuals, Lands subject only to the like fees, as had before been paid by the Members of the Executive Council.

It is true, as stated by Mr. Thorpe, that the families and friends of some of the Officers of Government did obtain grants of Land, which the Governor in Council had authority to bestow; but it is equally true, that as to fees of every description, they were on the same footing with other inhabitants of this Province, and here I must observe that since the commencement of Lieutenant Governor Hunter's administration, the members of the Executive Council, and other Officers of Government (unless by the King's command) have derived no advantage as such, either as to the quantity of land which they have received, or the amount of the fees which they have paid.

As to what is inserted by Mr. Thorpe in what I call his third charge, respecting partiality with regard to the amount of fees required from different individuals, I can only say that I have not discovered any foundation for that assertion.

Amidst the number of alterations which have, from a variety of causes, taken place in the Table of Fees, it would be rash to maintain, that the Governor and Council may not have sometimes erred in their judgment respecting them, but that in any instance they have acted corruptly, I have no reason to believe.

Respecting the application of the King's stores to private purposes, mentioned also by Mr. Thorpe, the charge as to fact is true, but it is charge, if my information be correct, of which those who were at the head of public affairs need not be ashamed; about eight years since the seat of Government was removed from Niagara to this place, then a wilderness, the difficulties which persons had to encounter, who from the situations they held were compelled to reside there were extreme; under such circumstances, some materials for building were delivered out of the King's stores, which could be obtained nowhere else, to such persons, upon an obligation being given by them to replace such materials, if required.

He also speaks of the Province as being on the verge of being lost to Great Britain. Mr. Thorpe must have been unfortunate in his associates to form such a conclusion. Notwithstanding his Industry in suggesting and magnifying subjects of Discontent, the effects are not so great and extensive, as he and his friends may suppose, and perhaps wish.

No. 31.—LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE TO MR. WINDHAM.

YORK, UPPER CANADA,
23rd April, 1807.

SIR,—I have the honour to inform you, that from the general and notorious bad conduct of Mr. Joseph Willcocks, Sheriff of the Home District of this Province, I have considered it as an indispensable duty to remove him from that office, and have appointed Miles McDonell, Esquire, late a Captain in the Canadian Volunteers to succeed him.

I have also the honour to transmit copies of five affidavits, respecting the conduct of Mr. Willcocks, which will, I trust, point out in a stronger point of view, the necessity of the step which I have been induced to take, than anything I can offer on the subject.

I have the honour to be, with great Respect,
Sir,
Your most obedient humble servant
FRANCIS GORE
Lt. Governor.

AFFIDAVITS.

Upper Canada.

George Richard Ferguson of York in the Home District Esquire maketh oath and saith That on or about the Twenty seventh day of November last past he this deponent was at the house of Mr. John Mills Jackson in the Township of York in company with Joseph Willcocks, Esquire, Sheriff of the Home District and some others. The Sheriff began the subject of Politics with great warmth when this deponent requested he would desist. That the Sheriff did not desist, but said that the Government were trying to crush and make a beggar of him. This deponent remarked that such Language came ill from him, who derived his Bread from the Government, and even if he was crushed, he could leave the Province as he came into it, a Beggar. The Sheriff said he would produce some official Papers (which he took from his Pocket) to shew how tyrannical the Government was. This deponent opposed his producing any official papers there, being in a mixed company. Mr. Jackson insisted on their being produced and read; that it was in his House, and that he would support the Sheriff, who he knew was for the people. The Sheriff replied that he was for the people, that he knew the people were ripe for anything, and that he was determined to support them.

This deponent further saith that about eighteen months past he this deponent and the said Sheriff were in company, when the Sheriff said that if, Bonaparte lived he would carry Republicanism through the world, and till then, the world could never be happy nor at rest, and that he often suppressed his admiration of a Republican Government before any other, and that the poor Rebels in Ireland were not supported as they ought to have been, but were sacrificed. After the election of Mr. Weekes he said, that that Parliament would be the most eventful one there had ever been in the Country, and that there would shortly be different leaders to these pusillanimous Mortals that now were taking the lead in Government.

HOME DISTRICT YORK, to wit

Personally appeared before me Duncan Cameron Esquire, one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the said District, Ranny L. Besserer, Lieutenant in his Majesty's New Brunswick Regiment, and being duly sworn upon the holy Evangelists made oath and said that on the 27th day of November, 1806, being with several others at the house of a person recognised as John Mills Jackson Gentleman in the Township of York and the District aforesaid, that amongst other expressions the following were repeatedly made use of by Joseph Willcocks Esquire Sheriff of the said District: That he would expose to the Public his correspondence with the Solicitor General's Office, to shew the Tyranny and oppression of the Government, that they were trying to crush him because he would Defend the Rights of the People, which he would do to his utmost, and further this Deponent saith not.

RANNY L. BESSERER.

I, Titus Geer Simons of the Township of Flamboro' West in the County of York, in the Home District of the Province of Upper Canada, Gentleman, make oath on the holy Evangelists of the Almighty God, before Duncan Cameron Esquire, one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the District aforesaid, do declare that on the 27th day of November now last past, having rode in company with several Gentlemen to the house of Mr. John Mills Jackson, on Yonge Street, and was there invited by the said Mr. Jackson to dine with him and some other Gentlemen, to wit, Captain Richard Ferguson, Mr. Sheriff Willcocks, Baron de Hoen, Lieut. Besserer and Mr. Cheniquy. We sat down to dinner at a late hour. The then approaching election became the topic of conversation, in which Mr. Jackson and Mr. Willcocks appeared warmly interested. Immediately after removing the cloth, the King's health was drank, and that of several noblemen in England of whose friendship and confidence Mr. Jackson boasted. I was asked for a toast, I gave the Lieut. Governor of the Province. "Apropos," said the sheriff, "how is the Governor spoken of in your neighbourhood?" (meaning the head of the Lake), those said I, who have had any business to transact with his Excellency have met with every satisfaction which the nature of their case required, for my part I can only speak from his general character, which I believe to be an amiable one. "So do I," said Mr. Sheriff, "and in order to exonerate him from the imputation which report "is disseminating through the country; That I am most shamefully and most cruelly "oppressed, for reasons unknown to myself and my friends—That he is my implac- "able enemy, and that his persecution will only cease on my being ousted,—and I "say in order to clear his Excellency from this charge, I will read a letter which I "have this day received from the Solicitor General"—he then pulled some papers from his pocket; when Captain Ferguson rose from his chair and begged of him in the most friendly terms, not to read or expose any "official Papers as he considered "the company a public or mixed one, and an improper place to exhibit public Papers, "which respected his public situation, and much more so to make any comments "on them." The sheriff then addressed himself to Mr. Jackson, saying, "this is "the way that I am always oppressed and cannot say a word in vindication of my- "self—I have offered several Gentlemen of the first rank, men with fifteen hundred "pounds sterling as my securities, but they have been rejected, this day I have given "in two more, Mr. Samuel Thompson and Mr. Addison, if these are rejected the "Country is ready to come forward and pay the money for me." Mr. Jackson cried out, "read what you please, say what you please, you are at my table, I know "that the Governor has used you as well as some others in this place like a "damned Rascal, but that his stay in this Country was of a short duration, that his "friend was recalled and that he (the Governor) would soon experience the same "fate, when things were properly stated at home." Mr. Cheniquy got enraged, asked Mr. Jackson "if he was not ashamed to call the Governor a damned Rascal? "Recollect," said he, "that you are speaking of the King's Representative." "Damn "the King and him too, what have we to expect from either of them? I have asked "for no favours since I have been here, nor do I intend to ask for any." "If you "make use of such language" said Mr. Cheniquy, "I will leave the room." "Leave "it and be damned" said Mr. Jackson, "I care as little for you as I do for the Governor "or his master." Mr. Cheniquy left the room. Mr. Sheriff then said "that he did not "doubt but that every word that had passed would be carried to the Garrison by the "next morning at 10 o'clock." Captain Ferguson observed, "and so they ought to "be, but I shall not do it, the administrations which I gave you in the early part of "the evening inspecting your public papers were from motives of friendship." "Damn "your friendship, I hold it in as much contempt, as that worthy man Mr. Thorpe, "the friend of the people, does the interest you are making against him," said Mr. Sheriff; Captain Ferguson replied: "I have made no interest for or against him." "You have," said Mr. Sheriff, "but notwithstanding all the interest, which your "Scotch faction have and can make, Mr. Thorpe will go into the House." "I know "of no Scotch faction," said Captain Ferguson, "nor am I of any Party, and your "abuse, Mr. Sheriff, should not pass with impunity." "Yes" said Mr. Jackson, "that damned Scotch faction, with the Governor at the head are striving to bear "down all before them, poor Mr. Wyatt has been most shamefully and most rascully "treated by the Governor, both him and Mr. Sheriff have been thrown out of the "Governor's house without assigning a cause to either, but the time is not far distant "when Mr. Wyatt shall have a Seat in the Executive Council, Mr. Thorpe Speaker "of the House and before twelve months I shall be returned for this place, to which "another Member is to be added, as also one to the London District—then huzza for "the man of the People, he must, and will stand; but the Governor, what is his "support, when the Country is against him, he must fall, he must come to his marrow- "bones." Mr. Sheriff then said: "I am determined with Mr. Jackson's leave to read "this letter, be the future consequences what they may; Mr. Simons as a stranger "will see how I am oppressed without a shadow of a cause. I have written to the "Solicitor requesting to know what kind of security he required and I would obtain "it, and this letter which I am going to read is an answer to it." I think the contents were nearly as follows: "Sir, This is to say that the two Gentlemen whose names "you give in for your securities are deemed insufficient; I therefore hope you will "lose no time in procuring others. I am not authorized to reject or accept of any "particular person; the Statutes of the Province are my authority." "Here you "see Gentlemen," said the Sheriff, "that the Solicitor General disavows any authority from the Governor for thus opposing me, by rejecting the Gentlemen whose names I have given in." "Damn the Governor and the Government," said Mr. Jackson, push about the bottle." "Well," said Captain Ferguson, "I had it in contemplation to offer you my name, tho' I doubted its acceptance, but your imprudent conduct this evening forbids it." "Damn you and your friendship it is not to be depended upon, you dare not breathe without asking some of your damned faction" said Mr. Sheriff. Captain Ferguson immediately collared him and they rose from their chairs—we interfered and parted them, when Mr. Sheriff pulled off his coat and ran out of the door, the Captain followed and brought him back very peaceable. Mr. Sheriff sat down again and immediately began with Politics; I begged of him to keep his promise, which was to drop Politics, as it only tended to keep the company in commotion. "By God," said he, "the Country from repeated infringements upon "their rights and liberties, is now ripe for anything; that Mr. Wyatt had sent home "20 or 26 pages of manuscript, stating the disaffections of the People of the "Province and the cruelty and ill treatment, which he and his friends had experienced "from the Governor—when these facts are properly stated at home and when we "shall have made some other arrangements in the Government, we shall then carry "all before us by God."

(p. 130.)

Joseph Cheniquy of the Town of York in the Province of Upper Canada Gentleman maketh oath and saith that on or about the twenty seventh day of November last past he this Deponent was at the house of Mr. John Mills Jackson in the Township of York, where the Sheriff of the Home District Joseph Willcocks Esquire was present attending a Jury to lay out a Road in the neighbourhood. That the said John Mills Jackson was at home and invited the Sheriff and Richard Ferguson Esquire (a Justice of the Peace attending in quality of Magistrate to swear the said Jury) to Dinner. That after dinner and before the cloth was removed, the Sheriff began the subject of Politicks when this Deponent requested he would desist—the Sheriff persisted and made use of the most abusive language against the Government, stating that the Government was tyrannical and oppressive and that he expected he should be turned out of his office because he supported the Rights of the People. The said John Mills Jackson supported the Sheriff in his assertions, and proceeded to such violent language against the Government that the Magistrate was constrained to interfere. That the said John Mills Jackson said the Government were a set of Rascals. He further stated that the Executive Council and General Hunter had plundered the Country. And this deponent further saith that the said Joseph Willcocks (Sheriff) at another time told this deponent that if he this deponent knew how bad the Government were he would not side with them.

(p. 132.)

John Richardson of the Town of York in the Province of Upper Canada Farmer maketh Oath and saith that he hath been acquainted with Joseph Willcocks Esquire Sheriff of the Home District for upwards of Five years that he ever considered him as a loyal subject of the King until about fifteen months last past, since which period this Deponent observed a great alteration in the conduct of the said Sheriff. That since the said period he hath repeatedly heard the Sheriff decry the Government and the Constitution of Great Britain. The said Joseph Willcocks had frequently discoursed with this Deponent on the subject of Republican Principles even adverting to the Glorious Success of the French over Tyrants, and admiring their conduct in Ireland. He expressed a wish that the French had succeeded in Ireland or in England and hoped they would be successful wherever they went. The said Joseph Willcocks related a story of the Rebels in Ireland throwing a Brother of his over a Bridge remarking that the Rebels would not have served him so. And this Deponent further saith that upon every occasion when the conversation would admit of it the said Sheriff expressed his admiration of a Republican system of Government hoping that system would prevail thro' the world.

CERTIFICATE OF RICHARDSON'S CHARACTER.

QUEBEC, 18th March 1807.

SIR,—Your Excellency having been pleased to request, I would transmit the character of John Richardson, who lived with me as Bailiff, and also state whether I consider him a man worthy to be credited on his oath. I have, Sir, in answer to these enquiries, the honour to inform you, that John Richardson was in my service as Bailiff near three years, during the whole of which time as far as came to my knowledge, he conducted himself very much to my satisfaction and is, I believe, a very honest man. I entrusted him with the active management of my Farm, for though it was not very distant from my Residence, I very seldom even saw it,. As to believing him on his Oath, I can assure your Excellency, I should have the fullest confidence in anything he stated on oath. I always placed the utmost reliance on his statements and found them correct (as far as I had any means of informing myself) when he was not bound down by an Oath. He was recommended to the protection of the late General Hunter by a very respectable Family in England, and I believe he has, since he has been in Canada, conducted himself with great propriety.

I have the honour to subscribe myself with great respect
Your Excellency's most obedient servant,
H. ALLCOCK.

No. 32.—LORD CASTLEREAGH TO LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE.

(Extract.)

* * * * * *

The various particulars which you have stated of Mr. Justice Thorpe's having exceeded his duties as a Judge, by mixing in the political parties of the Province, and encouraging an opposition to the Administration, afforded such well grounded reasons for believing that his continuance in office would lead to the discredit and service of His Majesty's Government, that I am commanded to signify to you His Majesty's pleasure that you suspend Mr. Thorpe from the office of Judge in Upper Canada and measures will be taken for appointing a successor.

It is by no means intended, nor, I am sure, is it your wish that this measure be extended beyond the limits of what is necessary for His Majesty's service, and you will therefore intimate to Mr. Thorpe that I hope I may be enabled to recommend him to some other professional situation under an assurance that he will confine him-self to the duties of his profession hereafter, and abstain from engaging in Provincial Party. I am further to signify His Majesty's approbation of your having suspended Mr. Wyatt from the office of Surveyor General of Lands, and shall communicate with the Lands Comrs. of the Treasury with regard to his conduct, but shall reserve an ultimate decision respecting him to another opportunity.

No. 33.—LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE TO LORD CASTLEREAGH.

YORK, UPPER CANADA
21st August, 1807.

MY LORD,—I have the honour to inform you, that I have considered it to be my Duty to omit the name of Mr. Justice Thorpe, in the Commission of Assize, lately Issued in the Province, and the Executive Council have unanimously concurred with me in this measure (No. 1).

That the progress of one of His Majesty's Justices of the Court of King's Bench, through the Provinces, in his routine of duty, should be dangerous to the peace of the Colony, may indeed appear strange but it is most certainly true with regard to Mr. Thorpe, who appears to consider his character as a judge but matter of a secondary consideration, and to be chiefly ambitious of the charactor of a Factious Demagogue.

In my Dispatch (No. 20) addressed to Mr. Windham, I informed that Minister of the dangerous tendency of Mr. Thorpe's conduct, and accompanied it by documents that would corroborate my statements, and I beg leave to call Your Lordship's attention to the papers which I have now the honour to transmit (No. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7).

The address and answer (No. 6) are generally believed to be the production of Mr. Thorpe, no public meeting was ever held (No. 7). Sheppard and Montgomery, the supposed Chairman and Secretary, are ignorant Farmers, who can hardly write their names.

In order to give full scope to Mr. Thorpe's mischievous exertions, a Printing Press has been established by some of the most active Partisans, ostensibly conducted by one Willcocks, a turbulent Irishman, whom I found it necessary to displace from his office as Sheriff. For the real motives of this establishment, and the Reasons and views with which it is conducted, I beg leave to refer to Papers (No. 8, 9 and 10) and though anonymous communications should be attended to with the greatest caution, yet No. 8 being in this case corroborated by Mr. Powell's letter No. 10, and the information of a merchant of respectability in New York No. 9, combined with the conduct of the Persons alluded to, leaves little room to doubt of the correctness of the information.

Without knowing the full extent of Mr. Thorpe's improper conduct, and only judging from what has passed in view of the Public, People of Property and respectability express their astonishment, that he should be allowed to continue in his present situation; had I, on his first attempt to poison the minds of the lower order of the people, suspended him from his office, I conceive that I should have been fully justified, but having laid before His Majesty's Minister an account of his conduct, I anxiously await their determination.

I have the honour to be, My Lord,
With great respect, your most obedt servant
FRANCIS GORE
Lt. Governor

No. 1.—Report of the Executive Council.

(p. 215.)

York, July 4th 1807.

May it please Your Excellency,—

We have attentively perused the papers which you have been pleased to communicate to us, relative to the conduct of Mr. Justice Thorpe, since his arrival in this Province.

Upon consideration of the whole of the matter therein contained, it is with deep regret we observe, that the conduct of that Gentleman has had an uniform tendency to degrade, embarrass and vilify His Majesty's servants and Government of this Colony.

The discontents with the measures of this Government, which have already arisen, from what has been by him held out to the lower classes of Individuals with whom he has had communication, particularly in that part of the country where he has presided as a Judge of Assize, are too obvious to be concealed, what future consequences may follow, it is impossible to foretell.

Under such circumstances, we do consider it expedient to omit the name of Mr. Justice Thorpe in the next Commission of Assize and Nisi Prius for the safety and tranquillity of this Province.

No. 2.—Judge Thorpe to Joseph Willcocks.

Dear Sir,—I this day saw our friend Mr. Weekes deposited in the grave, this sudden and shocking catastrophe has shaken me much; I have written twice to Mr. Wyatt on the subject, and can no more for my heart is wrung.

I enclose my answer to the London District, and sent you three addresses and three answers before by the Toronto, you will put them in the York Paper if you think it serviceable and in what order and at what time you think best, but do not let any one see them except Mr. Wyatt; I am sorry this last address forced me to speak out, I have spoken truth, and at the same time avoided personal asperity, which I pray I never will be driven to, for I am too heavily laden with a conviction of their iniquity to let me strike lightly.

I have written to Mr. Wyatt to let me have Mr. Weekes's house, and beg you would employ some one to get me a few Cords of Wood. Poor Mr. Weekes's will has proved his regard for the People and the Province; may his virtues be imitated and his violence be avoided; his principles were admirable and his fate deplorable.

Yours truly with esteem and regard

ROBT. THORPE.

October 15th, 1806.

P.S. I enclose the representations from the London District, which you are not to publish, but keep for me, I only send them as the names of the Grand Jury are there, and I think you had better put them to the address, which passed unanimously but which might be doubted if you do not give the names.

Don't shew the representations to any one person. Much imputation is thrown against Mr. McKay, and it is wished Mr. Wyatt should direct every thing.

No. 3.—Judge Thorpe to Joseph Willcocks.

y Dear Sir,—The subject of our poor friend is so painful and I have wrote ch on this miserable event before to you and Mr. Wyatt that I can no more, t to assure you that he fought and expired bravely.
delight at your going to the Governor and speaking openly, but he will soon rough these wretched sycophants, and despise their emptiness and vulgarity.
hope you will safely receive the four addresses and answers, I think they will some good effect with him, and you will find he will do nothing until I go which will be, if it please God, on the 25th of this month.
As to representing the Home District I have written fully to Mr. Wyatt, and to and yourself I have left to determine for me, on certain terms, I will not go g the people, nor keep open house for drinking, nor involve myself in expense, f the people chuse to meet, put me in nomination almost unanimously and nt Committees to compleat the Election without trouble or expense, I will give me and labour for the public service and toil incessantly to make them as free happy as any nation on the Earth, my sentiments are fully known, I never will ge them, but to be in the House of Representatives cannot raise me or serve mily, and the trouble, toil, anxiety and fatigue it must give me, will be immense, efore surely, I ought to avoid it, and if I accept it to serve the public, it must e by doing anything derogatory to the situation I hold, or incompatible with eelings and principals, I see every annoyance to myself, yet altho' it may drive om the Province in six months, I do think I could serve the Country, and could he foundation of future good, but my sanguine wish is that the Governor will with me, and in that case it is incalculable the advantage that may be obtained.
know the persons that ought to be consulted, bring them to Mr. Wyatt, and con-what is best to be done, I will slave for the people, and if called into action I ight to the stumps, but your friend is full, I hope, of high honour, proper pride, cute feelings, therefore preserve these, tho' I may be about sacrificing every ort and every situation.
I am anxious to send those tonight and can only assure you that I am,

Sir,—I put the Letter with which you honoured me yesterday into the Hands r. Justice Thorpe. After a short pause, he said that he ought to obtain peron to return home and lay the matter before the King and Council.
I replied that you had no objection to that, and that you would give him leave

Dear Sir,—I must sacrifice my gratification at the shrine of duty, the state of Province forbids my leaving it, the Lieut. Governor never can know it from the ple he has about him, whatever he does must be at his own peril; besides I have med the King's Ministers that I am prepared to lay before the Council in land against the Executive Government here, charges which could not be rebutted, yet as I wish peace I will not hurry in to it, when a change of system cannot effected any other way I must do it, for a change must be effected or the Provin is lost.

As to the representations against me it is inanity I have done my duty strict and laboriously, and what I have done out of the exact line, I have done by dir tion; I could induce much more persecution and quietly scorn it. It was late wh your letter came and I dislike detaining your servant.

No. 6.—Electors of York to Judge Thorpe.

(p. 224.)

At a meeting of the independent Electors for the County of York, Durham an Simcoe, held at the Town of York, July 24th 1807, the following address to th Honourable Judge Thorpe was unanimously agreed to.

Mr. Joseph Sheppard in the Chair.

Respected Sir,—With unfeigned sorrow we learn that orders have been giv to leave your name out of the Commission of Assize; by this the Eastern part the Province will be deprived of the instructive lessons flowing from your mouth while presiding on the seat of justice; those philanthropic instructions which rais you so high in the esteem of our Western Brethren, and from which we hav received the most essential Benefit. By this we fear you will consequently b deprived of its attendant salary. But for this temporary evil, there is a remedy provided, and as an earnest of our attachment to a person actuated by such di interested and virtuous principles, we humbly request you to accept a sum adequat to that which you lose by espousing our cause, and exerting your noblest powers i asserting the rights and defending the privileges which are allowed us by our mo amiable and truly beloved Sovereign.

As we his Majesty's loyal subjects, have not received any information for wha cause, or reason, such orders have been issued, we think it our duty further t assure you, that if any attempt should be made to take away or lessen your income we shall willingly contribute (and we are convinced that his Majesty's subject throughout the Province will coincide) to alleviate the sufferings of you our bene factor, who have since the moment you landed in our province, laboured with ind fatigable exertions to establish in this distant part of his Majesty's dominions th Constitution and Laws of our Mother Country.

We earnestly entreat that nothing may tempt you to leave us, as our dependenc is placed on your uprightness and perseverance. We beg leave to offer you th warmest assurance of our regard, and to implore you to guard against any insidio attacks, for in a private as well as a public situation your life is most valuable.

ALEXANDER MONTGOMERY
Secretary.

To which his Honour was pleased to return the following answer:

Gentlemen,—I must be devoid of feeling to be insensible to this kindness. thank you from my heart; but the Oath prescribed for a Judge precludes the pos bility of my accepting your liberal present. I was informed by the Chief Just that the Lieutenant Governor had directed my name to be omitted in the Commis of Assize. By what legitimate authority such an unprecedented power could exercised, will be for his Majesty's Minister to determine. To me it is of little c sequence, but through me, the rights of the Justices of the Court of King's Ben are affected. When first honoured with a seat on that Bench, the Judges vol tarily became sponsors for my acquirements. Since I attained that appointm (now about five years) a decision of mine never has been reversed, nor have I e esided in any Court without receiving the warmest declaration of public satis-ction. My conduct has been approved of by the Secretary of State, and my labours warded by my Sovereign. These (with the flattering expectation that I possess e confidence of the Province) are the proud circumstances on which I rest, the gh ground on which I am elevated beyond the reach of detraction.

I will continue my exertions until you obtain every immunity our munificent onarch bestowed. I pledge myself for their rapid approach, anticipate the rival. Let us constantly unite hand and heart, with a firm determination to stand fall with Great Britain, it is wisdom, it is virtue, it is security and glory.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your very truly obliged and
Obedient humble servant

Sir,—Although the writer of the following communication has taken the liberty o address it to you, and for peculiar reasons deems it expedient that his name hould not at this time be known, yet it is hoped that circumstance will not so far perate as to render it unacceptable or unefficacious. Suffice it to say, that he is no tranger to the measures, or to the Policy which dictates those measures of His Majesty's Government; nor is he ignorant of the true Interests of the People of the Province of Upper Canada.

The perturbed state of the public mind in the Province has been produced by auses as well understood by His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, as by your-elf, The continuation of which state of perturbation is promoted by a man high in office, who forgetting the Duties imposed on him from the very nature of that Office, has evinced a total dereliction of every principle of honour and virtue!

The motives which actuate the writer, it is hoped may not be misunderstood; They originate from a desire to promote the well directed views of his Majesty's Government and to preserve to the People of the Province of Upper Canada, Those rights, privileges and advantages which they really do enjoy but which they are blindly about to part with.

Accident has lately led me to become acquainted with the views of a certain character*, who not long since held an official station in the Province, and his views being those of the first mentioned character, it becomes a matter of moment, that they should be displayed. They are nothing less than an attempt to revolutionize the Province.

*Joseph Willcocks a United Irishman and lately a Sheriff.

The Engine to be made use of to carry this object into effect is a free Press as is called; a connexion has been form'd in this City between the Editor of the Guardian and several Printers among whom, the Editor of the Citizen, and Republic Watch Tower whose name is Cheetham is one. The character of this man is notorio as inimical to the British Government, his energies will be employ'd in support this paper called the Guardian. The alliance made with Editors of an oppos political character, is intended as a mantle, to cover the real design. An interchan of sentiments has taken place between the Editor of the Guardian and Emmett a the Hibernian Society, alias the Society of United Irishmen, and much strength expected to be derived from the connection.

The People of the Province have been represented to be on the verge of Reb lion,* their Grievances being too great any longer to be borne, all arising from t Tyranny of His Majesty's Executive Government. That they, The People, would, e long, seize upon His Excellency's Person and the other obnoxious Officers of t Crown, and ship them off in Irons—if not worse. That this was the plan agreed &c. The violence of such language naturally excites a suspicion of the strength execute what might be wished, and consequently not deserving of notice. Still may be important that the extent of the views of The Party should be known. The can be but little doubt, that Disorder and Confusion are the first objects in the pu suit, for the qualification of personal ambition or some other worse passion.

The prime actor in this scene, it is to be presumed, receives his Instructio from a source,† as powerful almost, as it is inimical to the Interests of Great Britain The writer is induc'd to communicate from the attachment he feels to His Majesty Government; to His Excellency, the Lieutenant Governor, as His Majesty's Repre sentative, and to the Interests and Welfare of the People of the Province at larg The relation in which you stand to the Government‡ will plead my excuse for dire ing this to you, and through you to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor. Shou what has been written prove in any degree useful to His Excellency individually, o to the Government in general, then will be gratified the wishes of His Excellency and your most obedient and most humble servant,

No. 34.—LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE TO LORD CASTLEREAGH.

YORK, UPPER CANADA 14th November, 1807.

* * * * *

In obedience to your Lordship's commands, contained in your Dispatch No. 2, I directed a suspension from the office of one of the Judges of the Court of King's Bench in Upper Canada to be delivered to Mr. Thorpe, together with an extract from the Dispatch of such part as your Lordship was pleased to desire might be communicated to that gentleman.

I cannot help entertaining the hope that the measure which has thus been adopted, however painful, will have the most salutary influence in preventing the further progress of that spirit of equality and want of subordination, which too much prevails amongst the Lower Ranks of this province.

Before the Official Notification for suspending Mr. Thorpe arrived, he was aware of his fate; indeed Mr. Justice Powell, with humanity and with my perfect approbation, communicated to Mr. Thorpe what he had heard when in England respecting him.

I should not have troubled your Lordship with the result of that communication (A), were it not that Mr. Thorpe positively asserted, that what he had done was by direction of the Secretary of State.

With regard to the changes which Mr. Thorpe mentions respecting the members of the Executive Government, they are ready, anxious, and I believe able, to meet them: I say this with little hesitation, as such charges must necessarily refer to transactions which took place previous to my arrival in this Province, and which I cannot personally be interested in.

With respect to Mr. Thorpe's pecuniary embarrassments, it was signified to him by my desire, that the means should be furnished him to enable him to return to England, for which purpose I had directed the Receiver General to advance him Two Hundred pounds on his Bill to be drawn on the Colonial Agent, and it was further signified that he might obtain my leave of absence from the Province before the order for suspension should be received; these offers were refused. Mr. Thorpe did leave the Province before the suspension could be deliver'd to him, but it was altogether without my knowledge or leave, not however until he had published an address in the newspaper (B) mentioned in the communication with Mr. Powell.

The last observation with which I shall trouble your Lordship is this, that if Mr. Thorpe is permitted to state any particulars relative to the Government of this Province, he will probably call in a Mr. Jackson, now I believe in England, to support his charges. I have only to refer your Lordship respecting this person to my Dispatch (No. 16) and to the affidavits transmitted (No. 22) where the conduct and character of that person is mentioned, and further that I believe the cause of the hostility of Mr. Jackson to the Executive Government arose from his being refused a quantity of Land, on account of his improper conduct.

I have the honour to be, My Lord, with great respect,
Your most obedient and most humble servant
FRANCIS GORE

SIR,—Your Excellency having intimated a wish that I would avail myself of any good opportunity to communicate to Mr. Thorpe the Information I had received from Mr. Cooke before I left England, I took advantage of the receipt of the letter from him to expose myself to an interview, which otherwise from various considerations I should have avoided. WM. DUMMER POWELL.

Substance of what passed at an Interview with Mr. Thorpe on Wednesday, 22nd October.

After commonplace inquiries and answers on the subject of my son, I told Mr. Thorpe that before I left England, I had learned from Mr. Bond that he was superseded, that a few days before my departure, Mr. Cooke under Secretary of State had communicated to me part of his (Mr. Thorpe's) letter to Sir George Shee, and his (Mr. Cooke's) private letter in answer, communicating his Majesty's pleasure that he should be removed from his situation in this Province. That having observed in Mr. T.'s letter to the Secretary a hint that his embarrassments might prevent him from leaving the Province, I thought it might be serviceable to him to be acquainted with the event of his correspondence with the Secretary of State's Office, before the arrival of the Attorney General with the Official Dispatches should hint about his dismissal and expose his person either in the Lower Province or the U. S. in any attempt to get to England. I added that Mr. Cooke had told him that Ld. Castlereagh would notwithstanding endeavour to do something for him, if Mr. T. put it in his power by proper conduct. Mr. T. received this Information without surprize, as if it was not new to him, but added that Mr. Wyatt had assured him that the consideration of the business was postponed. That he could not be removed without a hearing before the Privy Council. I then mentioned that Mr. Cooke's letter would inform him that the measure had been adopted on his own communication, the violence and indiscretion of which left no alternative but to remove him or the whole Executive Government of the Province. Mr. T. then said it was artfully done by Ld. Castlereagh to take the measure upon himself and save Mr. Gore the odium of a suspension, and that he was not sorry for it in one respect as it might screen him and the wretches about him from the indignation of the people. He then asked me if I knew what was meant by proper conduct for him, that he had done nothing but by direction from the Secretary of State and if it was expected that he should vary from his charges against the Council here, it was in vain what then could he do? I answered that the purport of the expression appeared to me a caution to receive his dismissal with discretion and rely upon his friends in Europe to do something for him, and I thought if he would in confidence ask the Lieut. Governor for leave of absence before the measure became public, he would obtain it and the means of conveying himself to Europe. He said that he would never do. I observed that I was sorry to see so much irritation occasioned by the newspaper publications. He answered that the people were driven to the measure of a country paper; that he himself had twice sent communications to the Gazette, which the printer rejected, as he said, by order from Mr. Halton the Lieutenant Governor's Secretary; that such circumstances and the gross abuse by the Government press of certain Individuals, specifying Mr. Willcocks had induced the Establishment of another. Mr. T. repeatedly asked me what he could do to meet the expectation of the Minister; that if he was dismissed for obeying his orders it was highly unjust and that as he had advanced nothing but Truth, he should never depart from it; that he found from Mr. Wyatt that the ground assigned for suspending him and the only one dwelt upon here (Disobedience of Orders) was not even made an article of complaint to the Secretary of State and repeated that he could not be dismissed unheard. On leaving me he said that he should see me again in a manner which led me to suppose he would reconsider the advice to ask leave of absence.

ADDRESS BY JUDGE THORPE TO THE FREEHOLDERS OF YORK, &C.

To the Freeholders of the East Riding of the County of York and of the Counties of Durham and Simcoe.

GENTLEMEN,—When you called on me to represent you in Parliament, I answered that if you placed me in the House of Assembly, I would discharge my duty faithfully; but I am now hurried to England, from the most insidious misrepresentation of my conduct having induced the Secretary of State to signify his Majesty's pleasure to suspend me from my judicial situation in this Province. However the noble Lord at the head of the Colonial Department, is actuated by the highest sentiments of honour, and the strictest principles of justice; therefore truth, like the divine rod of Aaron, will quickly overcome the machinations of the Magicians.

Though wretched, even to agony, whilst under the slightest imputation, yet your welfare, your happiness and the prosperity of the Province, shall engage my attention and animate my exertions. The objects dearest to me in life, I leave behind—that which is dearer than Life (my Honour) I hasten to defend; but if it pleases the Almighty to favour and protect me, my return shall be as rapid as my departure was unexpected.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your obliged, obedient and very humble servant
ROBERT THORPE.

NIAGARA NOV. 2, 1807.

No. 35.—JUDGE THORPE TO SIR GEORGE SHEE.

DEAR SIR GEORGE,—You would pity from your heart the greatest enemy you had, could you but see him in my situation, surrounded by the vilest miscreants on earth, who have gorged themselves on the plunder of every Department, and squeezed every Dollar out of the wretched Inhabitants, who have long stunted the growth of the province and have now driven it to the verge of ruin; they have put up and put down whom they pleased, & now their whole force is set against me, but I will do my duty to England, to the Colony, to your patronage & to the recommendation of that departed friend that sent me to your care, tho' I sacrifice my life, my wife & my helpless children. The miscreants contend for monopolizing one hundred thousand a year from England, which they hope to enjoy, until they lose the Province. I contend for saving that sum to England, for preserving the Province, & making it valuable to Gt. Britain, yet I wonder at my own perseverance, for I have continued representing in vain. I stated how necessary it was to have a sensible steady gentleman at the head of this Government, and there comes out a violent, raspy, selfsufficient Major of Horse, with all the ideas of Military subordination, and fully persuaded he can force down the people and reign absolute. The shopkeepers that have surrounded him from Halifax to Quebec, to Montreal, to Kington, to York, to Niagara, all flatter and infuse this, it is the food of vanity, and it is the support of their own power and rapacity, he does not reflect on the distance from England, and the contiguity to the States of America, that we have no oppressed country or oppressed farmers, but that every man lives on his own estate, & is independent tho' without a Dollar, that they are a hardy experienced set of men, that there is no passage to this country for troops, but up a River narrow, shallow & rapid. I also made every representation against Mr. Scott's being chief Justice yet, because he was the Attorney to the merchants in Lower Canada, they made every exertion and by their friend & protector Sir W. Grant, the Master of the Rolls, Ld. Castlereagh is prevailed on to place him at the head of the King's Bench and now the only step wanted is to give him the Chancery, as then the property of half the inhabitants will be sacrificed to the Merchants. stated that Mr. McGill had been the chief cause of discontent amongst every ord of persons from his conduct as Inspector General; yet this is the man who direc everything, and follows up the old system with oppressive violence, and these ma are perfectly inefficient for business or exertion; one was lately a preacher, the othe a carpenter, they are supported and support the Storekeeper Aristocracy, that is sufficient, and, could I submit to say, plunder, prosper and may the province perish I would be esteemed a little god. I have said all that I could say, and shall only trouble you with one letter more, which I will send after the House of Assembly is prorogued. Mr. Wyatt the Surveyor General is going home, he can give you a full and true statement of everything, he is a most honourable and steady Gentleman, the Governor was mean enough to set a trap for him in his own office, then he pro ceeded to bully him, and concluded by asking his pardon. I must now proceed to give you some more hints of his character and conduct, the Election of which I informed you in my last was delayed even longer than the Law permitted, the Lt. Governor & Storekeepers with all their force against the people, every species of undue influence, bribery, coercion and oppression, was used by them, the Lt. Governo himself demeaned by trying to seduce both high & low. I never asked a vote, I never left my house, they brought me to the hustings, the Election lasted a week, I was returned by an amazing majority (altho' I requested the people from a distance & the aged might be prevented from coming) the people returned in triumph execrating the Governor, in truth there never was such unconstitutional and such illegal proceedings experienced before. In my last letter I enclosed you an addres to me from the London District, and my answer which that extorted, the Lt. Gov ernor thought he would induce the Grand Jury to recant and he had them calle together for the purpose and I now send you their reply to him, which enraged him so much that he sent them word if they did not recant they should lose their half pa (for they are mostly old officers) but this did not avail for they said they would sooner go to labour and hew in the forest; this will let you a little into his conduct & also (with the Home District address which I enclose) into some of the grievance of the people. But even the Agricultural Society, which I have laboured to promot as the means of promoting the culture of Hemp and doing an infinity of good h is at this moment privately trying to overturn. The Liberty of the press he ha destroyed, nothing can be printed without his Secretary's leave, but everythin violent to enrage the people is printed, as you will see by enclosed address from the candidate Mr. Gough (which the Secretary sent) and the reply from Electors whic he refused to be printed, but this is little to what is done, even power dares approach the King's Bench; but I must refer you to Mr. Wyatt & not trespass long on your time. This Province looks to Mr. Windham for redress, and if he does no do it quickly all is lost; I only beg and pray to be placed where I can be useful.

I have the honour to be
Your ever obliged
ROBT. THORPE.

P.S. I enclose a letter I have just received from Capt. Brant, which will shew little of the Indian attachment to the Government. The Indian Department enrich some Individuals and to dissatisfy the Nation.

I have this moment heard there are emissaries out to rise the people, that som advantage may be taken of it for misrepresentation, and I believe it, because I kno them to be only capable of vicious cunning.

No. 1.—Grand Jury, London District to Lieut. Governor Gore.

(p. 40.)

To His Excellency Francis Gore Esq. Lieut. Governor of the Province of Upp Canada &c. &c. &c.

We the Grand Jury of the District of London sworn at the late assizes holde in this District, in compliance with your Excellency's request in a letter to our for man, have assembled and beg leave to state the following acts, being the particular ones alluded to in that part of our address to Mr. Justice Thorpe, which your Excellency has been pleased to notice.

The first and most principal thing we had in view, and to which we request to call your Excellency's attention, is the unfortunate situation of these American Loyalists who were prevented from coming to this Province before the year 1798: The precluding them from enjoying the benefit of his Majesty's bounty and the rewards he was graciously pleased to promise them for their Loyalty, sufferings and losses, and which we humbly conceive, was ever his intention to bestow, has occasioned many complaints; and we think they are not without some cause, more especially as the Loyalists were never notified that they must exhibit their claims for Land within any limited time, and as it is conceived and is also the prevailing opinion that this restriction was affected by the Executive Government of this Province, without the immediate direction of His Majesty, and even should the sanction of his Majesty have been obtained for this purpose, we are led to believe, that it was done by a representation made to him, in which the situation of this country and the Loyalists was not truly stated to him. The disagreeable situation in which this restriction has thrown a number of those unfortunate yet deserving class of subjects, your Excellency will easily conceive. And when we inform you that many of them on their arrival here with the most sanguine expectations of meeting the fulfilment of his Majesty's promise, were not able to pay the fees exacted, and consequently were prevented from getting any Land on any terms, were driven to the necessity of labouring upon other people's Land and of settling upon those Government reserves for the possession of which they have no security for a longer time than twenty-one years. Your Excellency, we trust, will conceive with us that the complaint is not without grounds.

The first thing which we beg leave to point out to your Excellency, as a subject which occasioned many complaints and the injustice of which we also conceive, is great, in the mode heretofore practised in suspending certain persons from the U.E. List, whose names had been previously inserted thereon; this in many instances has been done, without giving the person concerned an opportunity of proving that he was entitled to be continued on, upon mere ex parte evidence, or without any evidence at all that the name of the person so suspended had been improperly inserted. This has often occasioned much serious inconvenience and expence to those unfortunate individuals.

Another thing we wish to mention to your Excellency, which has been a cause of complaint is, that many Loyalists and others on applications for Land at an early period, were granted Minutes of Council for a certain quantity under the regulations of six pence per acre, that they were not informed there was any order existing (if any did exist) which compelled them to locate within any limited time, or their Minutes of Council were void, and that they conceived the faith of Government was pledged to them for so much land as they were then allowed to locate on such terms as were therein specified, but from inability to locate immediately for the want of pecuniary means, they went home satisfied that when they should by their industry be enabled to obtain what money was necessary to pay the six pence per acre, they would be allowed to locate the quantity formerly granted; They were told on application for that purpose that they could not act upon the Minutes of Council they then had, and that they must petition Council again and should any land then be granted, they must pay instead of six pence eight pence per acre and this money to be paid within three or four days and before the applicant knew where he could locate his Land. There has been also many applications for leave to locate Land in certain Townships where the applicant resided or wished to settle, but were refused under the pretence that there was no land vacant in those townships, and the applicant obliged to take his land in some distant part of the province, where perhaps it would not be worth the fees to be paid, afterwards the same lots that had been particularly applied for, have been given to some more favoured applicant, and also much other Land in those Townships has been granted to persons who never had seen it, and probably never will, by which means (independent of the partiality) large quantities of Land in this province lie waste, which otherwise would be in a state of cultivation and affording some industrious man subsistence for his family.

The appropriations of certain moneys voted by the Provincial Parliament for the purpose of laying out and improving high ways and roads have afforded another subject of complaint; it is conceived that this money was intended for the community at large and for that purpose it was placed into the hands of the Executive Government, by which it was allowed to be laid out rather for the conveniency and benefit of an individual than for the general good.

We have thus above stated to your Excellency the most prominent Acts that occur to us, and to which we alluded in our address to Mr. Justice Thorpe, feeling and knowing as we do the operation of these acts, induced us to say, what in reality we meant, that we hoped under your Excellency's administration a change of such measures would take place, and that Justice would extend its influence pure and unmixed. Convinced that it was ever the intention of our beloved Sovereign that equal Justice should extend, and that our excellent Constitution should be impartially administered to his subjects of every description, it is with real regret that we find ourselves under the necessity of observing that we are apprehensive those gracious intentions have not in every instance in this Province been strictly adhered to; and we will confidently add, that while one Loyalist is made a partaker of his Majesty's bounty and another precluded from enjoying the least reward for his long and faithful services; another after having been considered a proper subject for his Majesty's promises to extend to, is suddenly and without his knowledge deprived of those benefits which he expected were insured to him; And others after having been promised land on certain terms, without ever being informed there was any other condition annexed to it, are told that the promise had become void, and while one man is refused Land in certain situations under the pretence of there being none vacant, another is allowed whose claims are intrinsically no better to take up those very lands; and that while our public moneys are appropriated to accommodate individuals without regard to the public good, we fear that complaints will continue to exist, and that few can say, "Justice extends its influence pure and unmixed." Deeply impressed ourselves with the most lively sentiments of respect to our Sovereign and sincere attachment to our most excellent Constitution, we feel anxious to see such measures pursued as will tend to conciliate the regard of his Majesty's subjects and strengthen their attachment to the Government.

We beg leave to return our most sincere thanks to Your Excellency for this condescending mark of goodness in thus inviting us to lay before you our grievances with the assurance that they would claim your attention. And we also beg leave to assure Your Excellency that is with real reluctance we trouble you upon subjects of this nature, and that we shall ever avoid doing it, excepting when we think we have complaints that are serious and well grounded.

It is with pleasure we observe that the situation of the Loyalists in this Province has claimed your early attention, and we earnestly entreat Your Excellency's further consideration of that deserving class of subjects who so well merit your humanity and attention.

We are with sentiments of respect

Your Excellency's most obedient Humble Servants.

No. 2.—JOSEPH BRANT TO JUDGE THORPE.

MY DEAR SIR,—I regretted when last at York, the existing circumstance deprived me of the pleasure of seeing you. Since last summer some feeble hope we entertained of having our business concluded here to our satisfaction, as also the want of pecuniary means have caused us to delay making another attempt I

Europe, which we are fully convinced to be the only place from which we can entertain any reason to expect redress. We are now therefore making preparations for the Journey & hope to be able to set off the latter end of next month, it will give us peculiar satisfaction if you may please to favour us with the letters to your friends you were so good as to promise acquainting them with as much as you may think proper, of the treatment you have seen us receive and the apparent impossibility of our receiving satisfaction in this question.

We will either both go or Mr. Norton (Teyoninhikarawen) singly as circumstances may admit, as during the war I ever confided in the good faith and honour of His Majesty's Government I yet feel assured that they will undoubtedly confirm to us what we have received from his Majesty's representative Sir Frederick Haldimand who had been witness to our fidelity as a due reward for our Loyalty and compensation for our Losses.

Sir, I have the honour to be,
Your most obedt. humb. Servt.
JOS. BRANT.

Endorsed. Address to the Lt. Governor from the Home District on his arrival and an answer to the Lt. Governor from the London District on his assembling the Grand Jury again for the purpose of making them recant what they had said in their address to Mr. Thorpe. Also a private letter from Capt. Brant to Mr. Thorpe, these will show some of the grievances the people complain of & the state of the Indians, who are dissatisfied while England expends thousands for them, but the expenditure goes into the pockets of a few individuals.

No. 3.—Judge Thorpe to Lieut. Governor Gore.

Sir,—Since I had the honour of conversing with Your Excellency last, I have anxiously considered if by any mode I could with propriety decline being a member of the House of Assembly, & whether I look to England or the Colonies, I can find no one authority to cover a manifest dereliction of principle. Judges are considered of the utmost consequence in the Legislature for which reason many are created Peers & all Judges have sat in the Commons except such as are constitutionally to attend the Lords to assist when a Court of Justice. I have known a Chancellor of the Exchequer sit in his Court and conduct all the business of finance, the Master of the Rolls, the Judges of the Admiralty & Ecclesiastical Courts, the Chief Justices of Ely, Chester & the Welsh Judges &c. &c. the Judges in Canada and in the other Colonies have constantly sat in the House of Assembly. I do not feel that it can lower my respectability, or familiarize me more to the people. I do not intend to solicit a vote. I never have been among the people. I know very few, not even those who have been most forward in presenting me with addresses and I am satisfied I shall not know one more or less by his voting for or against me. I cannot think myself more a servant of the people or less a servant of the Crown, because I am in the House of Assembly, nor am I more firmly bound to their service from being in the Commons, than I am sworn to their service in being a Judge. I am sure nothing under heaven could induce me to sit a day, if I was required to support any act that might tend to diminish the prerogative of the Crown, or contract the privileges of the people, no one will receive less benefit from such a situation than myself, it must be attended with labour, anxiety & a diminution of my domestic felicity, which is my greatest happiness on Earth, nor will any one benefit more from my holding such a situation than Your Excellency, because I am satisfied you are desirous to fulfil the promise & put in force the beneficient intentions of our Beloved Sovereign to his faithful people of the Province, because I confide in your good intentions to uphold & enforce that constitution so liberally bestowed on this Province, by the British Parliament & because I am convinced it is your sincere determination to endeavour to make this province valuable to Gt. Britain.

Why then should I unnecessarily stain my character by retracting? & relinquish a situation in which I may render service to my King, my Country, your Government, the Province and the People?

The first moment the idea of my being returned was suggested, I hinted it to Mr. Walton from Niagara, but no allusion to an objection was thought of in his answer, I had not landed there an hour, when I was waited on by a deputation from the freeholders (there convened) to request I would be their Representative. I had no time for reflection & replied immediately, that if it was their wish to place me in the House of Assembly, I would discharge my duty faithfully. The German settlement and others have sent the same request, and I have given the same answer. What then would be my situation if I were to recant? That influence I have laboured to obtain for the purpose of doing good would be turned into disgust, the Bench would be thrown into contempt and the Juries would be paramount.

I have endeavoured to live thus long with the preservation of my honour to the highest pinnacle, & it must continue to the last moment of my life; it has diminished my future & lowered my situation, but my children shall be taught to estimate private honour & public virtue as inestimable; it may be all left for me to bequeath or for them to inherit.

I have the honour to be, with the highest respect.

Your Excellency's obedient & very humble servant,

ROBT. THORPE.

No. 4.—Address, Electors of York, Durham and Simcoe.

(p. 87.)

To all whom it may concern.

Whereas a goodly number of Independent Electors for the Counties of York, Durham and Simcoe were convened in the town of York, on the 24th July, 1807, for the grateful purpose of taking into consideration the sufferings of the Honourable Mr. Justice Thorpe, whose situation was represented by many (not his friends) to be very deplorable, and after mature deliberation, thinking it their duty, and feeling perfectly willing to make restitution to the Hon. Judge for the loss he had sustained by yielding to their entreaties and repeated solicitations for him to represent them in the Parliament held in His Majesty's province of Upper Canada; and having thought better to make known the result of the meeting in a unanimous address to the Honourable Judge, wherein they expressed the deepest sorrow for the treatment he had received, the sanguine expectations they cherished in his uprightness and perseverance, and finally solicited him to accept of them what he would have received from Government, had he not condescended to represent them; And whereas, since the said meeting was held for the above benevolent purpose, a number of persons, some of whom are electors and some not, have taken upon them to say and publish, that they do not believe after strict enquiry, that such a meeting was ever held; and if it were, then it was a private illegal one. Therefore we the subscribers, being free and independent electors of the said Counties, who were present, do positively aver, that there was such meeting at the time and for the purpose as above stated, and that the address to the Hon. Mr. Justice Thorpe did there pass in the form and manner published; and we who were not presently do firmly believe that a meeting at the time and for the purpose above mentioned was held by his Majesty's Loyal, free and independent Electors; and being pleased and well satisfied with the address which passed at said meeting, do give our hearty concurrence, in confirmation of which we have hereunto set our names.

May God ever bless his Majesty King George the Third, and prosper his loyal subjects in all their lawful undertakings.

(p. 100.)

Whereas we have well known that certain persons in office have been busily employed for near three weeks in prevailing on various descriptions of people to sign a paper purporting their disbelief of a meeting held by independent Freeholders of York, Durham and Simcoe on the 24th of July at Hoyle's Tavern, York, to address the Hon. Mr. Thorpe; this paper we paid little attention to then, because we were satisfied the public perfectly understood the object and motive with which it was carried about; however, as we now find the contents of that paper have been published in the York Gazette, under the authority of the High Constable Mr. E. Hale; we feel ourselves called on, as Chairman and Secretary to the meeting, to declare there was not only one, but two meetings, the first held at Yonge street, the second in York; That the principal object of the Freeholders was concealment of their intention from the Judge until the object was carried into effect; and to call only such to the meeting as could contribute without injury to themselves or families; And we do further declare that the Freeholders were willing to have their names published with the address, but on the Secretary's waiting on the Judge with a copy the day before it was presented, the Judge himself requested the names might not appear, as he said "too many had already suffered for declaring their attachment to him." However, we now find it is the wish of those who did sign then, and of others who could not attend at that time, but have since signed, to have all the names published, and we shall send them accordingly by the first safe opportunity for insertion in the Upper Canada Guardian.

No. 36.—JUDGE THORPE TO SIR GEORGE SHEE.

Dear Sir,—The meeting of the Legislature is now over, and it becomes necessary to inform you once more of the state of this Province, but as this letter will contain every thing not already mentioned, I hope it will be the last I shall be obliged to trouble you with.

After the people had forced me into the House of Assembly, they told me their grievances 1st that the Executive Council would not account for the money raised by Taxes, 2. That the proclamations by which they were brought here were not attended to by the Executive Council, 3. That the Land was given partially, Fees taken and laid on according to pleasure & the money never accounted for. 4. That their Representatives were all bribed with the Crown Land and that they had a petition for the King now ready. I promised to do all I could mildly here and that I would write to you warmly, on condition of their giving up the petition for some time, which they agreed to do. These complaints I must explain. By the 14th of the King, C 88, a Tax of £1. 16s. was laid on Tavern Licenses, and all moneys arising from this the Executive have taken and appropriated without accounting to Parliament, again by the aforesaid Act and by the 15th of the King, C 40, duties are laid on Rum, Brandy &c. &c. coming into the port of Quebec, now by an Act of this province, 41 of the King C 5 similar duties are laid on the same articles coming into this province from the United States, this also the Executive Government contend is raised under British Acts, and take to themselves without accounting for any of it to the House of Assembly here; by the 18th of the King C 12 Gt. Britain generously gave up all right to taxing the Colonies except where necessary for the regulation of commerce, & then the produce arising from such Tax was to be applied to the use of the Colony in like manner as moneys raised by the House of Assembly; this Statute is recited in the 31st of the King, C 31, which gave the Constitution to the province; at the passing of which Act Mr. Pitt said it was the intention to bestow the British Constitution on the province because it was the best in the world and would therefore leave nothing to be envied from our neighbours, and Mr. Fox with his usual great political wisdom at the same time declared "that would reconcile him to any imperfection in the Bill as to give such a Constitution & conciliate the affections of the people, was the only mode by which England could restrain such distant Colonies" yet in defiance of all this, the Government to retain the control over a pitiful thousand a year (which they could as easily control through the House of Assembly) will continue the system which lost the States of America, until they have brought this fine country to the verge of a similar situation. I grieve to the Heart to see this weak, passionate, self-sufficient Governor bred in the Army, surrounded by a few half-pay Captains, men of the lowest origin with every American prejudice and every idea of military subjection, and directed by half a dozen storekeepers, men who have amassed wealth by the plunder of England, by the Indian Department and every other useless Department, by a Monopoly of Trade and extortion on the people; this shopkeeper aristocracy who are linked from Halifax to the Mississippi, boast that their interest is so great in England that they made Mr. Scott (their old Attorney) Chief Justice by their advocate Sir Wm. Grant, that they will keep Lt. Governor Gore in his place, drive me away, and hold the people in subjection; but these rapacious, ignorant men never reflect that the inhabitants of this province, tho' lately poor, & accustomed to subjection are now independent, and ready to turn on their oppressors, they do not consider that altho' by giving the Crown Lands to the Members of the House of Assembly they keep things quiet for a little, yet that it is adding fuel to the fire, which may keep down the blaze for a little, but will cause it to rage with greater violence hereafter; When the Committee on the public accounts reported that the Executive had not accounted for the money raised as I have before stated I begged that the whole might be referred to Mr. Windham and was convinced that the province would abide by his determination, but nothing like conciliating would answer, a majority was secured & the accounts set aside for a year; thus they imagine they may go on opening and closing their wounds annually; I was anxious something should be done for the Loyalists and Military Claimants & moved the address which I enclose, yet mild and respectful as you will find it nothing could induce the Government to do any thing that could harmonize the people. I endeavoured to get an Act for making great & good Roads, but by various manœuvres that was frustrated; every attempt of mine to promote Agriculture, or encourage the culture of Hemp is defeated, in short every thing must rest with Mr. Windham, and how he may be misled by misrepresentations I know not, but this I well know; that every exertion that this great body of Traders can make by interest, malice & falsehood to depreciate me in Mr. Windham's mind will be tried, but I have too high an opinion of him to suppose I will not be heard, I know my own integrity, I know how laboriously I have done my duty, I know the truth of the representations I have made & I know my attachment to the interest of England; but if Mr. Windham not satisfied I am ready to cross the Atlantic to convince him, or if he is convinced that the old system is a safe & good one, let him remove me before the storm begins, I am ready to go anywhere with my large & helpless family, altho' I could make double my salary at the Bar & altho' the people would subscribe to any amount to keep me here, & in the House of Assembly, yet I say send me anywhere, and in any station, where I can render any service, I will undertake it cheerfully.

Mr. Wyatt because he is a gentleman of high honour, and strict integrity has been driven from this, to him I refer you for truth.

I know how much your time must be taken up by the War, I know how little you can give to the Colonies, but in pity to the wretched and oppressed situation in which I stand, with even two lines to express what your wishes are with respect to the Colony & myself.

I am most truly, Dear Sir, your very grateful

ROBT. THORPE.

York, Upper Canada.

March 12, 1807

I have before stated the value of this province by encouraging the cultivation of Hemp & paying proper attention to Lumber; I have shewn how every expense could be taken from England, & am ready to convince Mr. Windham one hundred thousand a year may be saved if the interest of shopkeepers (who have kept this province in a wilderness for the cultivation of their own pockets) should not prevail; besides if the inhabitants had the advantages the Royal proclamation promised and also the Constitution which the British Parliament intended the Americans would soon envy this province, whereas our best subjects now envy them.

Enclosure.

Address of the Legislative Assembly to Lieut. Governor Gore.

(p. 121.)

May it please Your Excellency,—

We His Majesty's dutiful & loyal subjects the Commons of Upper Canada in parliament assembled are highly gratified by your attention to those truly deserving persons who joined the Royal Standard of the United Empire, previous to the year 1783. With great delight we also reflect on your humane desire to alleviate the misery of their unfortunate children, but regret to learn that instructions from His Majesty's late Ministers have prevented your liberal intentions being carried to their utmost extent, such instructions we are confident must have been obtained by misrepresenting the condition of these meritorious subjects, and also from misunderstanding the political state of this province.

We therefore beg leave to assure you that great injustice has taken place with regard to these loyal people & the utmost injury to the people at large. But with pleasure we declare our confidence in Your Excellency, & rely on your making such representations as will induce our munificent Sovereign to withdraw restriction, suffering recompense to rest on claim and reward on desert. Thus His Majesty's bounty will be granted in its fullest extent, & your benevolence gratified in extending to merit its remuneration & and to the province happiness and tranquillity.

We are also anxious to impress on Your Excellency's mind the distressing situation of the military claimants, who from fatuitous circumstances and accumulated misfortune have not been able to come within the Royal proclamation, or derive any benefit from the promised reward which induced them to settle in this province.

These brave men after enduring such toil and danger as have entailed the infirmities of age before they had passed the acme of Youth, these brave men whom the foe could not subdue now in decrepitude & poverty sink vanquished by neglect.

But we feel assured that your beneficent exertions will be equally extended t these unfortunate sufferers; restriction being removed you will hold the scales o justice & by balancing merit with reward, will leave complaint without support diffuse universal satisfaction throughout your Government.

No. 37.—JOSEPH WILLCOCKS TO MR. WINDHAM.

YORK, UPPER CANADA,
1st Ap. 1807.

SIR,—I was High Sheriff of the Home District of this province and believe n one can charge me with the slightest neglect of duty. I had my Commission unde the Great Seal of the province, and received one hundred a year from the Treasur of England, yet without any fault charged, or any reason assigned I have been di missed. I could procure the most honourable testimony of my loyalty to m Sovereign, and my attachment to Great Britain, together with the signatures o hundreds to satisfy you of my attention in my Office, but the irritated state of th Province is such from the arbitrary conduct of the Government that I consider it m duty to remain perfectly quiet, and rest on your wisdom, justice and humanity tha when a new Lieutenant Governor is appointed you will desire him to examine int my case and determine according to my desert.

The great body of people seem to be impressed with an idea that you are apprize of the state of the Province, Your great political knowledge, your talents an private virtues are as well known here as in London and anxiously awaiting you determination tranquillity is preserved.

I have the Honour to be, Sir, with every possible respect,
Your Obedient Humble servant
J. WILLCOCKS.

No. 38.—JUDGE THORPE TO SIR GEORGE SHEE.

DEAR SIR,—Conscious of the excess of business in which you are involved I wa in hopes that all trouble from me was over, but on oppression's head oppressio accumulate so quickly it is unavoidable.

My letters had for a long time been opened or suppressed at last on the Pos masters delivering me one with many enclosures before several persons, I remarke that I supposed it had been opened, & on pressing it a little together drew from th side all the letters & on putting them back asked him to account for it, he replied h could not as it had passed many offices before it came to his; in a few days I wro him the following note: "Sir, I sent twelve shillings, the amount of your demand & I hereby give you notice for your own and for the information of the other pos masters or Deputies, that if I receive any more letters opened, or can prove that an more are suppressed, I will give directions that such proceedings shall be commence against you as the Law directs." Now for this kind & quiet step to find o where the fault lay, the Lieut. Governor had me indicted, he wrote to his learne Solicitor General for a Law opinion on it, who informed him, it was a libel & at th Court of Oyer & Terminer, the Grand Jury were prepared to find it, & a little befo the Court broke up, that it might hang over me for six months. Some of the jur were amazed at its being a libel, but the Soliciter was sent for, and he informed the it was; a friend sent for me, I went instantly to Court where I exposed it to o wise Chief Justice, & desired him to crush it, & not suffer the country to be agitat by such an ignorant wicked production. He applied to the Solicitor who instant declared before the public (altho' what had passed in the Grand Jury Room was to & altho' the Indictment appeared in the writing of his clerk) that he knew nothi about it & beg'd for time; the Court gave him till next day, at which time red he could not go into it, & the Court was adjourned for near three weeks, efore it was to meet a nolle prosequi was entered and that after inflaming the try & attempting to degrade me, they have completely exposed their own isness, & rendered themselves if possible more contemptible than before; I got a copy of the Indictment but I fear to keep up the irritation that prevails gst this faction, by trying an action for a malicious prosecution.

The Lt. Governor has dismissed the Sheriff and Gaoler, without any one fault, at is the consequence? Why the people say every thing is prepared to pack a & that no man's life is safe; the printer turned out, driven mad & put into and every soul that was intimate with me is persecuted, in short I think it my to acquaint Mr. Windham that under the system Lt. Governor Gore proceeds rovince must continue not only useless, but burdensome to Gt. Britain for a & on the first disagreement with the States it will be lost, and also Mr. Gore rivately abandoned and so publicly impolite and profuse, that he has rendered lf contemptible, & is utterly unfit for the Government; these things, & every I have before written, I am ready to prove at the Bar of the Council in London, ded I could be allowed a small sum for witnesses, as I am so poor from twice ring a very large family, that I could not bring even myself to England: I am persuaded of his misrepresentations of me, for he is so capable of falsehood, e has invented conversations for me, of which I never uttered a word, & with ns to whom I never spoke a syllable, but as for myself, I defy him & all the . I have done my duty, not only most strictly, but have also given the highest action and, unless it is become a crime, neither to consider my own trouble or st, tho' in difficulty as to my property, & four thousand miles from my friends, innocent of every charge the utmost malice could produce. My letters from rst moment I came here to Mr. Cooke & yourself will explain my motives for g any part: I found a wretched faction aggrandizing themselves & ruining the nce, a Council that had no right to act made a President without right; the promise refused the people, & the British Constitution denied the Colony; the il heaped land on themselves & favourites in the best places, & almost without while the people could not get land in the worst places, without exorbitant laid on without law, every useless Department kept up, & every expence on nd continued because the money went thro' this faction the province was com- y neglected because the people were to be kept in poverty and subjection, laint was prevented from going to England, because the members of the House embly were bribed with the Crown Lands, but I saw the people ripened into endence against every opposition & that they would not much longer submit. the great value of the Province in the Fur trade, in hemp, in flour, in lumber, w no power that could hold it, but by giving the people a secure root in the nd leaving them nothing to envy in their neighbours; in truth I saw that by ing the inhabitants all the privileges Gt. Britain intended, they must be the nviable & the happiest people on earth, which would render them not only to England, but a promising instrument of attaching many of the Northern of America once more to Gt. Britain. I therefore could not relinquish my o England, in the moment of her glorious struggle for liberty against French tism altho' by so doing I might have had any land, any power, & every servile ion these wretches could heap on me; but Mr. Gore for whom I had prepared ay to every comfort & every popularity to render great advantage to England, te prosperity to the Province, & eternal fame to himself, has preferred being rvient to this faction, supporting all their power & augmenting their oppression n a stipulation of their supporting him with the Ministry in England, & to ete this, every engine here & every interest in England is exerted to crush ress me, & as for falsehood & calumny the whole set are incapable of any else, but if ever I get an opportunity of exposing them before the King & il (for here I dare not let out what I have in my mind from the state of the nce) neither the annals of Tacitus, nor the verses of Cicero, shall be found to ce any wretches, or any system more despicable or oppressive.

ord North found when too late that the false accounts of Governors & misrepre- ions of the independence, determination & resources of the people lost the United States, but if Mr. Windham wishes to continue Mr. Gore as Lt. Governor he can easily remove me, & I will most willingly determine never to engage in politics, & let him only send me where I can render service in any line & trust me I will do it.

Mr. Russell the Receiver General is old & very ill, therefore Mr. Windham can completely renovate this place, he can easily give a judicious Governor & a new Council; for Mr. Grant wants to retire, Mr. Shaw to get on half pay, & Mr. Baby should go out, as he does not attend his duty, & if Mr. Wyatt returns, Mr. Stanley points out & a sensible man as Receiver General all may go well.

I am dear Sir, your persecuted, grateful & truly obliged
ROBERT THORPE.

York 22nd April 1807.

P.S. The Americans have made a great exertion to destroy our Fur Trade. I have given Mr. Wyatt & the British Consul at New York a scheme to defeat them; if you think it feasible you will recommend it to be adopted. I will undertake to have it executed without one guinea expence, & without more Waste Land than is improperly given to corrupt the House of Assembly one session. I am sure you must acknowledge I do not slumber at my post, whether you allow me to watch well or uselessly.

No. 39.—JUDGE THORPE TO THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

York, Upper Canada July 12th, 1807.

As I know not who is Secretary of State for the Colonial Department, I must avoid any particular address, but to the honour, the feeling and justice of whoever may fill that important situation I am forced to appeal, and I shall make it, without any effort to induce any other person to interest or influence him because I am satisfied he will be above being biased by the strict line of justice, by the power, connexion or interest of any person. Lieutenant Governor Gore, without attempting to charge me with any fault, without having the boldness to suspend me from my office (by which I would have had an appeal to the King and Council) has dared to interfere with me in the discharge of my duty, and at the moment I am sitting in the King's Bench as a Judge, a letter comes to the Chief Justice desiring him to arrange the Circuit as he had given directions to have me left out of the Commission of Assize; with great respect I beg leave to say that neither his Commission nor the Royal Instructions, have armed him with authority thus to interfere with my duty, thus to insult me & others to rob me of two hundred pds, but what can justify an act which will produce universal discontent which will resound throughout the Provinces, and ring across the Atlantic until it awakens justice at the gate of St James's, if you do not interfere strongly, this is what I have long dreaded, for eight months I have prevented the people from sending a petition to the King, because I know the misery that often follows from the people taking a part, & because I know that the American people consider that if their remonstrance is not attended to that they are justifiable in revolt, under these circumstances when the Chief Justice informed me that I would get leave of absence I told him I dare not go, because I knew the convulsion it would cause; I implore you to interfere not only for the sake of England & the province, but for the cause of humanity, you have full statements from me do something to harmonize the people, tell me what you wish me to do & if you desire that I should go from this I will try to retire without irritating the public mind; at the same time I declare that Mr. Gore is perfectly incapable of governing this province, he is weak, passionate, arbitrary & self sufficient to uphold the power he assumes, he descends to the most injustifiable means, has the lowest agents, does the most oppressive things, interferes most presumptuously, is prodigal in promise & reward to effect his purpose, & appears to have no regard to truth even in conversation; he thinks (because he shes it) that the people can still be deceived & kept down, but it is insanity, they member the Royal promise by proclamation, they know what the British Parliament gave them by Statute, they have passed over the weight of toil are now independent and will enforce their right: I have given the fullest information to the ecretary of State's Office, I have laboriously discharged my duty, I have sacrificed very comfort, I have disregarded every advantage the Government here could estow & I have suffered every oppression they could inflict, which extended almost o the deprivation even of bread from my family, for the purpose of preserving ranquillity, of preventing petitions & of holding them attached to England, by giving very assurance that their grievances would be redressed without remonstrance or elay.

I know how your time must be engrossed by the war, and by the Colonies of apparently greater importance, but I beseech you to consider for an hour about this distracted Country; let any one examine my representations from 1805 every word of which (& much more) I am ready to prove, see how they hang together, examine Mr. Wyatt & Mr. Jackson who have lately gone from this, then look into Mr. Gore's misrepresentations & if there remains a single doubt call on me for proof. I hope in my composition I have no revenge, I shall not seek to bring forward charges unless you desire it. I do not wish to remain here or take any part but as you desire. You will observe by what insensible degrees I have been led into my present situation and you may judge how happy I would be to get relieved. I declare to God in a charge to a Jury, or in any other shape, from the Bench, I never uttered a word of politics or made the slightest allusion to the Government, then how can this attack be palliated, but what may I not expect when even my letters were opened and suppressed in the Lt. Governor's Office.

This faction is capable of anything, I think they will assassinate me. I have a wife, a sister and seven small children, four thousand miles from friends; in their misery do not forsake them.

I have the honour to be, Your Obedt. Servant
ROBERT THORPE.

Excuse much of this. I write it in hurry & wretchedness.

P.S. On Circuit I never go into any person's house, I know very few, and except once, I went to examine the communication from Lake Simcoe to Lake Ontario, I never was ten miles from home, the people only know me from my public conduct, and voluntarily they have offered a tribute of approbation in every Court I ever presided— this is my crime.

No. 40.—LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE TO GEORGE WATSON.

UPPER CANADA 29th July, 1807.

MY DEAR MR. WATSON,—I cannot sufficiently thank you for your kind and friendly letter of the 14th of April last, which I received on my return from Lake Huron, after a most delightful tour of about five hundred miles. Perhaps I may send you my journal, but if I do, it must be on condition that you do not print it.

Thank you for the admirable letters you enclosed, they brought every circumstance of a late transaction clearly before me, and the author merits the esteem of every honest and independent Englishman. I should like to know if all the Talents have reply'd to them. if they have do not forget me.

As you have touched on the political situation in this Province, it gives me an opening to state some particular circumstances to you, which will I am convinced prove to you, that I am and have been placed in an embarrassing situation. I mentioned in my former letters, that the opposition to the Government was headed by Mr. Justice Thorpe, and it appears in your last letter that you are apprehensive I may allow my feelings to hurry me beyond the line of prudence. Unassisted as I am, I hope my conduct will appear moderate. You will have seen my dispatch to Mr. Windham (No. 20) giving that Minister a narrative of Mr. Thorpe's conduct and proceedings since his arrival in this Province, accompanied by some very strong documents. In that dispatch I state, having resisted the advice of some of the most respectable persons, who urged me to suspend Mr. T. from the exercise of his functions as a Judge. I have I think done my duty, in representing the conduct of this Gentleman and it now rests with the Ministers, either to support the established Government or permit Mr. T. to erect an independent Republic, indeed if those representations are not attended to, I know not what I can urge to attract the notice of His Majesty's Colonial Ministers. Do not imagine that I can suffer a Faction to provoke me to a personal controversy, altho' every attempt has been made (since Mr. T. found I was determined to support the Executive Government) by the most infamous and disgusting calumnies being propagated, to injure my public and private character. I have treated them with the contempt they deserve. I shall affect to look upon them with indifference, but they shall be narrowly watched, and when the blow is ready to fall, it shall not be administered with a light hand.

I have enclosed you the copy of an anonymous letter received from New York. As these kind of letters are seldom to be much regarded, I had thrown it aside; indeed it occurred to me that it was a trick of Mr. Thorpe's party to urge me to some step, of which they might take the advantage. The last mail has put me in possession of the author's name, (a merchant of much respectability at New York) who has promised to continue his information. I have in consequence sent a confidential person to New York, who from his connexions there, I hope will be enabled to get an introduction to Emmett and Cheetham, and if any seditious or treasonable correspondence exist, I think that person will get at it.

Mr. Wyatt who drove me to the unpleasant step of suspending him from the office of Surveyor General, handed a paper about at New York which stated from the tyranny and oppression of this Government, the Colony was on the eve of a revolt. I am in expectation of receiving the particulars of Mr. Wyatt's conduct when in America from Mr. Barclay the Consul.

I have thought it expedient to direct that Mr. Thorpe's name should be omitted in the Commission of Assize about to be issued; in adopting this measure I have consulted the peace and welfare of the province. Surely no one could approve of my allowing Mr. T. to have another opportunity of disseminating his wicked and inflammatory doctrines from the sacred seat of Justice. When he has called upon a Jury to interfere in the Government of the Country by opening his address from the Bench with "The fifteen years disgraceful administration in this Province, calls loudly for your consideration." It reminds me of the passage in the Bible: "To your tents O Israel." This worthy Judge is involved in Law Suits, in one instance he had the modesty to leave the Bench to plead his cause at the Bar. I have enclosed you the copy of a letter from Mr. T. to our poor devil of a Chief Justice, which I have requested him to treat with contempt. This letter is a fresh proof, if any were wanting, that he considers the exercise of his functions as a Judge, a matter only of secondary consideration. His first and great duty it seems is to thwart and attempt to control the Executive Government, and if, as he has the effrontery to assert, almost in plain terms, he was sent out with direction so to do, he has indeed done his duty strictly and laboriously. I should here observe that Mr. Thorpe has impressed the belief on the public mind, that he received positive directions from our friend Cooke, to watch the proceedings of the Executive Government, and to transmit monthly to the Secretary of State an account of the situation of the province. Although I am convinced of the absurdity and falsehoods of such statements, yet it is difficult to undeceive the public, and I wish Cooke would contradict his impudent lies, or at least permit me to do so in his name. Cooke is possessed of too much good sense to confide in a person whose character he was unacquainted with.

I have given you too much of Upper Canada politics, but I am anxious that you should know what I am about, as I have no doubt you have your fears, that my warmth or stupidity may drive me into errors.

Tell Cooke (in confidence) that our Chief Justice finds himself so much out of his way, by having engaged in political controversies, that I know he would resign on his being secured £5 or £600 a year. Mr. Scott is an honourable, good man, but so extremely timid both on the Bench and in his political capacity that he never decides. You may easily conceive some of my difficulties, when I inform you that I have been obliged to write to Mr. Allcock for an opinion on a Provincial Act.

Write to me freely, you know how much I stand in need of advice and assistance. When you see Lord and Lady Camden offer my very best respects to them. Tell Lord C. that Captain Givins arrived here in May, and I have found in him a most useful and intelligent Officer.

Remember me to Cooke, and Believe me

My Dear Watson
Aff. Yours
F. GORE.

The anonymous letter, copy of which was enclosed, is enclosure 8 of No. 33, of this note (Gore to Castlereagh). The foot notes are in the copy sent to Watson, pp. 230 to 234, and are added in the copy at No. 8 of No. 33.

No. 41.—JUDGE THORPE TO SECRETARY OF STATE.

York, Upper Canada
August 14th, 1807.

Under the present system of arbitrary oppression all my letters are stopped and opened, & those from me intercepted, so that I neither know who is Secretary of State or whether my appeal to his justice will ever be received.

When I was first informed the Lieutenant Governor had directed my name to be omitted in the Commission of Assize, I wrote indignantly on the instant, I feel lowered at being so roused, pray pardon any unpremeditated warmth of expression. I enclose an address which was presented to me from the freeholders of the adjacent counties with six hundred dollars; in the present disturbed state of the public mind & at the moment of threatened trouble to soothe and conciliate I was obliged to pledge myself in my answer that redress was rapidly approaching.

When I was first sent to America, I was desired to give every information I could obtain to the Secretary of State. I was indefatigable in research. I viewed the magnitude of British North America from Newfoundland to Nootka Sound, from the North Pole to latitude forty, I considered its physical & political advantages I found it capable of being made the greatest Empire in the world. I beheld her with a bosom of plenty in youthful luxuriance, nurturing her venerable parent & I rejoiced for my Country; I then turned my mind to the minute considerations of the Colony in which I was placed, I strove to cherish what was in infancy, Fur, Flour & Potash, & to bring forth what was in Embryo, Iron, Hemp & Lumber, & while I laboured to increase her value, I pointed out the mode of lessening her expence to Great Britain; I then contemplated her danger, her distance from England, her contiguity to the American States, her internal resources & the disposition of her people. I perceived there was no security, but from the unanimity and affection of the Inhabitants and found her radically insecure, because the people were disaffected to the Government, yet England had every good disposition to make her prosperous & happy, with every thing enviable on Earth to bestow in a rich soil & temperate climate, she directed land to be given under the most honourable tenure, she ordered the law & constitution of England to be administered. She sent utensils and provisions for those who had suffered from their attachment to the Empire, she gave establishments and protection without expence; all, without rents, rates, tythes or taxation, lastly she invited settlers from the States to increase population and participate these blessings; here was liberal reward & political wisdom in the extreme, but reasoned in administering; the officers in the land granting Department from avariciousness to obtain some paltry fees, threw every difficulty in the way of the loyalist and invited Settler, because by proclamation they were promised land without fees; those whom they could not frustrate were sent to a distance in the wilderness unless they were favourites, or convenient subservient men, the valuable parts were granted in large tracts to themselves, to complying members of the House of Assembly, to those who could pay fees, or to any who would be serviceable in the basest projects, in short the Crown Lands were bartered so openly for private emolument & public corruption, that the people were disgusted, the Constitution they so fondly looked for was withheld, the public money was not accounted for before the House of Assembly, and they concluded it was embezzled by the servants of the Crown, they heard Gen. Hunter had sent near thirty thousand pound to England, they saw this Lieut. Governor endeavouring to frustrate the verdict of an honest Jury, & openly endeavouring to overturn the freedom of Election, making the worthiest men victims, not only to their votes but even to their supposed inclinations; add to this the exertion and oppression of the Shopkeeper Aristocracy who rule British North America with a rod of iron, a voracious set, who are linked from Newfoundland to the Mississippi, with great interest in England, & even protegés in power, every man on his arrival becomes their debtor, and lest he should ever get extricated, they make every effort to defeat any project that might bring forth the energies of the people, they are universally the Magistrates & enforce the demands of each other, they make every exertion to make any expence in England from being curtailed, because every disbursement passes through their hands and finally becomes their acquisition, the land & produce is at their mercy, but when the people saw them made the friends, companions & advisers of the Lt. Governor, with everything at the command of the upstart wretches whom they had lately known in the most despicable situations, they were ready for revolt, the cup of bitterness was full, & looked to a rupture with America as joy; in many places they have met & trained on the Anniversary day of American Independence as they were accustomed to act on the King's birthday & they behold the Americans building forts, & embodying their Militia on the opposite side of the St. Lawrence as a preparation for the dissolution of their bondage. My letters to the Secretary will shew how long & how fully I have represented the state of this Province, & the causes which gave rise to this universal dissatisfaction, they will prove for what reasons & by what insensible degrees I have been brought forward, I have detailed every act, every thought, they are documents to prove my principles and my investigations, but nothing can shew you the wicked & despicable attempts that have been made to oppress and drive me from every principle of duty & force me into their destructive faction. I fear much evidence from the Eastern part of the Province on account of my not going Circuit, altho' I never was there the people fancied they would find satisfaction from my conduct, as the other parts of the Colony where I had presided had taught them to expect, and surely this was no time for the Lt. Governor to rouse indignation by shewing his puerile enmity to a man who never had done him an Injury? but who laboured to prepossess the public with the most favourable idea of him even before he arrived, until the violence, the ignorance, & the meanness of his conduct forced me to give him up. I know he has no regard to truth, & that he is capable of employing the vilest tool to say & swear to any calumny; I am satisfied that my opinions on the unnecessary expence that is heaped on England, the illegality of fees, the land jobbing, & the arbitrary system that is pursued, has raised me a host of foes; but I defy all the world to lay any crime to my charge, either in my public or private conduct, but that I am poor, & that neither myself or wife (from being reared in the lap of affluence) understand the management of money, & at the same time I will pledge myself to prove the truth of every line I have ever written to your Department, & justify everything I have ever done or said, in or about the Province, and should it ever be my good fortune to go before the King & Council, I will lay open such a scene of depredation, oppression & vicious conduct as must naturally have incensed the people & that the system I have ever proposed is the only one to harmonize & conciliate the people, to preserve the Province, prevent its being burdensome render it valuable to Great Britain. One step more & I have done. We are on the verge of what I have often depicted & long feared, yet in this desperate state I would pledge my life to satisfy every grief and unite almost every being in a fixed determination to preserve in the

h water it could be easily done were the hearts of the people more animated in cause, for they love England and her Government, but they feel themselves mpled on by those they despise, they find themselves defrauded of the Royal omise which they know was intended to be fulfilled; they see that neither the itish Law or Constitution is administered to them & that where they expected to freemen they are treated like slaves.

I enclose you the last address of the Indian Chiefs to the British agent in which u will find they accuse the Executive of embezzling their money, they also desire eir money to be laid out in this Province, but their money being placed in the nglish funds, is the strongest tie to hold them to Great Britain, & my influence is ch with Brant & other Chiefs that I will undertake to reconcile them to the money oing to England, if they are only done justice to in other points. Surely their demands re moderate, & it is only just, wise & politic to grant what will satisfy or conciliate.

The worthy & intelligent Mr. Cooke, when he congratulated me on this appoint-ent, told me it was worth one thousand a year. I could now convince him I do ot receive above six hundred & fifty, & that I have been cheated in two years of hree hundred pounds circuit money; however I must now entreat (as a mark of dispprobation of my being prevented from going Judge of Assize) that you will give irections for the Lt. Governor to issue a warrant for my receiving the money allowed r the Circuit I ought to have gone in my turn it will be justice to me & gratifying o the Province.

Would it be your pleasure to continue the old system, I must pray of you to lace me in any other situation where I may render justice in tranquillity, or serve ngland in any shape, but here where every attempt has been made to deprive my amily even of subsistence, & every indignity has been offered to myself it would be mpossible to remain, but if the system is changed, & a new Governor will make stice the basis of his administration, I can ensure him & the people happiness, armony and prosperity.

I have the honour to be (with great respect)
Your much obliged & obedient humble servant
ROBERT THORPE.

Enclosed.

(p. 262.)

To William Claus Esq Agt. Ind. Affairs &c. &c. &c.

Brother,

You'll excuse us for so often troubling you upon the same subject, but having ately held a Council of our Chiefs on the Grand River on which we were unanimously of our former opinion & resolved that Mr. Penfield should have the grant for the Township originally sold to Philip Stedman, & by P. Stedman to Mr. Hageboom & Hageboom to said Mr. Penfield, Mr. Hageboom having paid us a considerable sum, we should regret that he should lose anything by us, & from a connection between Mr. Penfield & him, we think Mr. Penfield the proper person to have the grant in order that none may be losers, & that the community at large may know that we deem our words sacred & shall always if possible fulfil any bargain we fairly enter into, as we certainly have in the present case with Mr. Daniel Penfield.

Brother,

With respect to the disposal of any moneys that may in future be paid for land sold by us, it is our wish & desire, that the Trustees put out the money in this country, as the interest on the same will commence so much sooner & if so much greater than if sent to England; the propriety of this, experience has taught you, as it is such a length of time before we can reap the least advantage from moneys sent to Europe, & of course considerable losers; for instance, we have lost, or at least have had no account of, the interest of £4,602 Hf. Cy. since the 23rd of May, 1804, & on the sum of upwards of £4,000 H. Cy. since May, 1805, on which we expected interest of six per cent per annum, on a low calculation nine thousand dollars, & instead of receiving six per cent we need only expect four per cent from the English funds. All this we wish the Trustees to take into consideration & to study our interest, as it was for this purpose we nominated them, & not the Executive Council who now alone seem to take the disposal of our moneys on themselves.

Brother,

Having been long in an uncertain state with respect to a Deed for the residue of our lands on the Grand River that has not been patented we wish & seriously request you to let us know how far & whether his Excellency the Lieut. Governor has it in his power to give us relief, if he has it not in his power to confirm it to us by patent we would wish to know so, that we should not attach blame to where there is no right so to do, & that we may then apply elsewhere for a regular deed, or grant for the same. The Chiefs hope that with respect to the Land for which Letters patent have issued by authority, that the Trustees do take immediate steps to carry our intentions and resolutions into effect so that we may be reaping advantages from our sale of them.

Brother,

We again repeat that in justice & equity the Land Block No. 1 is the property of Mr. Daniel Penfield, & it is our desire that the grant to him be completed so soon as possible & that the Trustees do take the proper steps to have the same arranged, as we do not wish by quirks & quibbles of Law to evade doing him equal justice with any Lord of the Land.

Brother,

At the Council lately holden at the Grand River, I was by the Chiefs assembled requested to deliver you this, their address, from their being at this time of the year busily employed at home they could not attend here with me. I have therefore committed the same to writing so that there may be no misunderstanding thereafter.

No. 42.—JOHN MILLS JACKSON TO LORD CASTLEREAGH.

(Canadian Archives, Series Q., Vol. 310, p. 291.)

To the Right Honourable Lord Castlereagh.

Bellevue, Southampton
September 5th, 1807.

My Lord,—I had the honour of Your Lordship's favour of the 29th ulto. for which I beg to return you my thanks. Am afraid it will not be in my power for some time to wait on Your Lordship in London, much as I desire to have a personal communication with Your Lordship relative to transactions which has taken place in His Majesty's province of Upper Canada. I will therefore content myself with relating a few of those grievances which has unhappily produced these effects which are to be apprehended in that country.

On my arrival in York in August 1806, I found much discontent amongst the majority of the people, & some of the Officers of Government complained of the treatment they had experienced from the late Lieutenant Governor. By proclamation those who had served in the British Army in America, during the Revolution were to receive a certain portion of Land in Canada for their services, and who are stiled Military Claimants, numbers of these have been wounded in his Majesty's service, who are now good subjects, but who have never received that compensation promised them by His Majesty, altho' they have made frequent applications, have never been able to procure what they were so justly entitled to, & which was so liberally held out to them by the proclamation at that time.

Also there are numbers of Loyalists, who in consequence of their attachment to the Crown during the American War, having lost their property in the States, & who were by proclamation promised remuneration by a grant of Land in Canada, vast numbers of these with their families are now settled in the Province, but who having been deceived by the Administration in Canada, were obliged to purchase or to locate Lands by paying the Fees, when they ought to have received them as a Bonus from the Crown, free of all charges whatever.

Many also are now in that country being unable to pay the Fees, & who also of Right ought to have possessed Lands are deprived of their claims on the Government, altho' as much entitled to receive them as those who by partiality are in possession of some of the best and most valuable tracts in the Province.

And my Lord, you will be surpris'd when I tell you that vast numbers of those who had claims on the Government from the treatment they experienced & not receiving that compensation, which it was the intention of His Majesty should be allow'd them for their services, have deserted the British Interest, & have settled with their Families in the United States, becoming subjects of a foreign Government to the great injury & loss to the Colony & disadvantage to His Majesty's Interest in the Province.

The dismissal of these who held office under the Government by the present Lieutenant Governor, has tended to create much discontent amongst the People, for it appears their only crime, was their attachment to the Constitution & the Rights of the People, & who were in a laudable opposition to those who were trampling on their liberties, especially on the Freedom of Election, & the choice of the Majority of the Freeholders in the nomination of a Representative to serve them in Parliament, this gave great offence, & has tended much to weaken the Interest of the Government in every district, inasmuch as that at the next general Election which will happen the next year there will be found few to support any measure which His Majesty's Ministers may think proper to recommend. I am well assur'd that the People will send a Petition to the King, when if their grievances are not redress'd it is to be fear'd, very serious evils will be the coasequence, the part which Mr. Gore has taken against a very worthy man & one of the best subjects His Majesty has, & one who holds no less a situation than a Judge of the Court of King's Bench, whose attachment to the King & our excellent constitution, not even Your Lordship is more a friend to. He I understand has also been suspended & I am afraid much misrepresentation has or will reach your Lordship respecting the conduct of some of those to whose exertions the Government are much indebted for the tranquillity which has lately reigned in the province, but which I give you my honour I wou'd not answer for, unless the Government at Home remove the Evil, by convincing the people their grievances shall be redress'd & by the administration of Justice to all, whereby the Inhabitants will find, that their situation has been attended to at Home; by these means the affections of the people in the Colony may be regain'd & infinite advantages must be the result from the exertions of a laborious peasantry, in the cultivation of a soil capable of producing every article beneficial to the Mother Country, especially in the production of great quantities of Hemp & Lumber, articles which are so essentially necessary to the maintenance & existence of our Navy & which I apprehend we shall soon stand in great need of as the Northern ports are now shut against us.

The Liberty of the Press that grand palladium of British Freedom has been shamefully violated in the refusal of the Government in Canada to suffer the majority of the Inhabitants to vindicate their character (I mean in the Home District) from the most foul and malicious misrepresentation, which appeared in the York Gazette, the accusation of Rebels being falsely bestowed upon them in a publication under the Inspection of the Lieutenant Governor & when the public had met to vindicate their character from this unfounded calumny their resolutions were not suffered to be printed, this produced a violent sensation in the minds of the people against the Governor for such an arbitrary proceeding. It will not be amiss here to inform your Lordship that some years ago a vast number of stores of all denominations were sent out by the Government at Home for the use & benefit of the settl the first occupation of the Lands, & when the Government was removed to from Niagara, which were never given to them; these stores are suffered to & which ought to be sold, whereby a sum of money might be raised & which lessen the expenditure of the future year.

I shall now also take the liberty of representing to your Lordship, that siderable sum of money might be sav'd annually to the Mother country, and is now and has been expended in the support of a useless Marine on the Lake, for half the year cannot be navigable on account of the danger attending th and there not being hands sufficient to man them in the Summer, so that th always one in port. This Marine consists of three vessels, a Ship, a Brig Schooner, and which are (excepting the Schooner) of no manner of benefici whatever. I cou'd convince Your Lordship from extracts of some letters th Discontent of the Province has arisen to an alarming height. I beg your Lo will pardon the length of this letter, but the subject is of that magnitude a portance, which I shou'd hope will plead my excuse in taking up so much o Lordship's time.

Some of the Indians settled in the Province and who were our firm all whose services the British Government are much indebted, have much cause o plaint, & which I apprehend will soon be made known to your Lordship.

I conceive by a proper regulation much money undoubtedly might be sa the Mother Country, & by a judicious arrangement the Country would soon, it of a Burthen become of immense value to Great Britain & the Province fr Capability of Improvement wd soon be filled with Inhabitants, who wd defe against the attempts, which no doubt (should a war unhappily break out be Great Britain & the States) would be made to occupy that part of British Am by the armies of the United States, but at present from the disaffection occas by the proceedings of His Majesty's Civil Officers would be easily taken poss of, as it is to be feared the people wou'd not be very warm in the support British Interest & thus wou'd this fine province be an easy conquest to the e which had a proper system been pursued by a strict adherence to the Constit so liberally given them by his present Majesty, might have bid defiance to the U States, the people being well convinced that under the mild and equitable G ment of the British Constitution, no subjects of any Country whatever cou'd more perfect Freedom than those who have the good fortune to have become su of our most gracious Sovereign & who enjoy the most perfect happiness wh benevolent system of that Constitution is adher'd to. The application of (by the Government) rais'd in the Province, without the sanction or vote Commons House of Assembly, has added much to the discontents of the p which your Lordship must allow is the most unconstitutional proceeding that have been adopted & which of course produced much dissatisfaction. I under there is to be a Court of Chancery established in the Province; much mischie arise from an injudicious exertion of its proceedings, at present the Land cann taken by a creditor for debt, & which is a very wise system. For were it othe the Land would get into the possession of a few persons, who wou'd contrive advance of a trifling loan, or probably by some more nefarious proceeding, many of the Land holders in their debt, the consequence wou'd be the Land be mortgag'd for a trifling sum which Mortgage might be foreclos'd property taken out of the possession of the original occupier. The Legislatur the inconvenience of this & did not subject the land to be seized for Debt, intention of the Government was to grant the Lands in proportions of two hu acre lots, whereby the country, from the number of inhabitants wou'd there sooner clear'd and put in a state of cultivation.

My object shall be on my return to Canada to endeavour to render the C as far as may be in my power, beneficial to the Mother Country, for which p previous to my going, I shou'd solicit the honour of an interview with your ship. I now beg leave to subscribe myself,

Your Lordship's most obedient & very humble servant

JOHN MILLS JACKSO

No. 43.—JUDGE THORPE TO EDWARD COOKE.

(Canadian Archives, Series Q., Vol. 310, p. 314.)

YORK, UPPER CANADA,
Sept. 18th, 1807.

DEAR SIR,—A letter from Mr. Stanley (which by accident I received) informed me of your being reinstated with Lord Castlereagh in the Colonial Department. For two years I have considered with sorrow the expence this province entails on England. I have shewn how that might be curtailed and the value of the Colony augmented, with grief I have considered the discontent that prevails, I have stated the causes and pointed out the remedy. Mr. Pitt & Mr. Fox were of opinion that the only mode by which Canada could be retained, was by making it as beneficial to the settler as possible, & by rendering the inhabitants so happy that they should find nothing amongst their neighbours to envy or desire, but all the benevolence and wisdom of England was frustrated, these blessings were not administered. The Royal proclamation promised land, provisions, & utensils, to a few they were given profusely, to the many they were denied & to some extent they were sold; so that British honour was in as much estimation here as Numidian Faith at Rome.

The Minister directed land to be given in soccage tenure, yet the people were almost driven to arms before they could obtain anything but leases. The British Parliament gave the Colony the British Constitution, yet the Executive never would suffer the public money to be accounted for before the House of Assembly and for the pitiful patronage of one thousand a year, the people were deprived of the very object they came to enjoy. The Province adopted the English Law, but the people found that power influenced the decisions of the Courts and defeated the verdict of the juries: In short the liberality of the Crown, the wisdom of Parliament & the system agreed on by the greatest politicians England ever produced, as the only mode by which the province could be retained was all despised & the converse pursued. The few were aggrandized and enriched; the many were to be oppressed and impoverished, every establishment was to be kept up & every expense to England continued because the few were to be benefited, but nothing was to be attempted to improve the province, because the many were to be depressed, the Crown land was to be heaped on the few & withheld from the many, because it would be useless to the few if the many were not driven to purchase. The shadow of the British Constitution was given to the many, and the substance retained for the few, the Law of England was above the consideration of any, but the parties concerned under the consideration of all, the result is what might be expected, the whole body of the inhabitants hail with joy, the threaten'd rupture, that they may fly from perfidy & oppression. I am sick to the heart, I have toil'd & labour'd, my mind has been in continual action, by doing my duty strictly & impartially, I have gained the confidence & the affections of the people, & I will endeavour to retain it, as the only chance for preserving tranquillity. I do not mean to give offence, but my mind is so full I must speak the truth; it may be my last effort. When the people found the Montreal Merchants, through Sir Wm. Grant able to make their Attorney Chief Justice of the Province, the cup of bitterness wanted but one drop to make it overflow, and that was quickly added when Mr. Gore was appointed Lt. Governor, a man whose violent, arbitrary, vindictive, selfsufficient conduct would not have answer'd for the legions of Bengal, & which a boy in an upper form at Eton would have been politician enough to declare ruinous in a Colony only divided by the St. Lawrence from the American States. It may be necessary to inform you that the mighty & favoured few, are composed of half pay officers, that have appointments, & shop keepers, that are Magistrates, these are the extortioners, oppressors, revilers of the people, these are the advisers, companions & friends of Mr. Gore, whose will was to be the Law, not even a vote given but as he desired, and to support this despotism the Crown Land was distributed for every vicious purpose that could be devised & for no one good purpose for which it was intended. Mr. Gore is so weak, so rash & so confident of Lord Castlereagh's protection, that I suspect he would have suspended me, for not assisting him in accelerating the loss of the province; it would have been desirable as I would then have had an opportunity of laying the whole system befo the King and Council, but the province got at last into such a state that I dread being obliged to leave it, & here will I now remain (unless the Secretary orders m away) while it can be held for Gt. Britain. But even twelve months ago if M Pitt's intentions for the Government of this Province had been followed and a digni fied sensible political man sent as Governor with an intelligent liberal active man Chief Justice, this Colony would have armed en masse & defended itself without an expence to England against all the power of America, for it is a wilderness so inte sected with water that nothing could penetrate it; If it was the interest of the peop to defend & Government had their affections to animate, all would be security.

Mr. Gore has gone to London Canada, absolutely abdicated the Province in vi lation of his Commission, without any person being sworn in to administer the Go ernment. As to this place it is not even protected from the Indians, & if there war (which God avert) there will be mischief from these savages, but if the goo sense of both nations should continue peace, and Lord Castlereagh think of sufferin Mr. Gore to remain & his system to be pursued here, I hope he will quickly pla me where I may quietly do my duty. Wherever I may be placed he shall alway find justice and integrity, the standard of my actions and the measure of m ambition.

I have the honour to be with great respect & esteem,
ROBERT THORPE.

P.S. I send you two papers which with other matters already forwarded wi assist in proving the impotent malignity of Mr. Gore's conduct to me, an' his insult ing me (for election purposes) in ordering my name to be omitted in the Commissio of Assize on which I have appealed to the justice of the Secretary of State fo redress, many of the respectable people raised a sum of money, which they presente to me with an address, as a compensation for the sum I should have received b going circuit. Mr. Gore sent forward his sycophants to induce some persons t insinuate that there was no such meeting & sign a paper &c to that effect. Thi being published produced a reply which I think has sufficiently exposed him an his pitiful manœuvre. Since I have written the above I find I cannot procure th paper with the signatures for a few days, but will enclose it in the duplicate.

No. 44.—JUDGE THORPE TO EDWARD COOKE.

(Private.)

Dear Sir,—I lament being obliged to trouble you on my own affairs, but I hav just heard that my bills drawn last January are protested on account of some for being omitted in the Certificate, which never was declared to be necessary until la May. How was I to know anything of this, and the misery it may accumulate o me and my family no one can tell, for it will ruin my credit, and the expence will b very heavy. There will be ten per cent charges, six per cent interest protests an postage, besides three per cent loss on each set of bills by exchange; I never hav received a shilling by any fee, I have been cheated out of three hundred pds Circu Money. I never have had one acre of Land, I am not able to send my children school, for I declare to God in this expensive place without a house or anything my own, I am scarcely able to clothe & support my family, yet I have given up m profession & thought to be happy & affluent in America, yet I toil for ever and becau I will not join with these rapacious oppressive wretches, and ask them for favou I am driven to every difficulty here and annoyance heaped on me from home.

I am Dr. Sir, truly your distressed
ROBT. THORPE.

Sept 20th 1807.

No. 45.—LIEUT. GOVERNOR GORE TO GEORGE WATSON.

YORK, UPPER CANADA
4th October, 1807.

MY DEAR WATSON,—Not having heard from you since the 14th April last, I am most induced to suspect that some of our democratic faction have found means to intercept my letters; however as Mr. Justice Powell is daily expected, I trust my anxiety will be relieved by his arrival, and that I shall have the satisfaction to learn that my friends in England, whom I dearly value and respect are well and happy.

I now avail myself of the opportunity offer'd by a Lieut. Erskine of the 6th Regiment going to England to write to you, and as I consider the conveyance safe, I shall perhaps enter into my situation here, and that of this province more at length, than I should venture to do by the usual mode of communication; leaving it to your discretion to communicate such parts of my letter to our mutual friends, as you may deem prudent, but with this caution, that if my private communications are not made with reserve, they will find their way back to this country.

Soon after the receipt of the anonymous letter (a copy of which I sent to you) from New York, I received information from a merchant of respectability residing there, fully corroborating the statement made by the writer of that letter. In consequence of which, I dispatch'd a confidential agent to the United States, to obtain information and watch the motions of a party formed in this province and connected with United Irishmen in America, to subvert the British Constitution in Canada. This agent has ascertained the connection of Willcocks (Mr. Justice Thorpe's editor) with Emmett and some of the Republicans in New York, but they conduct the affairs with such caution, that it is impossible as yet, to convict any of the parties here.

The venality of the American postmasters made it an easy matter for the agent employ'd to procure a sight of letters address'd to the parties in this Country, although Mr. Thorpe had the precaution to direct all letters for him, to be put under several covers to other people, I received information of his scheme.

The Letters No. 1 and 2 from Mr. Wyatt to Mr. Thorpe and Mr. Baldwin were copied in America and sent to me in cypher. As these letters, however the writer's vanity and folly may appear to you, concern me personally, I transmit them to you, in the confident hope, that I have friends in England, who will not admit of my being beat down by falsehood; because Mr. Wyatt may have interest at Court and with Lord Wellesley. I can conscientiously declare, that I have been actuated by no personal motives. I have had the King's Interest only at Heart, and that I have and ever will contend against Democratic principles.

The newspaper, alluded to in the informations from New York, has commenced its operations, this paper is distributed gratis through the country, the violent abuse of the Government & the personal attacks, are notoriously believed to be the productions of Mr. Justice Thorpe, and altho' every man in the country is convinced in his own mind of the fact & a combination of various circumstances reduce it to a moral certainty, yet we have not proof enough to establish it in a Court of Justice. A series of Letters signed A Loyalist are Mr. T's, who was weak enough before the first of them made its appearance, to shew the manuscript copy to some of his Friends. I fear I cannot procure a series of these papers to send to you, indeed if I could, so much explanation would be necessary to make you understand them, that I have not time by Mr. Erskine to enter into them.

That Mr. Thorpe is supported I have little doubt, his obtaining money from the most suspicious characters justifies me in making this conclusion (No. 3).

Mr. Wyatt's wife was so much alarm'd at the lengths Mr. Thorpe had urged her husband to go to, that she secretly afforded information (No. 4), the information relative to the printer is perfectly correct, Mr. Thorpe having sent many messages by the United Irishman Willcocks, to induce him to leave the service of Government and print for the people, and that his influence wou'd procure him two thousand subscribers. His boast of upsetting the Government of Prince Edward Island he has made to many.

That Government will have reason to repent of not having before now come to a decision relative to that worthy man I have no doubt. In March last, I press'd for instructions but am left entirely to my own discretion. I cannot help feeling this, not as a private character, but for the sake of the King's Government, which by this man and his party, have been constantly held up to the people as wicked, oppressive and contemptible; in this general censure and abuse, are included the administration of Generals Simcoe and Hunter. Altho' Mr. Wyatt states to his friend that Mr. Thorpe is suspended, yet till I receive official notification of this event, I cannot of course notice it. This suspension I fear will not have the desired effect. Mr. T. is deeply in debt and has conducted himself in such a shameful manner towards his creditors, that they are inexorable. I fear he cannot leave the province (to me it is a matter of perfect indifference what becomes of him so that we can be relieved). It is melancholy to reflect, that the fate of this man will be attended by misery and want, such indeed is generally the consequenc and end of the Factious schemes of Demagogues.

If Mr. Thorpe can make his escape from the numerous creditors that are besetting him, I have no doubt of his taking to England an address signed by every disaffected person in the province.

Do not conceive that I am apprehensive as to my own conduct. Whatever representations I have felt it my duty to transmit to the Secretary of State, relative to the conduct of a dangerous Faction in this country; those representations I have accompanied by documents to substantiate my statements. I do not look for the support of Govrent at Home as a matter of favour or Interest. The King's interest shall never be invaded, while I am intrusted with his Commission. I cannot refrain from giving you an anecdote, respecting the Democratic views of Mr. Thorpe and his party—the last interview this worthy Gentleman had with me, was on some agricultural business; on the subject of Hemp we had a long discussion. He then said We (this was before he was in the House of Assembly) shall prepare a Bill for the House of Assembly to dispose of certain Lands and that the moneys arising from these sales should be appropriated by the House to particular purposes. I told Mr. Thorpe that as I considered myself the guardian of the King's property, that the Democratic part of the Constitution should never, while I had the honour to administer the Government, assume a power that the Constitution had not invested it with. During Mr. President Grant's Administration, this party urged the House of Assembly to the most unconstitutional assumption of power, even impressing on their minds that they were paramount in the Government. You need not be surprized that when two officers of the Crown hold such language, that ignorant men may be deceived (No. 5). During the last Session, notwithstanding Mr. Thorpe's violent opposition every measure was carried that I wished. I took care that the House of Assembly should be made acquainted with my determination to resist them, if they attempted to assume to themselves improper authority.

If Mr. T. returns to England, I wish Cooke wou'd put a few leading questions to him, whether he caus'd the addresses and answers from the Juries to be inserted in the newspapers. I wish Cooke to put this question to him, as if he supposed they got into the papers without his knowledge. I have Mr. Thorpe's letters now in my possession ordering these addresses to be presented.

I now must beg of you to write to me freely & give me your opinion, and notwithstanding every point I wish may by this time be adjusted in England, I wish for your opinion, and if possible for others who are friends to both of us, it may be of real benefit to me by guiding me, if hereafter I should have to contend with similar cases of difficulty.

Respecting Mr. Wyatt's suspension, I did certainly regret that there was a necessity of my being forced by him to take such a step. His positive resistance of authority, left no option for me. It was a trial of strength between the parties—that is the Government and Messrs Thorpe & Wyatt.

You will perceive by Mr. Wyatt's last letter, that he is anxious to make it appear that he is not connected with Mr. Thorpe in an opposition to the authority of Government. The plan that Mr. T. proposed to Wyatt, was to prosecute me in England nd a Middlesex Jury would amply repay, for which purpose I conceive he is exerting himself, and his great Interests to procure copies of my dispatches.

Should any of the events which have been passing in Upper Canada be mentioned to Lord Camden, I am sure he will put the most favourable construction he can on the part I have been obliged to take; you know how much I respect his opinion, and that I am ever anxious to conduct myself in such a manner, as not to forfeit his friendship.

I have so little time, that I cannot enter into our relative situations with the United States; excepting from the newspapers I have little information, and you will hear with astonishment that neither Mr. President Dunn nor myself have received any communications from our Minister at Washington.

The Indians are decidedly in favour of the British and I have been under considerable apprehensions of their taking up the Hatchet against the Long Knives (Americans). I have instructed the Superintendents to restrain them, at the same time to conciliate them as much as possible. I can assure you that these Gentlemen are no insignificant allies.

Mrs. Gore is quite well, notwithstanding we have had a very sickly season. An Influenza has spread over the whole Continent of America, and frequently terminating in a dangerous fever.

General Moreau some time since wish'd to visit the falls of Niagara, and sounded some gentlemen at New York, as to the chance of my permitting him to do so. Should he now make his appearance I shall send him to England, it is generally supposed that he is intriguing with Mr. Jefferson.

I hope to hear a good account of all the Arlington Street family. I have not written to Lord C. lately. I really am afraid of appearing too intrusive. I have every reason on earth to be grateful to Lord C. and however anxious I am to get to the Lower Province (but Halifax above all should a vacancy happen) yet I cannot write to him on the subject.

What is become of our Attorney General, he was to have left England in June. Conceive to yourself how I am situated at present, the Chief Justice in the Circuit, no Attorney General, from the illness of two of our Counsellers I cannot have even the advice and assistance of the Executive Council, and surrounded by Factious characters, taking every advantage of the weakness of the Government.

Notwithstanding all my embarrassments I am well & happy, and I fear from the length of this letter, you will regret I had not a touch of the gout in my right hand.

Adieu my Dear Watson, Affy Yours

F. G.

(Separate.) Whatever I have written in the accompanying sheets, I mean that you shall consider for me, and if you think the whole or any part worth communicating to any of our friends, of course you will use your discretion. I do not like to talk of myself, but I am sure you will believe me, when I solemnly assure you, that I have not exaggerated any one thing, that I have resisted the advice and wishes of every man of property in U. C. by not having long since suspended Mr. Thorpe. The Merchants at Montreal and this place wanted to bring his swindling transactions before me, which I have resisted because it should not be supposed I had any sort of interference with his private transactions, however wicked they may be.

Do not think I forget my friend George, indeed I hear so seldom from you, that I know not what he is doing. If ever I see him again, he will make me feel old. I wish to God I could get a seat near you on the Excise Bench. Of my situation here I do not like to write all I think. Sedition is gaining ground faster than I apprehended. Mr. T's agents are over the Country getting signatures to addresses two months after such addresses were supposed to be presented to him; in short I am in most awkward and embarrassing situation; at present I have no one to advise with. Lose no time in exerting yourself to get me out of this province, I even wish some other person might be sent who the administration may have a good opinion of.

I think it would be possible to get me to Quebec, anything would be better, for all my trouble and anxiety of mind to do what is right, I have nothing to compensate me, no society & my income not adequate to the situation.

I hope Cherry F's affairs are settl'd and that the House of Farquhar are as well and happy as we wish them.

Adieu my dear W.

No. 1.—C. B. Wyatt to Judge Thorpe.

(p. 344.)

Dublin May 19th.

My Dear Sir,—At the time I left Upper Canada, I had little idea of visiting Halifax or this place; my passage from the United States has been unavoidably tardy and expensive. I however took every precaution which I conceived best calculated to prevent any decision on the part of Ministers, unfavourable to the object of my undertaking, by letters to my friends which appear to have succeeded. I arrived in London yesterday week, found my Father absent &c. and my Brother on whose Judgment and Interference you know I much depend, starting for sweet Ireland; he has at present the situation of private Secretary to Sir Arthur Wellesley, who is Chief Secretary of State; my Brother has had an Interview with Lords Castlereagh, Sidmouth, Wellesley and other great men, who promised me every Justice. I am therefore inclined to think, there can be no doubt of my success, the former is Secretary of State in Windham's place, to whom I can get free access, I am persuaded, thro' various channels, on the best footing I could wish. Lord Wellesley who received three messages from His Majesty at the time of the late charges, calling him to the office of prime Minister, two of which from motives of delicacy his Lordship rejected. The third he complied with, was actually appointed, had appointed my Brother his Secretary but afterwards resign'd. It is equally understood that he is to come into administration, as that it is his intention so to do, and has promised my Brother to engage your friend Cooke (1) now Under Secretary of State, with whom he is particularly friendly and intimate, in my interests; Mr. Henry Wellesley has also promised to exert himself for our success; he is one of the Secretarys of the Treasury: I am therefore of opinion, that I command together with my Father's Intimacy with the Duke of Portland and connections at Court, a hearing upon as good grounds as we (2) could wish, and I think you will not think me too sanguine, acquainted as you are with the politicks of Upper Canada, in an idea entertained of being able to raise sufficient Interest to secure an honourable triumph in the cause in which some of us are engag'd. I am now re-iding with my Brother in a very handsome and spacious apartment in the Castle of Dublin for the purpose of communicating to him the matter I possess in support of the conduct both of yourself and me, as connected with the mutual interests of Upper Canada and England, and fixing in cooperation with him and I trust Sir Thomas Featherston the best plan for me to pursue. I thought it best so to do, particularly as I apprehend no injury to the cause, by a short delay upon my part. I send you a copy of my letter to Sir Thomas F. who I am determined to rouse into activity as well as a sketch of the plan I mean to pursue, that you may anticipate the victory. I am persuaded we must succeed, and even aspire to some favourable changes for yourself and me. I believe Mr. Stanley has gone to the Prince of Wales's Island (4). If I am not too late, I shall endeavour to provide a good Attorney General in his place. When my Brother had last an interview with Lord Castlereagh upon my business, Lord Castlereagh told him in the course of conversation that he had just referred a large mass of papers to the Chancellor which conceive must probably have been relative to the establishment of a Court of Equity, so much requir'd in Upper Canada (5). I shall make every possible exertion for your Interest in that arrangement, you may rest assured, as well as upon every occasion when I have an opportunity from the official documents I have already shewn to my Brother, relative to Upper Canada, and what I have been able to state upon the same subject, he seems to think with me, that some characters of distinction, with whom I am engaged damned Rascals, and that nothing but mismanagement can endanger my cause. cannot be difficult for me to shew, the fatal effects of the continuance of the etched system that prevails in the American Colonies (6) and that the Interests Individuals and the public have been sacrificed indiscriminately at the shrine of rbitrary Imposition, and of mistaken power. I shall, you may depend, exhibit a illiant (7) picture, shewing how the intentions of Government, the beneficient romise of the Sovereign, has been sacrificed with respect to the Loyalists and oldiers who have served in the war, with regard to the Implements of Agriculture rovided for their use, how that business has been abus'd (8), the abuses in the larine and Indian Departments, the dissatisfaction of the Five Nations, the Infringeent on the Freedom of Election, the approach of power in the Courts of Justice; he London Address, while private Interest has been regarded. With regard to our Weekes's affairs I am fearful from the agitated state of my mind at the time I uitted Upper Canada, I might not have attended so much to that concern, as I hould otherwise have done. I beg the favour of you to consult Baldwin upon the ubject, and if there is any sum due from me to the Estate (10) which he cannot rovide for, either with the money of mine in Mosley's hands, or by other means et him draw upon me for the amount, and I should be obliged to you if you will comunicate with Mackay, or whoever is the proper authority relative to the disposal f the House, Library &c., which I am of opinion should be sold. It is not my ntention at this time to write you a long letter & shall therefore only add, that ith regard to the frantic and unaccountable behaviour of Mrs. W., his wife, the erturbation of my mind at the time of my leaving U.C. will be more convinced han I can describe its effect, and indeed I am only now begining to hope, that the mproprieties and the memory of the past will stand contrasted with an opposite ne of conduct and with the felicity of future engagements. I beg you will remember e kindly to Mrs. G., and the rest of that family. Write me by an early opportunity. shall now beg leave to draw your attention to the accompanying memorandum, ntended to guide my statement to Lord Sidmouth and many other high persons in his Country. The preamble of that paper is intended to be deliver'd in the form f a speech. The following charges and effects, I flatter myself I can most disinctly prove without difficulty and if I am not sufficiently led into your case, by hat is there exhibited, you may depend all matters relative to yourself shall be ircumstantial (11), all I shall ask of your friends will be to state their knowledge, s a man of abilities, Integrity and honour which Mr. Sneyd was induc'd to think ill be desired. I have fallen in with him by chance in this place, making a point f communicating to him everything in a most candid manner, he thinks well of the ause and will do all he can. Lord Ross, late Sir L. Parsons, is expected here ourly, I intend to obtain his influence, if possible, in short I can venture to give ou cheerful hopes I see my way so clearly. God bless you, you shall hear again rom me soon and tell Mrs. G., her letters I deliver'd myself in Dublin. Dr. Richardon was very civil to me, to whose care Miss —— letter was addressed. I am very nxious to see all again in health and happiness; you will probably shew this comunication to Baldwin & his family, they are worthy good people, and you may tell im that if it is in my power to serve him (12) (he had little to expect from Lord arleton) he may depend on my not forgetting to exert myself for his benefit. ourself, Baldwin, his family (but one) J. W.(13) one or two more and Sam Ridout feel the warmest interest in the welfare of. I am enjoying my Bottle in my rother's department, solus, over this scrap, the least I can do therefore is to take humper in remembrance of the worthy part of the community I have left behind me in U. C. God bless you. Adieu for the present.

Believe me &c. &c.

(The papers alluded to were not enclosed.)

Remarks on the preceding Letter.

(p. 342.)

No. 1. Is Cooke a friend of Mr. Thorpe's? I do not believe it.

2. Mr. Wyatt speaks in the plural, you must observe in both the letters. How evidently it appears that he is engaged with a Faction to harass and embarrass the Government.

3. Interest and not Justice, according to Mr. Wyatt's argument, is to obtain the triumph over the Government here.

4. I should suppose from the paragraph that Mr. Wyatt is one of the Secretaries of State.

5. I wish Mr. Wyatt wou'd extend his patronage to me.

6. It appears from this paragraph that not only the system that prevails in Upper Canada is wrong, but in the whole of the American Colonies.

7. This young man is very modest; it puts me in mind of a puppet show. Now you shall see &c.

8. Infamous calumnies that cannot be substantiated.

10. A pretty transaction of Mr. W. as an executor, and for which there are several suits already instituted.

11. Very necessary indeed.

12. More patronage, Mr. Wyatt.

13. J. W. is Joseph Willcocks, an United Irishman, who fled from Thomas Street, got on in Upper Canada as a clerk to the Receiver General, was turn'd out by him. Was a sort of upper servant afterwards to Mr. Allcock, who to provide for him got him appointed Sheriff. Was displaced by me and is now the Editor of the Jacobin paper, for which Mr. Thorpe writes.

NOTE. I am ashamed of myself for sending so much nonsense, but I wish you to be made acquainted with the people I have to deal with.

No. 2.—MR. WYATT TO MR. BALDWIN.

LONDON, FOLEY PLACE,
June 15th, 1807.

DEAR BALDWIN (1),—Since my arrival in this country from Upper Canada, I have been so much engag'd for the success of the controversy with the Government of that province, that I have been unable to attend to other matters of less importance, first I thought it advisable to see my Brother with whom I had chiefly communicated upon subjects alluded to during my residence abroad, whom I found was in Dublin, as Secretary to Sir Arthur Wellesley the Chief Secretary in that Establishment. I therefore set off per mail for Holyhead and was absent with my Brother in Ireland. Since my return I have been strongly recommended to the favourable notice of Lord Castlereagh and the Under Secretary of State in his Department where I have the satisfaction to acquaint you for the information of our friends I have very free access. I had a few days since a long conference in person with Lord Castlereagh upon the subject of the accusation made by the Colonial Government in Upper Canada against Mr. Thorpe & myself and others. I suppose I sat with him nearly two hours. His Lordship's conduct I was much pleased with, tho' he certainly seem'd to favour the Provincial Government which from the tenour of Governor Gore's injurious misrepresentation (2), I was not at all surprised at.

Lord Castlereagh read me very fully those statements and among the rest I perceived Mr. Boulton (3) exhibited as an informer. Lord Castlereagh read to me a written communication from that distinguished character, for the purpose of enabling Governor Gore to state that Thorpe had made positive proposals to the Solicitor General to oppose the Executive Government on the spot, as Mr. Boulton's letter stated he did upon which communication I cou'd not omit to make some personal remarks and Lord Castlereagh has at my request permitted me to furnish him with a written statement of Facts (4). I however think it advisable to hang back for a while for the purpose of obtaining thro' the highest Interest I can make, a copy of the charges made against me by Governor Gore, which I do not hesitate to say are most scandalously false, and when I possess them in such a shape as to preclude the possibility of the Government abroad retreating, I shall take the accusa-ons separately--from my knowledge of them I am confident I shall be able to fute in the most decided manner, the whole of them. If any body on your side he Water will assist me and speak the truth, I shall have the victory. For your nformation I shall acquaint you with the charges made against me by the Governnent of Upper Canada. That my principles are defective as a loyal subject. That I dismiss'd Mr. Ridout because he voted for Mr. Thorpe (5). That I erased the name of a person from a plan in the Surveyor General's Office and inserted my own fraudulently for the purpose of getting a favourable location of land, for which I obtained the Deed (6) and that I voluntarily carried my Books to the Provincial Parliament without a summons, for the purpose of exposing the Executive Government (7). With regard to the first accusation it is in general terms only from the manner in which I have been treated as well as the people under me, which I shall have it in my power to shew, alluding to poor Hambly (8) and Stagman who was drowned in the Speedy &c. &c. &c. I shall render it at least probable that the unbecoming (9) opposition has been on the part of His Majesty's Representatives towards me, not as they have stated, to be disaffected, and in general averse to His Majesty's Representative and his measures.

With regard to the second charge, there can be no difficulty as Mr. Ridout had resign'd, a month before the unhappy event occurr'd which occasioned the election, on which occasion Thorpe was a candidate (10), and I have a copy of my letter to Governor Gore dated a month before the Election in question requiring for certain reasons therein specified that Mr. Ridout might be dismiss'd my Office and Mr. Jackson (11) can prove much on this subject.

With regard to the third charge, my letter to you, desiring the matter might be put in arbitration, my letter also to Mr. Clench (11), (who I am much astonish'd at) offering to relinquish my Title in favour of his friend, if really he had any claim, which to this hour I believe he had not, and Jackson having been with me, & Mr. Addison, to Mr. Young, for the purpose of enquiring of him particulars when I told Mr. Young in presence of these Gentlemen that he had no occasion to make himself uneasy about the land if he had any right to possess it, that I would not oppose him a moment. Mr. Young I believe never register'd his claim which by the bye, I wish you would obtain a certificate of, from the Office of the Register of the County in which the lot in question is situated, and send it to me, or did Young ever claim before the Commissioners instituted for such claims to be brought forward, or ever ask for that particular lot of the most consequence to him at the Surveyor General's Office, while he has actually located in that Office 200 acres of land, more than he had ever any order of Council to cover, and with regard to the charge, the Journal of the Provincial Parliament will shew and render me acquitted of that accusation.

The unquestionable grounds of Opposition to me on the part of Government of Upper Canada (12), is my Intimacy and Friendship for Thorpe (13), which in Justification of my steady perseverance against most strenuous exertions of the Government of Upper Canada to induce me to join a combination the most which has been formed by a sett of monopolizing miscreants, whose just merits we know how to estimate, to interrupt his laudable zealous and able exertions to administer Justice in the true spirit of British jurisprudence and assisting Government in ameliorating the conditions of all orders of Society, the highly improbable [sic] Upper Canada. Thorpe to my entire satisfaction & positive knowledge, as far as I have had an opportunity to observe, has uniformly distinguish'd himself as a sound lawyer, a zealous patriot, a loyal subject, and amiable moral character.

Dissatisfaction neither originates in him or me, but is the natural result of a partial and defective administration.

Thorpe's strenuous efforts since his arrival in Upper Canada have been directed to the reformation of Injuries and abuses, and by a steady adherence to the line of his positive duty it is not difficult to suppose such a man should be look'd up to by an oppressed populace, as a Father, and that his exertions should be repaid by a tribute of gratitude and esteem amongst the people of that province, wherein previously to his time, but little of the mild and benevolent spirit of English Law

Jurisprudence has been experienced (13 bis). Under such a system of malvasation as has been adopted, it is not at all surprizing, that the upright and philanthropic Intentions of Thorpe and a few more should have excited the Jealousy, Indignation & Malevolence of the Executive authority upon the spot. I am positive from the experience of two years, that no just grounds of accusation whatever exist against Thorpe either as a public or private character. That Thorpe is not less able than zealous in the Discharge of his Judicial Duties, that he possesses no disposition to oppose the due authority of Government, That he is justly desirous, as I am, of preventing a flagrant and criminal abuse of power and that his anxiety is exclusively directed to the happiness of the people, and the benefit of Upper Canada, as connected with Great Britain.

Thorpe is suspended by Government at Home (14), almost as a matter of course, which as my mouth is easily to be stopped, should I enter upon his case, by the question of "What his affairs concern me"? And besides that such an interference might be construed as a confirmation of our being in a League, which is not the case, for the purpose of opposing the due authority of the legitimate authorities.

It therefore appears to me, that it is of consequence to Thorpe's Interest, That he should come immediately, which I am sorry to suggest, because I know it is a measure that must be attended with a great annoyance to himself and family. If he has not left Upper Canada by the time this may reach you, shew my letter to him, and urge him to do so. I am very confident we may yet triumph with his assistance on the spot.

Sir Thomas Featherston has been with Lord Castlereagh and Mr. Cooke in his behalf, but is not sufficiently master of the Colonial affairs, to advocate Thorpe's cause decidedly, and I am afraid evil consequences might result, if I was to appear too forward. He must come. Every thing depends upon it, and if he should think it advisable to leave Mrs. Thorpe and his amiable family, their good sense and your kind attention (15) will I am sure induce them to submit: I wish sincerely he could bring them all with him, but the expense will be very considerable. I shall endeavour to arrange so, that the Government will assist him in the Expense of his passage to England if possible.

With regard to my own affairs, I shall not make them a subject of communication by this opportunity, and I shall esteem it a favour, if you will contrive to procure, and send me as soon as possible, a copy of the Proclamation of the Governor of Upper Canada dated 21st August '95, relative to Tickets and Certificates of Location, to be delivered as therein prescribed, which may be requisite against Young. I also request you would also assist me, by enabling me to prove by the testimony of respectable evidences, that after Governor Gore thought fit to suspend me, he did not hesitate to make favourable mention of my character to various persons upon the spot (17). I am sure Mr. Russell, to whom as well as Miss Russell, I beg you will kindly remember me, told me that Governor Gore had spoken to him of me in the handsomest manner, so did Mr. Jarvis and Small also. If you could get from Jarvis a confirmation to this effect and from the opinion I have formed of his high sense of honour, I am persuaded he will readily afford it, would enable me to show to the Government at Home the probability of Governor Gore's contrary Opinion express'd in his charge to the Minister in this country, being more the result of malevolence (18) and Falsehood than Truth.

Governor Gore's conduct in this business has been most shameful, and I do not despair causing him a passage across the Atlantic. You may however think that in making my assertions I can prove so & so, in support of myself & Thorpe.

I will certainly avoid mentioning the name of any of you abroad, who comfort or interest may be affected by such an exposure, until the result of my assertion shall be made known to me.

Lord Castlereagh has already assur'd Lord Wellesley that justice shall be done That my reputation shall have the fairest consideration here, and That all it contains against the Provincial Government shall be put to the proof in Upper Canada, which last advantage I shall beg to point out the measure by which it shall be done, as tho' at present Lord Castlereagh seems to side against me, when he has my statement, if I can prove, as I assert I can, Facts in my favour, his judgment would alter.

I am managing to get the Governor as much convicted as possible, before I begin my defence, which I am persuaded will demonstrate Facts, to which I allude in the clearest and most unanswerable form, with regard to my giving up no names of persons, until the result of my assertions shall be known to me, I mean that before the statement I may make shall be admitted as proof, in the event of my substantiating it, I will withhold names for the purposes I have mentioned.

Governor Gore has mention'd that I was unable to manage my office, and that I left it in the greatest confusion, in which I believe, unless Chewett and Ridout join Governor Gore he will be unsupported (19).

Sam Ridout is an honourable fellow, and from the good opinion I entertain of his ability & strict Integrity, I should be very happy to do him any service in my power. Shew him the state of affairs to which this letter alludes & consult him how far I may reckon on his support. If I should wish to consult him, which I do not know I shall have occasion to do, nor do I intend it for his sake; he may however privately in your confidence, assist in directing the enquiry of certain official matters, to which I may refer, in the Surveyor General's Office, and I wish particularly you would obtain from him, and other persons, information relative to names having been often removed from the plans in the Surveyor General's Office in favour of certain persons (20). It occurs to me, that a lot given by the President Grant to Allan, a lot also given to Chief Justice Allcock formerly located by one Cozens, and there was some lot, in similar circumstances, given by General Hunter to Mr. Chewitt; it will answer my purpose, if you will only furnish me with sufficient information, to state the circumstances of those cases, as tho' I was possess'd of that knowledge from my official capacity upon the spot in Upper Canada, which will I am sure prove there is nothing irregular in putting one person's name on the map in lieu of another, when no difficulty appears, and give me every [help] which may occur to you as being useful in a cause, you know as well as I do from the best of motives. We all think alike of the oppressive ruinous measures of a certain clan in Upper Canada; and it is the common cause. We are all well wishers to, to assist in defeating their tyranny & base misrepresentations of those who do not deserve such treatment (21). I will never desert the good cause while I live, or any worthy fellow of my friends in Upper Canada.

I shall upon all occasions you may rest assur'd feel the warmest impulse to promote the interests of yourself, Sam Ridout, the Sheriff &c. &c. and those objects will be uppermost in my thoughts.

I find there is an opportunity for your part of the world tomorrow, which obliges me to close this letter, rather abruptly. In the meantime I beg my kindest remembrance to Mrs. Baldwin, Mr. & Mrs. Willcocks and the rest of their worthy family, as well as to all friends, tell Lawyer Stewart that he shall hear from me soon relative to the business I have to do for him in England & believe me to be my dear sir,

Your faithful friend & obedient servant,

C. B. WYATT.

If there are any claims against me, which I do not suppose there can, or you require any money, draw upon me and ascertain what Young has to show, either in writing or otherwise, for his claim to lot 161 &c. &c. Pray write me without delay affording me all the aid you can to defeat the Rascally attempts of certain personages, which I am confident I shall ultimately do. God bless you, and I wish you would send me a written statement from the Receiver General showing what sums have been paid by him to D. W. Smith as Surveyor General since the month of June 1784,* to the time of my arrival in Upper Canada. I heard of a case where the land of Harriston some where up Yonge Street were given to Colonel Ryerson,

*D. W. Smith was appointed Surveyor General of Upper Canada in 1792, with the pay of a sub-surveyor, the appointment having been made by Simcoe, subject to the King's decision. See Smith's Journal, Series C., Vol. 77, p. 44. The date—1784—is probably an error for 1794.

knowing the former to have improved the same, relative to which I request you will send me particulars. I think this case will shew oppression, and will be useful against Young.

REMARKS ON THE FOREGOING LETTER.

(p. 352.)

(1). An Irishman, ready to join any party to make confusion.

(2). The representations are facts, disobedience of a positive order from the Lt. Gov., denying his authority &c. &c. &c.

(3). Mr. Boulton is Solicitor General, & during the absence of the Attorney General acts as such.

Everybody who presumes to oppose the wicked plans of Mr. Thorpe and Mr. Wyatt are stygmatized by these Gentlemen, as Rascals & Lyars. Mr. B. was the friend of Mr. W. for about a year, but from W's violent conduct, he was obliged to give up the acquaintance.

(4). Mr. Wyatt was advised by Mr. Thorpe to prosecute me on my arrival in England, for suspending him, assuring him that a Middlesex Jury would amply repay Mr. W. I conceive it is for this purpose Mr. W. will exert himself to procure official copies of my dispatches.

(5). Mr. Wyatt here betrays himself. I never did state that he dismissed Mr. Ridout for voting for Mr. Thorpe, altho' it is notoriously believed it was for that offence, as the attempt at dismissal was made the morning after Mr. Ridout voted.

(6). This is easily proved.

(7). This is proved by a letter from the Clerk of the House of Assembly to my Secretary.

(8). Hambly's account cou'd not be passed the audit, for want of vouchers.

(9). This is a new case to me; the Governments unbecoming opposition to one of its servants requires no comment.

(10). Mr. Ridout from the ill usage he recd. from Mr. W. wish'd to leave the office. But when he found I protected him from ill usage and wish'd him to continue in the office, that the Public Business might not be at a stand, he comply'd.

(11). This Mr. Jackson is a seditious character, who in the public streets reminded the people of Charles the 1st's fate &c. &c.

(12). Mr. Church declar'd to me that Mr. Wyatt was a swindling Rascal. All this business can be easily proved.

A Surveyor General whose peculiar duty it is to prevent frauds, is the first to eraze the name of a person from the plan in his office & insert his own. Does this circumstance require any further remark?

(12). Opposition on the part of Govern't. to the Surveyor General!!!

(13). In two or three private audiences I permitted Mr. Wyatt to have with me, I certainly endeavoured to point out to him in as forcible a manner as I possibly could do, the indecency and impropriety of a servant of the Crown joining a factious opposition to the King's Government. I assured him that if he could detach himself from a party that would in the end sacrifice him, that from me he should receive every attention. I had very strong motives to induce me to pay a favourable attention to his wishes. I mentioned to him, what a gratifying circumstance it would be to me to have it in my power to repay thro' him obligations I felt myself under to Ld. Sidmouth, who had appointed him to his present situation. Of course these conversations were betray'd by Mr. W. and every injurious and vulgar construction was put on my attempts by Mr. Thorpe & Mr. W.

(13 bis). The impudent assertions in this paragraph are beneath notice. Are such men as Chief Justice Osgoode, C. J. Elmsley, C. J. Allcock to be treated in this manner?

(14). If Mr. Thorpe is suspended by the Govt. at home, this is the only intimation of it.

(15). This Mr. Baldwin & the Judge do not speak to each other, the worthy Judge having swindled his countryman.

(16). What do you think of this paragraph?

(17). I never had a favourable opinion of Mr. Wyatt.

(18). I know so little of Mr. W. that I could not harbour any malice against him.

(19). It was from my own observation & the statements of Messrs. Chewett & Ridout that I made this statement.

(20). Supposing my predecessors in Office had granted Locations of Land improperly, does it follow that I am to do the same? The Surveyor General has neither power nor authority to locate lands; it rests with the Lt. Gov. If the Sur. General had the power & such a Surveyor General as Mr. W., the situation (from bribery) would be worth 2 or 3 thousand a year.

FOLEY PLACE June 8th 1807.

MY LORD,—As it is impossible for me to have retained the precise extent of the charges which have been made against me by the Government of Upper Canada from the conversation which took place between Your Lordship and me on Saturday last, I trust Your Lordship will direct a copy of the specific accusation to which I have alluded, to be furnished me in order that I may make such sort of defence as shall be calculated to preclude the stigma which must at present justly attach to my character in Your Lordship's mind, thereby enabling Your Lordship to form a correct Judgment as to the motives and principles which have actuated my conduct in Upper Canada.

I have the honour to be,
Your Lordship's most obedient Humble servant,
C. B. WYATT.

(b) C. B. WYATT TO LORD CASTLEREAGH.

FOLEY PLACE June 27th 1807.

MY LORD,—It is with the greatest reluctance that I venture again to trespass on Your Lordship's time; having however applied without success to Mr. Cooke for certain Documents which I considered indispensible to the vindication of my character against the charge brought forward by Mr. Gore, I feel myself under the necessity of soliciting Your Lordship's attention to my wishes in this respect. The charges alledged against me attach most seriously to the integrity of my private character, as well as to the propriety of my public conduct; and Your Lordship will therefore not be surprised that it should be matter of great anxiety in me to refute those charges to the entire and satisfactory conviction of the higher authorities under whose control I have acted. In order to do that, It is obviously indispensible that I should be in possession of the precise form of the charges themselves, & I therefore entreat that Your Lordship will have the goodness to order that I may be furnished with a copy verbatim of such parts of any of Mr. Gore's letters, as constitute charges against my character either in my public or private capacity. The accompanying memorandum may serve as a guide and save your Lordship some trouble in issuing the order which I have referred to; I rely on Your Lordship's candour and Justice to suspend your final Judgement on these charges untill I shall have had a fair opportunity of submitting to you my defence, and I entertain the fullest confidence that I shall abundantly able to satisfy Your Lordship that every accusation which has been alleged against me, is totally without foundation, and that my conduct in America has never been in one instance deserving the censure of Government.

I have to be My Lord,
Your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,
C. B. WYATT.

FOLEY PLACE July 7, 1807.

SIR,—I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 2nd Instant. shall lose no time in submitting to Lord Castlereagh such evidence and observations as I have to offer in defence of my conduct upon the two charges referred to in your letter, but I hope that his Lordship will not put any unfavourable constructions upon my silence, if I should be obliged to delay that communication 5 or days longer. I have many papers to arrange upon the subject, and I do not feel that I can proceed so promptly and effectually in my defence against the partial and indefinite accusations of which I am in possession, as if I had been made acquainted with the precise items of charge alleged against me by the Provincial Government. Upon this ground I hope for his Lordship's indulgence in allowing me the time mentioned to prepare my defence and in referring to its real source any deficiency of evidence, which may arise on my part from my not being better acquainted with the precise articles of accusations set forth by Mr. Gore against me.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your most obedient humble servant
C. B. WYATT.

FOLEY PLACE July 27th, 1807.

MY LORD,—Finding from Mr. Cooke's letter to me of the 2nd instant that it is your Lordship's pleasure that I should make me defence upon the two charges stated to me in a former letter from Mr. Cooke, previously to receiving a copy of the other charges which have been exhibited against me by the Government of Upper Canada, I shall no longer delay to furnish your Lordship with such observations and evidence as I have to offer upon these two points. I however feel that I shall be subject to more difficulty in compleatly refuting partial accusations, than I should in exculpating myself against the whole of Mr. Gore's charges; I am persuaded that it is abundantly in my power to refute any charge which Mr. Gore may bring against me in a distinct and precise form, and that I am in possession of very sufficient evidence to vindicate my character against all such accusations as I have the least reason from what had passed between Mr. Gore and me, to suppose might be alleged against me on my arrival in England. The two charges however which I am now called upon to refute do not come under either of those descriptions, they

e namely that concerning the erasure of a man's name from the map in the Sur-yor General's Department for the purpose of fraudulently inserting my own, rests pon transactions which never had been mentioned as matter of complaint during y residence at York, which I had no reason whatever to imagine could possibly be rmed into an article of crimination against me, which has evidently been fabricated ith the most malicious designs after I had quitted the Province, and consequently hich I am not so well prepared with evidence to refute as I should certainly have en had I ever adverted to the possibility of so unjust and malevolent a design being the contemplation of my accusers.

I am willing to suppose that Mr. Gore has been totally misled upon this subject, by several persons whose sinister designs had led them to misrepresent to the Lieutenant Governor every circumstance connected with the case. Your Lordship however after reading my narrative of the transactions will I have no doubt be convinced that no blame can be justly attached to me in the business; and will of course exercise your own Judgement in ascribing to those who may appear to merit it, the stigma of having fabricated a most nefarious calumny for the purpose of injuring my character and of aiding their own views.

Notwithstanding the difficulty which I apprehend in making my defence, from not having been at all apprized that such a charge was likely to be advanced against me, I do not despair of proving to Your Lordship's conviction that this charge is a groundless calumny. The other of the two charges in question, namely, that of general opposition to the Provincial Government, is so very vague and indefinite that from the very nature of that charge it cannot be easy to refute it. If particular instances of opposition were distinctly stated by Mr. Gore, I should have no difficulty in answering them by precise explanation and circumstantial evidence, but it must be evident to Your Lorship that I cannot easily bring before you such a view of my general character and principles as to prove to you that I am incapable of acting upon the motives ascribed to me in this general and indefinite accusation; and without such a view of my character I know not how the charge can be refuted, unless Your Lordship should be of opinion that a charge of that nature ought to be considered as invalid if it be not supported by a specification of the facts upon which it is founded. If it were accompanied by such a specification of facts I am confident that I could not have any difficulty in totally exculpating myself against it.

Relying on the Justice of my cause, as well as on the impartiality of your Lorship, I feel a confidence that in opposition to every difficulty I shall succeed in satisfying Your Lordship that my character has been much misrepresented to you as well as to Mr. Gore, and that I have not acted upon any principles unbecoming a loyal subject and a faithful public servant, or at least that my statements will be sufficient to induce your Lordship to suspend your final judgement upon the subject until you shall receive more conclusive evidence, and in defect of such evidence that you will consider me intitled to an unqualified acquittal. With respect to the first of the two charges above mentioned I beg leave to draw your Lordship's attention to the following facts.

Some time after my arrival in Canada I applied to the Government for a grant of 1200 acres of Land, a privilege usually allowed to the Civil Officers of the Colony; the grant was immediately made to me as a matter of course, and I was accordingly at liberty, subject to the Governor's sanction, to locate any vacant spot which I might prefer. It was my wish to locate a portion of the above grant in the neighbourhood of Niagara, and I accordingly referred to the Register, called the Doomsday Book and other Records in my office in order to ascertain whether there was any land in that situation unoccupied, which would answer my purpose. I referred to my chief clerk, Mr. Ridout, on this occasion, and he was the person who first pointed out to me the spot of ground which forms the basis of the charge against me, saying that although the name of Shubel Welton had been entered on the map as proprietor of that spot (above one hundred acres in extent) no patent had been ever issued for that grant and that he Mr. Ridout had reason to believe that no such person as Shubel Welton existed in the province of Upper Canada, and that there was no legal impediment whatever to my possessing the land in question if I thought proper to apply to Mr. President Grant for permission to era the name of Shubel Welton and substitute my own in lieu of it.

Adverting to the experience and local knowledge of my chief clerk wit regard to the practice in similar cases, I should I think have been justified i adopting his suggestion; but before I made any such application to Mr. Presiden Grant, I previously adopted the precaution of writing to Mr. Robert Hamilton, on of the Legislative Counsellors of the Province and Lieutenant of the County i which the spot of Land in question is situated, to inquire whether he could give me any information upon the subject; supposing that his long residence as a Magistrate in that part of the County and his intimate knowledge of most of its inhabitants, must render him peculiarly competent to furnish me with the information which I wished for. Mr. Hamilton in reply to my reference stated to me that my letter had arrived at a moment extremely favourable to the inquiry which I wished him to make, for that he was at the time engaged on the Quarter Sessions, and was surrounded by persons from all parts of the District, that he had availed himself of their presence to question them upon the subject which I had referred to him, and that the result of his inquiry was that no such person as Shubel Welton appeared to be known in the neighbourhood and that if such a person had even resided in that part of the Country, that to Mr. Hamilton's own positive knowledge had not been there within the last 12 or 14 years.

Under these circumstances I felt no hesitation in stating the foregoing particulars to Mr. President Grant, who in compliance to my request allowed me to appropriate the spot in question to my own use.

It may be right to state in this place that the correspondence between Mr. Hamilton and me upon this subject is recorded in my office at York, but as I had no reason whatever to conjecture that these papers could ever be necessary to me in this Country, I am not prepared to forward copies of them to your Lordship with this letter.

I received Mr. Grant's permission notified to me officially to assume the land in question, and I accordingly took possession of it. Soon after my patent for this portion of Land was issued, I heard through some indirect channel a vague Report that there was another claimant, who asserted that he had a mortgage upon that property. As soon as this Report reached me, I determined to take the first opportunity of ascertaining the foundation upon which it rested, and I accordingly in a few days set out on Horseback in company with Mr. Jackson, a gentleman of respectability, an elder Brother to the present Member for Southampton, to Niagara (a distance of a hundred miles) in order to investigate the title of the reported claimant, and upon my arrival on the spot I found a person of the name of Young, who contended that the property in question had been mortgaged to him, but who acknowledged that he had no formal instrument in writing to testify the truth of his assertion. After a full and impartial inquiry upon the spot by Mr. Jackson, the clergyman of the parish and myself, we were all satisfied that Mr. Young had no right whatever to the Land which he claimed. I however then told him in the most distinct and positive manner that if he could by any fair means make it appear that he had really a just claim to the land, I would without the least hesitation relinquish it in his favour; and in confirmation of my assertion on this part of the business, I beg leave to refer your Lordship to an extract from a letter on the subject marked A (which I have lately received from Mr. Jackson, who is now in England) I wish to draw your Lordship's particular attention to this Letter, as it goes to prove how much trouble I took to ascertain the nature of Mr. Young's claim and how little I was disposed to retain the Land provided Mr. Young could substantiate his title to it.

In order to describe to your Lordship more fully the reason why I am most decidedly of opinion, that Mr. Young has no valid claims whatever to the land alluded to, it may be useful to advert to the following circumstances.

In the year 1795 a proclamation was issued by the Provincial Government requiring that all persons having claims to certain Lands should within a given period produce their claims and take out their patents for the same, or that in the event of their failing to do so, the land to which they might have been before entitled should be considered as no longer theirs and would be otherwise disposed of as the Government might think proper. It is certain that neither Shubel Welton nor Mr. Young, the pretended mortgagee, ever attended to the notice contained in this proclamation, or applied for a patent to be prepared in their favour, and it was equally certain that this omission on their part was sufficient to cancel any former pretensions which either of them might have had to this lot of land, even if any evidence could now be produced in proof that such pretensions had originally existed, but I have not been able to trace any symptom whatever of such pretensions ever having been entertained by either of the parties in question.

In addition to this fact which appears to me to constitute conclusive evidence against Mr. Young's present claim, it is worthy of remark that although Mr. Young has irregularly and without any legal authority located in his own name 200 acres of land more than he ever received a grant for, he did not attempt to include the lot in dispute between him and me, although it is impossible that he could have been ignorant of the necessity of having his name substituted for that of Welton in the Official Register, before he could be legally considered as the proprietor of the lot.

In the course of the conversation which passed between Mr. Young and me, Mr. Young mentioned the name of a Mr. Clinch, a gentleman who he said lived in the neighbourhood of Niagara and who could give me some information relative to the claim. It was not in my power to see Mr. Clinch before he returned to York, but on my arrival there I wrote to him a letter of which I now enclose a copy B.

I however did not receive any answer whatever from Mr. Clinch, although I remained at York several months after my reference to him.

After I had quitted York, on my return to England a letter was sent after me by Mr. Thorpe, an extract from which I now enclose marked C, stating that Mr. Young's claim immediately on my departure been for the first time openly brought forward and insisted on, and advising that I should transmit to York a power of Attorney for the purpose of referring the matter to arbitration. In reply to this suggestion from Mr. Thorpe, I wrote the letter of which I enclose a copy with this marked D.

In the foregoing statement I have confined myself almost entirely to a mere narrative of facts, without offering any comments upon those facts; this I have done because the case appears to me to be perfectly clear, and the influences [inferences?] arising from it too obvious to escape your Lordship's discernment. I shall not trespass any longer on your Lordship's time with respect to the first of the two charges which I am called upon to answer, and with respect to the second accusation, namely, that of having persevered "in a general opposition to His Majesty's representative and his measures." It must, as I have already remarked, be evident to your Lordship that this charge is of a very vague and indefinite nature, and that it cannot possibly be repeated without some specification of the particular instances of opposition upon which it is founded. I am persuaded Your Lordship will not deem it just to condemn me upon this charge until I shall have been put in possession of each particular accusation which may be calculated to produce an unfavourable impression against me upon this point; and until I shall have been allowed a fair opportunity of replying directly and distinctly to each of these particulars. In the meantime I solemnly declare I am totally innocent of the offence in question, and that so far from a wish to oppose the Government, it was my sincere desire to aid its authority by every means in my power.

Lest your Lordship should suppose that the disagreement subsisting between the Provincial Government and me may originally have arisen from a discontented and refractory disposition on my part, I beg leave to assure Your Lordship that complaints similar to those which I have to alledge have been stated by many individuals filling the most respectable situations under the Government. I shall have no difficulty whenever your Lordship may require it of me to prove by written and authentic documents as well as by the most credible oral testimony, that the dissatisfaction which I express, did not originate with me, but that similar discontent had prevailed in numerous instances previously as well as after my arrival in this province.

One strong example of this nature is exhibited in a Memorial now on the records of the Treasury from Mr. Russell one of the Executive Council in Upper Canada and Receiver General of the province to the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury dated in the year 1803; although I have already stated that I feel it to be impossible for me to defend myself effectually against the general charge of opposition to the Government without some information as to the particulars to which that charge refers, I am anxious that your Lordship should clearly understand that I have no wish whatever to elude the strictest Investigation of my conduct and that I now pledge myself most positively and solemnly to your Lordship to produce the fullest and the most satisfactory explanations upon every Item of accusation which may be alledged against me whenever it may appear to your Lordship to be proper that I should be made acquainted with those particulars.

If after a full and fair investigation of all such matters as relate to my conduct in Upper Canada it should as I have not the smallest doubt it will appear to your Lordship that my character has been totally misrepresented and that there is no sufficient ground for the strong measures which have been adopted against me by the provincial Government, I am persuaded that your Lordship will not think it unreasonable that I should in that case hope to be reinstated in my office upon the same footing on which that office was holden by my predecessor; In all the communications with which I have had occasion to trouble Your Lordship since my arrival in England, I have had no object beyond that reinstatement, the vindication of my character against dishonourable imputation and such benefit to the public interest as might be derivable from any information or suggestions which my local experience might enable me to offer to Your Lordship's consideration.

Before I close this letter I think it right to mention to Your Lordship that Mr. Gore on several occasions as well to me personally as to several others expressed his high approbation of my character, & that, even after he had been induced to suspend me from my office; adverting to this fact, I know not how to account for Mr. Gore's conduct towards me but by concluding that he had been wholly misled by the fabricated stutements of certain designing individuals with respect to my character and principles. If that be really the case, it is probable that Mr. Gore may by this time be convinced of the error into which he had been led and may not entertain any sentiments towards me incompatible with an amicable adjustment of the differences subsisting between us, I have no hesitation in assuring Your Lordship that for my own part I certainly do not entertain any such sentiments and that under any arrangement which should exculpate my character and leave me in possession of the just advantages of my Office I should be cordially and sincerely disposed to resume my station under Mr. Gore's Government and to cooperate with him by every means in my power for the benefit of the Interests and prosperity of the valuable colony committed to his charge.

I have the honour to be, My Lord,
Your Lordship's most obedient humble servant
C. B. WYATT.

I was indeed surprised to hear that you had been charged with a criminal intention, in erasing from the Books of the Surveyor General's Office, the name of a person who claimed a lot of land, to which it clearly appears he had no title. I well remember when Mr. Addison accompanyed us to Mr. Young's in order to investigate his title, and that both Mr. Addison and myself were fully convinced from his own statement, that he had no more right to the land in question than I had. I also well recollect your saying that if he (Mr. Young) could prove the shadow of a title that you would never molest him in the possession.

o —— Clinch, Esquire.

Dear Sir,—I fully intended to have called on you, during my stay this season t Niagara for the purpose of a conversation relative to Mr. Young's claims to ye t 161 in the Township wherein he now resides, for which lot, it appearing to be acant, I have the deed; having however been unable to do so, I shall esteem it a vour if you will acquaint me by an early and convenient opportunity with circumtances (as you know them I am informed) relative to the subject of this communiation and be assured should Mr. Young's claim appear to be a just one, I will not ppose him, or shall I feel a moment's hesitation in surrendering my title in his vour.

I am, Dear Sir,
Your obedient humble servant
C. B. WYATT.

C. Extract. Enclosed in letter (e).

Mr. Clinch moved for leave of absence from the House, I found it was to follow you about Young's business; He made more noise on the subject than the land is worth. I satisfied him that you would give me a power of Attorney to put in force whatever the arbitrators awarded; I send off such a one as I think you will approve of, which I beg you will sign and send back; be assured I will take care that you shall not lose, & if you did I would have you sacrifice land to character.

Robert Thorpe Esquire.

Dear Sir,—Having already given a power of Attorney to Mr. Baldwin to act for me during my absence from U. C. should I grant a subsequent power of the same nature to any other person I am fearful it would cancel the first and occasion a bad effect upon the adjustment of the few trifling concerns I have left unfinished in this country.

In reply to your kind letter sent after me to this place I however am induced to suggest that upon the usual Examination of the Surveyor General's office relative to the Lot No. 161 in the District of Niagara for which I have the Deed, as well as the accompanying copy of a letter written by me to Mr. Clinch (see B.) upon the subject of the said Lot of land, that Mr. Baldwin as my constituted agent will direct whatever measure may appear best calculated to secure Justice to the parties concerned in the matter alluded to.

I must acknowledge that Mr. Clinch's conduct surprizes me at this time as I never received any reply to my letter to that gentleman dated in October last a copy of which I enclose particularly as he has always had an opportunity of personal communication with me since without having expressed himself to me either upon that or any other subject. As well as I can recollect though Mr. Young was actually located Land to the amount of two hundred acres more than the portion allowed him by the Original order of Council in his favour six hundred acres of which Mr. Young was not allowed to receive the patents for by order of General Hunter in writing, Mr. Young it would appear never even asked for, much more made any claim to the lot of land now claimed by him.

FOLEY PLACE, July 28th 1807.

MY LORD,—I have the honour now to forward to your Lordship my answer to the two charges to which I have been required by Your Lordship to reply, and I am sorry that it has not been in my power to furnish your Lordship with my explanation upon those two points of accusation at an earlier period, but, without hazard of neglect to my own interests, I have found myself unable to forward that statement before the present period.

Should your Lordship be of opinion that my defence does not sufficiently exculpate me from the charges alleged against me to enable you to reinstate me to the Office of Surveyor General of lands in Upper Canada, without further investigation, it seems to me that it may be Your Lordship's intention to send an entire copy of my statement to York, in order that the Government there may be informed of its contents and have an opportunity of replying to it, in which case may I be permitted in justice to myself to solicit that your Lordship will direct that I shall be made acquainted with the measures you may think fit to adopt in this respect, by which means only, I shall be able to take such steps, as may be necessary and best calculated to prove that I do not deserve the dishonourable imputations which have been alleged against my character.

Your Lordship will I trust have reason to think so well of my defence in its present form, as to induce your Lordship to permit me to receive the arrears of salary and usual allowances from the time of my leaving Canada to the 30th June last, being the period at which these emoluments became payable.

The circumstances of my situation preclude the possibility of the agent in England possessing the necessary certificate from the Government in Canada to authorize him to pay the salary, the usual substitute for those certificates in similar cases is an order from the Secretary of State, I therefore humbly solicit that your Lordship will be pleased to grant me the indulgence I request.

I have the honour to be with profound respect
Your Lordship's most obedient humble servant
C. B. WYATT.

(g) C. B. WYATT TO LORD CASTLEREAGH.

FOLEY PLACE, August 18th 1807.

MY LORD,—The confidence I feel in your Lordship's justice, and in the purity of the motives by which I know the whole of my conduct in Canada to have been actuated, induced me to hope that the explanation which I have already sent to your Lordship, upon the subject of the two charges which I have been called upon to answer, will be sufficiently satisfactory to prevent a confirmation of my suspension from my office. I therefore venture, relying with implicit confidence on the strong grounds to which I have already alluded, to repeat to Your Lordship my earnest and humble request that you will be pleased to allow me to receive the salary and usual emoluments of my office, at least untill Your Lordship shall have ascertained that I am unworthy of that indulgence. I am assured that a contrary conclusion will be the final result of your Lordship's investigation of my case and I am persuaded that under such a conviction in Your Lordship's mind, you would regret that I should have suffered a great degree of deprivation and inconvenience which my conduct did not appear to merit.

In the absence of the certificates which are the usual vouchers upon which the agent pays the salaries of Public Officers in Canada, & which cannot be supplied to any officer during his residence in England, the authority which it is customary to substitute in lieu of those certificates, is a letter from the Secretary of State addressed to the agent, authorising him to pay the salary in question as it may become due. But in addition to my salary a large proportion of the emoluments of my Employment arises from fees paid upon the spot, none of which I can at present receive ; they are deposited in the hands of the Receiver General in Upper Canada where they must remain untill he shall have authority to issue the amount.

Adverting to the circumstances of my case, I trust that Your Lordship will have the goodness to order that a Letter may be written to the agent for Upper Canada, directing him to pay my salary to me in England, until he shall receive further commands upon the subject; and another Letter to be sent to York authorising the Receiver General to pay to my agent the amount of fees now due to the Surveyor General and which shall become due to me until the question at issue shall have been finally decided or untill he shall receive further orders.

I am sorry to give your Lordship so much trouble, but the difficulties arising from the situation in which I am placed, occasioned by the great additional expence for the purpose of conveying my family from Upper Canada, and of maintaining them in England, compels me to make this appeal to Your Lordship's indulgent consideration.

I have the honour to be, My Lord,

DOWNING STREET, 28th August, 1807.

SIR,—I have perused your Defence, and with respect to the specific charge brought againt you by Lt. Governor Gore, of your having erased the name of a Grantee from the Records of your office & substituted your own, Explanation of that Fact appears to be satisfactory; but before any ultimate judgement can be made upon the subject it will be necessary for me to transmit it to Lt. Governor Gore for his Consideration & Reply. With regard to your Salary, it appears to me that you cannot be considered as entitled to any whatsoever, whilst under suspension, and I do not find myself at present enabled to direct your Restoration.

FOLEY PLACE 8th Sept. 1807.

SIR,—It is I assure you with great reluctance that I again trespass on your time; I however hope that the urgent considerations which induce me to do so on the present occasion will be a sufficient apology for the instrusion.

Having understood from you, in the course of conversation which passed between us yesterday, that it is the intention of Lord Castlereagh to transmit to Canada a copy of the statement which I had the honour to submit to his Lordship relative to the two charges against me which I was by your letter of the 2nd of July last required to reply; and feeling as I do that my character as to principles of quality and honour, may through life, depend in a great degree upon the final and complete confirmation of the facts which I have asserted in that statement, I must beg that you will have the goodness to submit to Lord Castlereagh my earnest request that his Lordship will be pleased to direct that I should be furnished with a written authority in duplicate enabling me to require through the agent in Canada, attested copies of the Official Documents specified in the accompanying list, as those papers contain the only evidence of which it is in my power, at this distance from Canada, positively to prove the facts which I have asserted relative to the accusation of fraudulently erasing a person's name from the map in the Surveyor General's Office in order to insert my own; and consequently that they are the only means by which I can defend my character effectually against the serious imputations which may be brought against it upon this point, in the event of the Provincial Government not admitting the strict truth and accuracy of the statement which I h already made upon the subject. I am persuaded that principles of generous liberal as well as of justice, will prompt both Lord Castlereagh and you to accede to request on this occasion, and to afford me every reasonable protection in your po against an eventual injury to my Reputation, which in my Conscience I kn cannot be due to the motives which have actuated any part of my conduct in discharge of my official Duties; and which in all probability, were it to occur, co not be repaired during the remaining period of my life.

It is scarcely necessary for me to state that the Emoluments of my office Canada are of important value to me, and I trust that you will believe me whe assure you that much as I should suffer for the loss of them, I am less anxious retain them than I am to rescue my character from any imputation which sh appear to attach to the probity and honour of my principles. Influenced by t impression and feeling at the same time the important value of the emoluments my office, it was highly satisfactory to me to hear from you yesterday that b Lord Castlereagh and yourself were as thoroughly satisfied, as you could possib be by any ex parte evidence that I was entirely innocent of the only charge agai me which attaches to my integrity and honour, and that altho' upon a general pr ciple of Govt. there were objections to my resuming my station at York, under M Gore's administration, it was Lord Castlereagh's intention to recommend me to t Treasury for some other situation in lieu of that which I held in Upper Canada.

It is obvious that as I am not to return to Canada my actual appointment some other situation is the only means by which my Reputation can be defend against the degrading and painful stigma of having been deservedly dismissed fr a lucrative and responsible occupation in the public service. I therefore hope th Lord Castlereagh will have the goodness to delay the final and official confirmati of Mr. Gore's proceedings with respect to my suspension until I shall be appoint to another office.

The expenses which I have unavoidably incurred amounting to about £3,0 in conveying my family and servants to and from America, In purchasing hou hold Furniture and other necessary articles for my use in that Country; the nec sity which I shall be under of selling those goods upon the spot at a great deprec tion & under heavy costs and charges, will undoubtedly occasion to me a positi loss of a very large sum of money.

Adverting to this severe inconvenience & to the fact that my return is not p cluded by my being deemed unworthy the official countenance of Lord Castlereag but by those general principles of Govt. which seem to require that the Provinc Government should be supported in all cases of collision with its inferior officers am induced to hope that Lord Castlereagh will have the goodness to allow me receive the salary of my office in Upper Canada until my appointment to so other situation shall take place and I must beg the favour of you to submit to Lordship my earnest and humble request to that effect.

It may be right to observe that Mr. Gore's warrant of suspension goes only suspend me expressly from the duties of the office, and certainly no other per can receive any of the emoluments untill an authority shall have been obtained fr the Government at home to that effect.

I am persuaded that under all the circumstances of my case, as it now stan Lord Castlereagh will be disposed as far as may be in his power consistently w the due discharge of public duty to grant me any indulgence which shall be cal lated to mitigate the great inconvenience to which I have been made subject by suspension from my office in America, and to avert from me the most distress pecuniary embarrassments.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your most obedient humble servant

C. B. WYATT.

In a letter from one Le Favre (a United Irishman) residing in America is the following:

"Prior to writing it (alluding to another letter) I had handed to Mr. Clinch "two hundred and fifty hard dollars to deliver you."

Le Favre came from America on a Land speculation, but the Government, conceiving he was an improper character did not accede to his wishes. He then, as every disaffected person does, applys to this Judge, at least from the following paragraph from the same letter, I have a right to make the conclusion:

"I purpose if you shall approve it, & I hope you will, to put the name of my "son in law (Mr. Donohue of Streamstown) for the lands in place of my own, he "being young and independent," and again, "I shall add whatever you advise will "entirely govern my conduct but to that end I must look for your continuing to "honour me with your entire confidence."

In a letter from one Thompson, a Rebel, is the following:

"Capt. Brant tells me the Dutch Men are gone up the Lake with the money "he expects them here tomorrow along with Mr. Jones, when I hope you will get "some assistance in the money way."

It was Mr. Thorpe and his party that persuaded the people to raise a subscription to pay his Election Bills "that it might enrage the Government and that had those contemptible wretches, those old women (meaning the Executive Council) known anything of Law, they might have prevented his being return'd a member this Session."

Mr. Thorpe has also endeavour'd to persuade the printer engaged by Government to relinquish his Office and that he would make his future for him. Mr. Thorpe declared he had never anything to do with the Elections, it is false, he was at the head of every meeting held for the purpose & everything that appeared in print or Resolutions read at those meetings, were written by himself, he has declared the London address was intended to annoy & quiz the Governor and his constant Boast is, that he upset the Government in Prince Edward Island, and did not doubt he would do it again if they did not adhere to his principles.

Albany 15th December, 1807.

Sir,—The duplicate of a letter of yours having torn my husband from me, I request you will give him the enclosed, as I know not his direction.

When going, he left with me draughts on Mr. Adams for one hundred pounds, a few days after his departure several of Mr. Thorpe's bills on that Gentleman were returned protested, for some deficiency in the form of the certificate. My husband was now loaded with every abusive epithet, and no money would be given on the draughts left with me. Unaccustomed to derive support from eleemosynary donations, and unable to bear insult, I bade adieu to a place where my heart was nearly broken.

How I reached Albany I scarcely know, but on my arrival I applied to an American merchant who cashed the bills to defray the expenses of my journey, and I most fervently hope that nothing will induce Mr. A. to return these bills.

I mention these circumstances to shew the ruin that the mere want of form has brought on an innocent family.

When it was Lord Castlereagh's pleasure to suspend my husband, did he never give a sigh for the feelings of a wife or the helpless situation of seven children? Yet his Lordship is a husband and a parent.

My dear husband on the bosom of the deep surrounded with dangers, the Atlantic between myself and a friend, in a cold climate without means for support, or even an acquaintance. What an alteration to a female, what a change of scene, to one delicately brought up, reared in the lap of affluence.

This intrusion on you is very unpardonable, I did not intend it, 'tis against every rule of etiquette, but misery knows not etiquette.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient humble servant

S. THORPE.

I request you will not mention this letter to Mr. Thorpe. Poor fellow! he has already sufficient annoyances.

NOTE E.

COURTS OF JUSTICE FOR THE INDIAN COUNTRY.

No. 1.—LIEUT. GOVERNOR MILNES TO LORD HOBART.

QUEBEC 30th October, 1802.

MY LORD,—1. I have the honour to enclose Your Lordship a copy of a letter from the Chief Justice and the Puisne Judges of the Court of King's Bench for Montreal, together with a copy of a Presentment lately made to them by the Grand Jury in that District, relative to the incompetence of His Majesty's Courts in this Province to take cognizance of offences committed in the Indian Territory; The circumstance which gave rise to this Representation is of such serious consequence and the magnitude and importance of the trade carried on with the Indian Country so great, that I feel it peculiarly incumbent on me, upon this occasion to transmit to Your Lordship the fullest information I have been able to collect relative to these objects, in order that such measures may be adopted with regard thereto, as shall be most expedient and effectual.

2. The fur trade has long been an object of Commercial Importance and at present, so far from diminishing, it appears to increase; new Tracts of Country have been visited by the Merchants employed in this Traffick, which have furnished new sources for the supply of Furs, and much of those collected in the interior of the North West Country which were formerly shipped from Hudson's Bay are now exported from Quebec.

3. The state of this Trade during the French Government was very precarious. Some years its Product was great, in others but very small.

4. This was perhaps in some measure owing to the interference of the Crown, no person being suffered to trade with the Indians, without an annual Licence from the Governor, by which means, under such a Government as that of France, no man could depend upon obtaining a License for the next year; no general system was pursued, and no establishments of any Importance were made. Individuals purchased their Licences for a year, and each trafficked under them where, and as he thought best, so that the product of the Trade was regulated by the number of Adventurers which annually offered, and the Returns were in proportion to their Numbers and to the Capital employed by each of them.

5. The French East India Company however had the sole privilege of exporting Beaver; for this purpose they had an agent in each Government, a Director and a Comptroller, and a stated price was paid for it to the Indian Traders, viz: Four Livres a pound for the Green or Winter Beaver and a Livre ten sols for the Parchment or Summer Beaver; but the value of the entire quantity of Furs exported never exceeded £140,000 stg and was often less, particularly in 1754, when it amounted to £64,000, and in 1755 to £52,000 only, when it was considered as a declining Trade.

6. Since the Conquest the Spirit of British Commerce has brought the Fur Trade into Regular Form; it is now carried on upon System, and a large Capital is invested by a Company of Merchants long since known by the name of the North West Company, who have extended the Trade very far into the Interior of the North West parts of this Continent, where they have established numerous Trading Houses.

7. The success of this Company, and the great and rapid fortunes which many of them have amassed, occasioned the establishment of a second Company in the year 1800, who have the Command of a Capital equal to that of the North West, ed as they pursue the same line of Commerce by the same means, and in the same arts of the Interior Country, mutual Jealousies have arisen, Complaints of the Conduct of each, and of the Servants of each have been made, and both have proceeded from one step to another until the Contest, from a Commercial Competition, has grown to open enmity and hostility.

8. But very lately a Clerk of the North West Company at one of their Posts upon the Confines of the Country commonly known by the name of the Hudson's Bay Limits, had a dispute with a Clerk of the New Company respecting a quantity of Furs collected by an Indian who was in debt to both the Companies. The North West Clerk contended the Furs were his, because his debt was the oldest, and the Clerk of the New Company declared that he was in possession and would retain them; the former however persisted in his right and advanced declaring he would take them, when the latter drew a Pistol from his Pocket and shot him upon the Spot.

9. The young man who was thus the cause of the other's death came down to this Province in September last, and through the medium of his friends, offered to surrender himself for Trial; but a Trial could not be had, because the offence had happened without the Limits of the Province, and therefore the ordinary Courts of Justice had no Jurisdiction over it; and it appears also that the Governor is not empowered to issue a Special Commission for the Trial of offences committed without the Province. This case gave rise to the Presentment made by the Grand Jury of Montreal, of which I have enclosed Your Lordship a Copy (B). Further to elucidate the subject, I enclose also a copy of the Report made to me thereon by the Attorney General (C).

10. If the Fur Trade was carried on within the Limits of the Canadas, there would be but little difficulty in restraining the Two Companies and their servants, and in keeping the Conduct of both within their proper bounds. But the seat of the Trade lies many Hundreds of Miles beyond the Limits of either of the Provinces, where there are no military Posts, no officers of any Government, no Persons, in short (Indians excepted) but the Servants of the Two Companies, who are already hostile to each other, exasperated by mutual acts of aggression, interested in the success of their respective Companies, freed from all immediate restraint, and fearless of future punishment, because they know that the Courts of the Canadas cannot take cognizance of Crimes committed where they traffick.

11. Under such circumstances every species of offence is to be apprehended from Trespasses to Murders, and also that the natural Character of the English will be debased among the Indians; and that the numerous Tribes of those people will in consequence thereof be more easily wrought upon by Foreign Emissaries employed by the Enemies of Great Britain.

From what is here stated I trust your Lordship will perceive the great necessity of providing as soon as may be, a competent Jurisdiction for the Trial of all offences committed in the Indian Country without the Limits of the Two Canadas. The trade is encreasing and the number of persons employed must therefore also encrease; to enable Your Lordship to form some opinion of its probable extent I inclose a Return (D) of the number of Persons now employed in the service of the old North West Company, to which may be added a third of the entire number, that being about the proportion of those who are in the service of the new Company.

13. I further enclose a Statement of the average number of Furs exported from Quebec during the last nine years, with a Calculation of the Duties paid thereon, on their being landed in England, amounting to upwards of Twenty-two thousand pounds annually, also a statement (F) of the several kinds of Peltries actually shipped from Quebec last year, specifying the average prices at which they sold in London, amounting to Three hundred and seventy-one Thousand Pounds, which will shew the growing importance of this Commerce to the Mother Country.

14. Whether subjecting persons engaged in this Trade to taking out Licences might afford an advantageous check to the evils apprehended, or whether it might be prejudicial to the Interests of the Mother Country in her particular intercourse with this Province, or in her general Commerce, is a matter that requires the most serious Consideration, Furs and skins being raw materials necessary for many of our Manufactures, and which cannot be had from Foreign Countries upon terms so advantageous (if at all) as those upon which they are procured from a dependent Province. Perhaps therefore, as there is ground to hope that a Jurisdiction for the Trial of offences committed in the Indian Country would be sufficient, it may be advisable that no other step should be immediately taken for the better regulation of the Trade in question, than the establishment of such a Jurisdiction.

But at the same time I am of opinion, and therefore subject to Your Lordship's Consideration, if it might be proper that the act of the Imperial Parliament (in case one shall be passed) to provide a means for the Trial of offences committed without these Provinces should also empower the Governors to appoint such Person or Persons as they shall see fit, to seize and apprehend in the Indian Territory all Persons whatsoever charged with Felonies and to send them under proper Custody to that Province to which they belong, or from which they proceeded to the Indian Territory, in order there to take their Trial for the same. His Majesty's Proclamation of the 7th Oct. 1763 has a Clause somewhat similar to that which I have here proposed, but it extends only to Military Officers and to officers of the Indian Department, of which Descriptions of Persons there be none in the North West Territory.

With respect to what the Judges in their Letter to me state, "that Felonies "committed in places where there may be no Court of competent Jurisdiction to "try the same, may be tried in the Province next adjoining to such Place where the "Felony may have been committed," I have to remark to Your Lordship that the Peltries are for the most part brought down the Grand or Ottawa River to Montreal, which River, as well as many of the Posts belonging to the North West companies are nearer to Upper than to Lower Canada, but as the Canoes return by the Ottawa, the distance from the Place where Justice is administered in Upper Canada may make it more inconvenient to the parties than if they came down to Montreal, the Port of Return; and should it be necessary for witnesses to attend the Courts of Upper Canada, they would in the first place often come to Montreal by the Grand River, and be obliged to go up by the Lakes, which would be attended with much Inconvenience. I therefore beg leave to submit to Your Lordship's Consideration, whether instead of trying offenders in the nearest Province, it would not be advisable to give the Courts of Justice in both Provinces the same Jurisdiction, to be exercised whenever there is occasion without confining it to the Province nearest where the offence shall have been committed.

I have the honour to be, My Lord,
Your Lordship's most obedient and most humble servant
ROBT. S. MILNES.

SIR,—We have the honour to present to Your Excellency a Calendar of the prisoners tried, convicted, and under sentence, at the last Session of His Majesty's Court of King's Bench for this District.

* * * * *

With respect to the murders lately committed in the Interior, or Indian Territory, the Grand Jury have endeavoured to represent the magnitude of the evils to be apprehended, should a speedy remedy not be provided, to restrain the dangers that actual circumstances too clearly announce.

Should the Imperial Parliament grant to the Respective Governments in the two Canadas, a Jurisdiction similar to that enacted by a statute passed in the 15th year of His present Majesty's Reign, chap. 15, sec. 29 for America—that Felonies committed in places where there may be no Court of competent Jurisdiction, to try the same, may be tried in the Province next adjoining to such place, where the Felony may have been committed, it might deter the commission of crimes, so far as the dread of detection and punishment could extend.

But your Excellency will perceive that jurisdiction alone will not effectually cure His Majesty's Government against the Commotions, the Hostilities and the crimes that are to be apprehended in the Interior Country where the Fur Trade is carried on from this Province.

Whatever measures could be adopted to correct the strong animosity which that Trade excites among the few who are in possession of it might weaken the source of the struggles, and the conflict of contending Parties; and with the Jurisdiction above alluded to give protection to the lives and secure the peace of His Majesty's Government and People.

Which with all deference and respect is submitted by

(B.) PRESENTMENT OF THE GRAND JURY, MONTREAL.

(p. 156.)

To the Honourable the Chief Justice and the Justices of His Majesty's Court of King's Bench for the District of Montreal, in the Province of Lower Canada.

The Grand Jury for the said District represent:—

That circumstances which have happened in the Indian Country, evince the existence there of a most serious evil which altho' generally known, yet the Grand Jury find themselves incompetent legally to investigate the same in its particular instances, as the alledged facts have happened beyond the limits of the District, and of the Province, but as such evil, in its nature, involves consequences of the highest importance, to the lives, personal freedom and properties of many of His Majesty's subjects of this Province, they feel themselves irresistibly called upon to bring the same under the view of His Majesty's Government through the medium of this Honourable Bench, that a remedy may as speedily as possible be applied thereto.

The two provinces of Canada are each bounded upon one side of the Territory called Hudson's Bay, and to that Territory, a very extensive Trade is carried on through both Provinces, but particularly from Lower Canada, from whence a number of persons annually go thither, and when there, many remain therein for one or more years employed in different departments of the Indian Trade and afterwards return to this Province. His Majesty's subjects therefore in Lower Canada, are most particularly interested in the subject of this Representation.

In the said Territory of Hudson's Bay there does not exist a Tribunal for the Cognizance of Crimes and Criminal Offences, and consequently in accusation for Offenses of that nature, committed therein either by Persons from the Canadas or otherwise the offender (from the want of such a Tribunal) cannot be tried in the Territory where the facts were committed, nor are the same cognizable in either of the Canadas altho' immediately adjoining thereto, from the operation of that general principle of English Jurisprudence, that Criminal Offences which have happened beyond their limits, cannot be enquired into by any Tribunal within such limits, consequently in such cases no remedy appears to exist, but such as is applicable under the present Statute of the 33rd of Henry the VIII, cap. 23 by the issuing of a special Commission in England by His Majesty, where alone, the facts can be legally enquired into and decided upon by a competent Court and Jury.

The consequences which may result from a doubtful Jurisdiction, or from the necessity of a Reference to a Jurisdiction in this respect so remote as England is, are obvious and most alarming, such doubtful and such remote Jurisdiction may have been an incitement to the Commission of Crimes, and must be so in that Territory; on the one hand they may totally defeat the end of Public Justice, or on the other may be the means of depriving an innocent person who may be unjustly accused, of ever having an opportunity of legally evincing to his Country and friends his innocence.

Nothing can have a greater tendency to prevent and repress Crimes tha idea of speedy Trial, and punishment of Offenders if guilty, and to protect cence by a speedy acquittal if wrongfully accused, and as punishments are of importance in regard to their influence upon society as examples to others, th respect to the actual sufferings of Individuals who may justly undergo them, wholesome influences is wholly lost; when such trials and Punishments take at a great distance from those among whom the examples are meant to, or can useful operation.

The very heavy expence incident to the Conveyance of offenders fron Territory of Hudson's Bay to England, with the necessary witnesses on both and the cost of Prosecution and defence, must generally operate, either to pr recourse to a Tribunal across the Ocean, and thereby stimulate to private retal and revenge, or where such course can or shall be had, the guilty may e punishment, and the innocent be sacrificed from the distance of time and ph trial; the death or absence of witnesses, or other causes, and the mind canno template without horror, the possible abuses to which such circumstances give rise; as in the instance of a Prosecutor coming from and at a remot when the accused may be destitute of pecuniary means, and the exculpator dence may either be dead, removed or be otherwise beyond his reach, who events (however innocent he may finally be found) will have undergone a lon painful confinement, far removed from his Family and Connexions, and pe ruinous to every prospect he had in life.

All these evils and hardships either in regard to public justice or to Indivi the Grand Jury conceive may be remedied by the establishment of a capital diction within His Majesty's Territories, on this side the Atlantic, and fo purpose it is highly desirable, that His Majesty's Tribunals in Canada s respectively be invested with jurisdiction in respect to the Cognizance of C and Criminal Offences, which may be committed in places of doubtful ter near their limits or beyond their limits (if on this side the sea) they are comm by persons connected with or in the employ of other persons resident Trading from such Provinces respectively, to the Territory where the facts a shall have happened.

In regard to Lower Canada, this extension of jurisdiction so limited t Persons, would in fact be an assimilation to that valuable and humane princ English Criminal Law, that the accused shall undergo a Trial by a Jury of vicinage, because a very great majority of the persons upon whom the same have operation, will either be natives of or will have been residents in Province.

The Grand Jury confide in this Honourable Court aiding this representat such additional reasons, as the superior legal intelligence of its members suggest for the attainment of the object in view, and for that purpose, lay this their own representation in the premises before His Excellency the Lieut. Gov in order that the existing evils may be submitted to the consideration of the lature of this Province, if competent to afford a remedy, or if not, that appli be made thereon, by His Excellency to His Majesty's Ministers, that the sam be laid before the Imperial Parliament, whose Wisdom and Justice will not apply adequate relief.

(C.) Report of the Attorney General.

(A. 162.)

To His Excellency Sir Robert Shore Milnes, Bart., Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Lower Canada &c. &c. &c..

May it please Your Excellency,—

In obedience to the commands of Your Excellency signified to me in Mr. Secretary Sylands's Letter of the 15th instant, directing me to report my opinion—"Whether persons charged with offences committed in the Interior Country, without the limits of this Province, can now be brought to Trial in this Province, and if not, what will be the most eligible jurisdiction for the Trial of such Offenders." I have taken the subject fully into my consideration and am of opinion that Offenders of this description cannot now be tried by any of the ordinary Courts of Law nor by any special Commission issued in this Province for the jurisdiction of the former is confined to Crimes committed within the Province, and no authority to issue any special Commission for the Trial of Crimes committed without the limits of the Province is vested in the Governor. It was indeed formerly held that under the Statute of 14 George III, c. 83 the Governor had such Authority, in like manner as His Majesty is by an Act passed in the 33 year of King Henry the 8th enabled to issue special Commissions for the Trial in England of Offenders charged with murder committed without the realm, and two other persons, James Gale and Alexander Henry Thompson were in the year 1788 indicted at Quebec for murder committed in the Interior Country and convicted upon a special Commission issued for that purpose under the Great Seal of the Province. Doubts however were entertained as to the legality of these convictions and the Question was submitted to the present Chief Baron McDonald and Lord Eldon then Attorney and Solicitor General, who were of opinion that the Governor could not legally issue such a Commission, and in consequence of this opinion both Gale and Thompson were by His Majesty's orders discharged from custody.

The Attorney and Solicitor General were also of opinion—"That in order to bring to trial in the Province persons charged with having committed under any particular circumstances Felonies or other offences out of the Province, some Provision must be made by Parliament, if it should deem proper so to do, either by giving jurisdiction to the ordinary Tribunals of the Province for such purpose or by passing an Act to enable the Governor to issue special Commissions for the Trial of such Offenders."

I have the honour to concur intirely in this opinion, as to the necessity of an Act of the Imperial Parliament, our own Provincial Parliament being incompetent, but I cannot but prefer the last to the first means proposed. Our Courts of King's Bench are held but twice in a year, and to detain witnesses who come either from the United States or from the Indian Country until a Term of the King's Bench is held will frequently be impracticable, at all events in those cases where they do remain great expense will be incurred, burthensome to the Crown or to the Prisoners; and in those where they do not remain, the offender may escape the punishment due to his Crime or an innocent man may be injured from the want of their Testimony.

Under a special Commission which can be issued at any time, the Justices appointed can by adjournments grant that time which the respective situations of the prosecutor or the prisoner may require be that longer or shorter, and accommodate each party so as to answer the ends of Justice.

I must also remark that many parts of the interior Country in which Crimes may be committed, may be supposed by the United States to lie within their limits, and it appears to be highly proper therefore to vest the power of proceeding to Trials of any offences committed without our Territory in the hands of the Governor, to be exercised by him, with the advice of His Majesty's Executive Council, according to his and their discretion guided by the Circumstances of the case and the political Exigencies of the Province.

I am for these reasons further of opinion that a Statute of the Imperial Pa liament, vesting in the Governor and Executive Council of this Province such pow to issue special Commissions for the Trial of Felonies committed on the Continent America without the limits of the King's Provinces and the United States as a vested in His Majesty and in his Privy Council by the Statute of 33 Hen. 8, c. 2 with respect to the Trial in England of offenders charged with murder committe without the Realm, will afford the most eligible jurisdiction for the Trial of suc Offences.

All which, nevertheless, is most respectfully submitted by

Your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant

J. SEWELL, Att. General.

No. 2.—JOHN RICHARDSON TO H. W. RYLAND.

MONTREAL 21st October, 1802.

SIR,—I am sorry that the pressure of business at this season should have put out of my power to have the honour of returning sooner an answer to your letter 30th September, requesting (by desire of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governo Information as to the number of persons employed in the Upper Country Trade, i order to form a more correct idea of the object brought forward by the Grand Ju in their presentment at the last term of the Court of King's Bench, and thereby the better enabled to represent its magnitude and importance to His Majesty Ministers.

As the object of that presentment related only to the situation of perso employed in that part of the Upper Country, or Indian Trade, carried on from hen to places within His Majesty's Dominions, beyond but adjoining to the Province Canada, and usually denominated the North West, where the evil complained and requiring a speedy remedy is felt, viz. the want of a jurisdiction on this side t Atlantic, competent to the trial of Crimes and Criminal Offences there committed, presume that it will be complying with His Excellency's wishes, to confine mys to that alone, and not to enter into matters which concern the Indian Trade carri on to countries within the limits of the United States, where similar complaints not exist. The nature and extent of the Trade to the North West will be mu better understood by referring His Excellency to the very explicit account and d cription thereof contained in Sir Alexander Mackenzie's Voyages, than by anythi I could state. The Trade to that country is carried on by two distinct concer commonly called the old and new companies, the former of which had existed many years but expired in 1798 and was renewed by part of the members; and t latter commenced about the same time, in its distinct capacity; but it is to observed that as several of the new concern had formerly an interest in the concern, so in fact the original or general company, which carried on the Trade, branched off into two Companies of about equal date; to each of which many n members have been added, and are adding, but in compliance with the comm Custom, I shall denominate the one the old, and the other the new company, beca the former comprehends a greater number of the old partners than the latter do

The new Company, upon the commencement of its operations, was viewed by e other with a Jealousy and Rancour improper in the Subjects of the same Empire, rsuing a legal and open Trade, to entertain, which annually increasing, it became ident that the new Company had to expect every obstacle which the old could row in their way.

Had these obstacles been such as a fair and honest emulation and exertion could terpose, there could be no right to complain; but the new Company have to contend gainst those of the most serious and aggravating nature, amongst which are the llowing. The most false and malicious impressions have been made upon the inds of the Indians regarding them, whereby the lives of their associates, clerks nd servants, with the property in their charge are endangered. The Indians have een stimulated to commit actual pillage, and to fire upon Canoes of the new Company. Attempts have been made to debauch and entice away their clerks and ervants, in some cases with effect, and a clerk so debauched from their service afterards employed treacherously to impose upon other persons therein, who were then gnorant of such Treachery. The property of the new Company has been pillaged nd stolen in the Interior Country, in some cases by some of the Associates, Clerks nd servants of the old. Their property has been destroyed by underhand acts.

These are severe charges but strictly true, and the dignity of Government as well s the safety of many of His Majesty's Subjects requires that means should be fallen pon to prevent a Recurrence with impunity of such illegal acts from any quarter. The attempt to pillage having in one instance met with a determined Resistance was attended with fatal effects, and more particularly led to the presentment of the Grand Jury upon general grounds, as to the evil consequences of the want of a Criminal Jurisdiction extending to the Country where that fact happened, having found themselves incompetent to enter upon a legal enquiry into such particular fact. The circumstances alluded to was this. A Clerk of the old Company, confiding in his superior strength, and accompanied by servants, insisted upon taking from a young man, a Clerk of the new Company, without assistance, some Furs, which he had previously received in payment from an Indian. The young man remonstrated against he Injustice, and warned the other of the consequences, as he was determined to rotect the property in his charge, at all hazards. The other still persisted, and laid old of the Furs, to take them by force, when the clerk of the new company fired nd killed him, whilst in the act of what he considered Robbery. Similar cases may ad to similar effects. Retaliations may become frequent. Force may generally revail over Justice. The consequences may be dreadful to contemplate, and the ur Trade must in the end be annihilated, if a competent Jurisdiction is not established in the Canadas, for the Investigation of Crimes and Criminal Offences committed in the British part of the Indian Country, beyond their limits. The young an who killed the other came down with an Intention of meeting the Laws of his ountry, but the fact being not cognizable here, he remains in the deplorable predicament, that neither his Innocence nor his Guilt can be legally ascertained. The umber of persons from Lower Canada employed in the Trade to the North West, ho winter there and therefore are affected by such want of Jurisdiction, may be stimated at from 1200 to 1400 annually, whereof about two-thirds are in the employ f the old Company and about one-third in that of the new. It may therefore be ssumed as a humane and just principle, to assign to the Tribunals here, the cogizances of the Offences which may be committed in situations above said, in all cases here the party accused is associated with, or in the employ of persons resident ithin Lower Canada. It would also have a material tendency to promote order, nd impress the persons employed in that Trade, with a Respect of the Laws, if a Military Post was established at Thunder Bay in Lake Superior, it being the intended Depot of the North West, and to which place the greater number of the men employed in the Interior will annually come, and there meet the Canoes going from Montreal, and if a Civil Magistrate could also be appointed to reside there the consequences would be highly useful in aid of the more extended Jurisdiction of the Tribunals of the Canadas. But I think that the Civil Commission there should be held by a person distinct from that having a military one at that post. And further it would be expedient and wise, to require from the principal of the present Companies, and of every other, who may hereafter trade to the Indian Country within the British Territory beyond the limits of this Province, Bonds of an adequate pecuniary amount, to become responsible for the good conduct of their Associates, agents and servants in that Country, and conditioned, that upon complaint being duly made upon oath, before a Magistrate against any person in their employ for Illegal Conduct, that the principals (upon being thereunto required by the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the Government, after communication to him made of the said oath) shall bring down the person complained against, in order that the Facts alleged may be enquired into and investigated by the proper Tribunal, and if found guilty, that such person (besides undergoing what the Law shall inflict) be for ever after prohibited from returning to the Indian Country; but if he shall be found to have been wrongfully accused, then the principals of the person or persons upon whose complaint he shall have been brought down, be subjected to a pecuniary penalty, exclusive of the Recourse which the accused may have in such case by action at Law, against the parties who wronged him.

In attempting to comply with His Excellency's Request as contained in your Letter, I found it impossible to confine myself to a statement merely of the number of the men employed without going into some detail of the causes of complaint which exist, and which had a material connexion with the subject, and with that Instance, which having much occupied the public mind, as above mentioned, led to the presentment of the Grand Jury, I trust that in this exposure of existing evils, and in the attempt to suggest some Remedies for them, His Excellency will see that there is an anxious desire to bring about an adequate controul against abuse of every kind, from whatever quarter it may proceed.

In regard to the past, the new Company have in their favour at least this prima facie argument independent of facts capable of proof, that being in extent of numbers only as one to two of their Opponents, they have not had the power to commit abuse, were they so Inclined. Whereas the other Company having unquestionably had the power, the effects thereof have been but too severely felt by the new Company.

I have the honour to be with Respect, Sir,

Your most obedt & very Humble servant

JOHN RICHARDSON,

PROPOSED GENERAL FISHERY AND FUR COMPANY.

No. 1.—SIR ALEXANDER MACKENZIE TO LORD HOBART.

NORFOLK STREET 7th Jan. 1802.

MY LORD,—In obedience to Command, I have now the honour of transmitting ur Lordship, inclosed, a Project of "Preliminaries to the establishment of a rmament Fishery & Trade in Furs &c in the interior & on the West Coast of rth America"—expressive of the result of my experience & deliberation on that t National object.

It will require some management to mediate the Coalition of the two Companies ntreal in such a manner as to fix the System of Enterprise necessary for carry- he combination of the Fishery and Fur Trade into effect, as some of the oldest bers are likely to prefer continuing in the Beaten track. Let such be at full ty to do as they please; but if Government should think fit to confide to me the es in question for the behooff of such as shall accede, & at the same time to mmend it to the Governor of Canada to countenance me in my endeavours to it about, as a measure which has the sanction of, & will be protected by Gov- ent; I have not the least doubt of succeeding with all those, whose personal tions are essential; indeed, infinitely more essential than the Capital of the s, since the former can only be replaced by Juniors successively growing up in ervice, during a period of six to ten years; whereas the latter, and any larger that may be found to be necessary or employed to advantage, can be raised at time by recurring to London, and might be raised in London before my depar- were it not thought that those already in trade at Montreal ought to have the rence, and others only the accession to it.

I intend to embark on my return to America, towards the end of the Month; f there is any service, which I may be deemed capable of there performing, it give me pleasure to take charge of it.

I have the honour to be, My Lord,
Your Lordship's Devoted & most faithfull Hble Servant
ALEX. MACKENZIE.

There are at present, vide Mackenzie's Voyages, two Companies at Montreal, engaged in the North American Fur Trade, both of which are chiefly composed of men, who by personal exertions, no less hazardous than laborious & persevering, have contributed to the extension of it into formerly unknown parts; and who, if not the only men able to extend it to the Pacific, are at least the most likely to succeed, as the best qualified to undertake it. These Companies have not heretofore had any idea of embarking in the Pacific Fishery, but if they should succeed in combining the Fur Trade of the East with that of the West they would find it highly beneficial to combine the latter, if not both, with the Whale Fishery, and in so far as they may not be possessed of a Capital sufficient for carrying on both the Fishery & Fur Trade, they would be at no loss for Partners in London who would raise the deficiency.

The Whalers might carry out from England all the British articles Saleable or rather barterable for the furs and other Products of America, & bring back such part of the latter as would best suit the British Market; while other vessels of such a size & construction as may be found best adapted might be employed to carry the samples to Canton & such other of the Settlements of the East India Company, as offer the best Market, in the way either of Sale or Barter.

But as it is obvious that the two Companies already embarked in the Fur Trade from Montreal, including their several connections in London, must find their interest in coalescing, may that the great national object in view, in the first instance, if not wholly unattainable without, will at least be best attainable through, a voluntary connection & consolidation of the two Companies into one for such a number of years & on such other terms as they may agree upon ; so is there not the least reason to doubt ; That under such Licences 1st of Fishing Trade & Navigation & 2nd of Transit, they would unite themselves & succeed equally to their own profit & to the public advantage.

LONDON 7th January 1802
ALEX. MACKENZIE.

No. 2.—SIR ALEXANDER MACKENZIE TO JOHN SULLIVAN.

MONTREAL 25th October, 1802.

SIR,—My Lord Hobart having done me the honour at parting, to express a wish of hearing from me, on this side the Atlantic, I take the liberty of addressing you, enclosing copies of two papers, which, on the substance of which, I presume will be transmitted through the Lieut. Governor, tho' not perhaps immediately, and which I beg leave to request, that you will please with this to lay before His Lordship. The papers will explain themselves, and I am sorry to say shew that I have not succeeded ; as also evince the improbability of my being able to succeed in bringing about the union between the two Fur Companies which my Lord Hobart so strongly recommended to me as the first step towards the accomplishment of my favourite project : Without the aid of Government, by granting the Licences (I had the honour of proposing) to one of the contending parties, with the condition that the other party should have the option of sharing, in the proportion of the Trade they might be carrying on, to that part of His Majesty's Dominions, I see no means of bringing about a coalition, for several years to come, by which time the Trade may be reduced if not ruined, and the opportunity of making the Western Establishment lost perhaps for ever.

I have conversed with General Hunter upon the subject and though averse to Monopolies of any kind, he agreed with me that no mode would answer to carry on that trade to advantage & to make the proposed Establishments, but through a Chartered Company. I had no promise from His Excellency that he would communicate this his opinion to His Majesty's Ministers.

As so little probability exists of bringing about in a reasonable time a Voluntary Coalition of the two Fur Companies, may I be permitted to submit to His Lordship's consideration, the expediency of securing at all events in a National point of view the means of hereafter giving efficiency to the favourite project alluded to, or any other which Government may think it eligible to countenance, by forming an immediate Military Establishment upon the Western Coast of North America, so as to prevent other nations anticipating us in an object, the importance of which cannot at present be foreseen in all its consequences.

And further I cannot too strongly entreat His Lordship's attention to the propriety & necessity of establishing as speedily as possible such a jurisdiction as shall prevent the contending Fur Companies from abusing any power which superiority of numbers or strength may accidentally confer, and which shall seem to each, the fruits of fair harvest and industrious exertion.

A jurisdiction possessing such efficient Judicial Control, besides having the most beneficial effects in general, might also be a means of promoting a speedier Voluntary Coalition of the Companies, by preventing a recurrence of those causes of increasing animosity which tend to keep them asunder.

It will not escape His Lordship's penetration, that in any Legislative interference upon the subject, it will be essential to avoid everything which could be construed to confer upon the Hudson's Bay Company a Parliamentary sanction in regard to their doubtful charter, or which could give them the right of checking commercial enterprise from this quarter by the usual inland routes into any Territory which Traders from hence have been accustomed to occupy; although the same may nominally be included in the limits of the said Charter.

I had the honour of remarking to my Lord Hobart that an attempt had been made by one of the partners in the old Fur Company to penetrate in a more Southern direction than I did to the River Columbia in which he failed through ill health; a second attempt has been made by another partner of the same concern with no better success, owing to a mutiny of the men employed, arising as I judge from the want of an appropriate Talent for such an undertaking in the leader. I have been credibly informed that the Astronomer who went upon both expeditions declares positively that the object is not impracticable.

The communication to the Lieut. Governor through Mr. Ryland is clearly and decidedly the sentiments of the principal people of the new company of whom Mr. Richardson is one & a most valuable, active & respectable Magistrate of this City.

I have the honour to be with much respect,

Your Devoted and faithful Humble servant

ALEX. MACKENZIE.

Governor or administrator; believing that no change was to be made in paying out of the Army extraordinaries, had applied to Hunter, but was answered that as Commander-in-Chief he had nothing to do with it, being now a civil expenditure. Sends list of appointments. Should no order be received to pay the salaries out of the Army extraordinaries, he would issue a warrant on the Receiver General. Desires also to be informed if he is to draw provisions and other articles from the King's store for the Indian Department. Should it be decided that the officers are not to have barrack allowance, as not being on the military establishment, trusts that they may receive an equivalent allowance. increase in this expenditure owing to the erection of gaols and cour houses undertaken at His Majesty's command. The addition to th salaries of the puisne judges will be nearly made up by the increase revenues from the Forges and wharf. In consequence of the price o fuel for the use of the Chateau, &c., being stopped by the Duke of Ken has charged the same to the Provincial revenues, and made an allow ance to the persons in the Secretary's office. His Majesty will rely entirely on his (Milnes') judg ment in the distribution of the proposed grants to those who have a those who have not attended the meetings of the land committee reg larly. Those who have not attended at all cannot expect a share of th favour. 1

November 1, Quebec. Milnes to Portland (separate). His belief that the real situation affairs in Canada is not known to His Majesty's Ministers. The found tion of the constitution must rest on the proportion between the ar tocracy and the lower orders; several causes are lessening the power the Government. 1. From the manner in which the Province w originally settled; the independent tenure on which the cultivato hold their lands, the little power retained by the seigniors, their ind position to trade to improve their fortunes, so that they are compelled live like the simple habitants, who have little connection with th seigniors except the obligation of having the corn ground at the Can mills, the passing a toll of each fourteenth bushel, which they consid rather as a burdensome toll than as a return for the land, which is held very easy conditions. 2. The prevalence of the Roman Catholic religio and independence of the Church, which goes further than was intende by the Royal instructions, so that the whole patronage has been throw into the hands of the Roman Catholic Bishop. 3. The necessity whi existed at the time of the conquest for disembodying the militia. Thes facts are more important since the establishment of the new constitutio Formerly an ordinance issued in name of the King of France was suf cient to enforce the execution of a measure without argument or doub Now measures are discussed in the House of Assembly, so that the pow of the executive government may insensibly become nothing; t seigniors have not power to ensure their own election or that of any s they may support; the ignorant man, who cannot perhaps sign his nam has a better chance than the first officer of the Crown and he at one tim despaired of getting the Attorney General into the Assembly. T habitants are industrious, peaceable and well disposed, but liable be misled by artful and designing men, and once sensible of th own independence the worst consequences might follow, as they the sole proprietors of nearly all the cultivated lands in Low Canada, the seigniors and ecclesiastical bodies having conceded them for ever the greater part of the lands in parcels of from 100 200 acres, with conditions as to mills, &c. So that the seigni are in many instances reduced below the situation of their vass

The equality of situation throughout the country owing to the mode of life of the habitants, little or no difference in affluence being discoverable except in the towns of Quebec, Montreal and Three Rivers. The counties are divided into parishes, the principal person in each of which is the priest and the next the captain of Militia. How the influence of the Government might be extended; it must be at some expense, but that would be little compared with the cost of quelling a disturbance. Much could be effected by means of grants of lands in free and common socage, but in the meantime much might be done through the Catholic priests and next through the Militia. The present Bishop is extremely well disposed; he has £200 a year from the Government, and the rent of the Palace for public offices, for the latter of which he has applied for an increase. His income, the Bishop states, is now inadequate for his situation and the calls upon it. An increase to this might help to attach the Bishop and the priests to the Government and to use their influence in the parishes, encourage a spirit of loyalty in opposition to the spirit of democracy, which has fortunately not made much progress yet in Canada. The population computed to be about 160,000, nine-tenths of which reside in the parishes, the Militia 37,904, with 292 captains and 16 of a staff, the latter chiefly seigniors. The powers of the Captains under a French rule, the feeling of which remains though the power is withdrawn, but they are still employed in performing services for Government with only the sense of the honour of being so employed, but this is by no means equivalent to the expenditure of the time and trouble. Suggests that by some honorary and pecuniary reward, or by some other plan, this class might be brought to consider themselves as officers of the Crown; in this way a spirit of loyalty would be diffused through the whole province, a spirit which is natural to the Canadians. Other suggestions might be made but these he will defer. In the meantime calls attention to the relative expenditure for civil and military purposes, the latter out of proportion to the former, whilst by a proper system not only would the military expenses be greatly lessened and the country secured from internal commotion, but the co-operation of the inhabitants could be secured for the defence of the country. The deficiency of the revenue on an average of the last five years amounts to £12,000 yearly; the military expense is about £260,000, which would probably be doubled in event of insurrection, or of war with the States, so that it is important to consider by what means the influence of the Crown may be increased. How a majority in the House of Assembly could be secured. The importance of the fact that the revenue does not meet the expenditure so that the deficiency is made up by His Majesty's Government. The proposal to fund the proceeds of the sales of waste lands, the interest to be applied towards civil expenditure. Calculation as to the wealth, power and influence that must accrue to the parent State when these lands are settled. The good effects of education on the rising generation, who are now sent to the neighbouring States for this purpose. The respectable footing on which the Protestant Church is about to be placed in Quebec will tend to increase the consideration which ought to prevail for the Established Church. Page 228

November 4, Quebec. Milnes to Portland (No. 37). The importance of obtaining the highest price possible for the lands to be first sold; the remaining parts of the townships partially granted are of the greatest value from having been surveyed and subdivided and the vicinity settled. The competition for these should essentially influence the value of lands throughout the Province. Recommends, in reference to a dispatch respecting the waste lands, that the proceeds of the sales should be used to purchase into the Public Funds, the interest of the stock to be applied in aid of the civil expenditure of the Province. STATE PAPERS—LOWER CANADA.

Lieut. Gov. R. S. Milnes—1801.

Q. 86—1.

Portland to Milnes (secret and separate). Enumerates the cases popular influence stated in letter from Milnes of the 1st Novembe namely, the separate interests of the seigniors and habitants, the inde pendence of the Roman Catholic clergy, who are accountable only t their Bishop, and third, the necessity of disembodying the Canadia Militia. With regard to the first, the only remedy is to encourage th individual Canadian gentlemen who show an ambition to emerge fro their present insignificance. Is surprised at the little success in raisin the Canadian Militia; had any eagerness been shown in completing th battalion a second or third of the same sort might have been raise With respect to the Roman Catholic clergy, cannot understand why th instructions are disregarded. These are: "That no person whatever "to have Holy Orders conferred upon him or to have the care of soul "without licence first had and obtained from the Governor." The r sumption of that power is of the first importance and every possible pr dent means must be used to that end, and the addition to the income the Bishop may contribute to its accomplishment. How the militia coul be turned to account. At present there is no provision for calling out th force, except for two days in the year for mustering. Proposes to call portion out annually by ballot to be exercised for three weeks or a mont in such manner that all the officers and men would take their regular tur of duty. This would require the permanent pay of an adjutant to eac regiment, of a certain number of non-commissioned officers, fifes an drums as in the militia of the United Kingdom. Other appointmen may be made to provide for the annual exercise. He only suggests a outline of the proposed legislation most likely to establish the intere between the militia and the executive authority; if he thinks the amen ments will meet the concurrence of the Legislature the sooner they a put into proper form the better The effect of the land grants in lesse ing the degree of popular influence now possessed by that description His Majesty's Canadian subjects, which now constitute so great a propo tion of the inhabitants of the Province. January — Whitehall. Portland to Milnes (No. 11). Dispatches received and laid before the King. In order that the commissioners may proceed in building the Metropolitan Church at Quebec without interruption, he may authorize the expenditure of such sums as may be necessary above the £400 already specified as the annual allowance, but the Protestant inhabitants are expected to contribute as far as their means may allow. General Hunter shall be informed that it is not intended to make any change in the method of defraying the expense of the Indian Department in Lower Canada. The object of placing it under the civil authorities in each Province is to reduce the expense by subjecting it to more minute attention. The allowance to the officers should be reduced in both Provinces as low as circumstances will admit. Approves of his proposal of selling the residues of townships in which grants have been made at the highest price possible; the steps to be taken to effect this. The amounts remaining after expenses for public services, &c., are to be remitted to the Treasury for investment. All the price to be paid before a patent issues for the lands. The constitution of a Board for the management of the Crown and Clergy Reserves; how the revenues should be remitted to be invested in the Funds for the public service of the Colony in so far as regards the former and in accordance with the Act for the appropriation of the latter, the accounts of each to be kept entirely separate, the Clergy Reserves being exclusively appropriated for the support of a Protestant clergy, and must therefore be vested in trust for that purpose. Sends report received from the Executive Council on the terms on which it was considered expedient to dispose of the Crown Reserves, in which report he perfectly concurs. Orders have been sent by the Admiralty to the Naval Commander at Halifax to send a frigate to convoy the trade from Quebec to England. 10

February 23, Quebec. Milnes to Portland (No. 42). Transmits reports from the commissioners for managing the Jesuit estates. The first (A) shows the revenue in 1781 to have been £1,245 5s. 4d., exclusive of property in Quebec and Montreal; the second (B) that it had increased to £1,358 13s. 4d. The property is capable of great improvement, and there are 500,000 acres of unconceded lands, but these are in general 20 leagues in depth and not more than one or two leagues in front, great part running into a mountainous country and not likely to be conceded for a long period. Does not now, therefore, think that the measure for the division of the property, which he proposed, would be beneficial. If it is determined to carry into effect the proposal in respect to Lord Amherst the moment is particularly favourable, but it will be always an unpopular act and create much dissatisfaction. His Majesty's intention to establish free schools has been made public in his (Milnes') speech and has had the happiest effect in setting aside all reference to the Jesuit estates. The Assembly is preparing a bill to secure the views of His Majesty, to authorize the erection of schools in the parishes to be under the control of the Executive Government. Should the Roman Catholic clergy not use their influence against the proposal, it will probably be adopted, but they seem to have hitherto discouraged the introduction of learning into the Province. The buildings and town lots in Quebec and Montreal, to be reserved for the Crown may be considered as more than an equivale for the expense attending the first establishment of free schools. This is shown in enclosure C, in which the Jesuit College at Quebec, now in possession of the military, is mentioned as being sufficient to afford barrack room for from 1,500 to 1,800 men, besides store room for immense quantities of provisions. The Canadians must consider themselves as cut off from all hope of seeing that building restored to its original purpose, so that by the declaration of the intention respecting the establishment of free schools, the hope of an adequate advantage is held out. Shall refer to the Council the question of the quantity of Crown lands it may be necessary to reserve for education, and transmit their report. Page 94

ry 23, Milnes to Portland (No. 43). Calls attention to the absence of Joseph Bunbury, drawing the pay of Deputy Agent for Indian affairs at Montreal, though he has been absent since 1799. Reports the office vacant and recommends the appointment of Lieut. Colonel Dechambault deputy superintendent of the Abenaki and St. Francis Indians, and the appointment to that office of Major de Salaberry. In hope of these being approved of will issue commissions so that the business of these departments may be transacted. 132

ry 24, Same to same (No. 44). Dispatches received. Shall take steps to recover from Finlay the balance due to the General Post Office, but is afraid there is not property sufficient to meet the demand against him. Sends estimated value of the waste lands as a guide to the proportion of land to be granted to the members of the Executive Council. A township of ten miles square, after deducting expenses of surveying, &c. (enumerated) has an estimated value of something under £2,500. Explains how the regulation respecting grants to associates was set aside by underhand means, which it would be below the dignity of an Executive Councillor to enter into; recommends, therefore, that any grant should be made to the members of the Council solely and not with associates. 134

17, Same to same (No. 45). Calls attention to the case of Michel Kiatherati, an Indian convicted of murder in March, 1799, and sentenced to be executed on the 22nd of that month, but respited by Prescott, till the King's pleasure should be known. Recommends him to clemency. 137

26, Same to the same (separate and secret). His fear that the unanimity of the Council will be destroyed, as he can no longer depend on the candid co-operation of Chief Justice Osgoode. His (Milnes') conciliatory conduct towards Osgoode, until he had assumed a deportment and manner pointedly disrespectful, and afterwards violently to oppose a measure of great importance to the Province. His conduct in part arises from the refusal to dismiss Judge De Bonne, whose conduct since complaints were made has been satisfactory. Osgoode's desire to be the sole adviser and promoter of every Government measure and the offence he takes at other members being listened to. He has now thrown off all decorum and shown his hostility to his (Milnes') administration. His refusal to assent to the means proposed is not considered reprehensible, but his conduct in respect to it is so. Enters into details in relation to the bill respecting Court House on which the difference with Osgoode has arisen, a bill which was satisfactory both to the Council and Assembly and points out the awkwardness of the Lieut. Governor's position in view of the procedure of the Chief Justice. 142

April 16, Quebec. Milnes to Portland (No. 47). Sends abstract of bill relating to lods ventes and report on the subject from the Attorney General, the lat sent in consequence of the opposition and protest of Osgoode. Agr with the Attorney General that it is not only a matter of sound poli but that the bill is a material step towards abolishing the feudal ten in the Province, as will be found fully explained in the report of Attorney General. The lods et ventes are due to the King by only a f whilst they are paid to the seigniors and the two Seminaries of Quebec Montreal by 99 out of every 100 persons, any tax which the Crown mi seek to raise on the whole body of the people might have been deemed just, so long as the lods et ventes due by the seigniors and Seminaries rem unclaimed. Has heard no indication that the measure is unpopular besides it originated in the Assembly and not in the Executive Coun Dorchester's message giving His Majesty's sanction to this interferen The respectable character of the Commission under the Act. It expected that a bill will be introduced next session to commute lods et ventes in His Majesty's censive, which it is hoped will be follow by a similar commutation as it will render it necessary for the Hous raise this sum leaving the territorial revenues free to be used for general expenses of the Province.

June 10, Quebec. Milnes to Portland (secret and separate). Remarks on the p bility of the lods et ventes (mutation fines) being abolished by the of the passage of the Act on that subject and the consequent facility for the purchase of lands in free and common soccage, and the mixture of the English and Canadians. Cannot account for the little success attending the establishment of the Canadian battalion. Had understood that the patronage of that corps was in the hands of the civil department, but finds now it rests with the Commander-in-Chief. Were the patronage with the Governor, as in other Colonies, it might be the means of drawing out the Canadian gentlemen. Shall try to effect a change in the relations between the Roman Catholic clergy and Government. In order to obtain a proper knowledge of the state of the militia, he shall make a tour of the Province, charging the cost to the Contingent Account. Page 93

Milnes to Portland (No. 54). Transmits copy of another protest lodged by Chief Justice Osgoode, with an account of the circumstances. The other members of Council are against its admission and to avoid a decision had stated that he would send it to be laid before His Majesty. Had examined the record to ascertain the practice as to receiving protest. Dissents were allowed during the time of Hamilton and Hope, but since 1792, only one is entered and in that case the name of the person is simply stated. In Dorchester's time the names for and against an Order in Council were struck out, but in one case of an Order in Council respecting fees, the words "upon a division" were allowed to be entered in the minutes. Further remarks on the circumstances, and on the danger in a Colony differing in religious and political opinions to allow of such a course as that demanded by the Chief Justice being granted. 105

Portland to Milnes. Dispatches 48 and 49 and separate and secret letter of 29th April laid before the King. (The real date of the separate and secret letter is 26th March, see Q. 86–1, p. 142.) The Act for the relief of persons holding lands en roture, although not brought forward in a strictly formal manner, was fully warranted by the message of Lord Dorchester. Is willing to believe that Osgoode's opposition proceeded from laudable motives, and cannot but regret that the want of communication on his part prevented steps being taken that would have obviated his objections. The policy of the measures is declaratory of the rights of the Crown and renders their exercise less dangerous to the subject. The application of the sums arising from the Act being left to His Majesty, there is no need for an Act to authorize their application. The House of Assembly will of course repay the money stated in No. 48 to have been advanced. The rule as to entering protests in the minutes of the Executive Council may follow that in the Privy Council, in which the utmost freedom of speech is allowed, but no protests are entered on

(See Q. 87-1, p. 151.) Sends additional information. (This is substantially the same as in letter to King of 16th September, at page 297.) The Militia called out and acted with alacrity, a change for the better, as on a former occasion they acted with such reluctance that it was thought advisable not to follow up that order; has no doubt that this alacrity has arisen from having reviewed them himself, an attention they had never received from the King's representative, and a yearly repetition would have the best effect. Police associations are forming in Montreal, composed of the most respectable inhabitants; 600 stand of arms have been deposited there by Hunter for the use of the Militia. Thornton has been informed of the plans reported to be carrying on in Vermont, and a confidential person has been employed to watch Ira Allen and his associates. A correspondence has been established with the curés, to report the arrival of strangers or suspicious persons in the parishes. The United States Government does not appear to have any knowledge of the plans, so that it is to be presumed that Ira Allen is employed by the emissaries of France. 377

Milnes to Hobart (separate). Finlay, senior member of the Executive and Legislative Council, and Major Holland, Surveyor General, died in the course of last month. Recommends Justice Williams for the vacant office in the Council. Owing to the absence of two and the distance at which others live, it is necessary that the office should be filled as soon as possible, should it be considered that Judge De Bonne has the best claim to the seat, hopes that a mandamus to that effect will be sent early as convenient. Calls attention to the distressed state of Finlay's family. The infirm state of Holland's health rendered him incapable of the regular execution of his duties; the importance of the office; a Committee of the whole Council appointed to investigate the state of the documents and records. Is afraid that the system introduced by Gale, whilst assistant, may lead to much litigation; the necessity of having a person of ability and integrity to establish a proper system. 51

Milnes to Hobart (separate and secret). Warrant issued for £275 17s. 10d., arrears of salary claimed by Osgoode. Is anxious to know the determination respecting Osgoode's office of Chief Justice; his salary has been claimed by his agents but shall postpone a decision till after the arrival of the mail. The Chief Justice of Montreal (Monk) has presided over the Commission of Oyer and Terminer for the district of Quebec and has been appointed Speaker of the Legislature, but it would not be for the benefit of His Majesty's Service to continue him in the latter office. The importance of having the office of Chief Justice filled up, and that whoever is appointed should be well acquainted with French. Page 75

Enclosed. Answer to Lester, agent for Chief Justice Osgoode, that he must postpone issuing a warrant for his salary till the arrival of the April mail. 78

Milnes to Hobart (No. 26). The length of time that has elapsed since the confinement of George Parrell, on a charge of murder on the high seas, makes him anxious for the new commission for the trial of marine felonies. Powell to have leave of absence on his application. The proclamation notifying the conclusion of the war and the regulations for the navigation of British ships in time of peace has been published, and a day of thanksgiving ordered to be held. Is happy to find that his interpretations of the grant to Caldwell was correct. Has every reason to hope for continued unanimity on the part of the two branches of the Legislature. Is flattered at his recommendation on behalf of De Bonne, and Williams has been approved of. Has laid Mrs. Clarke's memorial before the Council. 99

Hobart to Milnes (No. 10). Minute of the Lords of Trade in Gale's memorial forwarded; the necessity for some legislative provision to obviate the difficulties respecting the titles of land to early settlers. To consult, take measures and report.

Milnes to Hobart (No. 27). The increase to the salary of the Chief Justice of Montreal (Monk) has been notified to him. Had issued a warrant for Osgoode's salary up to the 30th of April. His satisfaction at the appointment of Elmsley. Explanation of the cause which led to the appointment of Taschereau to be Superintendent of Post-houses; the nature of the services rendered by these houses; the class of people who act as Maîtres des postes and their independent positions. Heriot's error as to the position of Superintendent of Posts being part of the appointment of Deputy Postmaster General, because the offices were conjoined in Finlay; the influence possessed by Taschereau, and the importance of securing his services in this capacity as well as in that of Grand Voyer. 105

A.—Letters from the Chief Justice and puisné judges of Montreal, dated 12th September, with calendar of prisoners tried, convicted and under sentence at the last session of the Court of King's Bench. Two presentments of the Grand Jury transmitted, one respecting the escape of prisoners from the district gaol, the other respecting murders lately committed in the interior or Indian country; the evils and dangers arising from this cause. The importance of giving commissions to the sons of Canadian gentlemen. 172

Calls attention to an error in his letter of 4th October, marked separate and secret, in stating that the increase of revenue was £4,000 instead of £3,000, the real amount (a reference to p. 125 shows that the real amount (£3,000) was stated in the letter and probably copied incorrectly). The statement to the Duke of Portland in letter of 16th April, 1801 (No. 47), that the produce of the lods et ventes in 1759, the last year of the French Government was about £900, and that

November 18, Quebec. Milnes to Hobart (No. 37). Had sent observations on the Fur trade in No. 33 (p. 144). Now sends abstract of the imports and exports since 1793 to date, both inclusive, showing an export trade of upwards of 35,000 tons, nearly double of that employed in any of the first six years, and there has been a regular and essential increase in the last three years, a proof of the growing importance of the Colony. Ship building was carried on during the war, which explains why the number of vessels leaving exceeds those entering the port. The harvest of this year is about equal to the last, the aggregate exported exceeds any former period, being equal to about 1,200,000 bushels of grain. 24[illegible]

In consideration of Heriot's expectations he may be recommended for an additional situation of equal emolument to that of Superintendent of Maîtres des postes. Cannot comply with the application of Lanaudière. Immediate atten-

Sullivan to Milnes. That owing to the importance of the subject, he had introduced Mr. Osborne to the Admiralty, &c., with a copy of his (Milnes') letter of the 16th November. Same management required to bring about the coalition of the two companies at Montreal. Those who do not go into the partnership should be allowed to do as they please, but asks that the licenses shall be confided to him for behoof of those who shall accede. Has no doubt of succeeding with those whose personal exertion are infinitely more essential than the capital of the others, as they can only be replaced by juniors growing up in the service during a period of from six to ten years, whereas the capital can be raised at any time. Intends to embark towards the end of the month. Page 37

nber 13, c. Milnes to Hobart (No. 41). Sends memorial from the members of the Scotch Church, Quebec, for ground in Upper Town in which to erect a church and also to enable them to defray the cost of building and for the support of religious worship. Has granted £50 a year to the Scotch Minister at Quebec, the same as for the one at Montreal. Should a portion of the Crown lands be appropriated for the use of the Church of Scotland in Lower Canada, it should be subject to the ordinary control of the Board for the management of the Reserves, otherwise that Church would be placed on a more independent footing than the Established Church (the Church of England). Sends also a memorial from Mr. Plessis, on behalf of the Congréganistes de Notre Dame for a piece of land to erect a church. The members of the Scotch Church have been allowed the use of one of the largest rooms in the Jesuit College (now the Barracks), but that will be given up when they have a separate building. The grants should be made of land within the walls of Quebec. Such a grant would rather help than obstruct the union of the Church of Scotland with the Church of England.

ber 27, sh. W. M. Pitt to ———. Has had no answer respecting Gambier's Chief Justiceship, asks him to communicate Addington's answer. Desires to know whether it is Hobart's wish to discourage the grants of land in Canada or to encourage useful men to go thither. If the former, he has nothing to say, if the latter, he has two or three good men to recommend who might succeed admirably there, who have been officers of merit, one especially of talents fit for any purpose; which he details, yet he was reduced to the greatest indigence, through no fault of his own. The other cases are not so deplorable. If permanent employment could be found for him had no doubt his friends could raise £300 or £400. Scott's gratitude. The Bishop of Quebec is going to ordain him. He, his wife and eight children owe their promised affluence to Hobart's benevolence. 377

Should there be any material objection could any other seigniory be pointed out to be reserved for the purpose mentioned, if so describe it and state the reasons for recommending the one and objecting to the other. 6

Milnes to Hobart (separate and secret). Sends correspondence relating to Heriot's demand to be appointed to the position of Superintendent of the Maîtres des postes, in order to meet the statements made by him; the correspondence enclosed. 117
Enclosed. Heriot's letter to Milnes, dated 21st March, that the only eligible method of conveying the mails was by the use of the post houses; that Taschereau can send no assistance towards this and that the superintendence should be on his (Heriot's) hands. A better situation might be found for Taschereau. 121
Another letter from Heriot, dated 25th March, on the same subject of the transfer of the office of Superintendent from Taschereau to him (Heriot). 123
Letter from Heriot of same date, giving reasons why the couriers should not pay the Maîtres des postes the same fare as that allowed for ordinary travellers. They are satisfied with the rates allowed. 125
Hobart to Milnes, 1st December, 1802. Hopes that an office with a salary equivalent to that of Superintendent of post houses might be found for Heriot. 128
J. Stuart to James McGill and John Lees, 26th March, 1803, for information respecting reported dissatisfaction on the part of the Maîtres des postes. 129
Answer, same date, that the Maîtres des postes were dissatisfied. 1. Because they were not sufficiently paid for the post office couriers, who frequently carried an unreasonable weight of baggage. 2. That travellers did not employ them when the roads were good, but did so when they were bad, and they were obliged to keep horses unemployed a considerable part of the year. 130
Heriot to Milnes, 21st March. Proposes to change the hours for the departure of the mail couriers so as to secure greater expedition. The New York agent's explanation of the delay in forwarding the British mails. 132
Extract from the New York agent's letter explaining the delay in forwarding mails to Canada, 24th February. 133
Jas. Stuart to Heriot, 21st March. His Excellency has no objection to the proposed change in the time of the departure of the mails. 134
Milnes to Hobart (No. 49). Sends speech on proroguing the Legislature, with a schedule of the Acts passed during the session. Will comment in a separate dispatch on the Act relating to the Militia. It authorizes the Governor to expend £2,500 annually as he shall judge expedient towards the formation of an efficient Militia; other and new powers are granted. The Act is limited to four years' duration. Hopes it may lay the foundation for an advantageous system. 135 deviation from the original plan which could increase the cost. Th Commissioners have sent a second representation that the estimate ha fallen short of what will be absolutely necessary to complete the build ing. The impossibility of making correct estimate of the cost of erectin stone buildings even of an inferior character owing to the infant stat of the Colony. The care taken by Captain Role in his superintendenc of the work. Page 14

May 31, Quebec. Milnes to Hobart (No. 52). Dispatches received. Shall give carefu attention to the eligibility of establishing a chartered company for th Fur Trade, but as yet is not prepared to give a decided opinion. Ha communicated to Heriot the wish of the Postmaster General that h should co-operate with Taschereau. Heriot, however, had previously taken measures that rendered this unnecessary. There is no land with in the walls of Quebec for sites for the Scotch Church and for th Congregation of Notre Dame, except that belonging to the Jesuit estates This site occupied by the Jesuit Church might be given for both, as i must be pulled down owing to its ruinous condition. The relinquishin of the rooms in the Jesuit Barracks by these two bodies of worshipper seems a reason for granting them land on which to erect their respectiv churches. 15

Ryland to Heriot. To co-operate with Taschereau in respect to th post-houses. 15

May 31, Quebec. Milnes to John Sullivan. Asks for new sets of Mediterranean passes Shall give the most serious attention to the question of an arrangemen between Government and Lord Amherst respecting the Jesuit estates Has just received accounts from the Commissioners of their annual pro duct since they were taken possession of by Government, so that h hopes to give his sentiments by next opportunity. Regrets that th Canadian oak has not proved of the quality required by the navy Hopes, however, that Usborne's efforts to establish commerce in thi and other timber may conduce to the essential increase of the trade of th Province. Gentlemen whose Mandamuses are still lying at the Secretary of State's office have been informed that they should direct their agent to apply for them. 15

June 1, Quebec. Same to Hobart (secret). With papers respecting an apprehende attack on the Province. Although he sees no ground to apprehend an serious attack, yet the unableness of the military force may encourag intriguers. 16

Enclosed. G. O. Bradford to the Attorney General, dated Montrea 5th May, that six or eight men with commissions from the Republic France has arrived, having been lately under the command of Humbe in Ireland; two were French, two Scotch, the rest Irish. Thei language evinced hostility to the British Government. 16

Ryland to John Richardson, J. P. That he is to investigate th reports sent by Sullivan, with whom a correspondence may b opened. 16

Material circumstances stated by Daniel Sullivan of St. John's, addressed to Ryland, dated Montreal, 12th July, 1803. Repeating the conversations he overheard and the information he obtained of the designs of men who were employed by the French Government to carry out intrigues against Canada. Two Canadians, Pailleur and Mezières had joined the French officers at Concord, New Hampshire. Description of the two Frenchmen Lacroix and Leclere and of McGinnes and McDonald, all four holding commissions from the French Republic. Page 169

Extract of a letter from John Richardson to Ryland, dated 16th May, that he had received warning from Auldjo to be on the look-out for emissaries sent from France to Canada by Bonaparte. Two of them are de Léry, an officer of French artillery, and Villeray, Canadian born, the latter of who will come under pretext of seeing his friends. 170

Justice Parent to Ryland, 24th May, 1803. Sends extract of letters from France to show that the French had the acquisition of Canada as much at heart as that of Louisiana. 171

Milnes to Hobart (No. 53). Sends exemplifications of Acts passed last session, ot which a schedule and copy of the journals of the Legislative Council are enclosed. The regulation of the Militia was strongly recommended to the Legislature by Lord Dorchester, in 1796 (p. 223). Remarks on the bill as now passed and its effects. Fears it cannot be carried into complete execution whilst the regular military force is not more imposing. The good effect of reviewing the Militia, which he shall continue. Has encouraged the formation of Volunteer companies, of which three are already formed at Montreal, clothed at their own expense; three more are about to offer at Quebec, and one at Three Rivers. Hopes by these means that the backwardness to serve may be gradually got the better of. Refers to correspondence with Portland in 1800-1801; it may be desirable, after certain progress shall have been made, to grant additional pecuniary aid; in the meantime, asks for authority to receive from His Majesty's stores only such arms as may be wanted for the use of the Militia, accoutrements and clothing for 1,200 men having been already provided. 174

Milnes to Hobart (No. 55). Encloses letter from Isaac Winslow Clarke and of the report thereon by Committee of the Council. which he had been encouraged on account of the recommendation to that effect of the Duke of Portland; sends extract from letter to that effect addressed to His Grace, and also from speech to the Legislature. Out of £1,200 Clarke received £200 to carry on the experiment, but had been gradually led on to a much larger expense. Solicits His Grace's approval of the recommendation of the Council, that in consideration of his exertions, Clarke may obtain a grant of Crown lands. Much ground has been prepared this spring for sowing hemp, but it has been impossible to obtain seed. 300

Enclosed. Clarke to Ryland, 31st July, 1802, giving an account of his operations in conducting experiments on the culture of hemp and the cause of the large expense incurred. 303

LIEUT. GOV. MILNES—1803.

Q. 92.

June 6, Sans Bruit.

Bishop (Anglican) of Quebec to Milnes. Sends with reluctance on account of the ecclesiastical state of affairs in the Province, not because he doubts the importance or urgency of the matters to be laid before him, but because the time may seem ill chosen, when His Majesty's bounty is largely employed in completing a Metropolitan

Church, but he feels impelled to surmount his scruples and submit several points of immediate moment. The instructions and other documents show the uniform decision to establish the Church of England in Canada. This, he need not observe, has been very imperfectly effected. Considered with respect to the establishment of the Church of Rome, the Church of England sinks into a merely tolerated sect, with not a shilling of revenue it can call its own, without laws to control its members or regulate its vestries, without provision for organizing an ecclesiastical court, or power to enforce its decisions, and what is worst, without a body of clergy capable, either by number or authority to maintain their own usefulness or support the dignity of a church establishment. Is aware that local laws, &c., must be looked for from the Provincial Parliament ,but as at present constituted, the Church of England must not expect any material assistance from it, unless it be first raised from its present depression and derive from the proper authority the weight which can alone give it its constitutional preponderance as the established religion of the country. Wishes to have it determined :—1. Whether the church now building in Quebec, be a metropolitan or merely a parochial church, and be left without a chapter, or some portion of the dignity which should constitute its appropriate character? If a parochial church merely, whether the intention of establishing the Church of England in Canada and of supporting a Bishop's see will not be totally abandoned. The advantages of this establishment, which would extend not merely to Protestants of Lower but also to those of Upper Canada. The majority in both Provinces are dissenters. An effectual and respectable establishment would go near to unite them all within its pale. He would say nothing of its religious benefits, but the political advantages would be incalculable. Another advantage would be the facilitating of the supply of clergy for reasons given. The salaries of the Rectors of Quebec and Montreal are too low, never having been increased since first fixed, although the necessaries of life cost three times what they did then, now £200 a year is very inadequate to the support of a respectable rank in society in these cities, with so many demands for charity, &c. At Three Rivers, the salary being the same as in Quebec and Montreal is enough at present, but that at William Henry (£100) is certainly too low. There is next the want of jurisdiction in the Bishop, instances being given of the evils of this. Suggests that a corporation consisting of the Bishop, the Dean and chapter and other clergy should be constituted for the management of the Clergy Reserves, the income to be at the disposition of the Governor and Council of each Province, and that the Bishop and chapter should be endowed with a portion of the Crown Lands. Vindicates his motives for the application, after the ample provision already made for the support of a Protestant clergy, the prospect of a revenue from the reserved lands is yet entirely future, and that as it increases it would not augment the income of any individual. Refers to successive acts for erecting the Provinces into a Bishop's see, to be called the Bishopric of Quebec, at the same time forbidding the assumption of the title of Bishop or the exercise of any episcopal or vicarial powers within the Province, by any person professing the religion of the Church of Rome, except such as are necessary for the free exercise of that religion, and that only by license from the Governor. But the Superintendent of the Church of Rome is in the enjoyment of all the power and privileges of episcopal authority under which he visits not only this Province or that of Upper Canada, but the Provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, under the immediate sanction of the Pope's bull. His assumption of the title of Bishop of Quebec. If publicly acknowledged what becomes of the diocese proposed to be established? The solecism and danger of two dioceses of different religions with the same name. The continuance of this state of things would be the virtual acknowledgment of the Pope's Bishop and a contravention of the laws and constitution of the country, to perpetuate the law of error and to grant an indulgence to the Canadians more injurious to themselves than even to the English inhabitants. Beseeches that he may not be considered under the influence of an intolerant and uncharitable spirit but attached to the Church of England, it is his bounden duty to watch over her interests, and unless both the positive and relative situations of, the Church of England be radically changed all reasonable hope of maintaining the establishment of that Church will be irrevocably lost, and the Roman Catholic religion to all intents and purposes the established religion of the country. Page 253

Enclosed. Appendix A.—That there are 1,300,000 acres now under patent and 2,000,000 will probably soon be added, so that it was evident that at no distant period the Protestants in the Province would outnumber the Papists. The population of Upper Canada is now 60,000 or 80,000, with an annual influx of 500 families. 271

June 21, Quebec. Milnes to Sullivan (No. 2). Gives his opinion respecting the arrangement between Government and Amherst on the subject of the Jesuit estates. Encloses report made by the Commissioners for their management, abstract of the accounts of the agents, from the 16th July, 1800, to 1st April, 1803, and memorandum of the produce of the estates for that period. From these it appears that the produce of the seigniory of La Prairie de la Madeleine for one year is £657 16s. 5d., more than double of all the rest put together, the net average produce of all the estates is £968 10s. 4d., deducting the expenditure which will in time not be so considerable and when more lands are conceded and mills put in better repair the estates will rise in value. If it is intended to provide a fund for public education, the residue, after deducting La Prairie will not prove adequate. He believes, therefore, it would not be advisable to make a division of the property, but if the estates are to become the property of Lord Amherst, an established annual sum may be appropriated by Government as a foundation for a public seminary, the importance of which in policy and otherwise, he has frequently stated. 2

June 24, Quebec. Milnes to Hobart (secret). Had received circular with messages sent to Parliament and addresses in reply. Should war with France be renewed, he shall take steps to have the Alien Bill revived by calling the Legislature together, urging them to renew that Act and the Act for the preservation of His Majesty's Government, the more important on account of the reported introduction of spies. Shall in the meantime suspend taking any material steps towards raising the Militia. Believes that the Canadians are much more reconciled to the British Governme than at at any former period, and has no doubt that when the Militia Act is carried into effect it will be the means of increasing their confidence and of forming a connection between the Executive power and the bulk of the people, but it would be hazardous to make a material change except in time of profound peace, especially now when the military force is so inconsiderable, not exceeding 1,000 men. How the force is distributed. In the event of war with the States, does not doubt but that the Canadians would turn out against the enemy, but against the French it might be different. The navigation of the St. Lawrence has been probably a security hitherto, but such an attempt on the part of the present rulers of France is more to be expected; besides the interruption to trade, the value of military stores in Quebec, upwards of a million sterling, would be an object, and it is probable they are informed of this and of the inconsiderable garrison. Same to same (No. 59). Sends four reports and other documents, explaining the occurrences, which have given rise to the new regulations respecting mutation fines. The large increase in the revenue from this source, and the want of a check on the collection have led to errors and omissions, in some instances prejudicial to the revenue, in others to the collector himself. Report by Council on the remedy. Objections made by the Receiver General to his (Milnes') interference respecting the mutation fines, the objection being founded on the instructions in his commission (quoted). The acts of grace in the remission of fines being direct from the Crown should come directly from the person administering the Government, as His Majesty's representative. Had referred the subject to the Attorney General and transmits his report. Report of the Council in consequence of observations on the subject by Cotfin, Inspector of Public Accounts, referring to the want of documents to check the Receiver General's account of mutation fines. The Council reported that the power of ascertaining in the first instance the mutation fines should be invested in the Inspector of the King's domain, and that the acts of grace should proceed from the person administering the

July 1, Quebec. Milnes to Hobart (No. 60). Sends proposed bills to secure titles to lands, when the property has descended, or been transferred to bonâ fide purchasers before any grants issued. The question of the law affecting descent and dower, the Chief Justice thought should first be settled, namely, whether those arising from lands held in free and common soccage were to be governed by the laws of England or those of Canada, before the proposed bill should be brought forward. Had referred the question to the Judges of the King's Bench in Quebec and Montreal, five of whom are of opinion that questions respecting lands so granted are governed by the laws of Canada. From the want of unanimity, has transmitted their opinions, to be submitted to the Law Officers or other competent authority. In the meantime, the bill shall stand over. 159

Enclosed. Opinion of Chief Justice Sewell and Justices Dunn and Williams, on the question whether lands granted in fee and common soccage will be governed in respect to descent and dower by the laws of England or those of Canada; the lands they hold to be governed by the laws of England. 161

Opinion of De Bonne, similar to that immediately preceding. 175

Opinion of Ogden, that the laws of Canada do not govern the descent, &c., of such lands. 182

Opinion of Davidson, that the laws of England govern. 194

The Alien bill and that for the preservation of His Majesty's Government were passed with alacrity and a more loyal spirit was never manifested. Alarming fires in Montreal, believed to be designed and not accidental. At the desire of the Magistrates a proclamation has been issued with the object of discovering the incendiary or incendiaries, offering a reward of £500, besides what has been offered by the Magistrates. 238

Milnes to Hobart (No. 65). Transmits letter from the Bishop (Anglican) of Quebec respecting the situation of ecclesiastical affairs in the Province. The Bishop has gone so fully into the subject as to leave little to say; besides as it is subject to His Majesty's determination would consider it unnecessary to do more than transmit the statement. Owing to the high character of the Bishop recommends his application. 251

Hobart to Milnes (No. 16). Sends authority to the Council to make a grant of 5,000 acres to Gother Mann. The order of half a township to Young and associates is not to be acted upon, but he may receive as favourable a grant as the regulations will admit. The site on which the Jesuit Church stands to be granted to the members of the Scotch Church and the Congreganistes of Notre Dame. The necessity for caution in carrying into effect the provisions of the Militia Act, but as it becomes understood it will be the means of increasing the confidence of the Canadians in Government. The attention he (Milnes) has given to the subject will enable him to judge of the proper period for bringing forward the measure. He is authorized to receive from His Majesty's magazines at Quebec the arms necessary for the Militia. The establishment of volunteer corps equipped at their own expense may be of advantage if proper care be taken in the selection of officers and admission of none but responsible persons; they must not be multiplied without caution. The recommendation of quarter of a township to Isaac W. Clarke for his expenses in the culture of hemp has been approved. Has no doubt that instructions will be sent by the Treasury to the Receiver General in respect to mutation fines. The question as to whether lands in free and common soccage are to be governed, in respect to descent and dower, by the laws of England or of Canada has been referred to the Law Officers of the Crown. Sends copy of Act extending the powers of the Courts in Lower and Upper Canada to the trial of persons charged with crimes in parts not considered within their jurisdiction. His Majesty has consented that appropriations of land may be made for the establishment of a seminary at Quebec and another at Montreal. Page 218 ber 9, Milnes to Sullivan. Transmits a paper to be laid before Hobart, received from the gentlemen at the head of the North-West Co., which has succeeded in opening a communication with the North-West through British territory, so that the traders are no longer compelled to carry their peltry through any part of the United States, so that a source of misunderstanding will be removed. The new North-West Company, consisting of Sir Alexander Mackenzie and others have also opened a communication by cutting a road in a line nearly parallel to the canal made by the old company. Recommends McGillivray, a member of the first company, who is going to England, and can give full information respecting this important branch of trade. Calls attention to the promise of Hobart, to erect a competent tribunal for the trial of offences committed in the Indian territory, without the limits of the two Canadas. 283

Enclosed. Report by McTavish, Frobisher & Co., dated 1st September, 1803. The line to the North-West, established by the treaty of 1783, compelled traders to go as far as Lake of the Woods as United States territories, particularly at the Grand Portage and on the Straits of St. Mary. The formation of the North-West Company, in the winter of 1783-4; their explorations under the sanction of Haldimand, of the route by Lake Nipigon, which was found to be too circuitous and difficult. Until 1796, the North-West Company remained unmolested at the Grand Portage, but after the cession, in consequence of duties, &c., imposed by the United States, it became necessary to open up communications with the North-West, through British territory. A survey was, therefore, made on the north side and a canal built for boats between Lakes Huron and Superior, with the impediment of only one lock. Before the change of the general place of rendezvous to bring it within British territory, several voyages were undertaken by the agents and partners to explore the country, and the route finally determined on in the summer of 1802. Men have been employed making roads &c.. and the business is now carried on with much greater ease than by the Grand Portage. The new establishment lies about 50 miles north east of the Grand Portage, at the mouth of the Kaministiquia, which falls into Thunder Bay on Lake Superior. The river at the fort is three fathoms deep at the banks, 200 yards across. The French had a small station near the spot, but they never made it a road of communication to prevent broils with the Indians. The Company, with the approbation of the Governor of Upper Canada, purchased in the year 1798 from them the lands to the north of St. Mary's, and at the mouth of the Kaministiquia, but Government has not yet confirmed these grants notwithstanding the exertions of Simcoe. The advantages of the new route are thus stated:—"To render the North-West trade perfectly "independent of the Americans, being far removed within our own "territory. It avoids the great expense attending the transport of "goods across the Grand Portage, as the carrying places by this route "are not longer than by the old route, leaving out the Grand Portage "entirely, which is nine miles long. There are fewer lakes, conse- "quently the canoes will be less subject to stoppage from high winds. "The country is more fertile in soil and richer in animals; and withal "much more agreeable to the traveller. It falls into the old track in "Lac de la Croix, near Lac de la Pluie, about 300 miles from Lake "Superior, and Montreal canoes can be made to navigate it, a thing "impossible by the old road." January 9, Downing Street. Hobart to Milnes (separate). After considering the important topics in the communication of the Bishop of Quebec, and with every disposition to pay due attention to his suggestions it is not thought expedient to agitate questions which might excite differences between the heads of the Protestant and Roman Catholic Churches. It is desirable that he (Milnes) should point out to the Bishops the propriety of abstaining from acts that might cause irritation in the minds of the clergy or of the persons professing the religion they respectively superintend. The Catholic Bishop should be informed of the impropriety of assuming new titles or additional powers, and that it is expected such should not be persevered in, if any have been recently taken up. The French emigrant priests should understand that they are only here on sufferance and that the indulgence shown them is liable to be withdrawn, if they show themselves undeserving of it. The importance of inviting all Protestant dissenters within the pale of the Church of England. The policy of fixing the seat of the Protestant Church in Upper Canada to be considered. Desires him to send a return of the incomes of the livings in Lower Canada, with details. Desires additional information on the subject of his dispatch to Portland of the 1st November, 1800. The plan for the establishment and endowment of an extensive institution for education, by the erection of seminaries in Quebec and Montreal will tend to promote the objects recommended by the Bishop of Quebec. It seems desirable to postpone the consideration of other matters he represents as highly interesting to the Protestant Church establishment until a more favourable opportunity. 273

January 19, London. Captain Isaac Coffin to Hobart. Had been granted the Mag Islands in 1798 and received the patent from the Governor of Qu The settlers on the Islands are under the belief that they are subje the Government of Newfoundland instead of that of Lower Ca as the Admiral on that station has been in the habit of exercising torial jurisdiction. Asks that it be signified that these Islands belo Lower Canada and that the Governor of Newfoundland is not mitted to exercise any authority in them. Page

January 29, London. F. Freeling, General Post Office, to John Sullivan, Under Secretary is evidently the recent separation of Superintendent of Post-houses that of Deputy Postmaster General has caused inconvenience and more may be expected. The mischief caused by the double servi the Maîtres des postes are to be confined to the duty of carrying pa gers, instead of both mails and passengers when under one control, w gave Government a cheaper service. It will probably be necessa give some additional allowance for carrying the mails, but it is fo (Sullivan's) department to determine whether any good reason has given for separating the services of forwarding the mails and conve passengers, or if it would not be better to confirm the long establi practice of having them united. If the latter the instructions to H could be framed accordingly.

ember 19, Memorial by Edmund Burke, one of the Vicars General of the diocese of Quebec. That he had been removed in September, 1794, from the livings of St. Peter's and St. Lawrence, in the Island of Orleans, by Mgr. Hubert, Bishop of Quebec, to the River Raisin, in the Miamis country, in order to counteract the machinations of the Jacobins among the settlers and Indians, which might have been fatal to the 24th regiment stationed at Detroit, and the Miamis about 80 miles distant from each other, the settlement of the River Raisin being midway. His success in bringing the settlers to obey the Militia laws. After the cession of the posts he was offered the living of Ste. Anne, Detroit, on condition of becoming an American subject. Believing that that would induce others to follow his example, he rejected the offer, so that he could return to the King's dominions. That on his return to Quebec, Prescott granted him £100 a year as an indemnification for his losses. In 1801 Bishop Denault sent him to Halifax, Nova Scotia, to quiet some difference which had arisen among the members of the Roman Catholic congregation there, which he effected. In consequence of the removal, Milnes had refused to issue the usual warrant for his allowance. Sends copy of letter from Simcoe in proof of his statements. The proof of this is the confidence placed in him by His Grace; hopes he will not endanger his life by continuing to combat with a climate that seems so injurious to him. The entire satisfaction of the King and his Ministers with his whole conduct. The only thing to find fault with is not having accepted the offer made by the Island of an additional appointment. The offer should have been communicated, so that it might be laid before the King, and, if renewed, His Grace is

Montreal reports that the persons alluded to (Jerome Bonaparte and Rous) are not in Rouse's neighbourhood nor along by Plattsburg, nor have they visited Albany, although it was believed there that a visit was intended to that place during the winter. Has engaged Richardson to try to gain over Rous, who could be of essential service. Page 16

Enclosed. Barclay to Milnes, dated New York, 2nd December, 1803. Jerome Bonaparte has for some time been in these States, especially Maryland. He arrived in New York about the 20th of November, and has left ostensibly for the Southward, but he (Barclay) is informed that he (Jerome) intends to go to Albany to communicate with the French in Lower Canada, and probably after that to go to Lake Champlain, where a Frenchman named Rous lives, who is notorious for assisting British deserters. McLean, hung for treason, was particularly intimate with Rous. The watch it is desirable to keep on the movements of Jerome Bonaparte. The following is his description :—"Jerome Bona-"parte appears about 21 years of age, 5 feet 6 or 7 inches high, slender "make, sallow complexion, sharp and prominent chin, cropped dark "hair short, but he sometimes adds a queue and is powdered, dark eyes. "A gentleman who assumes the name of Alexander attends him. ruary 24, Milnes to Hobart (secret). Sends copy of correspondence with Richardson respecting the apprehended visit of Jerome Bonaparte to Albany, Lake Champlain, &c. No positive intelligence has yet been received of the French Government tampering with the disaffected in the Province, but the steps taken can hardly fail to detect such an attempt. Information sent to Hunter relative to Réné Fouquet, mentioned in Richardson's letter. His arrival on the boundary when Jerome Bonaparte was expected seems to indicate a connection between them. The smallness of the military force necessitates the use of such channels of information as may serve to detect and frustrate the more secret attempts of the enemy. 34

Richardson to the Attorney General, Montreal, 20th February. Return of No. 2 who believes that Fouquet is a French emissary employed by the French Consul at Boston. He is no doubt the author of the story that the Americans having got Louisiana are desirous to extend their boundaries to the St. Lawrence in which they would be assisted by France. Unfriendly conduct of Jefferson, but he is too great a coward to risk an actual breach with Great Britain, unless the latter met with serious injury. gust 30, Milnes to Camden (separate). Considers himself justified in appropriating the sum in the hands of the Receiver General arising from fees on land grants. The expression in the letter, namely half fees, has left some ambiguity, as the sum in the hands of the Receiver General, since 25th July, 1799, includes the whole of the fees, and it is possible that the half may have been otherwise appropriated. Details of the reasons why these fees had been ordered to be retained. Believed that his application for these fees would not be thought improper as he had been under the necesity of drawing £1,000 annually from his private income to supplement his salary. Should he have been mistaken in appropriating the whole of the fees, he shall replace the amount overdrawn on receiving further commands. Thanks for the prompt attention to his application for leave of absence; trusts his family may not suffer by the delay in arranging his private affairs. His present situation has been a loss to him but he shall not leave till a proper state of affairs permits. 151

Enclosed. Ryland to King, dated Quebec, 11th December, 1800. Encloses letter to Major Green, agent for Prescott, relative to the claim of the latter for the Governor's fees of office. The Lieut. Governor being authorized to receive from the revenues of the Province enough to make up his salary to £4,000, asks if the moiety of the fees should not be the property of the public, although it is provided in the 73rd Article of the Royal Instructions, no part of the Governor's perquisites are, whilst he is absent, to be paid to the Lieut. Governor. The whole of the fees accumulated since the Governor's absence amounts to £160. 155

Ryland to Green, dated Quebec, 10th November, 1800. The Lieut. Governor, in consequence of the order authorizing him to receive an amount from the Provincial revenues to bring his salary up to £4,000, finds it necessary to refer the question of fees to the Secretary of State. 156

GENERAL RETURN of Grants of Land in the Province of Lower Canada, by Patent under the Great Seal, from the 25th day of July, 1799, to the 15th day of August, 1804, both days included, with His Excellency the Governor's Fees thereon.

Milnes to Sullivan, dated Quebec, 24th February, 1804. (See Q. 94, p. 49.) In this letter the sum is given as £775, in the present copy it is stated to be £639, in the detailed statement (page 158), the actual amount is £694.4.5½. The letter is calendared in Q. 94, p. 49.

ber 26, ec. — Milnes to Camden (private). His concern at being unable to answer on certain important points referred to him by Hobart, namely, the Church establishment in Lower Canada, the Seminary estates at Montreal and the claims by Monk for services by him as Attorney General, owing to the severe bilious fever which he contracted in the West Indies, and to which he was subject, and which are increasing in violence. He will feel sensibly if he do not receive the indulgence which his health requires. He has been unable to provide for his family, a not unimportant matter. Had hoped to obtain leave of absence this year, but as he must give up that hope, trusts that arrangements may be made that he may go in the frigate which convoys the spring fleet. It is well his health permits him to spend only a few months away from his duties, as the fatigue of the voyage would be more injurious than useful were the leave restricted. 207 ber 27, ec. — Same to same (No. 7). Sends requisition for goods to supply the stores with presents for the Indians in Lower Canada, for 1805 and to form a complete supply for the same Indians for the year 1806. 211

mber 12, er. — Milnes to Camden (No. 8). In consequence of commands in Hobart's letter, had desired Monk to furnish a detailed account of his claim, charging the fees now established. The account enclosed, as well as two memorials from Monk relative to his account. It is not correct that Monk held the office of Attorney General continuously from 1779 to 1794, as he was dismissed in 1789 and not reinstated till 1792, on the death of Gray, who was Attorney General during the interval. Remarks on items in the accounts, &c. Considers it, for reasons stated, to suspend for the present the payment of Monk's account till he receives His Lordship's further commands. 213

Viscount de Vaux to Camden. Urges that the promises made by Pitt and Dundas that he should receive a tract of land in Canada equal to that granted de Puisaye may be carried out, and that the Governor be instructed to that effect. Trusts that his application for lands may be settled favourably without being referred to the Governor-in-Council in Canada, as it would meet the fate of a previous application which it was declared incompetent for the Council to grant, as the power to do so was vested in the Imperial Government. The benefit the grant would be to his family, &c. 88

ovember 15, Milnes to Camden (No. 9). Sends memorial on behalf of John Queen, ebec. an apprentice, impressed and carried on board H.M.S. "Orpheus," to have him restored to his master. The injury the practice of impressment does the trade of the country. The danger of the navigation of the St. Lawrence, which is upwards of 400 miles from its mouth to Qeubec, requires a certain number of able seamen on board the merchant ships. If the frigate is allowed by a hot press to take off many of the seamen before the merchant ships sail, they are obliged to go with too few hands, increasing the hazard of the voyage, at the same time that the lateness of the season adds to the difficulty of navigation; other reasons against the practice of impressment. The additional ill effects of such a system in a conquered country, as respects the feelings towards Government. A son of Mr. Justice Panet was pressed in London two years ago, and is now serving as a common seaman in the Mediterranean fleet. Asks for his Lordship's interference in this case. 2

Enclosed. Memorial of Frederic Diganardon for the return of his apprentice, John Queen, who had been impressed and carried on board H.M.S. "Orpheus." 5

Copy of the boy, John Queen's indenture, as evidence of his being an apprentice as stated in the memorial. 7

(For answer of the Admiralty respecting Queen and Panet, see Q. 99, p. 68.)

November 19, Quebec. Milnes to Camden (No. 10). Sends Journals of the House of Assembly. Page 10

(The printed volume is among the Archives. The Journals have not, therefore, been copied.)

November 28, Quebec. Same to same No. 11). Dispatches received. The originals of the three first have not come to hand and none marked No. 3 has been received. The dispatches have been a month later than usual of reaching and were not in time to enable him to leave by the Fall fleet, had he so desired. Will inquire of the Deputy Postmaster General respecting the forwarding of public dispatches by private channels. His satisfaction that his steps to obtain secret intelligence of the designs of the King's enemies have been approved of. Is in the highest degree obliged for leave of absence, which he will not take advantage of this winter unless his state of health should render it necessary, as he feels the importance of there being no change of administration, so near the meeting of a new House of Assembly. Sends copy of letter applying for longer leave of absence than what appears to have been intended. 11

Enclosed. Milnes to Camden, Quebec, 26th October, 1804. 14

December 1, Quebec. Milnes to Camden No. 12). Sends copy of letter written to the Deputy Postmaster General, and of his answer, relative to the subject of the circular dispatch of 2nd August last, namely, the sending official dispatches by private channels. 19

Enclosed. Milnes to Heriot, Quebec, 30th November, 1804, desiring him to report all instances in which official dispatches had been sent by private channels. 20

Heriot to Milnes, same date. That his official report, on which it was probable the circular was founded, related to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Upper Canada and the Military Department of Lower Canada only. No dispatches of the Lieut. Governor of Lower Canada had been sent otherwise than by post. 22

December 5, Quebec. Milnes to Camden (secret). Sends copy of letter from Merry and of answer respecting information given by a person calling himself Matthew Wing. Had desired to obtain more certain information on the subject and from what he had ascertained from Rouse there does not appear to be the smallest ground for giving credit to Wing's statement. 23

Enclosed. Ant. Merry to Milnes, Philadelphia, 27th September 1804. Sends report by Matthew Wing of a projected rising in Lower Canada, with details of the arrangement for obtaining arms, &c. 24

Milnes to Merry, Quebec, 15th October, 1804. Will investigate Wing's statements. In justice to the Canadians he must say that the country was never more tranquil and he believes they would never be induced to part with their cattle and horses for the purposes mentioned by Wing. There is not only no remarkable exportation of horses this year, but on the contrary it is small as compared with other years. 27

December 16, London. Memorial by W. Smith, for a salary to be attached to the office of Master in Chancery to which he has been appointed. 48

December 17, London. Treasury (W. Sturges-Bourne) to Edward Cooke. Transmits letters from Milnes, dated Quebec, 18th October, 1803, with the proposed Indian establishment for 1805 and with requisition for presents for the Indians, for the opinion of Lord Camden. 232

December 19, London. Order-in-Council appointing John Lees to the Executive Council of Lower Canada. 223

Order-in-Council of same date approving of John Richardson being appointed an honorary member of the Executive Council. 224

December 26, Quebec. Milnes to Camden (No. 13). Respecting leave of absence to the Anglican Bishop of Quebec. The memorial of Cuyler transmitted in duplicate of dispatch No. 3, has been referred to Council, but cannot be considered till the Chief Justice is well enough to take the chair of the Committee. Page 29

Camden to Milnes (No. 8). Monk's claims as Attorney General should be paid for the public service according to the table of fees now in use, but not for proceedings for the private advantage of individuals of which the business of passing Acts of Fealty and Homage should be included. With the deduction on this account Monk's claim to be discharged. Has sent dispatch relative to impressment and to Queen and Panet to the Admiralty; encloses the answer. John Lees to succeed Pierre Panet in the Council and John Richardson to be appointed an honorary member. To take steps to renew to Mrs. Lynd the lease of a farm called Belleville held by her late husband, David Lynd, unless there should be any material objection. Approves of his resolution to remain in the Province until after the meeting of the Legislature. 17

Minutes of 26th October on Crown lands. 5

Milnes to Camden (secret). Sends copies of letters. The second letter from Merry respecting the disturbances alleged by Wing to be in preparation shows that he (Milnes) was correct in believing Wing's account to be a fabrication. In consequence, however, if the arrival of a new Minister, Thuriot, at Washington, had thought it proper that Rouse should be sent there to ascertain if any plan was in contemplation by Thuriot for exciting trouble in the Provinces, so that proper measures may be concerted to meet such a plan. 8

Enclosed. Merry to Milnes, Philadelphia, 24th November, 1804. That no unusual trade has been carried on from Canada in the importation of horses and cattle, and that no purchases of arms have been made at Springfield. 10

Ryland to Richardson, 24th December, 1804. That he is to send Rouse to Washington to ascertain if Thuriot, the new French Minister, has any designs against the Provinces. 12

Milnes to Camden (separate). The lot in Montreal asked for by Cuyler, he had omitted to state, is the one appropriated in dispatch No. 1 of 7th June, as the site for a Protestant Church. Had informed Cuyler of this fact. Has referred to the Council the question of granting to Cuyler a lot in lieu of that already appropriated. The state of the Chief Justice's health may cause delay; sends copy of correspondence with Cuyler on the subject. Ryland's gratitude for the King's bounty. 13

Enclosed. Ryland to A. Cuyler, Quebec, 29th November, 1804. Desires him to forward the dispatches he had brought from Camden. The grounds in Montreal for which he states he had received an order has already been appropriated as a site for a Protestant Church. 15

Ryland to Cuyler, Quebec, 5th January, 1805. His letter of this date received respecting the lot of land granted to him in Montreal. The Lieut. Governor is sorry for his waiting at Quebec for the decision of the Council, but he desires to have the Chief Justice present at the meeting. Refers to previous letter as to the question of the land in Montreal, for which he considers he holds a grant. But for his keeping back the dispatches from Camden, there would have been no delay in obtaining a decision respecting the land. Page 19

January 28, Quebec. Milnes to Camden (No. 15). Sends proceedings of Council and report concerning the office of the Surveyor General. The Surveyor General forms the whole establishment being allowed to employ a draughtsman and clerk, for whom and other contingencies he is allowed to charge. In consequence of the importance of the duties, the Council has recommended the appointment of two clerks and an office servant to be appointed by the person administering the Government but under the orders of the Surveyor General, both to be able to act as draughtsmen, one to receive ten shillings a day and the other £150 a year. The establishment in Upper Canada is similar to that now proposed for Lower Canada. 20

February 14, Quebec. Milnes to Camden (No. 17). The state of the Chief Justice's health prevents the Committee from completing the report on Cuyler's claims. A meeting was held at the house of the Chief Justice at which a report (enclosed) was drawn up. Had since ordered a patent to issue for 3,600 acres in the township of Farnham, granted to Cuyler's wife and two daughters in addition to an equal quantity granted to himself and others of his family in the same township in 1798. Had informed Cuyler of the purport of the report, so that he might be saved from the inconvenience of remaining in Quebec. It is desirable that the Chief Justice should assist in preparing the final report, but in case he does not soon gain strength has urged the Council to complete the report without him. 39

Enclosed. Proceedings and report of the Committee of Council on the claims of Abraham Cuyler. 41

February 16, Downing Street. Camden to Milnes (No. 9). Transmits four Acts of the Provincial Legislature, passed in 1803, to which there appears to be no objection. 37

February 18, Quebec. Milnes to Camden (separate). Reports the death of Le Maistre, Governor of Gaspé, &c. The state of his health for some years had prevented him from going to Gaspé, and the public concerns there have suffered from the want of an acknowledged agent of Government residing there. The importance of having a suitable successor; recommends Alexander Forbes, a retired captain in the Guards, who is now in England, and to whom he will write that he may wait on His Lordship. 43

Enclosed. Copy of Le Maistre's commission as Lieutenant Governor of Gaspé, &c. 45

March 26, Quebec. Same to same (No. 19). Had delayed sending return of the incomes of the Protestant Church livings, having expected from the Superintendent of the Romish Church a return of the Roman Catholic livings, with proposals for vesting the patronage of them in the Crown, conformably to the intent of His Majesty's instructions, which in this respect have not been carried out by any of the Governors. Nor had he been able to enter into the subject of the Seminary estates, which he flattered himself he should be able to do before leaving Canada. Agrees with the Bishop that the salaries of the established clergy are inadequate, particularly considering the increased cost of everything, being a third more than when the salaries were fixed. The generality of the Roman Catholic curates have twice, many of them four times the income of the Protestant clergy, which has a bad effect. There is good ground to hope that the Church Reserves will become productive, but in the meantime recommends that a sum in addition to that now allowed, shall be appropriated for the support of the established Church in Lower Canada.

Milnes to Camden (No. 21). Sends copy of speech on the prorogation of the Legislature; 17 bills passed, some of considerable importance. Shall transmit exemplifications of them with remarks. Milnes to Camden (No. 22). Sends schedule of Acts passed last Session, with copy of the Act to provide for the erection of gaols in the districts of Quebec and Montreal. The necessity for these, owing to the insufficiency of the present houses of correction. Documents relating to this subject sent. The goal at Montreal was partly destroyed by fire in 1803, and although repaired, the walls were insecure. How the bill passed the Legislature; discussions on the ways and means of meeting the cost of building. Petition that he should reserve the bill on the ground that it was unconstitutional. Sends copy of petition and of the Attorney General's report thereon, with his recommendation that the bill should pass. Discusses in detail the objections to the different methods proposed for raising the sums necessary for defraying the cost of the buildings. 59

Milnes to Camden (No. 27). Dispatches received; previous dispatches acknowledged. The difficulty of obtaining the prices current required by the Duke of Portland. The merchant who certified those sent cannot vouch for their correctness. Monk, recommended by the Duke of Kent, and now a judge in Nova Scotia, was originally a merchant in Halifax, failed and settled at a country village (Windsor), where he was allowed to practice as an attorney, was Major of the Nova Scotia regiment and on resigning was raised to the Bench. He is said to be a man of character. But there is no vacancy at pre-ent, Dunn not having resigned his office of puisné judge. The peculiar nature of the Civil Laws renders the choice of a judge delicate and important. Is happy to find he was correct in his construction of His Lordship's letter respecting fees. Shall issue a warrant for the payment of Monk's fees on receiving a report on the audit of his accounts. Asks that consideration of Mrs. Lynd's petition for a renewal of her lease on the Jesuit estates be deferred. 154

Same to same. Sends copy of letter from Sir G. Pownall requesting leave of absence. As he had appointed a sufficient deputy, leave could not be refused. Introduces and recommends him. 157

Milnes to Camden (No. 28). Refers to dispatch of 4th January, 1801, from the Duke of Portland, to understand the purport of this letter. Has made no material progress with the Catholic clergy more than preparing the mind of the Roman Catholic Bishop for the condition on which a demand for an increase to his allowance may be complied with, namely, that he shall conform to the 49th Article of His Majesty's Instructions, requiring that no person shall have the cure of souls without a licence from the Governor, not enforced, but which the Duke of Portland had directed an endeavour should be made to effect by every prudent means. The Coadjutor in absence of the Bishop had agreed to a discussion and it was arranged that a meeting should take place between him and the Attorney General (Sewell). Encloses report of the conversation. The matter rests till the arrival of the Roman Catholic Bishop, who he understands comes down to bring the matter to a termination, if possible. Has no doubt both Bishop and Coadjutor would accept the terms offered but for the fear of public clamour. The religious bodies are in possession of lands equal to one-fourth of all the seigniories granted prior to the Conquest, and all the patronage of the Roman Catholic livings has been in the uncontrolled possession of the Bishop: the question is, therefore, of the first magnitude; its great importance for reasons given. Sends documents relating to the Seminary estates at Montreal. The Superior of the Seminary, M. Roux, states the income to be £3,700 currency; from Roux's character cannot doubt his statement, but the revenues are generally supposed to be much larger. Sends report on the estates drawn up in 1789 and one by the present Attorney General. The first was occasioned by a memorial by the ecclesiastics to Dorchester in 1788; it is so full as to need no further observations and its conclusion is that the estates belong to and are held in trust for His Majesty, an opinion concurred in by the Attorney General for reasons given, as he had been asked to enter fully into the subject. How possession should be taken with the greatest possible leniency of the 22 persons named in the statement by M. Roux, 15 are French emigrant priests and not one of the remaining 7 belonged to the Seminary at the time of the Conquest. No new members should be admitted to the Seminary and means should afterwards be fixed upon for examining into the establishment and for ascertaining the revenues, the utility of the Seminary for the education of youth, the number of priests required for that establishment, the number necessary for the parochial service of Montreal and vicinity and for the Mission at the Lake of Two Mountains, all which must be provided for. Before taking the property into the hands of Government an amicable arrangement should be made with the priests whose services are no longer wanted, either to withdraw on pensions for life either from the revenues of the estates or by providing them with livings as these fall vacant. Suggests that of the remaining incomes part might be used to pay salaries to the Bishop and Coadjuter should they agree to the proposal in the first part of the letter and the surplus appropriated to the establishment of means of education in the Province, now inadequate, which would remove the necessity of sending children to a distance, thus preventing the spread of pernicious principles and the "discontent that might otherwise arise from the withdrawing the estates out of the hands of those "persons who have now insensibly become possessed of them, and whose "influence, from the extent of the rights they have enjoyed cannot fail "to be considerable; though they are certainly weakened by the circumstances of their being vested chiefly in the hands of emigrants and "not natives of Canada." Urges the caution that should be used for carrying his proposals into effect, as otherwise injury instead of benefit might result. Transmits proceedings of the Commissioners for the Jesuit estates from the 26th of May, 1800 to the 14th May, 1805, and the last report showing from July, 1800 to the present time, a net revenue of £5,221 15s. currency or £4,699 11s. 6d. sterling. To facilitate the investigation has sent extracts from his communications on these estates, connected as it is with education, the information being scattered through so many dispatches. The great importance of an establishment for education, the necessity for which is daily augmented, as the most promising youth must either remain without education or be sent for it to the United States, few having the means of sending their sons to England. The prejudicial effects; the Canadians feel it the more, as before the Conquest the Jesuit College afforded ample means of education, and the young men were besides led to enter the army, to do which they have not now the same inducement, nor have they the means to purchase commissions. Sends extracts of previous correspondence and the report of the Executive Council. Reports the obstacles to carry out orders for the establishment of seminaries, owing to the difficulty of selling lands even at the low rate at which they were exposed to auction. Sends copy of address and of his answer, in March, 1800, on the subject of the claims of the Province on the Jesuit estates to be applied to the purposes of education. This should be attended to, so that a pretext for opposing Government should be taken out of the hands of those who desire to do so. On the death of Father Cayot, he (Milnes) had taken possession of the Jesuit estates, and entrusted the management to an unpaid commission, which receives the rent and ascertains the value of the lands but has made no concessions nor granted leases. If the revenues of the estates are to be allotted to education, submits whether it might not be advisable to invest them in a corporation subject to the control of the person administering the Government of the Province.

Catholic clergy, which he has had in view for several years. Has found M. Denaut uniformly candid and open and truly attached to the Government. It will be observed he signs as Bishop of the Roman Catholic Church and prays that the title of "Bishop of the Roman Catholic Church of Quebec" may be acknowledged, which is not done in the King's instructions, where he is called "Superintendent." It has always, however, been used in courtesy, except in official letters. He and his predecessors have always been addressed as "Monseigneur," and as Mr. Denaut has been in the habit of signing as Bishop he did not insist in the petition on a different signature, being unwilling to hurt the feelings of a man of his advanced age and who has conducted himself with so much propriety. From his departure being fixed for the first of the month cannot discuss other affairs. Page 5

Enclosed. Petition (in French), "Requête de Pierre Denaut, Evêque "de l'Eglise Catholique Romaine." That the Bishopric of Quebec was erected in 1664, and has been successively filled by Bishops, the sixth of whom died in 1760, at the time of the Conquest. That since then the Catholics have continued to have Bishops who, after taking the oath of allegiance have always exercised their functions with the permission of His Majesty and under the protection of the different Governors, the petitioner being the fourth since Canada happily passed under the Crown of Great Britain. That the extension of the Province and increase of the population requires more than ever that the Bishops be clothed with such rights and dignity as His Majesty may think suitable, to lead and restrain the clergy and people and to imprint more strongly on their minds the principles of attachment and loyalty to their Sovereign and obedience to the laws. That yet neither the petitioner nor his predecessors since the Conquest, nor the parish priests (curés des paroisses) have had from His Majesty the authorization which could prevent doubts in the courts of justice respecting their civil functions. Prays therefore that he and his successors may be civilly recognized as Bishop of the Roman Catholic Church of Quebec and enjoy such temporal prerogatives, rights and emoluments as His Majesty may graciously attach to the dignity.

Milnes to Camden (No. 31). Encloses report of Committee on objects of importance to the new settlements on the grants made since he assumed the administration. The report has arisen from a memorial from the inhabitants of sixteen newly settled townships, containing upwards of 5,000 souls, chiefly from the United States, Protestants and holding their land under a different tenure from that in the time of the French Government. The first clause of the report, that relating to the division of the townships into counties for representative purposes is of the highest importance. The caution that should be used in bringing forward such a measure. Since the memorial was presented the militia has been organized and placed under the command of Sir John Johnson; Magistrates are also appointed. Encloses report of the Attorney General on the memorial. The reports contain the following subjects to be considered at a future time. 1. The formation of new counties, with the privilege of returning members to represent them in the House of Assembly; 2. The establishment of accurate boundaries between the district of Three Rivers and the districts of Quebec and Montreal; 3. The establishment of Circuit Courts for the trial of causes not exceeding Twenty pounds; 4. The modification of the existing Road Act, so as to meet the circumstances of the new townships; 5. The establishment of offices in each county for the enregistration of deeds of sale, &c.; 6. The establishment of a Custom House and port of enty on the line betwee the Province and the United States in addition to the Custom House a St. John's; 7. August 1, Quebec. Milnes to Camden (No. 32). Has received from the Deputy Commissary General an account of fuel and candles issued to Government House at Quebec. Sends copy of the letter containing the account, and the answer. Sends also letter to Secretary King and extract from dispatch to Portland that the allowance for Chateau should be continued. Since October, 1830, the exponse of fuel, &c has been defrayed out of the Civil revenues, and although no less than thirty fireplaces were constantly supplied through the winter yet the consumption has been one-third less during the last six years than under Dorchester and Prescott's administrations. Requests that the issue from the military stores ordered by Hunter be sanctioned, or that payment be directed to be made out of the revenues of the Province. 13

August 1, Quebec. Milnes to Camden (No. 33). Sends extract of dispatch from Hobart of 9th September, 1803, authorizing him to receive arms necessary for the militia from His Majesty's magazines at Quebec, and copies of letters on the same subject and how the arms were received. Four companies of English militia formed, with the arms thus furnished, composed of the finest young men of the English battalion of Quebec, most of whom have clothed themselves and by constant attention to drill are equal in appearance to regulars; of these there are 275 privates, independent of the Canadian companies, who came forward on the same principle, except that few of the privates are equal to clothing themselves. How the companies are commanded, small armouries established for the reception of arms, &c., to prevent unpleasant effects in leaving them in the hands of individuals. The obstacle to obtaining additional arms, and General Hunter's conditions respecting those already issued, from which he concludes that the General does not intend to pay any further regard to Lord Hobart's dispatch of 9th September, 1803, that arms are to be drawn as required for the militia service. Is at a loss to understand the cause of the change in General Hunter's sentiments. Is under the unpleasant necessity of submitting the case for further instructions. The awkward predicament in which he is placed. Should the arms be withdrawn now in possession of the military, it would cause such disgust as could not afterwards be done away, and put an end to the spirit it has been his constant care to encourage, as it cannot but give strength to Government, especially at a time when the garrison of Quebec is left with so few regular troops. 14

The inconvenience of leaving it to the direction of the Deputy Postmaster to return letters sent after the mail is closed to go to a ship of war which may be still in the harbour, or to send them by such opportunity as he may see fit. Nor has he followed the previously invariable practice of giving information to the Governor when a mail is to be made up. 176

Enclosed. Ryland to Heriot, 4th August. That the dispatches sent yesterday afternoon to go by the mail had been sent back with a verbal message that the mail was closed. As the frigate is still in the harbour the Governor orders that another mail be made up and sent by her. 178

Heriot to Ryland, same date. That sending dispatches seven hours after the mail is closed, without any written request is highly disrespectful, that he is not obliged to send dispatches on board of vessels and that he can receive no orders except through the General Post Office. 179

ACTING GOV. T. DUNN AND MISCELLANEOUS—1805.

Q. 99.

January 3, Downing Street. Camden to Bishop (Anglican) of Quebec. Shall recommend that his request for leave of absence be granted. Shall be happy to converse with him, when he arrives, on the subjects touched upon in his letters, but cannot hold out expectations that it shall be recommended to the King that he shall be allowed to divest himself of his diocese, although an endeavour shall be made to relieve him of inconveniences. Page 66

January 3, Admiralty. Barron to E. Cooke. That the Lords of the Admiralty that orders are given for the discharge of John Queen (Q. 96, p. 2) and——Panet (p. 4), if the circumstances are as represented. 68

January 3, London. Lord Harrowby to——. Enclosing Grece's letter for consideration, as the subject is out of his line. 69

Enclosed. John W. Grece to Harrowby, dated Surrey, 20th December, 1804. That in 1801, at the time of the Confederacy of the Northern Powers, which prevented the importation of grain, he had addressed a letter to His Lordship on a plan to obtain a supply, and in consequence large quantities were shipped in the face of opposition. The high cost he had paid in Prussia, with the freight and rate of insurance, necessary to overcome these obstacles. While the wheat was on the way, the victory of Copenhagen, the submission of the Northern Powers, &c., so depressed the price of wheat that it fell from 126s. to 105s. the quarter in London. There was an indemnity, provided it fell below 100s., but this did not benefit him and he could not apply to Parliament, as that would make public an arrangement on which silence was to be kept. He proposes to remove to Lower Canada, provided a sufficient grant be made and would endeavour to introduce the culture of flax and hemp. Begs that he may be recommended for the grant of a township or 50,000 clear of reservations on the border of the River Ottawa in both or either of the Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada. Except for the fur trade, the Provinces can be valuable only in proportion as such enterprises as he proposes shall be undertaken. To overcome the difficulties of clearing, &c., (enumerated) labourers must be brought out at great expense, and he urges these considerations as justifying his application for an extension tract, and he asserts that in 1801, when pursuing a mistaken prospect of personal advantage, he rendered great service to his fellow subjects. Page 70

Grece to Camden. That he had written to Lord Harrowby. The letter transmitted to His Lordship (Camden) contained the grounds on which he applied for a grant. He encourages the hope that he may contribute to lay the foundation for advancing the interests of the Provinces. 75

Enclosed. Memorial for grant of land. 77

Lords of Trade per Fawkener to Edward Cooke. Asks to be informed what steps have been taken by the Executive Council of the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada to encourage the growth of hemp therein. 81

Rashleigh, Son & Lee to Cooke. Ask that after Monk's papers are looked over they be granted an interview so as to have the matter settled, send extracts from Monk's observations. 82

Enclosed. Extracts from Monk's letters to Rashleigh, Son & Lee 83

W. Grant to Camden. Sends memorial from Quebec (Mrs. Lynd's). Can vouch for the situation and services of petitioner's late husband, and to the expenditure on the farm in question. 94

Enclosed. Memorial of Mrs. Lynd, widow of David Lynd, late prothonotary of King's Bench, Quebec, for lease for 99 years of farm held by her husband. 95

Order-in-Council assenting to Act regulating the Police, passed by the Legislature of Lower Canada. 98

Memorial of the merchants of Montreal to the Legislative Council against the proposal to place an import tax on goods for the purpose of building gaols, and praying to be heard at the bar of the House in opposition to the same. 100

A similar petition was sent by the merchants of Quebec, to Sir R. S. Milnes; the title only is given. 109

A. Cuyler to Cooke. Had learned on his return that it was intended to appropriate for the site of a church, a lot of ground assigned to him, instead of having the church rebuilt on the old site as requested by the rector and parishioners. That he might not be deprived of this lot and of the waste lands, owing to the unfriendly disposition of this Government, had apprised the Governor by letter that he had received an order from Camden for the lands and lot. The steps he had taken to establish his claims, the obstacles in his way. Details are given of vacant lots, &c., available for the church without taking that assigned to him, but he is willing to take one outside the walls. His services, losses, &c. 110

Enclosed. Copy of Cuyler's memorial. 116

Copy of Cuyler's letter to Milnes, 26th November, 1804. 119

Answer by Milnes through Ryland 29th November. 120

(See Q. 96, p. 4 and Q. 99, p. 68.)

Ordnance Office by Crew to Cooke. Had been in communication with the officers of Artillery and Engineers in Quebec, and although no complete arrangement could be made for defence until the system is adopted, yet the ammunition ought, at all events, to be placed in safety, the Citadel house repaired for this purpose and small magazines to be built for the supply of the batteries round the town. Asks that Camden be moved to send directions to Lieut. General Hunter for the performance of the service. 184

June 12, Rolls House, London. Sir W. Grant to Camden. Asks that the Viscount de Vaux can be done, obtain what he desires, as it would be an act o otherwise he will lose all the advantages he expected from hi land.

June 16, London. Viscount de Vaux to Grant. That he would use his influ Camden to be sent to Canada immediately and receive there allowance for him and his family as he would receive in Lond with arrears would amount now to £3,000. That the quantity a township he asks for, should be settled before he sailed. D has had for himself alone, more money than he asks for all h who number 20. He, however, confines his wishes to be sen ately to Canada after obtaining means to pay his debts.

(There seems to be an error in the dates of these letters, t Master of the Rolls, Sir W. Grant, of the 12th June, having apparently, to de Vaux's letter dated the 16th.)

July 2, King's Bench. Memorial of Charles de la Garde. That he had received a might be released and enabled to return to Rssia.

rendered by the Russian Commander at Kamschatka to the sh Captain Cook; when they touched there in 1779. On his retir youngest daughter was married to Charles de la Garde, Ch to the King of Poland, but the Polish revolution deprived him of fortune. In this condition his father-in-law, the former Comm Kamschatka recommended him to go to England and ask f Canada; should it be granted the father-in-law will supply two attendants and a sufficient number of persons to cultivate the lar that the grant be made.

to give de la Garde a favourable allotment of land, as regards and quantity.

July 5, London. Chatham to Camden (confidential). Has received lett Hunter and plans, &c., from Mann for his opinion. Differences on the subject between Hunter and Mann on the one side and the tee of Engineers on the other as to the defences of the City o Sends Mann's answer to the report of the Committee. Suggests th ject of the Committee, (with the sketch) for the Citadel of Quebec, sent to the commanding Engineer, through Hunter, to have the work traced on the spot, and to report if the ground is c admitting it without the inconveniences Mann apprehends. If s of the Committee would be preferable, but if as apprehended then his should be adopted. Leans strongly to the opinion o ing the heights of Abraham as proposed by Mann, as no attack made on Quebec that would not render the measure of peculiar u considerable works there might in the meantime be suspended u on the Citadel are completed. There can be no doubt of the of the proposed repairs to Lower town, &c., so as to assure it coup de main. The consideration of these and other works may f the same way had long been practised with advantage. Cannot spare to Quebec an experienced officer like Mann but Bruyeres is a most capable and efficient officer. The occupation of St. John's and Isle aux Noix is not for engineers to decide, it is a question of general military expediency. Has no observation to make on the Reserves at Quebec beyond what is in the report. Page 206

Enclosed. Stating the terms of his commission and praying that a warrant might issue for the fees due to him since his appointment. 240

ber 3, c. Heriot to Camden. A public officer, when attacked by a Lieut. Governor, is justified in deviating from the usual channel of correspondence to attain the shortest direction of defence. That in the case of complaint of not forwarding dispatches, the hour of closing the mails had been notified. Seven hours after they had been closed a man employed as a waiter came to his (Heriot's) house when he was at dinner, brought what he called dispatches, without any written request, desiring they should be sent on board ship, which he is under no obligation to do. The Lieut. Governor, who is to embark in that ship, could easily have ordered them to be conveyed with himself. Trusts that if a complaint has been made against him that it shall not be allowed to operate to his prejudice. 244.

ber 15, month. Order-in-Council that in certain cases the grantees of Crown lands may be dispensed from taking the oath prescribed to be taken before the Commissioners. 247 ber 17, ury. Huskisson to Cooke. In answer to Castlereagh's application for bounties for the cultivation of hemp, the only step the Lords of the Treasury think necessary at the present stage is to order an advance of £400 each to Campbell and Grece, with security for repayment should the conditions not be complied with. 249

ust 24, tehall. Cottrell for Lords of Trade to Cooke. That Castlereagh might be moved to obtain the King's authority to desire the Lieut. Governor to appropriate 150 acres of cleared land out of the 300 granted to Campbell and Grece for the cultivation of hemp. 250

Hopes that there will be no need of further reference. The Commander of the forces will be furnished with authority to make good the deficiencies of the revenue. Plessis, Coadjutor, to take the oath of allegiance previous to entering on his office as successor, and requested that the Rev. Bernard Claude Panet should succeed as Coadjutor. Had searched the records of the Council and summoned the members to meet on the 27th January to administer the oaths according to the practice shown by the records of Council. Has fixed on Panet as Coadjutor, having known him for forty years as a good and loyal subject, whose father had been one of the Judges of Common Pleas and been of service in the administration of civil justice by the Military Courts. On the 8th instant he took the oath of allegiance as Coadjutor. 8

February 19, Quebec. Dunn to Castlereagh (No. 14). Has received dispatch No. 3 by Grece, whom he will assist in every way possible. Has provided him with 75 bushels hemp seed and 100 copies of Taylor's "Remarks," which has been translated into French for distribution. There are no ungranted lands of the Crown cleared fit for the cultivation of hemp. Has advised Grece to ascertain if such lands in a suitable situation cannot be obtained by purchase, so that he may enter on the cultivation without loss of time. 10

February 19, Quebec. Same to same (No. 15). Sends copy of petition from the widow of O'Hara, late Provincial Judge at Gaspé, that her husband had been unable to make the least provision for her out of his small salary of £200 a year and that she is utterly helpless from extreme old age and infirmity, and praying for an annuity. Believes the statements to be correct; the late Justice O'Hara was a very upright and faithful servant of the Crown. 12

Enclosed. Memorial from Mrs. Mary O'Hara. 14

March 18, Quebec. Dunn to Castlereagh (No. 17). Sends speech to the Legislature and addresses. There appears to be every disposition in both houses to promote what he has recommended. 6, Dunn to Castlereagh (No. 20). Transmits petition and memorial from the Assembly on the subject of the Act passed for the erection of gaols in Quebec and Montreal. The proceedings in this case unprecedent and unparliamentary, but thought it best to forward the petition, not to cause irritation by refusal at a moment when tranquility may be of consequence to His Majesty's interests. 62

Enclosed. Address from the Assembly to the King, giving reasons for passing the Act for erecting gaols and providing the means for doing so, and praying that the Act be not disallowed. 64

Motives which led the Assembly to adopt the mode of taxation in the Act for erecting gaols, in preference to a land tax. 67

Sends speech and schedule of the Bills passed, one of which, "to authorize Jacques LaCombe to build a bridge over the "River L'Assomption," has been reserved, after getting the Attorney General's opinion, which, with the Bill, is enclosed. The object itself is worthy of encouragement, but the disposition of the revenue is not in accordance with the Royal instructions. 84

May 30, Quebec. Dunn to W. Windham (No. 1). That he will transmit such intelligence as may be proper to send. The utmost attention shall be paid to the suggestions of the Board of Health to prevent the introduction of infectious disease, of which there is not the slightest appearance. The hemp seed sent out last fall proved good for nothing; thinks the surest means of getting good seed would be to procure it in the neighbouring states. 124

June 5, Downing Street. Windham to Dunn. Dispatches received and laid before the King. In addition to the correspondence respecting the encouragement to be given to Campbell, Grece and others who should engage in the culture and preparing of hemp, sends copies of correspondence between the Board of Trade, Admiralty, Treasury and Navy, showing that Clarke, Deputy Commissary at Montreal, and not Grece and Campbell, is to be appointed inspector of hemp, Clarke's authority to be furnished by the Naval Board. Transmits copy of letter from the Lords of Trade respecting the Act for erecting gaols in Quebec and Montreal and the means of defraying the expense, with representations on the subject. No provision has been made for the application of any surplus that may be raised for that purpose after the cost of these gaols is defrayed. The surplus is not to be used until special directions are received. 49

June 11. Dunn to Windham (No. 2). Dispatches received. Had communicated to the merchants the substance of his letter of the 2nd April, as directed, and shall take the necessary steps for finally discharging Monk's claims. The Commander-in-Chief had received orders to make good the deficiency in the civil revenues, but the balance in the hands of the Receiver General renders this unnecessary at present. 127

In the present distressed state of the widows of O'Hara and Taylor, is strongly inclined to recommend their cases to the King, but the allowances on the Provincial revenues are already very heavy. If the King's bounty should be extended to the memorialists, he (Windham) shall not feel warranted in recommending more than £50 per annum to each. 79

July 14, Quebec. Dunn to Windham (No. 4). Sends schedule and exemplifications of the Acts passed in the last session, and copy of the Journals of the Legislative Council. There are no cleared lands that can be granted; the committee, therefore, recommend that a sum be granted to lease suitable lands sufficient for a fair trial. Sends copy of correspondence with him and reports of the Committee of Council, relative to the purchase of lands for the culture of hemp. Grece has been paid at the rate of £200 per annum from the date of his embarking on the 17th of October. Is this to continue? No more fit person than Isaac W. Clarke could have been selected to receive and inspect the hemp. No surplus arising from the tax for the erection of gaols shall be used until special directions are received. Q. 101—1.

Dunn to Windham (No. 21). The Commissioners of the Navy have offered Clarke by letter (shown to Dunn) the sum of £2.10 for every ton of clean hemp shipped from Montreal to Quebec by him or his deputy as remuneration for his trouble as agent. Clarke had wished to decline, but afterwards accepted the situation of agent, but does not consider the remuneration sufficient. Agrees with him and recommends an increase, Clarke being the fittest man to be found in the Province, besides his having been at great pains and trouble for several years in promoting the growth of hemp. Arrival of Campbell; shall afford him every assistance. 2

Captain Hubert. That numerous answers, packages, public and private, were received on board the "Uranie"; the greater part of the public ones were brought by the Lieut. Denaut's memorial and two dispatches addressed to Camden, with all the information he (Milnes) could procure relating to the Catholic establishment, to which he refers. Had he been in Quebec when Denaut died, he would have taken no step towards receiving M. Plessis, the Coadjutor, as Bishop until referring the subject to His Majesty's Government, especially as Plessis had already taken the oath of allegiance as Coadjutor and as titular Bishop of Canat (Canathe in Palestine) and therefore qualified for all the essential functions of the deceased Bishop. Has no reason to think otherwise than favourably of M. Panet, but would have hesitated to appoint him Coadjutor on account of the pretensions of his brother, the Speaker of the Assembly. 401

The union of the civil and military power in the same officer, giving power to meet quickly a political emergency. The separation of the two after Haldimand had left in 1784, but its inconvenience caused the Government to be again placed in the hands of a military officer. A change again took place in 1799, and the country has since been in a languishing state, with jealousy between the heads of the civil and military departments. The disadvantages of the separation in weakening the energy of Government and in restricting hospitality, an essential requisite to secure respect. The Canadians from training do not respect a person at the head of affairs who does not also command the troops; paying no taxes, except on articles of consumption, they are scarcely sensible of the weight of Government. The strong desire to have a person of high military rank appointed Governor. 404

...er 26, ...pool. Admiral Coffin to Windham. Complains that on the Magdalen Islands there are forty-two families of Frenchmen, enemies of the King, who took refuge there when St. Pierre and Miquelon were captured. They live in open defiance of law, and carry on contraband trade. As proprietor of these islands prays that immediate steps be taken for the removal of these people. 414

November 18, Quebec. Lamberton to Dyer, (extract). "We are still without either a Gov- "ernor or a Commander-in-Chief, and I am afraid there is a great deal "of animosity kindling between the English people and the French "people; which had we a man of ability at the head of the Government "might, I think, have been easily prevented, but I do not engage in the "politics of this country." 421

November 20, Whitehall. Lords of Trade to Shee. Had forwarded to the Commissioners of the Navy Dunn's information that Isaac W. Clarke had not received his commission of Inspector of Hemp, and now send the answer. 422

December 4, Quebec. Dunn to same (No. 24). Sends report of Council on the claims of Monk, while he was Attorney General. A warrant issued for £1,638 9s. 11d. as a final settlement. Sends also reports on Sewell's accounts, with copies of them. The Committee report that the sum due to Sewell is £2,099 0s. 2d. Refers to letter from Milnes on the subject of the suspended claims. A memorial from Mr. Justice Williams, on claims for acting as Attorney General when he was Solicitor General, is now under consideration; the reports shall be sent when ready. 227

December 5, Quebec. Chief Justice Allcock to Shee. The lease of the St. Maurice Forges, formerly held at £850 a year, has been, by the want of precaution on the part of Dunn, sold for £60 a year for 21 years. The murmuring and dissatisfaction caused by this, as these rates had been given by His Majesty in aid of the expenses of the civil government. Monro & Bell have not yet got their lease, and he shall see that they do not until he can be satisfied that the sale can be ratified in a court of justice, and in the meantime he shall proceed slowly. In the meantime the President will not, he thinks, sign until he (Allcock) is satisfied that the Crown is bound. There is a great deal for a Chief Justice to do here; had found the courts of justice in great confusion, something must be done to re-organize them. There are other objects in which the Crown is interested that require great care, but they must wait till the Governor arrives, and should it be a new Governor he will have information ready. Should it be Milnes that will alter the matter, as he had no reason to think they would be on good terms; Milnes had treated him (Allcock) with great coolness in England, the only reason he could think of for this was that Milnes wished another gentleman appointed to the situation, but he would lay all that aside should Milnes arrive. The old accounts of Sewell and Monk as Attorney General examined, the latter paid, that of Sewell reserved, but it is justly due. Reported appointment of Lord Elphinstone to be Captain General; hopes that, if so, he will not pledge himself as to new appointments. The present puisné judges, Dunn and Williams, are both very old, but do not talk of resigning. Milnes, it is said, intended to have recommended the present Solicitor General to be made a judge; he is too young and inexperienced, and has not the least pretentions to expecting such a thing. 425

December 15, London. Chevalier de la Garde to ———. Sends papers respecting his title to a grant of land in Canada. His return to Russia, after obtaining the order for the grant, to arrange to bring away his family, prevented by the Ukase that all travellers must be back by a certain time. The failure of the agent who had taken possession of his fortune, had left him without resources to cultivate the land, but he has a gentleman in view with capital if the grant is renewed, the amount specified, &c. Page 414

Enclosed. Proofs of his right to the grant, namely, letter from Sir Joseph Banks to Portland, 5th July, 1798. 437

er 18, Allcock to Shee. Death on the 16th of Duchesne (Duchesnay), one of the Executive Councillors, and the last mail brings a report that de Longueuil, another Councillor is at the point of death. These will make little difference, as both were old men and seldom attended. De Longueuil had £100 a year as Councillor which will go to the senior honorary member, Duchesne had no salary. Hope that the filling up of these vacancies will be deferred till after the arrival of a Governor. The question of replacing these Councillors by the appointment of English gentlemen should be considered. Hopes that a Governor will arrive in spring; he can prevent anything wrong being done in the meantime, but there are many objects requiring immediate active exertion. 440 er 20, Sir Joseph Banks to Shee (?) Returns the papers respecting de la Garde's claims for land. Has been confined to bed. 442 er 22, Dunn to Windham (24). Sends list of Legislative and Executive Councils, with attendance of the members noted. Death of Duchesnay and critical condition of Longueuil. February 12, Quebec. Brock to Windham. Transmits a proposal from Lieut. Col. John McDonald, (McDonell, see letter of Brock of 28th January, (original) of 28th January, transmitting the proposal, in Series C, Vol. 795, p. 58), for raising a corps of Highland Fencible Infantry in Glengarry. The advantages to be derived from such an establishment. The small force that is now in this country, which is insufficient to defend Quebec. This corps being on the confines of the lower Province would be always in readiness and useful in checking any seditious disposition. In event of invasion it could easily be transported to Quebec. A staff and sergeant would be required. It would be a prudent measure to appoint the Rev. Alexander McDonald, (McDonell) chaplain, the men being all Catholics; his zeal and attachment to Government; by his exertions the corps would soon be completed and form a nursery of hardy recruits for the Army. 38

Enclosed. McDonald (McDonell), Lieut. of the County of Glengarry, to Windham, dated 9th January. Proposals for raising a corps of Highland Fencible Infantry in Glengarry. It is almost entirely inhabited by Scots Highlanders; the valuable landed properties obtained through the munificence of the King are strong motives to bring their loyalty into action. The rapid increase of population and the situation between the Ottawa and St. Lawrence enable the corps to check any rebellious disposition or general combination that would be formed against His Majesty's Government. They are equally ready to enter into engagement of a more general and extensive nature of service, if found better calculated to forward the views of Government, even should it be deemed expedient to raise a permanent force among the Highlanders of those settlements for the defence of the Province, thus saving the expense of sending out troops and preventing numberless desertions to the United States. 39

February 17, Quebec. Dunn to Windham (No. 28). Had suggested paying Clarke a salary rather than a percentage on the hemp shipped. Lewis Foy, formerly military secretary to Dorchester, has been appointed Clarke's deputy; has the fullest confidence in him. To concentrate the business, Foy is to take charge of all the hemp and hemp seed raised in the district of Quebec in consequence of the Provincial Act of 1804, by which the Governor is empowered to apply £1,200 for the advancement of the culture of hemp. Clarke has taken upon himself the same charge in the district of Montreal. The greatest obstacle is the difficulty of obtaining hemp seed; every effort is making to procure a supply from the neighbouring States. It will be seen, therefore, that considerable attention and trouble will be necessary on the part of the agents. Steps are taking to supply Campbell with a sufficient quantity of cleared land to begin operations. 44

March 16, Quebec. Dunn to Windham (separate). Had reported the death of Duchesnay (called Duchesne by Allcock, see Q. 101-2, p. 440), and also of de Longueuil. Has now to report that of Lees, also an Executive Councillor, who died at Montreal on the 3rd instant, so that there are now three vacancies in the Council. Has already recommended Charles St. Ours to succeed de Longueuil, now recommends Matthew Bell and Lewis de Salaberry for the other vacancies. The former is a merchant of the highest respectability, a candidate for the Assembly in Three Rivers, where there is little doubt he will be elected. High character of M. de Salaberry. Sends list of the present members of the Executive Council. Page 52

15, Dunn to Windham (separate). In order to fill up the vacancies in the Executive Council it has been the invariable custom to select the senior honorary members. In the case of the deaths of de Longueuil and Lees, the seniors are Young and Williams, whom he recommends. Repeats his recommendation to name Charles St. Ours, Matthew Bell and Louis de Salaberry as honorary members, in which he believes that Governor Prescott and Lieut. Governor Milnes would readily concur. 64

Same to same (No. 32). On the death of Lees, Storekeeper General for the Indian Department, has directed a survey to be made of all the Indian goods in store, previous to their delivery to the successor of Lees. Has appointed his step-son, Thomas Fargues to succeed; his qualifications. Until his arrival Thomas Douglas will act. 66

8, Brock to same. Had proposed to Dunn to use the Jesuit Garden for a parade ground, which Dunn would not officially consent to, but promised to shut his eyes to this use of it. The ground cleared of useless weeds and the troops paraded, followed by an official intimation that it was not to be used. Believes Dunn to be moved by interested representations on the part of people who expect to be benefited by the division of the ground and are impatient at every step which seems to involve their interests, however greatly it may promote the public service. Their hopes from the age of the President and his intimacy with the inhabitants that they are likely to sway him by any representation their avarice may prompt them to make. Refers to General Hunter's letter on the subject to Lord Hobart of 10th August, 1804, and encloses a plan (for plan see Q. 106-2, p. 432*a*). Shows the changes proposed. 68

10, Dunn to same (No. 33). Transmits copy of correspondence between him and Brock. Respecting the Jesuit Church, of whose condition he was apprised, but did not resolve to have demolished till the Commissioners had ordered a survey and a report was received. Did not consider that he should render an account to the Commanding officer of the troops, as they were no more endangered than other persons passing. Had sent copy of report to Colonel Brock, which, with letter and answer, is enclosed. Description of the situation. The esplanade, where the troops can exercise, is not five minutes walk from the Barracks and the Grand Parade, recently enlarged, is still nearer. The Jesuits' Garden is of such extent, that it might be divided, affording a considerable addition for military and leaving a valuable space for public purposes. Concerning the disrespectful manner in which Brock has spoken of the Commissioners for managing the Jesuit estates; their respectable character. The rest of the letter is a criticism of the tone of Brock's correspondence. 77

ne 10, ebec. Dunn to Windham (No. 40). Calls attention to circumstances relative to the administration of justice in the Province. The illness and death of Judge Davidson and a sudden misfortune to Chief Justice Monk having prevented the sitting of the Court of King's Bench in Montreal in March last, he issued a commission of Oyer and terminer and general gaol delivery; at the court held from the 12th to the 15th May, John Smith and Joseph Barbary were capitally convicted and condemned to death. Chief Justice Monk personally delivered only the calendar at Quebec (copy sent), instead of the particulars of the trials and proceedings, as laid down in the law, the clauses of which are quoted. On reference to the Solicitor and Attorney General, they gave diametrically opposite opinions, and the case was referred to the Chief Justice. His unsatisfactory answer. With the contradictory opinions, he asks that the questions be referred to the Law Officers of the Crown. The crimes for which Smith and Barbary are condemned do not call for immediate execution, so that he shall grant them a pardon, under the authority of an opinion given him by the Chief Justice. In a P.S. it is stated that on the death of Justice Davidson, James Reid has been appointed a puisné judge for the district of Montreal, he having been made choice of by Milnes. 298

Enclosed. Commission, dated 20th April, of Oyer and terminer. 308

July 4, Downing Street. Castlereagh to Dunn (No. 3). Dispatches received. He is authorized to grant warrant to Sewell for payment of sum ascertained by Committee of Executive Council. Authority likewise given to pay Williams. His dispatch (No. 28) relating to hemp transferred to the Lords of Trade. Steps to be taken to keep faith with Grece. His Majesty's pleasure will be taken respecting the appointment of Young and Williams to fill the vacancies in the Council. The appointment of any honorary members will be for the present postponed. Members of Council receiving salaries are to be notified that regular attendance is expected. Will withhold approbation of the appointment of Fargues to succeed Lees, until a satisfactory account is received of the letting of the St. Maurice Forges for £60 a year, instead of the old rate of £850, which the lessees were willing to continue, £1,500 could have been easily obtained and a movement was in agitation to offer £2,000. Instead of appointing Foy to succeed Faunce as Naval Officer, the office should have been filled provisionally till His Majesty's pleasure could be known. Has not been able to enter into the unpleasant dispute between him and Brock, but has read sufficiently of the statement to express regret that Brock should have suffered himself to use improper language. Is of opinion that he is justified in drawing his salary as Judge whilst executing the duties of President of the Colony. Is desirous to know, as he has already had a contingent pension bestowed on him on his retirement from the Bench, whether he intends on the arrival of the Lieut. Governor to resume his seat or vacate his office of Judge. Page 256

August 8, Downing Street. Windham to Brock. Had received account of the differences (p. 68) between him and the Lieut. Governor respecting the Jesuit Garden and a representation from Dunn on the same subject. Had expressed his concern to Dunn that he (Brock) should have used expressions not respectful to him as the representative of His Majesty. The subject will be soon decided as a Governor will soon proceed to Quebec with full instructions. In the meantime Dunn is authorized to grant temporary occupation of the Jesuit Garden for the use of the troops. That he is to defray the expenses of the Indian Department as was done before he took command, the Civil Government being responsible for the expenditure. 74

August 8, Downing Street. Castlereagh to Dunn (No. 4). Dispatches received. Had acknowledged receipt of No. 33, and since then a letter from Brock on the same subject. Agrees with him (Dunn) in respect to the occupation of the Jesuits' Garden by the military as a parade that no transfer could be made without reference to the Secretary of State, and that there were more objections to its temporary occupation than had been stated. The subject has been referred to Generals Hunter and Mann and to Milnes, the latter doubts the necessity of granting the whole ground for the use of the military, the two former are decided that it is essential to the general defence of Quebec that almost the whole ground belonging to the Jesuits' College should be appropriated to military purposes. A new Governor General to be sent in room of Prescott; there appears to be no objection to allow Brock to use the garden for military purposes. Instructions sent as to the issue of warrants to meet the expenses of the Indian Department. Brock's natural misapprehension on the subject

July 24, Quebec. Dunn to Castlereagh (No. 9). Has been preparing transcripts of proceedings relative to the lease of the St. Maurice Forges, subsequent to the reference to Council of 10th June, 1806, and to the report thereon, transmitted to Windham in dispatch No. 20 of 5th November last. Cannot expose the latent motives of the unofficial statement sent on the subject. The fief and seigniory of St. Maurice, including the forges, were originally leased to Conrad Gugy in 1783 for sixteen years, at £18 15s. sterling, as recommended by Council. In 1787, the remainder of the lease, with articles for carrying on the works, was sold by sheriff's sale to Alexander Davison and John Lees for £2,300 currency; in June, 1793, the residue was sold by Alexander Davison to his brother George, David Monro and Mathew Bell for £1,500 currency. These held under the original lease till its expiry in 1799. In 1798, the lease was extended, on the same terms, to the 1st of April, 1800, the report (dated 13th April, 1798) at the same time recommending that on the expiry of the extended lease, the seigniory, forges, &c., should be let for 99 years, at the highest rent offered by public competition, but this was not adopted and Milnes extended the term to the 31st March, 1801. The Batiscan Iron Work Company offered £500 per annum for one, two or three years, and the then lessees offered the same rent and even more for five years, if the lease were exposed to public competition. On the 17th April, Monro & Bell offered £550, with an obligation to deliver at the end of five years, when the lease expired, the buildings in perfect order and new buildings or improvements to the extent of £1,500. The opposite party offered £600 and when informed the proposed expenditure of £1,500 was a voluntary offer, increased the proposed rent to £800. Both were desired to put their proposals in writing and Monro & Bell having offered to pay £50 above any sum the Batiscan Company might offer, the lease was adjudged to them at £850. This statement is given to show how the rival parties were brought upon to offer such high terms. Before the expiry of the lease, public notice was given that the premises would be let for a term of 21 years by public auction on the 11th June, 1806, on conditions stated, one of which was that the new lessees were to pay to the old a sum to be settled on, for the moveable property, not to exceed £4,000. Before the sale he (Dunn) asked the advice of Council whether or not directions should be given to the auctioneer not to sell below a certain rent, but the Council merely recommended that the sale should be postponed from 11th June to 1st October. On that day there was a larger concourse than usual, but the lease was knocked down to Monro & Bell, the highest bidders, for £60 per annum. The lease ordered to be prepared; the interposition of Chief Justice Allcock, the reference to Council and their report, that they connot advise that the lease be granted, until instructions be received from His Majesty's Ministers. Order received from His Lordship to have an examination of all the circumstances made by the Council and a full report transmitted. Copy of the representations on the subject by Monro & Bell is transmitted with the other papers.

25, Brock to Castlereagh. Transmits communications that passed between
bec. him and the President relative to the military situation of this country. The minutes of Council will show the inadequacy of the militia law to afford assistance to the regular force and the degree of dependence to be placed in the population. Can from his own observation assure His Lordship that a respectable force could be trained and rendered useful were the least encouragement given to the spirit that pervades class to volunteer. These might be entrusted with arms, but an indiscriminate distribution would be dangerous. His opinion of the weakness of the works is consonant to the opinion of the officers of Engineers and Artillery. Had declined to issue pay and provisions to the militia if called out, as that was done by the Provinces. The fact that there is a balance of £30,000 in the civil chest, and the ease with which his error might be remedied, had he fallen into one on this subject, had induced him to be so positive. 54

Enclosed. Brock to Dunn (dated 17th July). Cannot contemplate the intelligence received by the last post, without calculating the means of defence should a rupture take place between Britain and the United States. The latter Government have already adopted measures inimical to Great Britain, and the result of discussion on certain points will determine the question of peace or war. As it is at least possible that war may ensue, conceives it his duty to call attention to the military position. The militia now armed and in any way instructed dues not exceed 300, as many thousands might easily be selected and formed into corps. Such a force with that from the adjoining Province (Upper Canada) and the regular troops would create a force, that if it could not effectually stop, could at least impede the approach of the enemy to Quebec and in such a climate delay is everything. Without such a force the regulars could not leave Quebec and the enemy could move unmolested. Whilst every American newspaper teems with violent and hostile resolutions and associations are found in every town to attack the Provinces, every loyal subject should come forward to show his zeal. Precautionary measures can only be inconvenient to individuals, but he is confident they are ready for sacrifice in so sacred a cause. A subject of more importance, not admitting of procrastination is that of the defences of Quebec, which he proposes to have repaired before the close of the year. 56

Minutes of Council, 22nd July, in reference to the proposals contained in the preceding letter from Brock. 60

Brock to Dunn, 23rd July. Had no intention to assume a political character. His sole object was to state the assistance required by the military. Is disappointed at the information sent in the reply to his letter, but believes that voluntary offers of service will be made by a considerable number, and even now several gentlemen are ready to come forward and enroll into companies. 63

July 28, Quebec. Dunn to Castlereagh (No. 11). Transmits copy of the proceedings of Council on a representation made by Brock for extraordinary assistance to enable him to put the fortifications of Quebec in a proper state of defence. 84

Enclosed. Report of Council (dated 25th July), that without definite information as to the probability of a war the Council can form no judgment on Brock's proposals. The Council has no doubt that should circumstances call for it, the Executive Council would co-operate with Brock. In the meantime he must be aware of the means he possesses, as commanding the troops, to hire labourers and workmen, if the exigencies of the service require it, without the concurrence of the civil Government and voluntary assistance, as suggested by Brock, would be cheerfully given, and there is no doubt that the offers of this nature would be accepted by the Executive Government. 85

August 3, Quebec. Dunn to Castlereagh (No. 12). Transmits copies of papers respecting a suit against the deceased William Grant for sums acknowledged to be in his hands from bills of exchange negotiated for Government, as deputy of Sir Thomas Mills, Receiver General. Enumerates the papers sent. The Attorney General will, of course, report the proceedings to the Solicitor of the Treasury. 104

Enclosed. Attorney General Sewell to Ryland, 26th June. Has obtained judgment for £8,756, against the representatives of the late William Grant, for balance due by him on bills of exchange negotiated by him as Deputy Receiver General, but the claim for the penalty on the bond was dismissed, so that the judgment is for £10,000 less than the demand. Is not dissatisfied with the judgment; should, however, an appeal be thought expedient, requests it may be signified to him. 107

Ryland to Sewell, 29th June. That an appeal is not thought desirable, but as a memorial has been presented by Richardson, executor for Grant, which he (Dunn) intends to send through the Secretary of State to the Lords of the Treasury. Asks that he (Sewell) draw up a particular statement of the case that may be forwarded with the memorial. 109

Statement by Sewell, as requested in the preceding letter. 110

August 3, Quebec. Dunn to Castlereagh (No. 13). Has issued a proclamation appointing certain justices of the peace to administer the oaths required from officers on half pay. Sends list of these and of the officers who have returned their names to the Governor's Secretary. 125

August 5, Quebec. Dunn to Castlereagh (separate). Calls attention to Brock's letter about the militia and the proposed strengthening of the fortifications of Quebec. His surprise, after the annual labour of so many years on the works, to learn from Brock of their defenceless condition. The unpopularity that would be caused by calling out the militia for work on the fortifications, but if properly managed, the militia will not only make effectual resistance to hostile attempts, but will contribute in a very essential degree to offensive operations. The militia showed a strong disinclination to be called out in 1795, and this was reported to Brock, as a caution, with an inquiry if he would strengthen the hands of Government to carry into execution the measures ordered. Had also informed him that the militia, when embodied, were by law entitled to the same pay and allowances as the King's troops, and that no funds for this purpose were at the disposal of the Civil Government. Of this last statement Brock took no notice, but in reference to a possible disinclination on the part of the militia for the particular service proposed, appeared to abandon the idea of obtaining assistance from the militia, taking it for granted that the population would rather add to the number of the enemy. The Council had, therefore, explained that the calling out a certain number of militia would not produce a general spirit of resistance, but merely that defaulters might be found in cases. Quotes and comments on the clause of the Militia Act which gives power to call out only 1,200 men, and that he has no information to justify him in going beyond that number. When answers to his circular are received from the colonels of militia, he shall give the necessary orders to have the 1,200 men trained, as provided by the 40th section of the Act. Page 140

Castlereagh to Prescott. That from present circumstances it is the Royal intention to send out an officer to succeed him (Prescott) in the government of the North American provinces. Trusts he will feel in its true light the necessity for an arrangement which may interfere with his emoluments. 147

Brock to Castlereagh. Had received circular to discontinue the letting of canteens for the emolument of officers holding military command. Such a practice does not exist in this command. 148

Dunn to same (No. 14). Sends certified copy of the rates of exchange and prices current. 149

Enclosed. Prices current. 150

Note from Sir J. H. Craig. Has observed, on reading over the Quebec correspondence. very few points on which he requires particular instructions. He prefers waiting till he can obtain more perfect knowledge of the situation, so that he could present his views to the Ministry. The points alone on which he would wish for directions arise from the precarious situation with regard to America, which may come to a crisis before there could be any communication with His Majesty's Government. The little probability of making effectual resistance at any other point than Quebec in case of an attack on the Province. Even there, Castlereagh appears to doubt the propriety of prolonged resistance. Would be glad to have instructions on the subject. Will the raising of independent companies be approved of? Is aware of the inefficiency of militia during the late war, but such companies as he proposes may be kept efficient in point of numbers, though it will require experience to tell how far their services will be of value. To what extent should he proceed in completing the defences of Quebec? Should he have a more than usual latitude in this respect can promise that it be met by the strictest regard to economy and restricted to what is necessary. His position towards the Lieut. Governor of Upper Canada, and how far he should be under his (Craig's) control. 153

Second note undated. Respecting the control of the Indian Department, which he finds rests with the Lieut. Governor of Upper Canada. Should the intercourse with these people not be considered as more military than civil and conducted as part of a uniform system. The importance of the question in certain eventualities. 157

Castlereagh to Craig (No. 1). Sends commission appointing him Captain General and Governor-in-chief for Upper and Lower Canada, with instructions. 159

Same to same (No. 2). Out of £6,000 for the support of the Governor General and of the Lieut. Governor of Lower Canada, he (Craig) is to receive £4,500, leaving £1,500 for the Lieut. Governor. Alexander Forbes to be Lieutenant Governor of Gaspé. 160

America. By firm and moderate conduct of Government it is hoped the United States will adhere to a pacific system, and every effort consisted with honour shall be made to prevent a rupture. If disappointed, vigorous measures to be adopted to bring the United States to reason. The measures to be adopted and points to be guarded. Page 161

September 5, Downing Street. Castlereagh to Craig (No. 3). The saving effected during the absence of Milnes, in the salary of Lieut. Governor, is to be paid to him at the rate of £1,000 a year, from the 5th of January, 1805, till the date of his (Craig's) arrival. 163

September 15, Quebec. Dunn to Castlereagh (No. 15). Transmits additional proceedings of the Council respecting the calling out of the militia. Asks that attention be paid to the minute. Summary of correspondence with Brock on the subject, copy of which is enclosed. His reasons for conducting the discussion by letter rather than verbally, so that the reasons on both sides might be of record. On the assurance that Brock would issue arms, had called out the militia for a general review, and ordered one-fifth to be in readiness for actual service. The conduct of the militia, with few exceptions, has been such as merits the highest commendation, and he hopes that it may procure some signification of His Majesty's approbation, as nothing would be so flattering to His Majesty's Canadian subjects. Is still without intimation of a hostile disposition on the part of the United States, so that he had not adverted to that as the ground for calling out the militia, though such a declaration would be an additional stimulus to the zeal and energy of the Canadians. Urges, however, the speedy combination of the civil and military command, otherwise the most favourable movement for carrying the militia law into effect will be lost. Will use his best efforts to convert the present loyal disposition to solid purpose. Has, therefore, specially summoned the members of the Executive Council to meet on the 25th instant, to consult as to the best means to adopt and decide how far it would be proper to incur expense for embodying and training a certain portion of the militia. In a postscript dated the 16th, it is stated, that by a dispatch from Admiral Berkeley, it appears that war is inevitable. (A copy of this dispatch is in C. 676, p. 19.) 169

Enclosed. Report of the Executive Council, dated 12th August, 1807, on the statements and representations of Colonel Brock in his letter of 17th July. (For previous proceedings of Council on this letter, at the meeting of the 25th July, see p. 85.) The proceedings include letter to the Colonels of militia and answers, copies of correspondence with Brock, observations by Dunn to the Council on the same, &c. (p. 176); continuation of the proceedings, 19th August (p. 190), respecting the propriety of preventing the exportation of gunpowder and abrogating certain parts of the Act regulating commerce with the United States. 176, 190

Dunn to Brock, 18th August. For how many of the militia can he furnish arms? 199

Brock to Dunn, 18th August. That 5,000 stand of arms shall be issued from the King's magazines, so soon as he is informed that that number of militia or any part is embodied. A great number of arms had been previously issued, 1,200 stand so late as 1801 and 1804, which he presumes are safely lodged. It is desirable that steps should be taken for the return of arms issued when that shall be thought necessary. 200

Comments on the report that lease of the St. Maurice Forges might have been sold for £1,500 or £2,000 a year. The public is to be congratulated on the combination to pay the latter sum having fallen through. Sends the deed of partnership and describes the character of each partner individually, with his pecuniary circumstances. Page 210

Enclosed. Notarial deed of partnership (in French) referred to in letter, with the conditions of the co-partnery. 218, 234

Dunn to Castlereagh (separate). Thanks for liberality in respect to his salary as judge, would have retired from the Bench but for some heavy pecuniary losses, which would render a diminution of his allowance a serious disadvantage to his family. The reduction of the value of his stock in the Batiscan Iron Works has also lessened his means, but he would retire at once were half his pension to be continued to Mrs. Dunn after his death. Recommends George Hawdon for the vacant office of Storekeeper to the Indian Department. 235

Castlereagh to Craig (No. 4). Transmits extract of letter from Cottrell, Secretary to the Privy Council, that Act to authorize Jacques Lacombe to build a bridge over the River L'Assomption has not been laid before His Majesty. Duun to Castlereagh (No. 17). Dispatches received. Shall consult the judges and law officers as to the necessity of obtaining legislative provisions to render lands in the Province liable for the payment of contract debts. That, however, has been customary in Lower Canada. Had sent extract to Brock from dispatch stating that it was the intention to send out a Governor General. 244

Enclosed. Secretary at War, referred to, that as no documents have been transmitted to show that Mrs. La Corne St. Luc's husband had been colonel of several tribes of Indians, he is not aware of any just claim she has to a pension. 37

anuary 31, Chatham. Chevalier de la Garde to Cockburn. That he had been compelled, owing to his reduced circumstances, to accept a place as a German teacher. Asks that the quantity of lands he is to receive shall be settled. 38

anuary 31, Quebec. Allcock to Adam Gordon. Introduces Bouchette and asks that he may be procured an interview with Shee in respect to his salary. 39

ebruary 1, Quebec. Same to same. The papers respecting the claims of Sewell have been sent some time ago. He has been ill-treated by the delay. Hopes that an order will come out for payment. 40 ebruary 6, London. Duke of Kent to Shee. Transmits four papers from John Black. 1. His application. 2. A short recapitulation of the heads of his case. 3. Note from Lieut. Col. Vesey, then secretary to His Royal Highness, enclosing, 4. Assurance of King that Portland had approved and sanctioned what he (the Duke of Kent) had recommended for Black. Strongly urges the claims of Black, whom he highly esteems, and regards his reduced circumstances as nearly a disgrace to Government. The salary for the place of bateau master and measurer of timber would be provided without expense to Government. 41

Enclosed. Application by Black for the place of bateau master, &c. 43

"An explanatory letter of my (Black's) petition and present condition." States his services, &c. The document is addressed to General Wetherall. 45

Copy of Lieut. Col. Vesey's letter. 50

Copy of King's answer to Vesey, that Portland has given such directions as cannot fail to benefit Black. 53

(The last two letters are dated in 1798.)

ebruary 10, London. Recommendation by the Duke of Kent in favour of de Salaberry to succeed Duchesnay as member of the Legislative and Executive Councils, stating his services. 58

ebruary 11, London. Memorial of merchants trading to Canada, praying to have an Act passed to make lands liable for simple contract debts. 51

A second memorial, dated the 12th, states that the laws as to the liability of real estate for the payment of personal debts, are different in the two Provinces. That in Lower Canada, the French law, still existing, subjects real property to the payment of personal debts after the moveable has been exhausted, but it is difficult of enforcement. In Upper Canada, so much doubt exists, that many cases are pending and should the law declare real estate exempt, it will destroy the credit hitherto given to the incalculable loss of both Mother Country and Colony. The memorial prays for the enactment of a law to make real estate liable for personal debts, &c. 54

February 20, London. Black to Gordon. Had been referred to him by Sir George Shee to put his claims to the two islands—Ronde and Degrasse opposite Sorel—in a fair way to be settled, they having been granted to him eight years before. Grand Isle is in the lower part of Lake Ontario, between Kingston and Carleton Island, and for that a patent must issue from Gore, Governor of Upper Canada. How another island had been granted to a person who had rendered no services. Respecting his appointment to superintend His Majesty's shipyards, measure the timber, &c., it would save £5,000 a year. Prays for the three islands and for the situation mentioned. Page 60

Enclosed. Requisition. 3

November 9, Quebec. Craig to Castlereagh (No. 1). Had been unable from illness to write when the packet was made up for the fleet on the 26th ulto., except a private note to announce his arrival. Is now better. He had landed on the 18th but could not take the oaths till the 24th and then in his bedroom. Would have preferred a more solemn ceremony, but for the possible risk of inconvenience to public business. The muster of the militia, called a review had taken place, and he was assured that the disposition was commendable, except in a few cases; cannot yet form his own judgment of how far these may detract from the favourable side. No returns have been made of the actual numbers that presented themselves; the fifth ordered to hold itself in readiness amounts to nearly 7,500, making the total something about 37,000. No orders given to call out the fifth; it does not appear possible to put the measure into execution this season with the least hope of benefit, with respect to rendering them of more use than they would be called upon in spring; the calling them out now would be attended with a heavy expense and probably occasion dissatisfaction. Has little knowledge on the subject, but it appears to him to be replete with difficulties. In the meantime, asks for a supply of necessaries; a considerable supply of small arms wanted, the present stock is about 7,000; Upper Canada has lately received from this Province 4,000 or 5,000, but they cannot be spared. For both Provinces an addition of 7,000 wanted. There are no accoutrements, without them no selected body of militia can serve effectually; they are probably in the same situation in Upper Canada; at least 10,000 wanted. Other articles mentioned. Was pleased on his arrival to find that Brock had not hesitated to order the completing of a wall round the precipice that separates the upper from the lower town. Before the working season returns he shall be able to consider what is required and communicate. The regard and esteem in which Dunn is held, particularly by Brock, who speaks of him highly. Believes that in respect to the lease of the St. Maurice Forges Dunn's conduct would stand the severest test. At his age (77) was not surprised that in his last dispatch he had not placed his case in the strongest point of view. It was true that a set of adventurers had agreed to offer £1,500 or £2,000, but had given up the project and never appeared at the auction. The creditable manner in which Brock conducted the military command; his disagreement with Dunn was a subject of regret to both and he found them on the best terms with each other. Este has presented his mandamus as Naval Officer; regrets the disappointment to Foy, who is a deserving man and has given satisfaction. Had received notice of the appointment of Forbes to be Lieut. Governor of Gaspé. Fargues having declined the appointment of Storekeeper to the Indian Department, has appointed Hawdon, who has been for seven years in the Secretary's Department and is well qualified for the duties of the office. Has communicated his arrival to His Majesty's Minister to the United States, but has not yet heard from him, or from the Lieut. Governor of Upper Canada. Page 5

mber 17, ec. Craig to Castlereagh (No. 5). Transmits memorial of Mrs. Le Maistre, widow of the late Lieut. Governor of Gaspé. She is entirely dependent on an aged mother, widow of Lieut. Governor Cramahé, and two daughters, married to officers in the army. Recommends that she receive an adequate allowance. (Mrs. Cramahé received a pension of £150, the warrant stating it to be given "as widow of the late Hector "Theophilus Cramahé, Lieutenant Governor of Detroit, pursuant to an "order of the Lords of the Treasury, signified in Mr. Secretary Rose's "letter of 31st May, 1790." Cramahé took the oath of office on the 12th of October, 1785, but, so far as can be traced, never entered on the government of Detroit. The last warrant for his salary is dated 1st May, 1787.) 23

h 7, lin's Inn. Attorney and Solicitor General to Windham. Cannot recommend a bill to Parliament at present respecting the liability of lands for the payment of contract debts. Should such legislation be necessary, the Provincial Legislatures should be asked to adopt the measures best calculated for the object proposed. Page 321

h 9, c. Sir John Johnson to Windham. Transmits correspondence with President Dunn on the subject of the appointment he recommends to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Lees, of Storekeeper General of the Indian Department. 324

Enclosed. Sir John to Dunn 7th March. Recommends his son to succeed Lees, and Patrick Langan to succeed to the office of Secretary of the Indian Department. Should there be objections to his son, recommends that Langan be made Storekeeper General. 327

Dunn to Sir John, 8th March. That he has appointed his son-in-law, Fargues, to the vacant office. 330

h 14, ury. Treasury (Harrison) to Cockburn. Transmits further documents respecting a pension to the widow of La Corne St. Luc. 332

Enclosed. A. Lenox to the Secretary at War, 19th February, with La Corne St. Luc's commission. 333

Secretary at War to Harrison, 5th March. Has received commission, &c., but for want of information of La Corne's death, &c., cannot decide on the widow's claim. Page 334

March 16, Cockglade. Milnes to Shee (private). Had received correspondence respecting Black's claims. He had received the grant of the township of Dorset, amounting to 53,000 acres, which it is believed he sold for a considerable sum, but was unfortunate in business. Had always understood that he was satisfied with his compensation, but should his present distress, &c., lead to his obtaining a further reward, can only add that his services were of the first importance. Objects pointed out in Black's memorial are all in the military department, including the seigniory of Sorel. Respecting the position of the late Mr. Duchesnay, the Duke of Kent has been misinformed, as he was only an honorary member of the Council; its composition, the importance of a proper choice as it is a court of final appeal in the Province. The peculiar situation he holds with respect to the recommendation for the office of Lieut. Governor of Gaspé. His reasons for recommending Forbes for that office. The powers under which he (Milnes) acted whilst at Quebec. 335

Enclosed. Extract from the King's instructions relative to filling up vacancies in the Councils. 342

Milnes to Camden, 18th February, 1805, announcing the death of Le Maistre, Lieut. Governor of Gaspé, from whose illness affairs there have suffered and recommending Alexander Forbes to succeed, for whose abilities he can vouch. 343

March 17, Chatham. De la Garde to Cockburn. Respecting his request to be informed of the number of acres he is entitled to by his grant. 345

March 18, Downing Street. Substance of letter, Windham to Milnes. That he could hold out no hope for a retrospective allowance, nor for the addition in future of an addition to the salary, should he return to Canada. 347

March 19, London. Black to Gordon. Should any part of his claims not be clearly understood, shall be happy to explain fully. The points to be made clear are given in detail. 348

March 20, London. Same to same. Entreats that his case may not be referred to the jarring counsels and jealousies that generally exist between governors and commanders of the forces, as that was the chief cause why His Majesty's gracious intentions were not long before carried into effect. 350

Enclosed. Extract of letter from Portland to Prescott, dated 1st August, 1798, authorizing him to make a grant of land to Black in accordance with his services. 351

April 11. Abbé Calonne (in French). Applies for a renewal of leave to go to Canada, granted at the beginning of August, but which he could not make use of till spring. Has sent all his effects to Canada and as the ship in which he has taken passage is to sail on the 15th, asks for a speedy answer. 352

Enclosed. Abbé Calonne to Lord Castlereagh (in French). That the Marquis of Hertford had promised to speak on his behalf. His brother is known to Portland and had been granted lands in Prince Edward Island. Asks for a renewal of permission to go to Canada to end his days there, having been asked by the Catholic Bishop to come there, where his services were supposed to be useful. Milnes was opposed to his being there, but Windham after full investigation thought it right to give permission. Other considerations in support of his request. 353

Calonne to Hertford, 7th April (in French). Asking his influence with Castlereagh for permission to go to Canada and to have his allowance continued. 356

April 13, Horse Guards. Gordon to Cooke. Transmits by order of the Commander-in-Chief, to be laid before Castlereagh for favourable consideration, a second memorial from Colonel Bowes, on the subject of his claim to remuneration for the extra expense and responsibility he incurred whilst in command of the troops in the two Canadas. Page 359

Enclosed. Bowes to Gordon, 12th April. Sends a second memorial, the 1st battalion of the 6th regiment, which he commands, being ordered for embarkation. 360

Memorial. Introduction only, the rest of the memorial, a repetition of the first, is in Q. 106–1, p. 33. 361

Thmoas Edward Brown to Castlereagh. Two young men, chiefs of the Iroquois from the village at the Lake of Two Mountains, and a chief's son from Lorette have arrived to present a petition for some lands formerly belonging to these villages. They had consulted no one respecting this visit, and came addressed to a friend of his in Liverpool, who had sent them on to him. They are in want of every necessary and look to the King as their father and protector of their tribes. The young man from Lorette is personally known to the Duke of Kent. 363

Memorandum on three Iroquois Indians, who have arrived to claim lands at the Lake of Two Mountains and at Lorette. They are without money or clothes. The only credentials they have is a paper, purporting to be the result of a meeting of chiefs. 362

Brown to Cooke. Had impressed on the Indians the impossibility of anything being done in their case, except by reference to the Executive Government of Canada. If the King had the power to grant their request, the lands, he (Brown) thought, would only be granted to be subdivided so that each family might have its separate lot, not to be transferred for a period to be fixed on. This would keep out vagrants, and if a sale could not be made for liquor, it would tend to improve their moral habits and private industry. If these lands could not be given, owing to previous grants, land might be given in some other situation on the same terms. The Indians seemed pleased at this, and said these terms would meet the approbation of the villages. These Indians have full authority to act for the rest, and have asked him to propose anything to His Majesty's Government which might conduce to the general interest of their tribes. They are accustomed to husbandry, and if the lands were restored to them, they would only need a very trifling assistance, in the case of new lands they would require the same as is given to European settlers. 366

Statement of their case by the Indians. 369

Milnes to Gordon. Asks that the meeting be deferred till he can look over some memoranda. 371

Neville to Stewart. That Mann's report on the defences of Quebec was submitted, with the plans, to a Committee of Royal Engineers, and transmitted to Camden, with a letter from Chatham, on the 5th of July, 1805. 372

Gordon to Cooke. By direction of the Commander-in-Chief, transmits papers relative to Canada. 373

Enclosed. Mathews to Colonel Gordon, dated 25th April, 1807. Sends extract of a letter from Quebec, from a well informed man, well acquainted with the people. Why should French newspapers now appear for the first time since the Conquest, after 40 years of assimilation? The father of the de Lery mentioned in the letter is an old French militaire, and in the Legislative Council many years, where he has always conducted himself with propriety. His oldest son was in the French service, and held some situation near the person of Louis. The Perrault family has always been protected by Government, and so have the lawyers alluded to, but they have long since shown the cloven foot. Has seen many of the most respectable traders, who declare the growing defection, even to insolence, of the Canadians; in Vermont,

10,000 hardy vagabonds might be got together in three days. Upper Canada is equally assailable. There are many good subjects in the new settlement, but some bad ones. Fears that in the present situation, the Canadas would be an easy prey to a considerable force. Page 375

Extract of letter from Quebec without signature, dated 27th January. Steps taking to alienate the Canadians. Two French newspapers with this tendency are lately started, the editors being lawyers, firebrands of society. General Turreau, the French Minister, tried to establish a French paper in New York, but failed; it is suspected he has been more successful here, as the types for one, if not for both, of these papers came from the States. Young de Lery left at the beginning of last winter to go, as he said, to England, but it is since reported he has joined the French service. A son of Perrault, the greffier, has been absent two years, and it is said, has been on board a French ship of war. He has returned and given a flattering account of Turreau. It is reported that every ship from France bring from 12 to 20 soldiers and New York is full of French officers. Perrault says they are intended for the French West Indies, but he is not entrusted with their secrets. Would not be surprised to hear of a second Miranda or Burr starting up at the head of these fellows and marching on Canada; they will find enough of Vermontese to join them for the sake of plunder, for the United States Government has not sufficient energy to prevent its citizens forming similar expeditions. The importance of having the military and civil authority united in one person. 376

May 19, London. John Young to Cooke. Sends memorial to be appointed Collector of Customs at Quebec, which he asks to be forwarded to the Treasury. 379

Enclosed. Memorial. 380

May 23, Treasury. Harrison to Cooke. Sends copy of report by the Comptrollers of army accounts, respecting the claim of Colonel Bowes, for expenses incurred whilst commanding the forces in Canada. The Treasury approves of the recommendation of the Comptrollers that an officer on the staff, not a general officer, succeeding to the command on a foreign station, shall receive the pay and allowances, whilst in command, of the rank immediately superior to that which he holds in the army. 383

Enclosed. Report, 30th April. 384

May 24, Quebec. Allcock to Castlereagh. On the change of Ministry thinks it his duty to inform His Lordship of the situation of this Government. Dunn, the President, is superannuated, his memory has failed, and the injury to the colony for want of a Governor cannot be conceived. Owing to the change of Ministry so soon before the sailing of the fleet, presumes the necessary arrangements for this Province could not be made, but if a Lieut. Governor is appointed, hopes the present information will not be considered an intrusion. Does not believe the report that Justice Thorpe is to be transferred from Upper Canada to the King's Bench, Quebec. The evil effects of his conduct in Upper Canada only prevented by Gore's wise and decided measures. The mischief Thorpe would cause in Quebec. 386

May 28, Ordnance. Crewe to Cooke. On a recommendation from Brock for a hospital at Quebec, referred to Morse, Inspector General of Works, transmits report, with plans, prepared by Morse and Mann of the Royal Engineers. The Master General and Board of Ordnance entirely concur in the opinion of these officers in regard to the construction of the proposed range of barracks at Quebec. 388

Enclosed. Morse to Crewe. That he had transmitted the proposal by Brock for a range of barracks to serve as a hospital upon Cape Diamond at Quebec. The change suggested by Mann, to have case mates in the lower story, of great value. Recommends that order should be sent to have the work carried into execution. The additional expense should, he hopes, not be an objection. Page 390

Plan. 394*a*

Fawkener to Cooke. The Lords of Trade desire that as there is no land cleared to the extent of 150 acres that can be granted to Grece for the cultivation of hemp, the Governor of Lower Canada is to be instructed, if Grece has fulfilled his engagements for carrying on the cultivation of hemp, so far as circumstances have permitted him, that to preserve the public faith, 150 should be bought or a pecuniary allowance made him in lieu thereof. 395

Enclosed. Papers relating to the claim of Grece. 397 to 405

Bishop (Anglican) of Quebec to Canning. Asking that he would use his influence with Castlereagh to have his memorial considered. 406

Enclosed. Letter to Castlereagh of same date, with memorial which he prays may be laid before the King. 408

Memorial, stating the disadvantages under which the Church of England labours in Canada, and soliciting that remedial measures may be adopted. 409

Harrison to Cooke. Transmits letter from Dunn, dated 15th April, with Receiver General's account current to 13th October, 1806, and report of a Committee of the whole Council, for the information of Castlereagh. 415

Harrison to Cooke. The Lords of the Treasury desire to have copies of the appointment of and instructions to Guy Carleton in 1775, and those subsequently granted to Haldimand for the Commissioners for auditing the Public Accounts. 416

Gordon to same. Transmits for Castlereagh's consideration a dispatch from Brock relative to a piece of waste land of the Crown adjoining the barracks in Quebec, stating the benefit that would arise were its use given to the troops. 417

Enclosed. Brock to Gordon, dated Quebec, 4th May. The advantage the possession of the ground about the Jesuit Barracks would be if appropriated to the troops, for their recreation as well as for drill and military discipline. Encloses previous representations on the subject, namely, letter from Hunter to Hobart, 10th August, 1804, report by Gother Mann to Hunter, 11th November, 1802, and another report from Mann to Hunter, 15th January, 1800. 418, 422, 424, 429

Plan of the Jesuits' Barracks and ground depending on them, with contiguous streets and market-place, 1807, coloured. 432*a*

Bishop (Anglican) of Quebec to Castlereagh. Presses for the consideration of his memorial. 433

Harding Gifford to Cooke (?) That the supposed vacancy in the Chief Justiceship caused by the death of Monk has not occurred, the death of a nephew of the same name probably leading to the report. That the emoluments of a puisné judge led him at first to pay no attention to such a vacancy, but thinks now, if he had the assurance of being promoted to the Chief Justiceship, a previous discharge of the duties of the inferior office might serve as a preparation. 440

Memorial of Joseph Bouchette, stating his services and applying for an increase to his salary. He had come to London to lay before the Ministry the unsettled state of the boundary between the United States and Lower Canada, as shown by a statement annexed and by an extract from a speech of the Governor of Vermont. 434

Enclosed. Statement showing the unsettled boundaries between Vermont and Lower Canada. 437

Extract from speech of the Governor of Vermont referred to. 439

July 10, Treasury. Harrison to Cooke. To move Castlereagh to favour the Treasury with an opinion on what may be done respecting Mrs. La Corne's petition for a pension. Page 442

July 11, Treasury. Same to same. To obtain Castlereagh's opinion on the application of Scott, Idle & Co. that the extent of the Navy contracts may not be stated in the licenses. 443

July 14, London. J. Brown to Governor Bentinck. Encloses memorial from Joshua H. Smith. The extreme misery of himself and family. Smith's hope of redress disappointed by the short tenure of office by the Ministry. Added to his other misfortunes is the loss of £5,200 by the failure of his agent. An extract from a letter gives a striking account of the misery to which the petitioner and his family were reduced. 444

Enclosed. Memorial by Joshua H. Smith, praying that his petition to the King may be presented. 447

Memorial to the King. That he is descended from an ancient English family, holding distinguished offices in America for nearly 100 years, till the dismemberment of the Empire by the American revolution. His brother was His Majesty's last Chief Justice of New York, and recently died in a similar office in Canada. His services and sufferings; how his claims were allowed to lapse, owing to the death of his agent &c., by which he remains languishing near the winter of life in poverty and misery too agonizing for the contemplation of His Majesty. 448

Documents accompanying memorial. 452

July 17, London. List sent by Joseph Bouchette of astronomical instruments required for the use of the Surveyor General's Department at Quebec. 454

July 18, London. Petition of Charles Noël, of the Huron Nation, and Levant and Lewis, both of the Iroquois Nation, all in Lower Canada, delegated by their respective nations. Stating the services of their nations as allies of the King, and praying for lands on which to hunt and which they can cultivate by degrees, as it is not to be expected that they could change their mode of living by immediately applying to agriculture alone. 456

July 20, London. Joseph Bouchette to Cooke. As he cannot expect any increase of salary, forwards a memorial to Castlereagh for a quarter township. His disappointment at his unsuccessful visit, &c. 459

July 21, London. Freeling to Cooke. Sends copy of letter from the post office, Quebec. 462

Enclosed. Boutillier to Freeling, Quebec, 27th May. Loss of the March mail by the upsetting of a canoe, about ninety-three leagues below Quebec. 463

Account of the sinking of the canoe and the loss of the mails, about four leagues above the Grand Falls. 464

July 22. Milnes to Cooke. Had been obliged to leave town without seeing him, on account of the illness of Lady Milnes. The wrong idea held by Young of Quebec, respecting what was done in the Council in 1799 and 1803 in regard to the Jesuit estates in Quebec and Montreal. Has all the papers which he can show, so that a clear insight into the circumstances relating to these lands. Believes that the application on the part of the military arises more from jealousy between the Commander and the President, as previous Governors united the civil and military departments; did not think it necessary to allot the Jesuit Garden at Quebec to military purposes, though the college has always been used as a barrack. Has always felt that there could be no immediate necessity for giving up the whole garden to the military, for reasons stated. The papers will show the extreme jealousy of the Canadians respecting the Jesuit estates, and if any new step is to be taken, it should be entrusted to persons of higher rank than those now on the spot. Remind him of the promise respecting the appointment of Forbes to be Lieut. Governor of Gaspé. Page 465

Joseph A. Small to same (?) Calls attention to memorials and plans of William Bond, and asks that an interview with Castlereagh should be obtained for that gentleman. The benefit the acceptance of the plan would be to the country. 468

Bouchette to same. The unsettled state of the boundaries between the United States and Lower Canada must render it necessary to have a verification of the line 45° and the height of the land ascertained. As an order to this effect might be sent when he was not prepared with the necessary astronomical instruments, submits the case for consideration and sends list of the necessary instruments. Proposes to send to London maps of the Province and towns, if acceptable. States the heads of information they would contain. 470

Enclosed. List of astronomical instruments for the use of the Surveyor General's office, but more specially for ascertaining the boundary between the United States and Lower Canada. List dated 24th July. 472

Duke of Kent to Cooke. In event of a change of Governor in Quebec, recommends Major Robertson, of the 60th Regiment, for the position of private secretary. 474

Harrison to same. To obtain the opinion of Castlereagh on Scott, Idle & Co.'s contract for supplying masts, &c. 476

Order-in-Council, authorizing the issue of warrant for the appointment of Young and Williams to the Executive Council of Lower Canada. 477

Prescott to Castlereagh. Considering his long service, hopes for the short remainder of his life that some compensation might be considered as not unreasonable. 478

Bouchette to Cooke. Being obliged to leave for Portsmouth to obtain passage for Canada, has stated fully his services and claims in the hope that a favourable construction may be put on them. It has not been in his power to accomplish what he suggested, will try to do so at Portsmouth, and will send further information from Canada. 479

Enclosed. Memorial stating his services and praying for an increase in his salary. 481

Documents of various dates referring to Bouchette's services. 486 to 498

Louis, Loren and Charles to Cooke. The three Indian delegates, complaining that they do not receive the accommodation they expected on board the transport and asking for £30 in order that they may have the same supplies as other passengers. 499

V. Chabot to Stuart. Calls attention to the case of the three Indians on board the transport. Would it not be worth while to send an order to make them comfortable to gain the good-will of the Indians when it may be needed? 501

McLean, Captain 10th Royal Veteran Battalion, to Cooke. The disappointment of the Indians at the allowance they are to receive on board the transport. The sum asked for (£30) would not be ill bestowed. Their decent and becoming behaviour. 502

Order-in-Council, approving of the commission and instructions to Craig and authorizing Castlereagh to prepare a warrant in accordance therewith. 503

Duke of York to Castlereagh. To give directions for the preparation of a commission to Craig as General and Commander of the Forces of Upper and Lower Canada. 505

Pole to Cooke. A detachment of the Royal Artillery for Canada to be accommodated on board the "Horatio." 506

Bouchette to same. His disappointment respecting his passage to Quebec; had lost the convoy and is now on board the ship "Pallas" for

St. John, N.B. If he cannot get on board the "Canada," a merchant ship, he must go to St. John, and proceed across the country to Quebec, an expensive journey, but which will afford an opportunity of acquiring a more correct knowledge of that communication. Hopes that his memorial may be considered previous to Craig's leaving London and its prayer granted. His reason for applying for a seat in the Council. Remarks on the proposed expedition of Moreau against Canada in event of a war and the little hope of its success, unless a much stronger force is sent than proposed. By proper military arrangements, the Americans would find it a very difficult task to take either of the Provinces, especially Lower Canada. Even in Upper Canada a most powerful resistance can be made and time will show that Canada is not so easy a prey as the Americans consider it to be. Page 507

August 25, London. Craig to Stewart. Respecting the passage of his staff to Canada. 512

August 27, Admiralty. Barron to Stewart. That the usual warrants in favour of Craig are ready for delivery. 514

August 28, Lincoln's Inn. V. Gibbs and Thomas Plumer to Castlereagh. Opinion of Council on the powers of the Court held under a commission of Oyer and terminer and under a separate commission of gaol delivery. The sentences not to take effect until the approbation of the person administering the Government was obtained, but that no pardon should be granted by the latter until the cases are reported. Under the exceptional circumstances of the case on which an opinion is asked, it was prudent of the administrator to grant a respite. (For papers connected with this case, see Q. 102, pp. 298 to 329.) 515

September 5, London. John Maitland to Cooke. Urging that the business relating to his lands may be settled with as little delay as possible. 518

September 9, Quebec. General Order by President Dunn addressed to Baby, Adjutant-General of the Militia of Lower Canada, desiring him to make known to the officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of the militia the President's warmest approbation of their conduct, the same to be read by the commanding officers at the head of their respective corps, and that the President shall send an account to be laid before His Majesty. In English, 536; in French, 538. 536, 538

September 28, Whitehall. Fawkener to Cooke. The Lords of Trade have under consideration a representation on the cultivation of hemp, to which he has devoted much attention. Their Lordships entertaining a favourable opinion of Bond's abilities, &c., recommend Castlereagh to instruct the Governor of Upper or Lower Canada, to grant him 1,200 acres, if His Lordship see no objection, one-half to be cleared land, if vacant, if not, one-fourth to be cleared land to be purchased for him. 528

Q. 291—1.

May 28 to July 9. Journals of Legislative Council and Assembly of Upper Canada.
Page 39 to Q. 291–2, p.

June 12, York. Allcock to Hunter. Remarks on the Femme Couverte Bill (in H ter's No. 34, p. 1). The object of the bill is to enable married women alienate either a life estate or an estate in fee simple with very sm ceremony indeed instead of being obliged to do that which is requi by the law of England. Is afraid that the Legislature in an unfortun moment would do away with the now slender security provided agai the influence of the husband. His experience had shown him that court, instead of showing a disposition to facilitate the means by wh a married woman could strip herself of her rights, was anxious to gu and protect her against improvident alienation of property. Belie therefore, that had the courts been consulted, they would have oppo the proposed measure. General considerations on the inexpediency the law.

June 12, York. The same to same. His opinion on the bill respecting the sale lands by the sheriff. The bill appears to have been introduced in con duence of a difference of opinion in the court; whether a plaintiff hav obtained a judgment, could or could not sue out execution against t lands, which was decided in the affirmative, he (Allcock) dissent States the grounds of Powell's decision and his own dissent. The Ch Justice (Elmsley) will, no doubt, forward his own opinion. Gives length the opposing views on the subject.

July 11, York. Report of Chief Justice Elmsley on bills originating in the Legislati Council of Upper Canada, namely: "1. An Act to enable femmes c "vertes having real estate, or interest in real estate more convenient "to alien the same." "2. An Act to continue an Act passed in 37 "year of His Majesty's Reign, entitled: 'An Act for the better securi "the Province against the King's Enemies.'" "3. An Act to allow Ti "for the sale of Lands and Tenements by the Sheriff." "4. An Act to p "vent Acts of the Legislature from taking effect from a time prior "the passing thereof."

August 4, York. Opinion of Scott, Attorney General, on the bill relating to the alie tion of real estate by femmes couvertes, which agrees with that of Justice Allcock, so that it is not necessary to state the reasoning justification for the opinion arrived at, and on the bill for allowin certain time for the sale of lands and tenements by the sheriffs; views on this bill he divides into the question of form and of substa the consideration of which he states at length.

August 27, York. Hunter to Portland (No. 34). Sends copies of Acts to which Royal Assent has been given. Sends opinion of Chief Justice All and of the Attorney General on two reserved Acts.

The object is very desirable and would ensure vast advantages to the Canadian Provinces. Hobart to Hunter (No. 6). Transmits report on the question of granting lands to French royalists and copy of an Order in Council approving of bill for establishing a Court of Chancery in Upper Canada. It is only fair to grant the lands promised to the French royalists, but as they must be naturalized, which requires an Act of Parliament, this must be fully explained to them, and a list must be obtained of those to be included in such an arrangement. In the meantime, allotments of land may be made to them on the same principle as those to original American loyalists, in accordance with instructions already given. 16

Enclosed. Opinion of Edward Law and Spencer Percival, dated 23rd July, 1801, respecting grants to aliens. 19

ay 27, hitehall. Notes on Lord Selkirk's plan of emigration by King (see p. 166). Disapproves of emigration en masse, and sees great difficulty in Government attempting to transport and settle people from Ireland or elsewhere in either of the Canadas. No new district nor colony could be formed there, every settler on arriving should be subject to the existing laws and authorities, and no plan of settlement can be found practicable that attempts to put settlers under any particular head, or with any privileges other than those granted to every British subject that goes to settle. The Duke of Portland took steps to encourage the culture of hemp by granting so many acres for every acre of hemp. Would be averse to interfering with the fur trade which takes good care of itself, there being such a thing as salutary neglect. 167

ay 31, ndon. Selkirk to Hobart. Desires to obtain His Lordship's opinion on a paper sent to Lord Pelham but transferred to him (Hobart) as relating to the Colonies. 165

If not favourable, asks for His Lordship's intervention to obtain a grant of lands at the Falls of St. Mary, with the mines and minerals he may discover on the north side of Lakes Superior and Huron. Shall conform to such conditions as may be thought necessary to secure that the grants do not remain in an unimproved state. If, as hinted, lands should be open in Prince Edward Island, he would apply for grants there. He would thus be able to give his whole time and attention towards colonizing both tracts, which he could not afford to do in case of either singly. 201

July 30, Quebec. Hunter to same. Had received, by the hands of Mr. Scott, instructions to grant him an allotment of land, which shall be done. 61

In consequence of the opinion of the Attorney and Solicitor General, that the French royalists must be naturalized before they can obtain lands, shall send list of those who desire to be included in naturalization bill. In the meantime, their situation shall be explained to them. 65

August 4, Quebec. Same to same (No. 17). Has received dispatch that the report on Berczy's claim for 64,000 acres of land has been laid before the Privy Council, and desiring that a grant of land, on similar terms to those made to the Executive Councillors should be made to Mr. Justice Powell. 67

August 11, London. Freeling to Sullivan. Respecting the increase of salary granted to Ridout and the loss caused to him by delay, from which he should not suffer. 203

Order-in-Council, dated 16th August, disallowing the Act for declaring the rights of grantees of waste lands, &c. (213) and of the same date confirming two other Acts (215). 213, 215

August 15, Quebec. Hunter to Hobart (No. 19). Has received information that Elmsley is appointed Chief Justice of Lower Canada, that Allcock is to be Chief Justice of Upper Canada, with a seat in the Executive and Legislative Selkirk to Adam Gordon. Is sending a person now in New York to the Falls of St. Mary to examine into certain points. Asks for official letters to the commanders of posts, &c. His name is Richard Savage. 217

Same to Hobart. States local circumstances respecting the grant he asks; does not object to the rules but there are exceptional cases. The important position of the Falls of St. Mary; through the strait the fur trade passes and it is the only communication through British territory between the North-West and the Eastern Provinces. But it has not advantages to attract settlers and some therefore must be held out to encourage them, and for this reason he had asked for the grant of the mines and minerals as a compensation for the expense he must incur to induce settlers to go beyond their usual range. The class of people whom he hopes to attract; but cannot state specifically the number he can settle till he is informed of the conditions. If not unfavourable, supposes he could, in the course of a few years, settle between 800 and 1,200 families from Scotland and Ireland, and if the grant of minerals were conferred he should not scruple to undertake still more. 219

Same to Gordon. Had not received letters recommending Richard Savage, so that he must write by this mail without them. Suggests that he might send the letters direct to New York. 223

Hunter to Hobart (No. 21). Sends requisition for presents for the Indians. 78

Enclosed. Requisition. 79

Hobart to Hunter (No. 11). That Lord Selkirk proposes to form a settlement in Upper Canada. The Falls of St. Mary seems to be the spot he has selected. He has commissioned Richard Savage to proceed there to make examinations; recommends that he obtain protection and aid from the officers at the military posts at Niagara, Detroit, and particularly at the Island of St. Joseph. 83

Same to same (No. 12). A memorial has been presented by the widow of Arnold respecting the fees on the 13,400 acres granted to him and his family. It appears that the 5,000 acres to the family were to be placed on the same favourable position as the 8,400 acres granted to himself. The application from Ridout is to be complied with unless there are reasons to the contrary effect. 85

The memorial dated London, 1st July, 1802. 198

Hunter to Hobart (No. 22). Transmits report on Sir Alexander Mackenzie's memorandum respecting the projected canal from Albany to Lake Ontario projected by the Americans, and one between Lake Ontario and Montreal. Mann's report coincides with his (Hunter's) sentiments. Mackenzie has not yet returned from the North-West. 86

Enclosed. Mann's report on the canal. 88

October 5, Downing Street. Hobart to Hunter (No. 13). Dispatches received. The draughts of the leases of Crown and Clergy Reserves and the tables of fees do not seem open to any objection. Mathew Scott is desirous rather to settle in Lower than in Upper Canada and has accordingly been recommended to Milnes for the same allotment and protection as he would have received from him (Hunter). Page 70

October 25, Montreal. Sir Alexander Mackenzie to Sullivan. Sends for Hobart two papers, the substance of which will probably be transmitted through the Lieut. Governor. They show that he has not succeeded in bringing about the union between the two fur companies which Hobart recommended, unless Government grant one of the companies licenses, with the option to the other of sharing in proportion to the trade. Can see no means of bringing about a coalition for several years, by which time the trade may be ruined and the opportunity of making the Western establishments lost. Hunter, although averse to monopolies, agreed there was no way to carry on the trade except through a chartered company. Submits the propriety of forming a military establishment on the Western coast to prevent other nations from anticipating the country in so important an object. Urges the speedy establishment of a judicial power to prevent the contending fur companies from abusing any power numbers and strength might accidentally give one of them. The other good effects of such judicial power. Every thing in legislative interference should be avoided which could confer a sanction on the Hudson Bay Co. in regard to their doubtful charter or which could give them the right of checking commercial enterprise from this quarter by the usual inland routes for traders, nominally included in the charter. Refers to two unsuccessful attempts to reach the River Columbia by a more southern course than that he (Mackenzie) had followed, but the Astronomer declares the object to be not impracticable. 225

Enclosed. Richardson to Ryland, dated Montreal, 21st October. Respecting the defects of the law in respect to crimes committed outside of the Provincial boundaries. 230

Presentment of the Grand Jury of Montreal, September, 1802, on the evils arising in the Indian country from the want of a judicial establishment. 239

October 27, London. Col. Talbot to Sullivan. Sends certain papers. 245

Enclosed. Extract of letter from Simcoe that he would have given Talbot 5,000 acres of land, but had no authority. How he should proceed under the new system in regard to Crown lands. 246

October 27, London. Talbot to Sullivan. Submits his views on settling in Upper Canada and calls attention to the present state of the country, his services as private secretary to Simcoe having given him the opportunity of learning its condition, &c. The fertility of the soil and excellence of the climate not generally known to Europeans, who annex to the name of Canada the idea of a cold, inhospitable region. The population, consisting of refugees from all parts, principally from the United States, may be thus classed: 1. Those enticed by a gratuitous offer of land, without any predilection on their part to the British Constitution. 2. Those who have fled from the United States for crimes or to escape their creditors. 3. Republicans, whose principal motive for settling in that country is an anticipation of its shaking off its allegiance to Great Britain. These three descriptions of persons, with a few exceptions, comprise the present population. The character of the magistracy and the hardships often caused by them. To remedy some of these evils, pray for a grant of land, exempt from the payment of fees, so that his capital might be left free for the establishment of agricultural works, especially the cultivation of hemp. The importance of turning the tide of emigration to Canada. But this would overtax the means of an individual whose capital is not very great. Should Government undertake the work, he would willingly procure persons to take charge of them to their destination. The expenses of their passage should be paid and tools, &c., furnished. Should Government decline to adopt this measure, hopes it will not be an obstacle to his obtaining his grant. Page 248

Hobart to Hunter (No. 14). Dispatches received. Requisitions for presents for the Indians sent to the Treasury. Russell's letter respecting the bill for £800, on account of the grant for building churches, also sent to the Treasury. 95

Hunter to Hobart (No. 23). Sends proposed table of fees in the Court of Chancery and letter from Allcock on the subject. Proposes that all the fees that may accrue to the Chancellor should go to the Chief Justice for reason given. De Puisaye having returned to England had sent for Count de Chalus and his brother the Viscount and read them an extract from his (Hobart's) letter of 8th April, respecting the necessity of the French royalists being naturalized before obtaining land, and fully explained the matter. They promised to furnish a list of those who might desire to be included in the arrangement. This shall be forwarded when received. 105

Enclosed. Table of fees to be taken in the Court of Chancery. (A note says: "All the fees in the foregoing tables are calculated upon the idea that the officers of the Court will not receive any salaries.") 108

Remarks by Allcock on the preceding table. 111

Selkirk to Hobart. In accordance with letter of 30th July, has been making particular inquiry about the people preparing to leave next year. Owing to the habit of the Highlanders to emigrate to where their friends are, large numbers still go to Carolina and New York. His efforts to turn them to His Majesty's dominions have not been in vain, although it required no small effort and an engagement that he (Selkirk) should go with them. Asks the support of Government in his effort. 256

Hobart to Hunter (No. 15). The order for a grant of land to the widow and children of the late Attorney General, (White) to be carried out, and as this grant is the principal resource of the family, the land is to be laid out in the most favourable situation. 113 reserve an additional quantity for further grants as settlers shall be introduced. Is of opinion that it would promote the prosperity of the Province and the settlement of the waste lands were further grants made to persons of property and respectability, but precautions must be taken against speculators and land jobbers, and for this purpose a condition of clearing a certain extent and settling on the property should be enforced before grants are issued. An additional security is that fees of sixpence sterling and one penny halfpenny currency an acre approach nearly to the value of the land, so that speculators by paying a little more can get rid of all conditions. Still this difference and the favour and protection of Government would lead many to prefer grants from the Crown. How the fees are disposed of. Page 54

20. Hunter to Hobart (No. 33). Sends letter from Allcock and testifies to the accuracy of its statements. Sir F. D'Ivernois to ——— (in French). The uneasiness of the Swiss going to Kentucky on learning that on their arrival they would probably find themselves in the midst of war. Thinks Shoemaker should go by Rotterdam to warn the others of this. If it appears sufficient to lead them to give up the settlement in Kentucky and to induce them to settle in Upper Canada, it is likely on account of sympathy for them these 80 families might have lands conceded to them gratuitously, might have transport facilitated to them, and be recommended to the protection of the Governor of Canada. If these considerations are of sufficient importance, the Swiss should send a person to London, who should apply to him (D'Ivernois) who would do his best to obtain him a good reception. A small sum should be granted for the expense of a mission. Asks that he may be authorized, in name of loan, to make an advance of £20, or at least £18, in which case he would send off that evening a messenger to ascend the Rhine, to meet the people from Basle to warn them. 330

Halifax currency; all the works and buildings are intended to be of durable materials, so that annual repairs will be avoided. It is proposed to carry on the work gradually, as the case may require. Approves of Mann's proposals. Prescott was authorized in 1797 to erect works where required, Fort Erie being one of these. Why nothing was done to the latter is explained in the report. 257

Address in reply from the Assembly. 8

March 10, Downing Street. Hobart to Hunter (No. 23; No. 22 of same date in Q. 296, p. 279). The Viscount de Vaux obtained a grant in 1794 in Upper Canada, but could not then take advantage of it. He has resumed the intention to settle and is to obtain a grant in accordance with his military rank for which this is authority. 12

March 12, York. Hunter to Hobart (No. 47). Shall attend to instructions to grant land to such of the family of Barclay, Consul General in the Eastern States of America, as intend to settle in Upper Canada. 13

April 7, Downing Street. Hobart to Hunter (No. 24). The disbanded soldiers of the Glengarry Fencibles have not been able to come to Canada in a body as they intended. Mr. Macdonell, one of the ministers of their church, desires to join his countrymen already settled in Glengarry; on arrival he is to get as favourable an allotment of land as the regulations shall permit. 16

April 10, York. Hunter to Hobart (No. 48). Sends an address to His Majesty from the Legislature for aid towards erecting proper buildings for the preservation of the public records, the assembling of the Legislative Council and Assembly, for the Courts of Justice and the transaction of other public business. An Act, to be submitted, charges £400 a year on the Provincial revenue for the erection of these buildings. The inadequacy of this sum and the slow progress that could be made, would defeat the objects aimed at. There is not a single building for any one public office. The different offices are held in the private houses of the officers filling the different situations and the Executive Council meets in a small room in the clerk's house, where their discussions may be overheard. The houses are all built of wood and afford slender security to the records; the public pays for rent £350 annually. The building appropriated for the meeting of the two Houses of the Legislature, for the Court of Appeal, Court of King's Bench, District Court and Quarter Sessions, consists of two rooms erected eight or nine years ago as part of one intended for a Government House. The building is also used for a church. Its great disadvantages. The grant of £400 annually, although small, is as much as the Provincial revenues would admit of being appropriated to the purpose. The address was brought forward in consequence of the liberal aid afforded to Lower Canada, to enable the people to erect Courts of Justice in Quebec and Montreal and a church at Quebec. No estimate has yet been made of the expense of erecting these buildings. Shall obtain an estimate from Mann and forward it. For a church the inhabitants of York have subscribed liberally and are about to build one this summer. The Legislature prorogued on the 9th of March. Sends copy of his speech. 17

An estimate of the expense of erecting public buildings must be sent before any determination can be come to respecting the aid asked for. Has transmitted recommendation that Scott be appointed an honorary member of the Council. Expects to receive detailed account of the public stores in Canada. Is not informed of the quantity of land granted to De Puisaye on his arrival in Canada, but a like extent is to be granted to Vicomte de Vaux. To enable the French emigrants to obtain patents is it proposed that he (Hunter) should be authorized to grant letters of denization should that be judged sufficient. Remarks on the report. The ruinous state of St. John's; the estimate of the expense there is £20,233 sterling, but only such proportion would be called for as would be required during the year. Strongly recommends that Mann's proposals with respect to Quebec should be carried out, as he entirely agrees with the statements made. The object cannot be obtained at less expense than the estimate of £86,485 sterling, for reasons given. Strongly recommends that Mann be employed to carry the work into execution, as his experience and qualifications render him the most eligible. 67

Agrees with the report and ordered copies to be sent to Sir Robert Shore Milnes to carry out the necessary steps, but as a considerable time has elapsed thinks it desirable to bring the business before His Lordship, to have directions issued on the subject, so that the ground round the Jesuit College, now used as a barrack, may be appropriated for a parade ground. 111

Enclosed. Report by Mann, dated 11th November, 1802, respecting the removal of the walls, &c., round Montreal and the reserves that are required. (For plan see p. 81*b*.) 114

His reason for remaining was to offer his services in event of war. The object of his crossing the sea was to secure the Six Nations in the peaceable enjoyment of their property and to bind anew the links of friendship. It is reasonable to suppose that before he shall return he should like to know how far the desired end had been accomplished. 326

September 18, London. Norton to Camden. Had he foreseen the obstacle raised by the want of the deed of grant to the lands on the Grand River, he could have brought a certified copy from the Secretary of Upper Canada. Has been informed that orders have been sent to redress all the injury done to the Mohawks, but he had seen previous orders to the same effect not attended to. He, therefore, feels reluctant to leave until he knows precisely how far he has been successful. Desires to have the grant made by Haldimand confirmed, or to order the Administration of Upper Canada to give a legal deed in conformity to the full intent and meaning of the brief granted issued by Haldimand. If not, then it must be supposed that the liberality of Governor Haldimand was thought improper.

The Six Nations hope that this is not the sentiment that prevails. Further to the same effect. Page 336

ACTING GOV. A. GRANT AND MISCELLANEOUS—1806.

Q. 303.

January 11, London. Daniel Coxe to Camden. Had received a report from Barclay, Con General at New York, that Judge Cochran and Gray, the Solici General for Upper Canada, had perished in Lake Ontario. Recomme the appointment of William Taylor to succeed Cochran; his qualificatio services, &c. Page

(A statement of the shipwreck is in Q. 299, p. 172.)

January 21, Treasury. Sturges Bourne to Cooke. Transmits report by the Comptroller Army Accounts in a letter from Hunter of 16th September, 1804, closing the public accounts of Upper Canada. The report to be l before Lord Camden for his observations.

January 23, London. Edward Fisher to ———. Transmits statement of balance in his ha for the public service.

Enclosed. Statement of sums remaining in the hands of Edw Fisher, as agent for Upper Canada, out of the sums issued for the C establishment of that Province.

February 1, Devizes. D. W. Smith to Adam Gordon. Urging that his pension and arre be not forgotten in the estimates of the establishment for Upper Cana February 13, York. Memorial from John Small for an increase of salary.

(The memorial is undated, it is marked as received at the date the margin.)

Enclosed. Minute of the Executive Council of Upper Canada, on salaries of the officials.

mary 14, lon. C. B. Wyatt to Camden. For payment of his salary from the date of his appointment to be Surveyor General of Crown Lands in Upper Canada, he having from the date of the warrant been unable to sail with the ships of last season. Page 78

uary 18, ec. Elmsley to Adam Gordon. Asks that Hunter's report relative to his (Elmsley's) house may be confirmed; his embarrassment owing to the want of the money. Has had to buy a house at Quebec for 4,000 guineas for three-fourths of which he is paying interest. The rent of houses in Quebec is double what it is in London. 80 ch 29, lon. J. A. Vesey to Camden. Wishes to carry with him to Canada the warrant for land promised him, and as the quantity (10,000 acres) surpasses the authority of the Governor and Council in the Canadas to grant, asks for a letter of authority to receive that amount. 83

l 2, on. Duke of Kent to Cooke. Introduces Lieut. Col. Vesey; asks that his application for a grant of land be considered. 85

l 8, on. C. B. Wyatt to Camden. Is about to sail to enter on his duties as Surveyor General of Crown Lands in Upper Canada and asks for authority to obtain a grant of 1,200 acres there. 86

11, on. Report by the Attorney and Solicitor General, as to a Colonial law for enabling His Majesty to make grants of land to aliens in Canada. 88

(The letter which enclosed this report is in Q. 300, p. 240.)

21, ster. Allcock to ———. How the fees on land grants in Upper Canada are appropriated. Two clerks in the Council Office receive their salaries out of the fund raised by these fees. An addition to Small's salary might be paid from the same source as long as the amount collected was sufficient. 91

, on. Small to Camden. Urges that a decision may be arrived at in his case, so that he might return to his duties in Upper Canada. 93

I, on. Captain Norton to Cooke. Has waited expecting to hear that a copy of the grant [on the Grand River] had been received from Canada, so that the demands of the Five Nations might be settled. Has learned that Dorchester is in the country, who knows all the claims of the Five Nations, their services, &c. Is sure that His Lordship would give ample satisfaction to any inquiry it might be thought necessary to make. Smith, lately Surveyor General, is also capable of answering any questions on the subject, being a trustee of that portion of the land the sale of which was confirmed by Government, that the Five Nations might derive an income from it. His reasons for importunity. Has been advised to present a petition to Parliament, but is not willing from ignorant zeal to be led into irregularity of proceeding. 95

4. on. Small to Camden. Thanks for answer to his petition, but a positive order to the Governor is necessary before lands can be granted him above the 1,200 acres to which the Governor's power of granting is limited. 98

June 22, London. Norton to Cooke. Has called on Dorchester; His Lord opinion that "should it be necessary for the satisfaction of the "Nations, that the terms of their grant from Sir Frederick Haldi "be enlarged, His Lordship would readily concur, but not to have "curtailed on any account whatever;" he saw no reason why the Nations should not have the same right to lease as the people of C nawaga or Lake of Two Mountains. The importance of Dorche opinion from his former position and knowledge of the facts.

June 26, London. Same to Camden. Is desirous to obtain an answer to his applic and sends a memorial to the Privy Council.

Hunter promised th grant for 5,000 acres would be made out as soon as he receive Lordship's orders, but it should be directed to issue on the same as those to the loyalists, otherwise the fees would be very conside Requests that this be done.

ber 28, Castlereagh to Hunter (No. 3). The Acts passed by the Legislature ng of Upper Canada have been considered and do not appear to be liable to any objection. (The titles of the Acts, eleven in number, are given.) 11

ber 30, Grant to Camden (No. 2). Had received circular requiring information to be sent of malignant or infectious diseases that may be prevalent in the respective Governments. There are none in Upper Canada. The principal diseases are agues and intermittent fevers, arising, it is supposed, from there not being sufficient clearing near the settlements. 14

r 1, Same to same (No. 3). Had received orders to have a Bill prepared to be laid before the Legislature to enable His Majesty to grant lands to aliens in Upper Canada. From the universal prejudice against aliens of all descriptions becoming settlers, has serious doubts if such a Bill could pass. 16

r 1, Thorpe to Cooke. Had expected a vacancy on the Bench here, owing to the removal of Allcock to Quebec. In the Province there is no Governor, no General, no Bishop, no Chief Justice; the Council have made a President, but owing to a cabal have appointed a man who does not appear to be the oldest member, and is inefficient; an active, sensible man is ardently wished for. The inconvenience of making the General commanding both Provinces the Governor of this, as it is abandoned for several months every year. The proclamation for proroguing the Legislature was dated 31st August, and the General had expired on the 21st, one instance of the inconvenience. The expense he (Thorpe) has incurred, bringing his family so long a distance. Is glad he has been removed from Prince Edward Island; the worst people in the world are there and he fears they will give more trouble than the Island can recompense. 177

r 2, Grant to Camden (No. 4). Has made a requisition on the Commander of the forces for £2,500 sterling for account of civil expenditure of the Province. 18

r 3, Cooke to President Russell. To obviate inconveniences that may arise

Enclosed. Documents referred to in letter. 182 to 194

October 11, Treasury. Sturges Bourne to Cooke. Transmits, from the Treasury, letter from the Commissioners of the Navy, that Robertson, Forsyth & Co., of Greenock, can procure some very large pine masts, if they can obtain permission to cut them. Requests him to send instructions to that effect to the Governor of Upper Canada. 195

November 21, York. Thorpe to Castlereagh. Application to succeed Allcock as Chief Justice of Upper Canada, stating his qualifications, &c. 206

November 28, London. Allcock to Cooke. That the amount now in the hands of Messrs. Coutts, to be invested for the benefit of the Indians, is £3,967.17.8. 208

November 30, York. Grant to Castlereagh (No. 8). Orders had been given by Hunter to purchase a tract of land between Etobicoke and Burlington Bay, belonging to the Missisaugas, for making roads and securing communication between the seat of Government and the western parts of the Province. A provisional agreement for the purchase is enclosed; the death of Hunter alone prevented the final settlement. There is no doubt that the sum inserted in the provisional agreement was as stated by the Deputy Superintendent General in his letter of 8th August, 1805. Considers that the purchase should be completed, but does not think himself at liberty to go beyond the sum mentioned, without instructions. Considering other purchases, the value of land, &c., recommends that £1,700 be given for the present acquisition. The sum that may be derived from it from settler's fees. The sum above that stipulated in the provisional agreement will appear to flow from the bounty of the British Government, and the purchase will confer a lasting benefit on the Province. For further information encloses copy of letter from Deputy Superintendent General. 35

(The circular, dated 27th August, is in Series C, Vol. 245, p. 110.)

23. Grant to Castlereagh (No. 10). Has received documents relating to the culture of hemp. Is doubtful if a translation into French is necessary in this Province; it is more probable that a translation into Dutch would be of greater utility. He will use every exertion to promote the culture of hemp. 61

29. Same to Cooke. Has received copy of regulations to be observed by half-pay officers for obtaining their allowance, and has issued a notice in accordance therewith. 63

31. Inglis to Castlereagh. Encloses and calls attention to a proclamation from Wilkinson, the American Governor of Upper Louisiana, prohibiting the entrance of foreigners into the Missouri for trade or otherwise. If warranted in this case, the prohibition may be extended to the whole of the west side of the Mississippi, thus cutting off a large part of the fur trade from Canada. An application for redress to be made through the British Minister. The probable course of the American Government. 209

Enclosed. Proclamation (in French) by Wilkinson. 211

31. Sir Rupert George to Cooke. Requesting that an order may be obtained for the payment of Judge Cochran's salary, he having been drowned in Lake Ontario, in October, 1804, and in consequence of the death of Hunter, the usual order to the agent for payment cannot be issued. 213

1, W. Harrison to Shee. In accordance with request, sends opinion on the establishment of a Court of Chancery in Upper Canada. Is surprised that a Court was not established at the time of the introduction of the English law. Instructions should be sent to the Governor now to that effect, as owing to the delay a specific order on the subject seems to be necessary. 119

1, Same to same. In respect to Allcock's report on the subject of the Indian lands and the money now standing in the name of Antrobus, everything appears to have been done towards securing the payment of the money due on the sales and remitting. Recommends that the suggestion in the report for the recovery of the remainder and its investment should be followed. The question of further sales depends on how far these can be carried, the class of persons likely to become purchasers and settlers and the quantities into which the lots should be divided, with the probable produce. How the money should be transferred from Antrobus and invested jointly in his name and in that of Windham, which would sufficiently secure it without the necessity of a deed of trust, &c. The future disposal of principal and interest. 121

Gore to Castlereagh (No. 5). Had stated that he had taken the command of the forces in Upper Canada, Brock having declined to take the responsibility for future measures there. Encloses copy of a dispatch from Vice Admiral Berkeley. Has thrown supplies of provisions into the posts of Amherstburg and St. Joseph's on account of the Indians, who had neglected their corn fields, expecting to be called out to war by the British Government. But for the conduct of Claus and other officers of the Indian Department, the Indians would have made war upon the Americans some time since. Has directed a general council of the Western Indians to be held at Amherstburg. By the time it can be assembled, conceives the determination of the two Governments may be known. Reports the deficiency of arms for the militia. Has obtained a supply from Brock of only 4,000 stands. Has, therefore, refrained from

DOUGLAS BRYMNER, LL.D., F.R.S.C., ARCHIVIST.

Honourable A. R. ANGERS,
Minister of Agriculture,
&c., &c., &c.

SIR,—I have the honour to present the report of the Historical Archives Branch for 1893.

The Archives are growing in extent and importance, and also in the estimation of those interested in historical investigations.

In consequence of the near completion of the copying in London of the documents relating to the province of Quebec, of Lower and Upper Canada, it has been thought desirable to investigate and prepare for copying the documents relating to all the other provinces. Very satisfactory progress has been made, but as the investigation covers a period of about two centuries and a half, the work is not so far advanced as to admit of a thoroughly complete report of it being now prepared.

The report for this year, therefore, comprises only the continuation of the calendar of the State Papers of Lower and Upper Canada, which has been prepared as usual in the Archives Branch.

The whole respectfully submitted.

DOUGLAS BRYMNER,
Archivist.

November 16, Quebec. Ryland to Sir John Johnson. Encloses copy of complaint delivered to him by three Indians. His Excellency desires the fullest information. Page 348

November 24, Quebec. Return of ammunition (No.1) required to complete the proportion for this garrison. Signed by George Glasgow, Col. commanding Royal Artillery. 10

December 1. Gore to Craig. (Extract.) As a means of defence the Indians may prove useful; the apprehension of the Americans at Detroit on this head has caused them to issue a proclamation threatening retaliation on the wives and children of those joining the British Standard. Their resolution shaken. He should not trust too much to Indian assistance. 221

December 1, York. Queries by Gore respecting the Indians, and answers by Craig. 220

December 2, Quebec. Demand for ordnance stores (No. 2) wanted from England, signed by J. Danford. 13

December 6, Quebec. Craig to Gore. Owing to severe illness has been unable to communicate with him sooner. Hoped to have received information before now by which he might have been enabled at least to conjecture as to the probable issue of the pending controversy. A sufficient time has not elasped for the means he (Craig) has employed to take effect. Has had no communication as yet from the British Minister in the United States; he therefore knows little except the slender information which can be gleaned from the papers and the temper of the President's speech at the opening of Congress. A state of defence necessary. His Majesty's instructions, as well as his own views, on the subject, seem to point to the preservation of Quebec as the first consideration; it is the only post, defective as it is, that can be considered tenable for a moment. If America decides to attack us, powerful assistance will be needed from home. Is ignorant of the state of the Militia in the Upper Province, but is sure that he (Gore) knows the value of the co-operation and concentration of the forces, but leaves all that in his hands, as he knows the upper country. If the Americans should turn their attention to the Lower Province, which is most probable, operations must terminate in a siege; the artillery, &c., for this purpose will surely exhaust all their means and occupy all their attention, and so prevent any attack being made on the Upper Province at the same time. Has no hope that the forces here can accomplish anything more in case of attack than the checking the enemy for a short time; will eventually be compelled to take refuge in this place (Quebec); when collecting all the forces possible from both provinces we must endeavour to get as far as possible to the rear of the beseigers and cut off convoys and communications. In this way time at least can be gained. The destruction of the magazines would be very distressing to them. The American Militia are little to be feared. The command of the lakes is of great importance. If the Indians are not employed with us, they will certainly be employed against us. Caution necessary in dealing with them; the loss of the valuable Indian trade if they

January 5, York. Same to Craig. Has been much honoured with the secret des 6th December, brought by Ensign Shawe. The unfavourable re his (Craig's) health prevented his communicating sooner. I similar state for want of intelligence. Only one communication from Erskine and that just after the Chesapeake affair. Does no with him that in such a state of uncertainty, we should be prep hostility. The extent and slender population of this province all too good grounds for the plan specified in His Majesty's instructions. Beyond defending it from a partial or sudden incursion, little could be done; this fact must be kept from the knowledge of the people. Sends return of the militia. The inabitants from Kingston to the Lower Province are to be depended on; those about Niagara and Long Point are doubtful: except those at Glengarry, the rest of the inhabitants are chiefly emigrants from the United States and retain their prejudicial ideas of equality, &c. The militia must be placed so as to repel sudden attacks. Agrees with him (Craig) as to the advisability of harrassing the enemy in case of an attempt on Quebec; shall never lose sight of that fortress. Our superiority on the lakes; asks whether the brig the "Duke of Kent" should be repaired and seamen engaged. Encloses Baby's letter and his (Gore's) answer, also one on the same subject to Lt.-Col. Grant. Importance of appearing to defend Amherstburg to inspire confidence; St. Joseph should be reinforced with a few regulars. Considers that could we destroy the American posts of Detroit and Michillimackinac many Indians would declare for us. Agrees that if not for us they will be against us. Thinks two or three thousand of them the utmost to be counted upon; importance of fit persons to manage them; recommends Elliott for charge of the post of Amherstburgh. The inefficiency of the Indians without regular troops. Necessity of having the Indian presents stored here instead of at Lachine. The Prophet seems to be disposed to favour our cause; he is believed to have an influence over about a thousand of his brethren; will try and find out more about him from Elliott. Has had a confidential correspondence with Chief Justice Alcock on the political transactions since his arrival. Page 236

y 5. Annual return of the militia of His Majesty's Province of Upper Canada. 246

y 5. Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 8.) Finding the originals of the enclosed returns have been despatched by this communication, he does not scruple, notwithstanding what he has said in No. 7, to forward this by same means. He has discovered that demands for stores from the Ordnance must be forwarded through His Lordship's office; hopes therefore such steps will be taken as will secure these necessary supplies. Found almost all the bayonets here without scabbards. He has had them made here, which incurred greater expense than getting them from home. 8

y 8. Gore to Craig. (Extract.) Has little to remark on Sir John Johnson's letter, except his total lack of information on the subject of McKee's influence over the Indians. Understands from other quarters that influence entirely lost. Intemperate habits of McKee. Advisesthe employment of Elliott. 224

Enclosed. McKee to Prideau Selby. By the enclosed newspapers it appears that the Americans spare nothing to gain the Indians. They leave us daily. Has been obliged to purchase ammunition at his own expense. The dead Indians now amount to 41, and more deaths every day. 225

y 11. Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 7.) His arrival in Quebec. Has assumed the charge with which His Majesty has honoured him, since which little of importance has occurred. State of his health improving. Upon enquiry, finds communication with Halifax not safe enough to warrant writing on subjects where caution is needed. Hopes His Lordship will approve of his abstaining from entering upon any military subjects. Everything in pretty much the same state as when he last wrote. "The utmost good appears to prevail in every part of the province," and though he has not thought necessary to embody the militia, every arrangement is made for calling out and arming a fifth of them at the shortest notice. Camp equipage to be added to the requisition already made. Since last

The Council to be held at Amherstburg will simply be laid hold of by the violent party in America. Regrets his (Gore's) doubts of Mr. McKee's influence. Though willing to dismiss McKee, he doubts the propriety of reappointing Elliott. John Henry to Ryland. The inhabitants of the northern part of Ver- Vt. mont are much excited by the law passed by Congress prohibiting the transport of American produce into Canada. The clamour is so great that there is danger of an engagement between the officers of Government and the people, on the first effort to stop the introduction of the vast quantity of lumber and produce for the Montreal market. If Jefferson intended only to preserve the commerce of the country from falling into the hands of the belligerent powers, he has already done everything towards that object; but, as that policy does not include the suspension of intercourse with Canada, we may look for the origin of this paltry attempt to deprive our navy of a few masts and spars, in the inveterate hostility of the American Executive and the desire to abet the designs of Buonaparte 113

March 6, Windsor, Vt. John Henry to Ryland. As the mail leaves for Montreal to-morrow, he will send a summary of what he has learned of the state of the public mind in the northern part of Vermont. The prevalent opinion of well-informed men is that war with England is inevitable. He should have ascribed this to their fears, but the representatives from the several districts in Vermont write to their friends that the majority of Congress are determined, if forced from their neutrality, to take part with France, unless Great Britain surrenders the right of search. As this will not be done, they say that if there is a time when concessions can be extorted from Great Britain, it is now. The bold talk publicly of an organized resistance; the timid, who foresee individual distress, would consent to an "armed truce along the borders," or even a union with Great Britain. An alliance with Buonaparte is dreaded, and they seem to value the advantages derived from a state of amity with Great Britain. The general conviction is that the interests of the Northern States are not now regarded and will never again predominate in the Councils of the Nation. General distress prevails. The collector at the frontier has not yet received instructions as to the intercourse with Canada. It is not yet certain that the bill has gone through; but he has not found a man who would tamely submit. Is happy to find that men now speak more rationally of the conquest of Canada and ask where are the arms, amunition, officers, &c., and think it only a project hatched under the influence of a French Minister. They see their own weakness, and infer from the appointment of our Governor General that Great Britain is determined to preserve the Colony. He goes to see what he can save from the bankruptcy of his agent; he has partly overcome his distress by reflecting that it comes from no fault of his own. Page 115

March 8, Quebec. Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 15.) Enclosing copy of an address presented to him by the House of Assembly for the purpose of obtaining a repeal of the Act of 28th of His present Majesty, Chapter 39, stated to be prejudicial to the Provincial Revenue without equivalent advantage to Canada or the Sugar Colonies. The annual difference to the revenue through the operation of this Act, on an average of five years, has been upwards of £2,000. Concurs with the House in recommending a repeal of the Act in question. 90

Enclosed. The Address. 91

March 10, Boston. John Henry to Ryland. Sends a paper containing an account of the failure of Mr. Rose's mission, and his intention of immediately quitting the States. Also a letter from Mr. Pickering, formerly Secretary of State, to the Governor of Massachusetts, on the danger of a war with England. The principal men of Boston express their determination not to be at war with Great Britain so strongly as to indicate resistance. The mob appears to be on their side. Despair is felt both by those who lost everything and by those who have everything to lose, and every secret exertion is being made to rouse the people from the lethargy which must end in their subjection to the modern Attila. Fears the mass of the people will awake in the chains of the Corsican. 11

March 10, Quebec. Craig to Gore. (Extract.) Has consulted Sir John Johnson as to a proper person to succeed McKee. He points out no one but Elliott, and Mr. Johnson, who, under present circumstances, it is impossible to appoint. 92

March 18, Boston. John Henry to Ryland. Has received from England a copy of the King's Speech. His Majesty refuses to concede any point to the American Government in connection with the "Chesapeake." It now remains with Great Britain whether or not there will be a war, as the American Government has pushed coercive measures as far as possible. It only remains for England to commit such an act of violence as will deprive the Americans of every excuse for resistance to the measures of that Government. Until this happens, Jefferson will continue his present irritating system. Thinks that in a few months the New England States will be ready to withdraw from the Confederacy, establish a separate Government and adopt a policy congenial to their interests. The men of property and of talent are not ready, until sure of an efficient remedy. The Commander of the "Chesapeake" is acquitted; he justified himself by orders "not to resist." The conclusion is inevitable. The captain of a ship in from a French port states that two American vessels were condemned on the charge of being boarded by a British ship of war; they were confiscated. His pecuniary losses. Page 121

h 25, restburg. Proceedings of a private meeting held between Col. Claus and the Shawenese. 255

(In Craig's No. 25 of 15th July.)

2. Gore to Craig. (Extract.) Feels difficulty in conducting the Indian Department. The general idea is that Mr. Elliott is the only man capable of calling forth the energies of the Indians. Col. Claus is decidedly of this opinion. Has ordered the Deputy Superintendent General of Indian Affairs to reside at Amherstburg till further orders. The late arrival of stores at St. Joseph's necessitated the Indians leaving for their wintering grounds without their usual presents, which can be avoided in future by having a second year's supply in store. 227

5, ec. Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 16.) Enclosing memorial from Henry Reid (Read) convicted of having enticed a soldier to desert; he was fined £40. As this man has been in jail twelve months through inability to pay, he has ordered his release, and the suspension of the fine till His Majesty's pleasure be known. Recommends the memorial. 98

Accounts received from Washington of the failure of Mr. Rose's mission, have induced him to accede to the offer of the inhabitants of Glengarry to raise a corps of Fencibles of 500 rank and file. Cannot enclose any details yet, except that they can be disembodied at any time and are to be clothed every year while embodied. They claim the privilege of wearing the Highland dress. Proposes to appoint Lt.-Col. Æneas Shaw as Lt.-Colonel commandant. 104

6, ec. Same to same. (No. 18.) For reasons stated before, declines entering into particular details of our situation. Everything perfectly quiet. The Deputy Commissary General has received information that the Treasury intends to send $100,000. However acceptable, it is quite inadequate in case of hostilities. State of the money market. Proposes closing the Provincial Parliament in a few days. The proceedings have been very temperate. Among the Acts passed is one for raising £7,000 for repairing Chateau St. Louis, which is much needed, as he is now living in a private house, the Chateau being uninhabitable. 105

l 8, York. Gore to Craig. Encloses copy of proceedings of a private meeting held at Amherstburg with the Shawenese. This nation is said to have great influence. Col. Elliott is to send them a message when their services are required; their attachment to Elliott. 228

l 10, ec. Craig to Castlereagh. (Private.) Enclosing four letters which may convey useful information on the subject of the disposition of the Eastern States of America. Hazards the packet by the Halifax mail. The communication with Vermont continues, in spite of the act prohibiting it. Mr. Henry is a gentleman of ability; he resided for some time in the States and is well acquainted with some of the leading people in Boston. At present he lives in Montreal, and has not the most distant idea that his correspondence is being made use of. 111

April 14. Montreal. John Henry to Ryland. Has returned from the States and is possessed of information not to be obtained from newspapers. In the present state of affairs every man should furnish all the information and aid in his power. Beginning with Boston, only men of large fortunes can subsist there. Personal exertion has ceased to bring its reward, and the commercial cities present a dreadful spectacle of distress, despair and that abandonment of principle which grows out of poverty. Measures to remedy this have not been resorted to, as only within the last few weeks could the co-operation of the mob be counted on. However, as the feeling is now unanimous, spirited measures will soon be taken. Measures discussed at a private meeting in Boston. The general feeling against war. Believes in that case the Northern district would negotiate with the Governor of Lower Canada and claim his protection. From everything heard, he infers border states would detach themselves from the Union and each consult its own safety. To accomplish this important object, Great Britain must use and address conciliation towards the friendly states. Conversation with Capt. Dunham, commanding Michillimackinac, who spent the winter at Washington, and on his return has been instructed to expect war. He (Dunham) says that when the Kings address reached Washington all agreed that war was inevitable, and that the delay was in waiting for the India ships, and that the majority of Congress will risk everything to protect American citizens in public and private vessels. Report that Mr. Rose has sailed and a vessel been sent to England for Mr. Pinkey. The report not yet confirmed. Page 150

April 20. Amherstburg. Wm. Claus to Gore. (Extract.) Assures him of his zeal in the service. As his opinion has been asked on the prospect of Indian assistance states that from the best information he can collect, the fighting men on the borders of the Miamis, east borders of Lake Michigan and the interior between these waters do not exceed 1,500, and in the present state of this post, without any garrison to back them, they will be very backward. If there was an adequate force here, a sufficient number might be brought together to keep our ground till the Indians on the Mississippi could be brought forward. Messages sent to the Nations west of Lake Michigan last October. Constant reports of their being on their way have prevented his sending again, but he shall now lose no time in despatching a confidential person. Suggests that a message would reach St. Joseph's much sooner from York by Matchedash. Cannot sufficiently thank Mr. Elliott for his voluntary services. 233

April 25. Quebec. Louis Foy to Ryland. Was appointed in 1806, deputy agent for the distribution of hemp seed to those willing to engage in its cultivation, to pay for the experiments, ship the hemp addressed to him, and to take charge of the store at Quebec. Desires compensation for the experiments made on his own land. Offers himself as cultivator for the district of Quebec; if it is incompatible with his present situation he will relinquish it for the new office. His object is to raise good seed. 1[illegible]

April 25. Montreal. John Henry to same. Omitted to mention in his last that individuals are selected in the several towns on the seaboard and throughout the country to correspond and act in concert with the committee at Boston to avert a French alliance. Benefits of an organized plan over individual efforts. This confederacy will soon be strong enough to appeal for England's friendship. No laws in the United States to prevent this as "constructive treason" is unknown in their criminal code. The paper from Burlington, which he (Henry) led him to expect by his last letter, is received. He is disappointed in not finding it more determined in tone; still, it is a sign of the union of those who before disagreed in everything political, and an assurance of co-operation with Canada in case of war. The accession of the Northern part of Vermont and the command of Lake Champlain would be a barrier to any inroad by the asun[illegible] route. Vermont is well fortified by nature and can easily be defended by militia against the United States army. The road from Burlington to Connecticut River is over mountains and through defiles. Sends latest Boston Repertory. The election of a governor in Massachusetts is unfavourable to the Federals. Page 154

Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 19.) Transmits Quebec Gazette containing speech made on closing the session, also a list of Acts presented for the Royal assent, one only of which—that relating to jails in Gaspé—is reserved till His Majesty's pleasure be known. Recommends the bill. He dissolved the Legislature soon after the session closed. Has issued writs for the election of a new House of Assembly. Exemplifications preparing; when he transmits them he will submit remarks on any that require particular attention, and also when completed he will forward printed copies of the whole, together with the journals of both Houses. 123

Enclosed. Acts. English. 125
French. 137

Same to same. (Private.) Though Mr. Rose will have furnished all particulars on the state of the country, yet encloses two more letters written by Mr. Henry after his return to Montreal. His (Henry's) account of the disposition of the people of Vermont verified in so far as relates to the embargo. Rafts have actually arrived at St. Johns in defiance of a vessel placed under the direction of the customs officers. A struggle was feared, but avoided, on the raftsmen declaring their determination to go on, and the boatmen declining to interfere. Although stationed close to the line he has avoided taking any notice of it, to prevent any event which might occur being ascribed to interference on our part. If any affray takes place, he will immediately advance a post to our side of the line with instructions not to interfere beyond the boundary, but to give protection to either party on our side and at least to preserve his Majesty's territory from violation. Will take care to have this post under a reliable officer. 148

Same to same. (No. 20.) Enclosing letter from Mr. Foy, of the Storekeeper General's Department, which explains itself. Did not feel authorized to give any answer. Refers it to him (Castlereagh), but had induced Foy to proceed in the business—the culture of hemp. Is assured of the importance of this object; hitherto it has not received proper encouragement, and has been confined to a few. Has been urged to increase the price, but does not feel warranted without further instructions. Mr. Greece, stationed near Montreal, seems industrious, but Mr. Campbell, in Three Rivers, is too fond of speculation, he has not fulfilled his engagements in this cultivation, though frequently applying for funds. He claims £500 which he claims was promised by the Government in England. 159

Draft of letter to Craig. (Secret and confidential.) Acquaints him that a communication has been made to His Majesty's Minister for Foreign Affairs by Mr. Pinckney, stating that he has received information from Paris that the demand made by the United States that France should revoke or soften her decree of blockade against Great Britain had been refused by Buonaparte; in consequence thereof he had nothing to communicate to the Court of London. This information diminishes the probability of a rupture with the American States though it does not avoid the necessity of precaution and preparation. 165

Craig to Gore. (Extract.) The irritation between the Indians and the Americans gives good grounds to expect that they could not easily be persuaded to take part against us. Attention on our part would easily secure them. Probability of the appearance of the French in some part of the province likely to be either in Orleans or Florida. In the event of their appearance we must use our strongest measures to attach the Indians to us by ties sufficiently strong to resist this persevering foe. After serious consideration withdraws his objection to Elliott succeeding McKee: the latter must be removed from Amherstburg; he might be ordered down to York. Recommends the continuance of his present pay. Has engaged a Mr. Cadotte with the view of replacing the interpreter at St. Joseph's. Col. Claus and Mr. Elliott are to be informed of the importance of securing the Indians. Recommends that their attachment be

Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 22.) Has stated in his despatch No. 7, his reasons for not entering before into any detail of the military situation of the province. The first safe opportunity now offers by H. M. frigate "Nemesis." As a fortress Quebec is very deficient in almost every point of view; gives details of the deficiences. Account of the works which he is carrying on to remedy some of the defects without which he does not consider the work tenable for four days. What works he considers necessary. 176

Gore to Craig. (Extract.) Encloses extract of letter from the Deputy Superintendent at Amherstburg. 223

May 13, Quebec. (Enclosure calendared at its proper date.)

Craig to Hon. D. M. Erskine. His two letters, forwarded by Mr. Gillespie, received. That gentleman's success at Washington has relieved the apprehensions of the North-west Company. The failure of Mr. Rose's mission to be regretted. Has no doubt but that the good sense of the Americans must prevail, and the sort of hostile array in which the two countries have been set against each other end in closer ties of connection than have existed since the separation. Will use every endeavour to avoid irritating our neighbours. Irregularity in the Indian Department. Any change there will excite suspicion. The condition of affairs both in this country and Europe seems to point to the appearance of the French on this theatre. Buonaparte never loses sight of an object on which he has once fixed his attention. This colony should in sound policy be the object of his first attempt. He would find a healthy climate, plenty of provisions, a not unfriendly people, who would at least furnish him in the future with great resources of men and a good stand from which to coerce the Americans. The imminent risk of the loss of the naval force he (Buonaparte) would have to employ, and the proximity of the Spanish settlements lead me rather to expect their first appearance to the southward, either New Orleans or the Floridas. From that moment we must expect every effort the ingenuity of man can devise to detach the Indians from their allegiance to us and induce them to fall upon our defenceless frontier of Upper Canada. With the view of binding the Indians more closely, he has given directions that the officers of the Department be particularly attentive in all points and has also recommended that intercourse be opened with the most distant nations, with whom little communication has lately been had. Has added two officers to that Department. The instructions given particularly point out his desire that all means pursued should be such as are of general conciliation and attachment, without allusion to possible hostilities. Is well aware that suspicion will be awakened, but adopts these measures to prevent the Indians from reporting that he was trying to instigate them against the States. Complaints on this head probable. Disposition of the people of Vermont and Northern New York to resist the embargo, particularly respecting the supply to our merchants here of timber and lumber. Believes though some are actuated by views of future profit, the greater number wish to discharge by the only method open to them, their obligations to our merchants, from whom they had received large advances in money before the law passed. Some rafts have arrived; both Canadians and Americans were conducting them. Some of the former were put in jail; they will receive no protection from this Government. Mr. Woolsey, Collector of Champlain District, wrote to the judges of Montreal on this subject. Page 261

(In Craig's No. 25 of 15 July.)

Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 21.) Has investigated the subject of the raising of the Glengarry Fencibles and finds that their zeal exceeds their ability; finds it impossible to raise nearly the number proposed in a reasonable time; therefore, he recalled the letter of service issued to them. Lt.-Col. Shawe is exempt from any little blame; as, though so generally recommended, yet he had not been communicated with and was ignorant of the proposed appointment and, in short, wished to decline it. 166

Same to Edward Cooke. Major Armstrong arrived about three weeks ago. He had been detained by illness between New York and Albany. He (Craig) has had several unimportant letters from him. He represents that the money advanced was not sufficient for his journey; recommends that he be reimbursed what he has borrowed ($200), but does not recommend the repayment of £80 drawn for without directions. Asks for a speedy answer. 168

Draft of letter to Craig. Transmits an Order in Council confirming an Act authorizing the formation of the Quebec Benevolent Society. The sixteen following Acts have been considered, and do not seem liable to objection:—

1st. Respecting the regulation of trade.

2nd. The better preservation of His Majesty's Government.

3rd. The more effectual regulation of police.

4th. Empowering the Justices of the Peace to make regulations for the government of apprentices and others.

Enclosed. The Act respecting the Quebec Benevolent Society. 174

Draft of letter to Sir J. H. Craig. (No. 9.) Despatches received. Although no definite settlement with the States has yet taken place, yet as hostilities appear improbable, he has not ordered the additional camp equipage for 2,500 men to be sent out to him, nor the canteens, &c., required in his letter No. 7, but a large proportion of the ordnance stores required in No. 8 have been forwarded. In case of rupture he will take care to have other articles required forwarded. Has considered the memorials of Mrs. LeMaistre and Mrs. Davidson. Disapproves of pensions, but His Majesty approves of grants of land to the petitioners. Mrs. Martin's case transmitted to the Admiralty. Respecting the lease

Gore to Craig. (Extract.) Thinks it would contribute to the interests of His Majesty's service if he (Craig) should meet the Indians himself at Amherstburg. They appear to expect it. He is to be very guarded in his Draft of letter to Sir J. H. Craig. (No. 10.) Despatches Nos. 17 and 18 received. Information gives reasonable ground to believe that hostilities will be avoided. Trusts therefore that the specie remitted will meet all demands. If affairs should take another turn he will provide the supply necessary. Directions given to Sir G. Prevost to keep his force in readiness. The secret intelligence transmitted by him (Craig) appears to come from a person of good information and discretion and he deserves encouragement. Under existing circumstances, the failure to raise the Glengarry Fencibles is less to be regretted. The reduction of the fine imposed upon Reid will be approved, also the jail bill for Gaspé, and the extending of the encouragement proposed to Mr. Foy. Letter on the contract price for hemp has been transmitted to the Admiralty and he will forward their Lordships' sentiments upon the subject as soon as possible. The questions submitted as to the repeal of the 28th of His

Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 23.) Encloses exemplifications of the several Acts passed in the last session of the Provincial Legislature. Also copy of an Act respecting the erection of two jails in the District of Gaspé. Recommends their erection. Assents to the Act for applying a further sum towards the completing a jail in the District of Quebec. Owing to some irregularity a similar bill respecting the jail at Montreal did not pass. The only remaining acts of last session requiring attention are: "An Act to declare in whom is vested the power of granting Lettres de Terrier in this province;" and the "Act to continue for a limited time the Act of the 43rd of His Majesty respecting the militia." Discusses these Acts. The grant for the repair of Government House to be levied on the country and not on trade. Craig to Castlereagh (No.25.) The Indian Department has claimed much of his attention. The improbability of its ever becoming useful again had led the Government to use the utmost economy in its management, which caused many of the Indians to turn towards America, where fortunately the system of gratifying these people is not much in vogue; though of little use as friends we must prevent them becoming enemies. In the event of hostilities they will be surely one or the other. Has endeavoured to secure them to the interests of Great Britain. Encloses the correspondence with Lt.-Gov. Gore on the subject. Has readmitted Mr. Elliott into the service as the first means for conciliating the Indians; his influence over them. The general opinion is that the charge on which he was dismissed was groundless. Dismissal of McKee; recommends his receiving a pension. Perfect harmony exists between himself and Lt.-Gov. Gore. Suggests that the Indian Department be again placed under military command. His reasons. Page 202

Craig to Castlereagh. (Private.) Acknowledges two letters by Lt.-Col. French and Mr. Caldwell; shall have great pleasure in obeying his commands by showing them every attention. The impossibility of keeping Col. French at Quebec. Has sent him to Montreal, as good a station as Quebec in the opinion of many. His (French's) difficulty in procuring a house there. 267

Same to Cooke. (Private.) Sends to Lord Castlereagh by the same opportunity a long letter relative to the works undertaken here, also the estimates and a plan. The importance of holding this spot. The French will be here sooner or later; they will perhaps begin to the southward, but will certainly reach here. Had begun another long letter on the subject of the militia, must defer it till next vessel. Has unwavering faith in the attention of Jonathan to his own interests, which means peace. Jefferson, who certainly meant war, lost his opportunity. Believes he laid a trap for Berkley, but wanted spirit to pursue the point; he is naturally timid. Now the insolence of Buonaparte is fighting the battle for us, the scale is already turned. Our intercourse by the lakes so far suffers little from the embargo. Has applied to Greenwood for the £600 allowed to all governors under the name of picture money, without success; thinks himself entitled to it. State of his health. 268

Same to same. (No. 28.) The "Amelia," with her convoy arrived, but none of the store ships, nor any of the articles promised in the despatch of 22nd January, for the use of the militia, which the same despatch instructed him to embody. Without these articles it is impossible to assemble them even for exercise. No buildings in the country capable of housing them, and camping is too expensive. The militia have been hitherto only contemplated in theory, except in the town of Quebec. Lord Dorchester could not assemble any in 1775, and in the following year he (Craig) commanded the largest body ever brought together, but was then in pursuit of a flying enemy. Since then no attempt to assemble them has been made. The Canadians of to-day not warlike; they like to make a boast of the militia service, but all dislike the subordination and constraint. If the seigneurs possessed their old influence it might be different; lawyers and notaries appear now to have sprung into notice, and with them insubordination. The members returned to the new House consist of fifteen lawyers, fourteen farmers and only seven seigneurs. The lawyers form a very powerful party in the House, always together, and they think by opposing the views of Government to force themselves into office. The militia is their stalking horse, and the preserving the people from the degradation of being soldiers their theme of merit. Danger and difficulty of attempting to enforce the militia system. In the event of having to contend with a French force, no help is to be expected from this province; on the contrary, arms in their hands would be dangerous. They are French at heart yet; though not denying the advantages they enjoy, still there would not be fifty dissentient voices if the proposition was made of their reannexation to France. The general opinion here among the English is that they would even join the Americans if that force was commanded by a French officer. Is persuaded the trouble and expense just now would be useless. By our law those trained now would not be those he could call on in case of attack. In the event of hostilities apprehension might make them more tractable. By the present law he is empowered to keep the militia together for not more than twelve months, and in the present situation of America it would require more than half that period to complete the preparations necessary for attacking us. In that time we could discipline our force and be sure they would be brought into use. Embarrassment on the score of rank; there are twenty-seven colonels and more lieut.-colonels and majors all tenacious of their rank. In the Upper Province there are Lord Lieutenants of counties who are empowered of themselves to call out the militia without recourse to the authority of the Governor. Their proximity to the American frontier might furnish them with motives for so doing. Has only confirmed the rank given to Lieut.-Colonels in Upper Canada. Page 295

August 5, Quebec. Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 29.) In his letter on the militia, has alluded to the strong party at present in the House. They try by an idle clamour to intimidate the Government, and believe they will be put into office for the purpose of silencing them. A newspaper, Le Canadien, has been publishing articles calculated to create dissatisfaction among His Majesty's subjects. During the late elections it was more excusable, but upon enquiry, he finds the persons who were leaders of the party alluded to, bore characters which warranted the attributing to them the worst intentions. Great pains have been taken to circulate the paper in all parts of the province gratis. Its increasing malignity led him to intimate to those concerned in its publication that they would certainly fail in their design of intimidating Government into compliance with their views of personal interest. Two of the supporters of this paper, viz., Mr. Plante and Mr. J. T. Tachereau, held positions under government; he has dismissed them by letters, copies of which are enclosed. On Mr. Plante's stating that he had all along disapproved of the paper, has reinstated him. Mr. Panet, a lawyer, is the ostensible head of the party; suspects him to be the tool of others. Mr. Blanchet is a doctor; his character. Mr. Bedard and Mr. Borgia are lawyers, the former said to be the principal contributor and the most dangerous of the set. Has dismissed those with commissions from the militia. Copy of dismissal enclosed. The influence of the Canadian party strong in the House would not be surprised if some resolution was adopted which would necessitate his dissolving it. 30

15, Craig to Castlereagh. (Separate.) Deficiency in the number of members composing the Legislative Council; it should consist of fifteen, but at present there are only twelve. Their names. The first vacancy caused by the death of Chief Justice Alcock. Takes it for granted his successor, when appointed, will fill it. For the other vacancies recommends John Richardson and Charles de St. Ours. In order to avoid such inconvenience in future, proposes that two additional members be appointed; recommends John Hale, Deputy Paymaster General, and Antoine J. Duschesnay. Early attention to this subject necessary. Mr. Craigie superseded as Deputy Commissary General, causes a vacancy in the Executive Council. Recommends Monsr. Louis de Salaberry. Requests that Mr. James Irvine be also appointed. 318

Craig to Edward Cooke. Letter of 4th June received, also warrants necessary for appointing Sewell as Chief Justice. Has delayed sending them that he (Sewell) may continue for a short time in his present office, till he can be replaced. Two persons, Mr. Greece and Mr. Campbell, have been sent here to instruct the people in the culture of hemp. The former is industrious, doing his best; the latter idle. Apprehension of hostilities subsiding. Private accounts all concur in saying that so far a war depends upon the effort of Mr. Jefferson. A letter this morning from a private gentleman intimates that even the suspicion of a rupture has vanished and no exertion on the part of Jefferson could now bring on hostilities. The embargo still a source of distress. He and the Bishop are in a sad state for want of houses. Anxiety about the accounts from Spain. 322

Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 32.) Mr. Sewell took the necessary oaths as Chief Justice and a member of the Executive Council. The office of Attorney General is thus left vacant; it is a very difficult place to fill at this crisis. After much deliberation recommends Mr. Sewell, brother to the Chief Justice, or Mr. Bowen, as best fitted for the post. Has given the latter a commission while waiting His Majesty's pleasure, as it was not expedient to allow the office to remain vacant. Has named Mr. Oliver Perault as His Majesty's advocate, which position was left vacant also by Mr. Sewell's appointment; it is almost a sinecure. 337

October 24, Quebec. Same to Castlereagh. (No. 35.) Despatches received. The only particular answers required are to No. 9, relative to the Forges of St. Maurice and Nos. 10 and 12 relative to the culture of hemp. Has hitherto declined signing the lease of the Forges to Monroe and Bell, who however, retain them; it appears advisable to see if they will not accept the lease on more reasonable terms for the province. In consequence of the detailed statement sent he awaited instructions thereon. Has not assembled the Council for some time owing to the vacancy in the office of Chief Justice and the absence of several members. These objections now removed. The unsatisfactory reports of the hemp culture. 372

November 23, Downing St. ——— to Craig. Despatches Nos. 26 to 30 inclusive, and one of 15th September, marked separate, laid before the King. The decreasing probability of hostilities, and the necessity of supporting the Spaniards prevented the militia supplies being sent out. His (Craig's) letters on the subject of the militia are clear and satisfactory. His Majesty approves of the persons concerned in the publications of seditious newspapers being removed from office. 330

December 28, Quebec. Craig to Gore. (Extract.) In letter of 6th December he has entered pretty fully into his ideas on the subject of the Indians. Nothing since has altered his opinions. Repeats that they must be either for or against us. By a letter from Mr. Baby, it appears there are greater difficulties than at first supposed in the way of obtaining their co-operation. Thinks our power to withdraw all supplies should act powerfully on them. The Indian Department must be active and vigilant and keep these topics before them. 219

0. Sir Robert S. Milnes to same. (Private.) Stating that Sir James Craig has "clipped off a part of the savings" allowed him by Lord Castlereagh. Asking that the money still be given him. 96
1. John Black to same. Learns that probably the Secretary of State has been informed that he has received a very large portion of the waste lands of the Crown in Canada. Encloses memorial to Lord Castlereagh and states that he has only been granted 1,200 acres in common with other associates in Dorset. 97
Enclosed. Memorial, asking that the Forges at St. Maurice be leased to him for twenty years at £1,000 per annum. 99
30. Bishop of Quebec (Anglican) to ———. By reference to his letter of 24 October, 1804, he will see that the change in salary made the maintenance of his position then in the Province an impossibility, and it is much more so now the necessity for augmenting the ministers' salaries being so urgent. All the clergy are deeply interested in the decision of the Ministers, respecting the Establishment of the Church of England and the restrictions placed upon the present system of Roman Church Government. The Canadian Catholics have long expected the first and can raise no particular objection. Is confident no real difficulty has ever existed to prevent this establishment. The dislike of the Canadian Catholics to the Bostonois (as they call the Americans) and dread of a union with the States would prevent them from withdrawing in the least from English rule, therefore the second part of the question would cause no trouble. After the encouragement held out to him in Lord Camden's letter (extract enclosed) and after what has since passed, he did not expect to have to return without having found relief for his people, clergy and himself, a bishop without jurisdiction to a church without establishment. Begs to have the matter of this letter conveyed to Lord Castlereagh and requests to be informed whether the intimation to return to Canada is imperative. 103
31. John Black to Edward Cooke. Had submitted on the 18th inst., copy of letter of credit for £1,200 to enable him to carry on the hoped for lease

March 8, Quebec. Craig to Erskine. Encloses memorial from the merchants of Montreal. Understands one on the same subject was forwarded by Mr. President Dunn last April. The effect of the non-importation and embargo Acts on this trade. As this despatch will be delivered by Mr. Gillespie, who is fully informed and a trader himself, everything necessary can be learned from him. 16

(In Craig's No. 37 of 29th October.)

March 15. Alexander Lennox to Edward Cooke. Had the honour to write on the 24th ult., requesting he would move Lord Castlereagh in behalf of the widow of Colonel La Corne St. Luc, who spent most of his fortune in the service of Government. She is now in great distress. Mr. Stuart has the memorial copy of Col. St. Luc's commission, to which reference can be made. 111

March 18, Treasury Chambers. George Harrison to same. Has laid before the Treasury a letter from Mr. Taylor, requesting to be furnished with the reports or minutes of the Executive Council on the accounts of Henry Caldwell as Receiver General of Lower Canada, from 11th October, 1799, to 11th October, 1805. Is therefore commanded by their Lordships to move Lord Castlereagh to give directions that the said reports be transmitted to this Board to be communicated to the Commissioners of Audit. 112

March 27. John Young to same. Requesting that the enclosed memorial be presented to Lord Castlereagh. Hopes his Lordship will take up his case. 114

Enclosed. Memorial to Lord Castlereagh asking for lands and a salary as master of the Trinity House of Quebec. 115

March 29, Whitehall. W. Fawkener to ——— The Lords of the Committee of Council for Trade and Foreign Plantations, having had under consideration several acts passed by the Legislature for Lower Canada, have reported to His Majesty that the Act (No. 163) for the incorporation of an association under the name of the Quebec Benevolent Society is proper for His Majesty's Royal confirmation. As it does not appear necessary to submit the other Acts, returns them. 211

March 29. Bishop (Anglican) of Quebec to ———. Offers his assistance in any measures for the benefit of the Protestant Church in Canada. Thinks some augmentation of the salaries of the ministers of York, Kingston, Quebec, Montreal, and William Henry is necessary. The clergy living in the country have many advantages over those in towns, as rent and the expenses of living are much lighter. Wishes it to be considered that the present practice of issuing marriage licenses by a lay surrogate is productive of ill consequences; objections are, however, made to the power being vested in the Bishop. As the Catholic Bishop exercises the power it does not seem equitable to withhold it from the Anglican. The whole annual profit does not exceed £40 or £50. Wishes to change the title of his commissaries, thinks archdeacon a better title, as there are so many military commissaries in his diocese. 123

March 30, Treasury Chambers. W. Huskisson to Cooke. Is commanded by His Majesty's Treasury to request he will move Lord Castlereagh to have transmitted an account of all pensions chargeable upon the Civil Establishment and the grounds upon which they are granted. 126

April 2. John Black to same. Trusts his petition is on the eve of being decided upon. Asks that he be appointed agent for the Seigniory of Sorel. 127

April 14. Bishop (Anglican) of Quebec to ——— As the convoy sails for Quebec on the 25th inst., he will understand it is important he should carry back the final determination of Government upon all points to which there appeared no objection. 128

28. Bishop (Anglican) of Quebec to ——— Asking for £4,000 to complete the building of a church at Quebec. 176

29. Same to ——— Grateful thanks for the extra allowances which His Majesty has granted to certain clergymen and to himself in lieu of a see house. Will report on any houses which appear proper as a bishop's residence on his return to Quebec. 178

29. Same to ——— Lord Castlereagh's letter received; notices no mention is made of the erection of parishes. Presumes that is settled in the Instructions to the Governor; hopes the subject of marriage licenses will be mentioned there also. Will be much disappointed if he does not receive a grant of waste land. Observes that the addition of £50 to the salary of the Minister of William Henry is said to raise it to £200. He only has £100 now. 179

2. W. Scott to Lord Castlereagh. It appears that the bishop's power is limited to a superintendance and coercive authority in matters of discipline over the clergy. This appears too feeble, he should have a court with the necessary officers and power of enforcing process, but confined to Church discipline over the clergy and church officers so far as the latter are answerable to ecclesiastical rule. 181

19. John Black to same. Praying that his petition be speedily decided on. 182

30, sury nbers. George Harrison to Edward Cooke. Having laid before the Lords Commissioners a report of the Comptrollers of Army accounts, dated the 17th inst., on a letter from Mr. Lane, Assistant Commissary of Accounts, relative to the Indian store accounts for Upper Canada, he has been instructed to transmit copy of Mr. Lane's letter and its enclosure to him (Cooke) in order that they may be thoroughly examined. 84

1, nance es. R. H. Crew to Edward Cooke. Enclosing abstracted return of small arms, ammunition and stores which the Board of Ordnance have ordered to be sent to Quebec since the beginning of the present year; also abstract of the same sent to Halifax in the month of March last. 195

Enclosed. Ordnance stores sent to Quebec. 196

2, bec. Craig to Erskine. The only chance of alleviating the loss sustained by the merchants trading to the Indian country, through the seizure of their goods at Niagara by the United States Customs, lies in their immediate restitution, that they may be sent to their destination before the season closes. Consider the seizure a mistake resulting from the over zeal of the customs officer. Considers it an outrage; armed boats had no right to pursue citizens in free waters. The American government should put a stop to such violence. 18

(In Craig's No. 37 of 29th October.)

3, tehall. W. Fawkener to Cooke. Has laid before the Council for Trade and Foreign Plantations his (Cooke's) letter, enclosing one from Craig with copy of an address of the House of Assembly of Lower Canada, respecting the repeal of the Act of 28th of His Majesty. chap. 39. Lord Castlereagh to be informed that their Lordship good reason for increasing the indemnity to growers of hemp, the value has risen to an unforseen height, yet the expense of ra not greater than when the price was fixed at £43 per ton on c at Quebec, Montreal or Niagara. They may, if they see fit, di it in any other way or ship it to England, where they will rec market price when recieved into His Majesty's stores, unless th be under £50 por ton, which is the least price to be paid for C hemp for the period of two years.

July 29, St. Rochs. Bishop (Anglican) of Quebec to Sir J. H. Craig. Thinks th belonging to the widow of Chief Justice Elmsley the most elig a see house.

July 30, Quebec. Craig to Bishop of Quebec. Though the house belonging Elmsley is not all that can be desired, yet considers it would be b purchase it than to attempt to build.

August 1, Quebec. J. Hale to same. The price fixed for her house by Mrs. Elmsle leaving the country was £4,000; he has since been authorized such arrangements as will expedite the sale, therefore would accept reserving to Mrs. Elmsley the power to revoke before the tra completed.

August 2, St. Rochs. Bishop (Anglican) of Quebec to Craig. Is anxious to obtain information as to the value of Mrs. Elmsley's house and the required to put it in a fit state. Thinks Col. Bruyeres or son person should examine the building to ascertain these two point

Forsyth, Richardson and Co. to Inglis, Ellice and Co. (Extract.) The boats which had escaped seizure by the American Custom House Officers all arrived at Michillimackinac. By orders from the United States Government the officer at Niagara is to give up the goods upon security to abide the issue of a trial in their courts, &c. This is considered as a trick to protect their officers, and as it is now too late to make use of the goods, they will remain at Niagara. Our plea when the trial comes on, will be that the goods were seized in waters out of the jurisdiction of the American Courts. 213

Bishop (Anglican) of Quebec to Castlereagh. In obedience to his Lordship's instructions he has made all enquiries respecting a house which might be purchased for the use of the Bishop. Asks that Sir James Craig be notified of the increase to the salaries of the ministers established in the towns as they were disappointed on the 1st of May, no orders having been received to that effect. Is in the same situation himself as regards the allowance made him in lieu of a see house. His increase dates from his return to Canada. Is the date to be the time of sailing, 2nd May, last, or the date of landing, 10th July? Has not yet heard anything from Lieut.-Governor Gore on the subject of the waste lands he, the Bishop, had asked for. 224

February 6, Quebec. Craig to John Henry. (Most secret and confidential.) Instructions to proceed to Boston on a secret mission. He is to endeavour to obtain the most accurate information of the true state of affairs in that part of the Union; from the wealth and intelligence of some of the leading men it must naturally possess a very considerable influence over the other Eastern States. His own judgment and the connections he has in the town must be his guide as to how this information is to be obtained. Warns him against the sanguineness of the Federalists. He (Henry) is to send the earliest intelligence if this party should contemplate a separation from the Union. If such a thing appears likely and they manifest a desire for assistance from us he is authorized, if he can form an intimacy with any of the leading party, to insinuate that he will forward communications. Encloses credential in case such should be required. He is to obtain all possible information while passing through Vermont; to write frequently. How his letters are to be addressed for safety. 254

February 12, Washington. Martin Chittenden (a member of Congress) to ———. The feeling at Washington. Four days spent in debate over a resolution for repealing the embargo laws on first of June next, and granting letters of marque and reprisal. Britain appears ready for an amicable settlement of the existing difficulties and seems to want to avoid war if it can consistently be done. The expected strength of the parties in the Congress to meet on 22nd May next. 88

ry 13. Craig to Castlereagh. (No 50 Duplicate.) The information from His Majesty's minister at Washington gives him every reason to expect war as the probable issue of the discussion pending. Thinks it will take place at no very long period after the next meeting of Congress. Considers it right to draw his Lordship's attention to the state and defences of these colonies. The security of Quebec is unquestionably of the first importance; while we retain possession of that place we have always a door open by which to recover the province, although it affords no security against the loss of it. Some little assistance may be expected from the militia, should we retain the province; should we lose and attempt to regain it, a much larger force would naturally be required in the latter than in the former case. The province has been neglected, the posts not kept up, and the works on the Isle aux Noix and the Fort at St. Johns are no longer in existence, while the projected post at William Henry has never even been begun; our frontier is thus entirely open. He has never attempted to re establish these posts, first: as all available means are required for the fortress of Quebec, and second; as garrisons would then be required to keep them up. The two last named forts necessary to help to make the province secure. Thinks the conquest of this province must still be effected by the old route of Lake Champlain. Upper Canada is also destitute of forts by which the advance of the enemy could be delayed two days, such forts as do exist are only calculated to cause the loss of the men put in them; at present we have the superiority on the Lakes. The enemy is building a vessel of considerable size; he has directed a vessel of superior dimensions to be built at Kingston. Thinks the entry to this province would be across the strait between Lakes Erie and Ontario; as the strait is only thirty-five miles long and nine miles of that distance impassable on account of the Niagara Falls, is of opinion we might guard the remainder. Another entry could be had by crossing the St. Lawrence at Oswegatchie and from thence up to Kingston. The difficulties in the way. The most probable route by Lake Champlain is quite unguarded by vessels as we have not one on that Lake, and no possibility of building. No ordnance whatever at any post except Quebec. Sees no probability of success without at least 12,000 men. The militia show a good disposition, but must have troops to help them. In addition to the force mentioned, would require a reinforcement of at least three companies and some artillery. A frigate and three or four smaller vessels are indispensable. The supplies required. 10

uary 15, lington. A. B. (John Henry) to———. Encloses letter from a member of Congress (Martin Chittenden) to an active Federalist in Vermont. According to his statement, the relative strength of the two parties in the new Congress is:—Federalists, 45, Democrats, 82. The state of feeling. 86

uary 18, dsor, Vt. Same to———. His last two letters were written from Burlington, the principal town in the Northern section of Vermont. Is now at Windsor, the principal town in the Eastern section, where Democracy (to use local phraseology) predominates over Federalism. Distrusts the over sanguine calculations of the Federalists. They declare "that the state will negociate separately for itself in case of war with England; and maintain its neutrality even by an armed force if no other state should unite with it." The Democrats on the contrary assert: "If war would not unite the people the equality of power would at least paralyze the efforts of both parties." Difficulty of deciding; thinks it safer to rely on the latter opinion in the present state of things. The Governor of Vermont is a prudent, industrious man, but has not the great abilities required to inspire confidence; he has at least pledged himself to co-operate with Massachusetts. Finds it necessary to correct by means of the public papers the erroneous idea that 5,000 men are equal to the conquest of Canada. Page 261

February 21, Quebec. Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 51.) Had observed in his (Craig's) despatch No. 35, that he considered it advisable before taking further steps in the business of the St. Maurice Forges, to ascertain whether Messrs Monro and Bell were disposed to take the lease on more favourable terms to the Province than the rent at which they had purchased at auction. Encloses a letter to those gentlemen from Ryland and their answer, which contains a detailed and candid account of the whole transaction. Considers it to have been a fair sale, and recommends that he be empowered to sign the lease. 24

February 21, Quebec. Same to same. (No. 53.) Transmitting copy of proceedings of the Executive Council concerning Waste Lands between 26th September, 1807, and 28th January, 1809, also concerning Matters of State between 14th June and 28th January, 1808. In the proceedings concerning the Waste Lands is given a full report on the claims of Mr. Cuyler. Under the circumstances could not decline issuing a patent to the family of the late Mr. Allsopp for sundry lots of land in Farnham, which had been prayed for by Mr. Cuyler; but after the suit between the Crown and Mr. Delorme, who lays claim to a portion of land of Farnham, there will still remain upwards of 2,000; he can recommend both Mr. Cuyler and Sir John Johnson for grants. It does not appear necessary to bring to his especial notice any of the proceedings of the Executive Council in Matters of State except the report from the Inspector General of the King's Domain and a letter from the Receiver General. The measures adopted in consequence are now in operation and he thinks they will tend to augment considerably the Provincial revenue by forcing a regular payment of the mutation fines due to the Crown. 49

February 21, Quebec. Same to same. (No. 54.) Transmits proceedings in the Executive Council on petitions for leases of the Crown and Clergy reserves in this province between 14th June and 28th January, 1808. Applications increasing rapidly. The rates charged. The rising value of these reserves. Has given a commission to Edward Burke as Auditor of land patents for Lower Canada; recommends that a salary be granted by the Crown for these duties. 51

February 23, Amherst, N. H. A. B. (John Henry) to———. Hopes the caution he has observed in sending letters will be approved of. It is believed that war will not be declared during the present session of Congress. It is thought an "armed commerce" will be permitted. The policy he hears Mr. Jefferson intends to pursue. 264

uary 26, on. A. B. (John Henry) to———. Has carefully collected and sent by safe private conveyances all the information worthy of credit that he could obtain as to the policy of the two parties in the United States. The public post offices are not safe in these times. Has not yet had time to judge to what lengths the Federal party will go; will wait till after the election of the Governors of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island, which will indicate the comparative strength of the parties and the measures which the "Junto" in Boston may safely pursue. The best informed men here do not expect immediate war, but think means will be fallen upon to provoke Great Britain to commence hostilities, or at least furnish the American Government with a more plausible excuse for a rupture during the next session of Congress. However, it is confidently believed England will perceive the snare and throw all responsibilities upon the American Government. The effect of Mr. Canning's dignified civility will be to humble while it will irritate the French faction. 267 ch 5, on. Same to ———. A gentleman going direct to Montreal enables him to send this packet to Mr. Richardson, and does away with the necessity of writing in cypher. How he gets the confidence necessary to his mission. The apprehension of an immediate war has subsided. The probable effect of the non-intercourse law. Mr. Madison will probably bring about hostilities without appearing to be the blamable party; how this might be done. Should war be declared in spite of the Eastern States, thinks Massachusetts would call a congress to be composed of delegates from the Federal states and erect for the time being a separate government. In such an event he can only conjecture what would be the result; relations would probably be established with Great Britain. Does not know what permanent benefit would grow out of this, but it is generally understood that a secession of the Northern States would be followed by an alliance with England. The project of withdrawing the Eastern States from the Union is abandoned for the present, as the common people are disinclined for it. The meeting of Congress in May will decide what situation public affairs are to remain in. Believes in the integrity of intention of the leading characters but cannot forget that they derive all their power from a giddy multitude. 269 ch 15, on. Same to ———. He will have seen by the public papers that the Federalists of Massachusetts have prevented war with Great Britain by convincing the Government of the United States that it would be more than the resources, &c., the country could stand. The session has passed without any part of the plans of the administration being carried into effect, except an interdiction of commerce with Great Britain and France. Even this will cease in June, unless renewed, which the Federalists will try to prevent. The circumstances under which the new Congress will meet depend on the state elections. The policy to be observed by Great Britain. Regard must in the meantime be had to the election, which will soon take place. Laments that the non-intercourse law has superceded the embargo, as it it calculated to check the progress of revolution lowering in the horizon, and giving promise of a tempest which would overturn Democratical institutions and deter the world from making another experiment in this sort of Government. "While the high road of history is strewed with the wrecks or whitened with the monuments of republics this alone remains to encourage innovation or render the popular theories even plausible." Page 277

April 6, Boston. A. B. (John Henry) to ———. Nothing of any moment has occurred since his last communication. The election of governor, on which peace or war depends, was made on the 3rd inst. The returns from the distant states not yet received, but the success of the Federal candidate seems certain. This success, however, to produce the desired effect, ought to be more complete. Wonders that Democracy has still so many adherents. Reasons why Mr. Gore had not a larger majority of Federal votes. In his letter of 5th ultimo, had briefly stated the plans which he believed the "Junto" in Boston would act upon in case of war. The first step would be an application to the Governor General of British America for aid, especially that which would protect the small sea ports from the naval force of the General Government. There must be some one in Canada prepared to decide on this and other matters of similar importance, whenever it shall be necessary to apply to him. His own opinion is that the general government will travel round all intrigues before declaring war. In his next will submit his reasons for thinking so. 280

April 8, Downing St. Draft of letter to Craig. (No. 18.) Despatches Nos. 31 to 46 inclusive received. On the subject of No. 32, he (Craig) has long since received His Majesty's pleasure for appointing Mr. Sewell, late Attorney General, to be Chief Justice, and for appointing Mr. Uniacke who is now proceeding to Canada to succeed him. In No. 34, the explanation respecting the complaints of the Indians who claim certain rights in the Seigniory of Two Mountains appears satisfactory. By No. 35, he is glad to find that he (Craig) has not confirmed the lease of the St. Maurice Forges recommended by Mr. Dunn, and that he has hopes of amicably setting aside the sale and making an arrangement more advantageous to Government. Is sorry the culture of hemp is not proving more satisfactory; efforts should not to be discontinued. His Majesty has taken No. 39 into consideration and when his successor is appointed, Mr. Dunn will be permitted to retire from the position of puisne judge, with a pension of £500. No. 41, respecting the ungranted residues of townships. If any bill should come before Parliament for prohibiting the use of spirits among the Indians of North America he will take care that the considerations in No. 42 shall be attended to. Regrets Mrs. Bruyère's application for the pension granted to her late husband cannot be entertained. 95

April 8, Downing St. Same. (No. 19.) Has sent a separate despatch recommending him (Craig) to investigate the circumstances of the Indians in Canada. Entirely concurs that in present relations with the United States, the Indians must be conciliated on the principle that if not for us they will be against us. No immediate necessity for altering the system of paying the expenses of the Indian Department. His Majesty approves of the appointment of Mr. Elliott to succeed Mr. McKee, allowing the latter his allowance till further orders. 99

April 8, Downing St. Same. (Private.) The existing state of affairs, though presenting a hope that hostilities may be avoided, yet prevents our desisting from cautionary measures. Therefore recommends him (Craig) to persevere in the strengthening Quebec, and making the militia force available.

Care to be taken that these measures be not misconstrued and made the ground for misunderstanding or retaliation. Page 101

A. B. (John Henry) to———. As he is anxious to transmit with the utmost speed all the facts and the public opinion on important matters, his correspondence must of necessity be rather desultory, but flatters himself he is perfectly acquainted with the state of affairs here. Mr. Gore is elected by a majority of 3,000, thus raising an insuperable barrier to prevent war. The New England States side against the Administration. Reasons why the Federalists are not stronger. By the aid of a small sum of money the Federal "junto" obtained copies of despatches of the American minister at Paris, from which were selected the letters published under the title of "Suppressed Documents," a copy of which he (A. B.) sent to Mr. R——d. The notes were written by the author of "The Analysis," which so largely helped to allay the feeling against Great Britain. Thinks if war should be declared under the existing state of affairs the New England states would not be a party to it. Reasons for thinking the General Government would try every expedient before declaring war. Will forward a statement of the number of Democrats and Federalists in the Northern states when he has accurately ascertained it. 283

(In Craig's (separate) of 9th June.)

Same to———. Has little to communicate on local politics since the 12th inst. Has not yet accurately ascertained the number of the respective parties in the New England states. New Hampshire, Connecticut and Rhode Island are decidedly federal. Elections in Massachusetts take place next week; he does not doubt the result will be favourable. The elections for Congress in the Southern States indicate a change. Thinks the minority will be more numerous than Mr. Chittenden's letter stated. The New England Federalists are well satisfied with the proclamation restoring the intercourse between the two countries; the Democrats affect to be pleased with it also. The chief benefit to be drawn from the settlement of existing difficulties is that Buonaparte, baffled in his attempt to involve England and the United States, may think it to his advantage to declare war against America; great advantage might result for Great Britain from this step, as party feeling would be forgotten in a common cause. The present state of affairs not favourable to the Democrats. On beginning this letter, had intended to make some observations on the treaty talked of, especially that part relating to the boundary line. The American Government will certainly try to arrange this matter so as to obtain a portion of the fur trade. This subject is amply discussed in a memorial of the North-west Company to the Governor General. 289

(In Craig's (separate) of 9th June.)

Same to———. As there seems a great probability of an accommodation between the two countries he will now have more leisure for writing on general politics. In the more critical period, passing events took up all his time. Has nothing to say on local topics. Thinks the parade made in the Government paper of the sincere disposition on Mr. Madison's part to be on friendly terms with Great Britain should awaken vigilance and distrust rather than confidence and hope. Analyses his (Madison's) motives. 293

Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 56.) Enclosing memorial from Mr. Justice Crawford, provincial judge of the District of Gaspé, whose claims for an augmentation of salary were reported on by the Executive Council in April, 1807, and afterwards transmitted for his (Castlereagh's) consideration, to which no answer has been received. May 15, Boston. A. B. (John Henry) to———. Nothing new or interesting occurred since his last. Mr. Madison's prompt acceptance of the fri offers of Great Britain has caused a temporary lull in the party st neither party believes him to be sincere, and both distrust him. growing strength of the Federalists should decide the Preside abandon the policy of his predecessor. Should Buonaparte attemp act of hostility these states would soon be indissolubly bound to Britain. The federal party would then support Mr. Madison; they already promised to do so, provided he conclude an honourable t with Britain and resent the insults of France. Whatever may be Madison's motives for appearing to abandon the system of hos against Britain, his acts so far seem to prove his sincerity. Has ord the militia to be disbanded and the crews of the gun-boats in this har discharged. Has also partially withdrawn his support from "National Intelligencer" on account of some remarks ascribin recent accommodations to other reasons than his sincere desire equal justice to Britain and France.

Is now confident that a war with Great Britain originati present causes is scarcely possible. Whatever Mr. Madison's designs, he must adopt a friendly policy towards Britain. The t public opinion blows in her favour. Two months ago the State of York was not counted an ally of Massachusetts. The elections fo Lower House are going on in this State; curiosity felt as to the r Means taken to defeat Mr. Gore.

Craig to Castlereagh. Regrets that he has found it indispensably necessary to dismiss Mr. Stuart from his office of Solicitor General. His reasons for so doing. Has not as yet filled up the vacancy on account of the prevailing report that His Majesty has appointed Mr. Uniacke Attorney-General; in which case he shall offer the post to Mr. Bowen who at present does duty in that office. Some observations on the qualifications necessary for that position. If Mr. Uniacke does not possess these qualifications, recommends that he succeed to the office of Chief Justice of New Brunswick, vacant by the death of Mr. Ludlow. His entire satisfaction with the appointment of Mr. Sewell to the Chief Justiceship. 128

Same to same. (No. 59.) Encloses speeches on the opening and closing of the Provincial Parliament. Reasons for the complexion which he (Castlereagh) will notice they bear. The party of which he gave an account in despatch No. 29, had an alarming number of adherents in the House, and the general behaviour of the Parliament was such that he judged it expedient to dismiss it and call a new one in the hope that none of the objectionable members would be again elected. June 16, Quebec. Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 63.) Mr. Forbes, Lieut.-Governor of Gaspé has arrived at Quebec, and will go down to that district in the course of the summer. His Majesty's assent to the Gaspé Jail Bill not yet received, though he (Castlereagh) mentioned in his despatch No. 10, of 7th July last, that it would be approved. The bill was presented for Royal assent on 14th April, 1808, it will be necessary to introduce it afresh unless regularly notified of its approval within two years from that time. 306

September 7, Downing St. Draft of letter to Craig. (No. 21.) Has laid before the King his (Craig's) letter of 5th June detailing the reasons for dissolving the Parliament. Has no doubt he (Craig) was influenced solely by a desire for the King's interest, and as he represents that the English part of the community and the sensible part of the Canadians approve, trusts it will not be attended with any prejudicial effect. Hopes in future if any unfortunate difference should arise between him (Craig) and the Legislative Assembly, in dissolving them, he will take care to use such temperate ends and chosen language as may not leave it in the power of the Assembly, afterwards chosen, to question the propriety of his statements. His Majesty approves of Mr. Stuart's removal, and Mr. Bowen's appointment in his place as Solicitor General. 217

September 7, Downing St. Same. (Private.) Having written officially on the subject of the dissolution of the Legislative Council, thinks it right to express his private sentiments. Difficulty of managing a Provincial Assembly constituted like that of Lower Canada; all the privileges of the British House of Commons are exercised where there exist little means of influencing and inducing the members to coalesce with the Government. The example of the American states and the nature of a popular assembly afford great opportunities for turbulent minds to raise themselves into imaginary or real importance by opposing the Administration. The great difficulty lies in the fact that there are no means of punishing a Assembly but by dissolution, and if they are popular it is sure to fail of success. Caution must be used in taking these extreme measures. The two grounds of complaint against the Assembly which he specifies are "their proceedings for preventing judges sitting in the assembly and for "endeavouring to expel a member on the allegation of his being a Jew "although he had taken the regular qualification oaths on the Gospels.' Considers neither of these objects illegitimate to pursue, therefore does not doubt the Assembly acted in the spirit he represents. Great care should be exercised in the wording of his speech on dissolution, as the new Parliament would be very liable to object to it on the ground of its interfering with their freedom, &c. Judges might be admitted to seats in the Legislature if he (Craig) should at any time see fit to acquiesce. 219

September 8, Downing St. Same. (No. 23.) Has laid before the King his despatches from No. 50 to 63. Since receiving his letter on the subject of the Forges of St. Maurice, thinks it advisable to accept at once the offer of Munro and Bell of £500 a year. Cannot transmit a final decision as to the grant of land asked for by Chief Justice Monk; wishes to be informed whether he at present has any grants of land and to what extent, also what grants are usually made to persons of his rank. Is glad to find by his despatch

No. 54 that the reserved lands are likely to become very productive. Approves highly of letting these lands. Also thinks well of the arrangements adopted upon the claims of Mr. Cuyler and Mr. Allsop; if the 20,000 acres in Farnham become disposable, empowers him to carry out his intentions respecting Mr. Cuyler and Sir John Johnson, the reserves should be on no account alienated. Approves of the measures adopted respecting the registry of the sales of any part of the King's domains and the recovery of arrears due thereon. Is not at present enabled to give any decision respecting the application of the nuns of the Hotel Dieu. Cannot authorize a pension to Mrs. Coffin. Representation of the Merchants respecting the trade of the provinces has been transmitted to the Committee for trade and plantations. Authorizes an increase to the emoluments of the Judge of Gaspé. Acknowledges his (Craig's) confidential communication of 9th June. Page 307

Had supposed the Bishop would have brought the subject before the Council on his return; finds that, however, he waits until it is officially recommended to him (Craig) who must converse with the Bishop as to the best mode of bringing the subject before Council. 5

er 8, Same. (Separate.) The uncertainty of affairs between Great Britain and the United States prevents his giving him distinct instructions upon the subject of his (Craig's) letters of 13th February, preceding. Has received a letter from the Treasury upon the subject of the very great increase of expense in Canada from which he thinks it right to call for account of the sums drawn by the Governor and Lieut.-Governors of Canada. Transmits statements which show that the expenditure for Canada alone for the last year and a half amounts to £372,219 which exceeds that of former years so greatly as to necessitate asking for a detailed explanation, not with the object of censuring but with a view of knowing the full effect of his measures; trusts no additional expense will be required except in case of hostilities. Should he not close with Messrs. Monro and Bell, they might refuse to relinquish their right. Some time must elapse before it could be settled; only then could negotiations be opened with Mr. Black. As he considers him a person of no capital nor credit, he will not come to any agreement with him unless he can really give that security required by the Council for renting and working the Forges. Black also asks to be made superintendent of the King's ships and bateaux, they are under the charge of the Quarter Master General's Department, no single man could discharge the duties which are at present satisfactorily managed. As to his application for a further grant of land, Mr. Black has already had a complete township, which he sold. If he must be provided for, he considers a grant of land the most suitable way. Having received from their client Chief Justice Monk, a petition for lands which had been forwarded to Lord Castlereagh, they are desirous of knowing whether it has been received and whether any steps have been taken upon it. Also enclose copy of a letter received at the same time from Mr. Monk to be laid before Lord Castlereagh when the petition is under consideration. 184

2, phil. Sir Alex. Mackenzie to Ed. Cooke. Thinks it unnecessary to recall the claims of the Chevalier de la Garde as they have been sufficiently explained; confines himself to giving his opinion as to the best mode of procuring the means of subsistence for Mr. de la Garde and his family. 194

July 7, Rosemount. Bishop (Anglican) of Quebec to Ed. Cooke. Thinks from the tone of his (Cooke's) answer to the application made by Sir Alex. Mackenzie for assistance for building the Protestant Church at Montreal, that he (Mackenzie) must have conveyed the idea that he had received a "particular assurance" from Government of the aid requested. In case it might be thought he assumed much more than should have been done, he explains the transaction in question. 199

August 1, Quebec. Wm. Smith, Master in Chancery, to Lord Castlereagh. Memorial for salary. 209

September 8, Downing St. Draft of a letter to the Anglican Bishop of Quebec. His letter to the Archbishop of Canterbury expressing disappointment at receiving no official communication on the subject of the grant for finishing the Church at Montreal has been transmitted to this office. Though hopes were held out to him (the Bishop) it was expected that on his return to Quebec a memorial would have been sent to the King. The Chancellor of the Exchequer will be ready to move the House at the next session, but a detailed memorial is necessary. Reasons for the delay is settling other matters respecting ecclesiastical rights in Canada. 206

September 11, Whitehall. Stephen Cottrell to ———. The Lords of the Committee of Privy Council for Trade have taken the joint memorial of the merchants of Lower Canada into consideration and are glad to find that they have been anticipated in several instances by certain bills which have since received the sanction of the Legislature. An account of these Acts. The Lords of the Committee will be ready to attend to any further representations on the subject. 211

September 22, Whitehall. Same to Ed. Cooke. Having laid before the Lords Commissioners a letter from Craig, transmitting the Receiver General's accounts for the half year ending 10th October, 1808, and report of the Council on the public accounts for the same period, is commanded to transmit the same for Lord Liverpool's observations thereon. 215

November 23, Quebec. Craig to Castlereagh. (No. 79.) A report that H. M. Ship "Foxhound" has been lost occasioned him to refer to the letter book to see what letters had been sent by her. Sends a copy of one, of which no duplicate appears to have been transmitted. 143

December 20, Treasury Chambers. George Harrison to Hon. Cecil Jenkinson. country. Application will be made to Parliament for a sum not exceeding £4,000 to complete the Protestant church at Montreal. The instructions he (Craig) has already received to close with the offer of Monro and Bell for the lease of the Forges of St. Maurice, render it necessary to enter further into the subject of Mr. Black's proposal. The requisitions for Indian stores and stationery for 1810 and 1811 have been forwarded to the Treasury. Transmits copy of memorial from the widow of David Lynd, praying for an extension of the lease of certain lands. If he sees no objection, necessary directions are to be given. Page 141

uary 15, bec. Same to same. (No. 80.) Enclosing copy of the answer of Chief Justice Monk to a communication on his application for a grant of a township. Hitherto it has not been usual to give grants for services under the Civil Government. One quarter of a township was granted to each of six Executive Councillors constant in their attendance to the land business, under authority of a despatch dated 6th June, 1801; which also empowered the governors to decide what proportion should be given to members who had only attended occasionally. Three grants were made, 7,000 acres each, to the Bishop of Quebec and Mr. Baby, and 11,000 to the representatives of Mr. Finlay. Encloses an extract showing that the largest quantity intended to be granted to a single individual was 12,000 acres. Mr. Monk does not appear to prefer any claim on the plea of having given his time to the land business. 9 to take decisive steps to quell the dissatisfaction. Has seized the press in the service of this party and arrested the leaders, Messrs. Bédard, Blanchet and Taschereau, together with the printer, on a charge of treasonable practices. Encloses copy of a proclamation issued on the occasion. It has produced a considerable effect among the wavering; he has not had time to hear of the full effect yet. Believes the people at large will be brought to a sense of the folly of their allowing themselves to be led astray. Page 55

May 10, Quebec. Craig to Liverpool. (No. 8.) An Act was passed in the year 1805 for laying duties on the importation of certain articles therein mentioned, and on sales by auction, to provide a fund for the erection of jails in the districts of Quebec and Montreal, which was to expire on 25th March last. This measure has been so much more productive than was expected that by the expiration of the year the fund will amount to about £72,000. The charges will be £13,000 for Quebec jail, the same for Montreal, and £2,000 for Gaspé, which will leave a large surplus on the subject of which he wishes for instructions. The operation of this Act was very unfavourably looked upon by the merchants. Remarks on the civil expenditure of the province. 163

May 12, Downing St. Draft of a letter to Craig. (No. 4.) May 17, Quebec. Craig to Liverpool. (No. 10.) The state of the police both in Quebec and Montreal has been a cause of complaint ever since he (Craig) arrived. Encloses two presentments of different grand juries. Difficulty of inducing gentlemen to act as magistrates. The Quarter Sessions often adjourn for want of a sufficient number of Justices. Has appointed a barrister, Mr. Cuthbert, to be chairman of the Quarter Sessions, with a salary of £400 a year, with £100 additional as Inspector of Police. At Montreal, has appointed two Justices as Police Magistrates at £250 a year each. The advantage of these appointments. Trusts the measures will be approved. 173

21, treal. Sewell, Williams, De Bonne, and Kerr to Craig. Reporting that they consider the Attorney General's knowledge of criminal law very superficial. His knowledge of civil law often defective and he possesses little acquaintance with the French language, therefore they do not consider him qualified for the office. 234

21, treal. James Reid to Ryland. Having been absent from the province during the sitting of the only court where Mr. Uniacke had any business to manage, he is unable to report on his efficiency. 233

21, ec. Monk, Panet, and Ogden to ———. Reporting that they have hardly had a chance to judge of Uniacke's efficiency but do not think he quite comes up to what the Attorney General should be. 231

22, ec. Craig to Liverpool. (No. 12.) Transmitting copies of the only two Acts passed by the Legislature last session, also printed copies of the Journal of the House of Assembly for 1809 and 1810, and a transcript of the Journal of the Legislative Council for 1810. 189

31, ec. Same to same. (No. 14.) Referring to correspondence which has already taken place on the subject of granting the waste lands. Thinks there was some misunderstanding respecting his despatch No. 41, where he enquired as to the residues of townships, as the answer, No. 23, seemed to refer to Crown and Clergy Reserves. Requests an explanation as matters are at a standstill. 191

Observations on these expenses. 213

3, ec. Craig to Liverpool. (No. 16.) In June last Mr. Uniacke was appointed Attorney General in the place of Mr. Sewell, made Chief Justice. That gentleman's total ingnorance either of the French law or language, knowledge of both of which is absolutely necessary in Canada, has brought matters to such a standstill that he decided to suspend Uniacke; however, to avoid unpleasantness he desired him to ask for leave of absence to go to England, which he (Craig) granted. Asks that he be removed from office. Has appointed Mr. Ed. Bowen to act in the meantime, and recommends that he be appointed. Encloses some correspondence on the subject. Page 224

June 6, Quebec. Same to same. (No. 20.) Despatches received. Has directed a lease of the Forges of St. Maurice to be made out in favour of Monro and Bell, at an annual rental of £500. Mrs. Lynd has applied for an extension of her lease of the Jesuits' Farm, adjoining the suburbs of Quebec, for a term of ninety-nine years. Does not recommend its being granted. Reasons for thinking a short lease should be sold to the highest bidder. 255

June 8, Quebec. Same to same. (No. 21.) Three Bills have been passed annually here, the first respecting aliens and certain subjects of His Majesty who have resided in France coming into the Province, or residing therein, the second for the better preservation of His Majesty's Government, and the third for making a temporary provision for the regulation of trade between this Province and the United States. The first Bill is of much importance here; several persons belonging to the Province have gone to France, certainly with no good intention, and it would be dangerous to allow them to return. These Acts are not now in existence, not having been passed last Session. Is convinced the Parliament will not pass the first two again. Begs that they should be supplied by Acts of the Imperial Parliament, the first to continue only during the war, but the third, relating only to trade, might be made perpetual. 258 ptember 12, wning St. Draft of letter to Craig. Despatches laid before the King. Will reserve for separate consideration the state of the ecclesiastical establishments, both Catholic and Protestant. Some observations are necessary on the subject of the application of the surplus fund raised for the erection of jails. Under any circumstances, the offer made in the House to provide for the future charge of the civil establishment of the Province would have required scrutiny, but in the present temper of the Assembly there can be no doubt that the object is to increase the powers of that body by assuming the control of the public supplies. Can hardly suppose a case in which it would be proper to agree to any innovation of this kind without a previous reference Home and the formal sanction of the Crown. The arrangements for the better management of the police of Quebec and Montreal are approved. Has ordered a copy of the despatch respecting the disbursements on account of the extraordinary service of the forces in Canada to be transmitted to the Treasury. Under the circumstances, Mr. Uniacke's leave of absence and Mr. Bowen's appointment ad interim is approved. The recommendation of Mr. Justice de Bonne for a seat in the Legislative Council will be submitted to His Majesty. 311

November 19 Quebec. Same to same. (No. 31.) Despatches received. The subject of the post office here has long been open to great complaint. Had hoped a surveyor would have been sent out; but the Postmaster General here was ordered to make a report instead; his ideas about bridges, roads, &c., were good, but he quite overlooked the state of the country, which in many cases prevents any improvements; he also dwells upon the difficulty of managing the postmasters, the control of whom seems to belong to the Director of Posts, which situation is at present vacant. Difficulties in arranging the Halifax mails. 89

November 19, Quebec. Same to same. (No. 32.) Had enclosed a demand for Ordnance stores in January, 1808, was informed that they had been loaded, but affairs in Spain taking a sudden turn had been sent there instead. Asks that the requisition be filled as soon as possible. 94

y 9, M. Elliott to William Claus. Indians to the number of 125 arrived

erstburg. Brown's Town, except the answer of the Hurons, who accused the Six Nations of perfidy on almost every occasion, telling them they should keep their speeches concealed and not circulate them among their brother Nations. Red Jacket's mission appears to have failed. The Indians ripe for war, they consider they have been trampled upon by the Americans. Dreads they may commence hostilities themselves, and our government be blamed for encouraging them. Red Jacket and others have proceeded to Detroit where Governor Hull furnished them with a boat to carry them home. Had treated his party with coolness. Wants directions as to those who left the Grand River. 68

Same to same. In reference to his despatch of 6th November last, No. 27, describing the states of the barracks and hospitals in Quebec, reports that he contemplates erecting a building to accommodate some of the officers as the townspeople charge them most exorbitant rents for their lodgings. A hospital is also a necessity. Has looked for a site, but the grants here have been so numerous as not to leave a single lot to Government, within the walls, eligible for the latter object. Has therefore considered the house and lot belonging to Mrs. Elmsley, and now for sale, and appointed a board of officers to report. £4,000 the price demanded. Encloses report, which was so favourable that he ordered the purchase to be made. The officers' quarters are nearly completed, and the foundation dug for the hospital. 91

The memorial. 130
Ryland to Peel. Stating some particulars concerning the Jesuit Estates in Lower Canada, which call for the attention of His Majesty's government. Proposing that the revenue arising from these estates be applied to educational ends. 133

1811.

May 10, London. Ryland to Peel. Respecting the money required to complete the Metropolitan Church at Montreal. Page 136

May 14. Same to ———. (Most private and confidential.) Was taken by surprise by the communication in Prevost's despatch of 13th inst. Encloses two letters as an additional motive for interesting himself in the matter. If he (Ryland) were to lose the secretaryship he would be badly off. 137

May 21. Memorandum on the annual establishment of the Indian Department in Upper and Lower Canada, including pensions, for the last 12 years. 139

May 29, Office of Ordnance. R. H. Crewe to Lt.-Col. Bunbury. The articles mentioned in the requisition for ordnance stores, dated 2nd December, 1807, have been ordered to be forwarded to Quebec. 141

May 31, Tottenham. John Wilmot to George Harrison. Returns letter from Peel enclosing an application from Major Coffin to be compensated for services rendered by his family at Quebec. Thinks they must have been referred to him by mistake, as he has no means of knowing anything about Major Coffin's pretensions. 142

(Enclosed in Harrison's of 13th June.)

June 4, London. Uniacke to Liverpool. For an extension of his leave of absence. 142

June 4, London. Ryland to Prevost. Hopes he will excuse the liberty he takes in writing. Craig's reasons for sending him to England have probably been made known to him; therefore thinks it right to lay before him (Prevost) his correspondence with the Secretary of State. Transmits copies of nine letters. A correct idea of the matter relative to the Government of Lower Canada now under the consideration of His Majesty's ministers may be drawn from them. The points of the greatest importance are the St. Sulpician or Seminary Estates at Montreal, and the assumption of the patronage of the Romish Church. If the business is got through in time will sail in the July packet. 182

June 7, London. Same to Peel. Cannot find among his papers the documents which would enable him to state the annual expense of the Indian Department, however, it can be easily ascertained. Encloses a rough calculation of the saving which might be made by substituting an allowance in cash to the Indians instead of presents of goods. An exact account should be obtained of the value of the annual presents given to each tribe before any offer be made to the Indians. Thinks about two-thirds of the actual value of the presents in cash would satisfy them. Hopes his suggestions may prove of some use. A P.S. states that Lord Castlereagh's despatch to Craig (No. 21, of 10th June, 1809), will show the great difficulty of obtaining a settlement of the Indian Storekeeper's accounts in Upper Canada. 143

Enclosed. Calculation of the saving to Government by giving money instead of presents. 146

June 13, Treasury Chambers. Harrison to Peel. Encloses letter from Wilmot of 31st ulto. The Lords Commissioners find that Major Coffin's family have no claim upon the fund for the relief of American Loyalists and do not know of any other source from which relief might be granted. 147

June 15. Ryland to same. (Private.) Encloses an extract of a letter from Lt.-Col. Thornton, Military Secretary, to Sir James Craig, as it contains some particulars respecting the General which he (Ryland) may be desirous of knowing. 149

(Enclosure calendared at its proper date.)

June 15, Reigate. John Wm. Grece to same. Asks that a day be appointed for an interview. 152

June 26, London. Thomas Daniel Cowdell to Liverpool. Asking a passage to British America for himself and his two sons. 153

Ryland to Peel. (Private.) Has at length had the good fortune to procure a copy of Sir J. Marriott's report of a code of laws for the province of Quebec, which he sends for perusal. Agrees with Marriott in all he has said concerning the province of Quebec. The importance of the Canadas both politically and commercially, increasing every day. Is glad to find that the Advocate and Attorney General are already provided with copies of this report. By pages 210 and 211 of that work he will see that so far back as 1773, the St. Sulpician estates at Montreal yielded a revenue of £8,000 sterling a year, in 1805 the produce is said to be only £3,750. If this is really the case, there can be no pretense for complaint should the Crown take upon itself the management of the property in question. Asks if any steps have been taken with respect to his memorial of 13th March. Page 155

Report of the law officers of the Crown on the assumption of the patronage of the Roman Catholic Church of Quebec, that is to say:—1st. Whether the right of presentation to vacant Roman Catholic livings in the Province of Lower Canada be vested in the Crown? 2nd. Whether the vested Crown has not the right of property in the estates of St. Sulpicians, commonly called the Seminary estates of Montreal. 176

P. Langan (Duplicate.) Letter accompanying his memorial to Lord Liverpool on the subject of his claim to certain islands. 197

Edward Couch, Deputy Commissary General, to Gordon. (No. 50.) Transmitting estimates of provisions required for Canada which General Drummond declined signing, owing to the uncertain state of affairs here. His statement in despatch No. 46, of 19th June, that all provisions except rice, could be procured here, was only meant to apply in times of peace. Should hostilities commence, the supplies, especially fresh meat and salt pork, would be very precarious, and a supply of the latter should be sent from England immediately on the declaration of war. Flour and meat have been procured from the States. 262

Ryland to Peel. (Private.) Asks that the accompanying letter be returned, with alterations and observations, if he appears to have taken too much upon himself. His object has always been to put the voluminous despatches into as compact a form as possible, for the consideration of His Majesty's Ministers. 181

Same to ————. Enclosing letter of thanks to Lord Liverpool. 186

Enclosed. The letter. 187

September 11, London. Ryland to———. Sir George Prevost has signified his intention of continuing him in his position as secretary. Mr. Brenton is to fill the office till his return to Canada, which will be either in the winter or early next spring. After Prevost's appointment took the liberty of transmitting to him all particulars of his mission to England. Can he be of any service to His Majesty's interests in Canada? 218

September 14, Promotion of Robert Gilmor to be Deputy Assistant Commissary General. 220

(In Harrison's of 28 September.)

September 19, Montreal. Commissioners for building a Protestant church at Montreal to Craig. Stating that the £4,000 voted for building the Protestant church at Montreal is still unappropriated, owing to a mistake in the wording of the grant when Montreal is described as being in Upper Canada. The money is in the hands of William Dacre Adams, agent for the upper province. Asks that measures be taken to secure the money. 283

(In Craig's of 22nd November.)

October 5, Chelsea ollege. Lt.-Col. Mathews to Gordon. Takes the liberty of referring him to a copy of a memorial received from the Misses Lees, of Stirling, with their request that he would make enquiry at the Earl of Liverpool's office respecting the success of the original. He was acquainted with Mr. Lees, brother of the memorialists, who was a most useful officer. Mr.

John Black of Halifax has written to find out the success of Sir George Prevost's recommendation that he (Black) have a seat in His Majesty's Council of Nova Scotia. Lt.-Col. Bird has also written to enquire what has been done in consequence of his memorial respecting his father's claim for indemnification for his grant of land and buildings thereon at the mouth of the Detroit, taken possession of by government. In consequence of Lt.-Col. Bird's first memorial, this property was greatly undervalued at $1,200. Should Lt.-Col. Bird be disposed to accept, to save further trouble, desires to be informed if application may be made for payment thereof and in what quarter. He (Mathews) will wait upon him in a few days for information on these points. Page 221

J. C. Harries to Harrison. Enclosing copy of a letter addressed to Col. Gordon by Deputy Commissary General Couch, dated Quebec, 8th July, transmitting the annual estimates of provisions required for the troops, which owing to the uncertain state of affairs with the States, Major General Drummond declined signing. A great part of the provisions are drawn from the States; in the event of hostilities, Mr. Cronch suggests a supply of salt pork should be forwarded from England immediately on war being declared. 261

Thomas Charles Heslop Scott, late Chaplain to the 34th to———. Asking for assistance. 223

December 10, Quebec. Prevost to same. (No. 16.) Respecting the uniforms for the proposed Glengarry Fencibles. 14

December 10. Craig to Peel. Letter of the 14th received, acquainting him that Lord Liverpool's sole reason for hesitating in submitting Mr. Ryland's name for a seat in the Legislative Council is a doubt whether that gentleman's situation as clerk of the Executive Council is quite compatible with it; asking his opinion on the subject. He (Craig) considers Ryland quite eligible and does not see how the duties can conflict. 275

December 17, Treasury Chambers. Harrison to same. Having laid before the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury Sir George Prevost's letter dated 9th ult., enclosing a requisition for stationery for the Civil Department, Lower Canada, for 1812, he is commanded to transmit the same for Lord Liverpool's opinion thereon. 276

December 18. Order in Council that the Governor of Lower Canada be instructed to give his assent to the Bill intituled "An Act for erecting a common jail "with its dependencies in the District of Three Rivers, and to provide "the means for defraying the expenses thereof." The Governor's attention to be called to Mr. Secretary Windham's letter of the 5th June, 1806, to Mr. President Dunn, and to recommend to him to promote some measure for the application of the surplus money which may be raised under the Act which provides for the erecting of two jails and also for raising money to defray the expenses thereof. 279

December 20, Treasury Chambers. Harrison to Peel. The sum of £4,000 voted for building the Protestant Church at Montreal, described by mistake as Montreal, Upper Canada, consequently remains unappropriated. Asks that the Governor of Lower Canada be directed to draw upon Mr. Adams, the agent for Upper Canada, for the above mentioned sum as it may be required from time to time. 281

December 23, London. Ryland to Peel. (Private.) Has had some conversation with Gore concerning Indian affairs. Asks for the loan of the proposed establishment of the Indian Department in both Canadas and the requisitions for presents for the ensuing year, that he may make a better estimate of the advantages which would arise from granting money instead of presents. Also asks for the loan of the establishment and requisitions sent home in 1795. 286

ACCOUNTS, 1811.

Q. 116.

This volume consists of the accounts of the Receiver General (John Caldwell) from 11th April to 10th October, 1811. Pages 1 to 32.

GOVERNOR SIR G. PREVOST, 1812.

Q. 117.—1.

ary 1, ing St. Draft of letter to Prevost. (No. 3.) The £4,000 voted for building the Protestant Church at Montreal is in the hands of Mr. Adams, and he (Prevost) is to draw upon him for the amount as required for the above mentioned purpose. Page 2 ary 2, c. Prevost to Liverpool. (No. 17.) Requesting that 200 cavalry sabres and belts with saddles, bridles and equipments complete for that number of Light Dragoons, be sent as early as possible to equip the yeomanry who have offered to form themselves into corps of cavalry for the defence of their threatened country. 4

ary 6, c. Same to same. In 1810, Geneviève Piché was convicted of murder at Montreal and sentenced to death, which sentence was afterwards respited by Craig till His Majesty's pleasure should be known. Asks that the Prince Regent's pleasure be ascertained. Recommends clemency. 5

ary 6, c. Same to same. (No. 19.) Has received the despatch dated 22nd June last, communicating the Prince Regent's pleasure that an annual allowance of £100 be granted to every future missionary leaving this colony after a residence of ten years. Encloses an extract of letter from the Bishop of Quebec to whom a copy of the despatch was transmitted. The great importance of there being no misconception on the subject leads him to ask for a communication which will leave no room for doubts. 6

Enclosed. Extract of letter from Bishop of Quebec to Prevost, dated 27th November, 1811. If the bounty of £100 to missionaries is to be limited strictly to the letter of the instructions, which state that "a grant of a hundred pounds per annum will be proposed for every future missionary sent from this country, who upon removing, &c.," a great many worthy men now labouring in Canada will miss this advantage. 7

ary 6, c. Prevost to Liverpool. (No. 20.) No intimation was given to the Governor of this province that £4,000 had been voted for building the church at Montreal. It was only discovered by accident. Has drawn bills upon Mr. Adams for the sums required. 10

ary 22, c. Same to same. (No. 22.) An attempt having been made at Washington to misrepresent and vilify the British Government as a promoter of the hostilities on the Wabash, he has thought it right to refute this charge by transmitting evidence to Washington and publishing and circulating throughout the United States the enclosed letter from an able pen and signed "Philalethes." Is making all possible preparations to meet the threats of America. 15

Enclosed. Copy of letter signed "Philalethes" from the Quebec Mercury and dated 18th January, 1812. 17

ary 3, c. Same to same. (No. 23.) Transmitting copies of the proceedings of the Executive Council on matters of State between 11th March and 22nd August, 1811, and on land matters between 11th March and 13th June. 24

February 13, Downing St. Same. (No. 7.) The requisitions have been forwarded to the proper Department with directions that the articles required are to be forwarded by the first opportunity. The existing state of affairs make a report on the military defence of the provinces necessary. Any suggestions as to measures to be taken in case of attack will be received with interest. 39

March 3, Quebec. Prevost to Liverpool. (No. 25.) He opened the Provincial Parliament on the 21st February. Encloses the speech on opening and the addresses in reply from the Council and Assembly. Thinks there are some dangerously disaffected persons amongst the Canadians as agents of France and America. Believes the latter country would consider war against Great Britain premature and is at present endeavouring to corrupt the minds of the Canadians to render their designs easier at a more distant period. His efforts to arouse the inhabitants of Canada from their lethargy receive considerable assistance from the arrogant declarations made in Congress respecting the easy conquest of their country; thinks their pride will help him in his plans for a militia force. Will seek the aid of the Catholic clergy in influencing the people. The Canadians' indifference to militia service arises from a disuse and consequent aversion to arms. Arms, accoutrements, and clothing are required. Major General Brock has every reason to expect he will receive from the Legislature of Upper Canada all that is necessary for defending that province. Is anxiously expecting the necessary means of adding to the number of members of the Legislature to prevent embarrassment in case of the death of any of the present members, an event by no means improbable from the infirm health of two or three. 41

Enclosed. Speech on the opening of Parliament: English, 47; French, 53.

Address in reply from the Legislative Council. 59

Ditto from the House of Assembly. 65

Asks for permission to allot a proportion of land to such as enlist. Colonel Baynes nominated to conduct the levy; recommends that he be made colonel. Has prohibited the enlisting of Canadians or Americans recently come from the United States. Page 85

May 13, Quebec. Prevost to Liverpool. (No. 21.) Despatch of 28th July received, on the subject of the hostile intentions manifested by the Indians against the Americans, copy of which he immediately forwarded to Major General Brock. Encloses extract of letter since received from Brock, by which it will be seen that previous to the hostilities which have taken place on the American Frontier, he (Brock) had fully anticipated his (Liverpool's) directions on that head, by his judicious measures in assuming the government. Has deemed this extract of sufficient importance immediately to transmit it to Mr. Foster at Washington, to enable him to repel any attempts to charge His Majesty's Government with encouraging the hostilities actually commenced in the Wabash. In consequence of the threatening language of the American Government and the apparently warlike measures which they are pursuing he has sent his aide-de-camp, Capt. Coore, to Washington for the purpose of receiving any information Mr. Foster may wish to send by this the only safe mode of conveyance. 12

Enclosed. Extract of letter from Brock to Prevost, dated 3rd Dec. 1811. 14

March 3, Quebec. Memorial of Elizabeth de la Corne, widow of Charles de Lanaudière. (in French.) 172

April 3, Quebec. Prevost to Liverpool. (No. 37.) By this time he (Liverpool) is probably in possession of the circumstances relative to Henry's treachery. The papers left by his predecessor leave no information of any consequence other than what has already appeared in the public prints. Henry's thorough acquaintance with the Canadian character, religion and language, and above all his deep resentment against the British, might induce Buonaparte to give him a favourable reception in France. Expects Mr. Madison's next move will be to cause a declaration of war to be laid on the Tables of Congress. Has therefore directed the Commanding officers in the Provinces to be especially prudent and cautious in their intercourse with the United States. Encloses extract of his letter to Major General Brock, that to Sir John Sherbrooke contains the same except as respects the Fort of Detroit. 181

Enclosed. Extract of letter to Brock. 153

St. complying with the requisition in despatch No. 17, for cavalry equipments, which will reach Canada early in the summer. Page 191

St. tations from the Committee of Merchants interested in the trade of the British North American Colonies. 192

Prevost to Liverpool. (No. 38.) Considers a naval force properly constructed for the lakes, the most efficient and cheapest mode of defence. The arrangements to be made for improving that force. Thinks it advisable that the naval establishment, stores, etc., should gradually be removed to York. His reasons. 194

Has obtained a Bill amending the Militia Act, by which a proportion of the Sedentary Militia are converted into a permanent force. Some remarks on the militia. The measures lately taken by the Americans have induced him to accept the services of 500 Canadians to be formed into a corps of Voltigeurs, to serve during the war, or apprehension of war; the conditions under which they are to be raised. Hopes the measures he is taking for the preservation of Canada will be represented to the Prince Regent. As soon as militia matters will allow he intends visiting Upper Canada to concert with General Brock a plan of defensive and offensive operations, in the event of the Democratic spirit of the United States having put the dispute beyond the bounds of accommodation. 214

"His Majesty's minister at Washington writes me on the 27 instant, that notwithstanding the clear proofs of the continuance of the French Decrees, it seems war will be proposed on Monday, and it is said will be carried in the House of Representatives." Notwithstanding this information the troops asked to be sent home in despatch No. 10 will be embarked, substituting the 1st Batt. of the 8th for the 41st, unless hostilities shall have actually commenced. It is reported that the Americans are reinforcing their posts in Upper Canada, which circumstance seems to require the 41st to remain in its present position till the spring. 339

July 4, Downing St. Draft of a letter to Prevost. (No. 2.) Despatches received and laid before the Prince Regent, who is happy to hear of the willingness of the Assembly and people of Lower Canada to second his (Prevost's) exertions. It is desirable to acquaint the Legislature and Assembly that the addresses on opening the Parliament have been laid before the Prince Regent, who hopes he will not be compelled to call upon his Canadian subjects for the sacrifices they would willingly make, but that his declaration of 23rd June will secure peace. Trusts he will be enabled safely to suspend all extraordinary preparations for defence. Hopes all arrangements for raising the Glengarry Regiment have been abandoned in consequence of Lord Liverpool's letter of 30th March. The appointments mentioned in letters No. 10 and 25 approved. In answer to his despatch No. 27, has to state that no idea of the expense of fortifying York can be gathered from the report. Despatch No. 29, relative to the interior communication has been transmitted to the Postmaster General. The establishment on Anticosti to be continued for the present. Large numbers of Indians are collecting at Amherstburg. Feels convinced in case of hostilities his army will be superior to any which can oppose it. 76

Prevost to Liverpool. (No. 56.) Has removed to this town to be nearer the scene of operations. Trouble with the militia in some of the neighbouring parishes. Is quite satisfied with the loyalty of the embodied militia. 35

Same to same. (No. 57.) Despatches received. Had given permission, from the strong indications of war, to raise the strength of the Glengarry levy to 600. Recourse was had to all the Provinces, and he does not consider a sufficient number had been raised in Glengarry to entitle the regiment to that name. Had limited the Canadian Voltigeurs to 300, as the state of the military chest would not allow him to carry on both recruiting services at the same time. The 103rd has been safely landed at Quebec. It has become necessary to establish a cordon of troops upon the frontier between the St. Lawrence and Richelieu Rivers, to prevent incursions of the enemy and protect Montreal. This precautionary measure will prevent his parting with the 100th Regiment for service in Nova Scotia. If the lateness of the season should prevent the 1st Battalion of the Royal Scots from reaching Quebec, they will winter in Halifax. The American General Officer commanding the Niagara District had planned the surprise of Fort George, but fortunately the report of hostilities had brought General Brock to the Fort, which induced them to relinquish their attempt. Brock had considered himself justified in offensive operations, but upon the reflection that Detroit and St. Joseph's were weak and that the reduction of Fort Niagara was the utmost he could do at present, and that that could be done as well at any future time, he decided to confine himself to defensive measures. Has repeatedly recommended this policy to Brock and the officers in command of the other districts of British America. In the present state of politics in the United States he considers it prudent to avoid every measure with the least tendency to unite the people of America. Brock has called out the flank companies of the militia, about 800 men. The Americans very active on the opposite side of the Niagara River. So far General Brock considers himself safe. About 100 Indians from the Grand River have come in answer to his (Brock's) summons, A report that the Americans have taken Carleton Island. We still possess superiority of vessels of war on Lakes Erie and Ontario. Embarrassment from the scarcity of arms for the use of the militia: has sent to Halifax for half the arms in the store there. It is necessary now to establish a paper medium, and he is about to get the aid of Parliament to give it value, upon which measure he will report more fully.

As to private property, he (St. George) must wait the determination of his Government on the subject. Has received despatches from Brock that an American army of 2,000 men under General Hull has made its appearance at Detroit and that a detachment crossed to the Canadian side and is now occupying Sandwich, causing the militia and troops to retreat from thence to Fort Amherstburg. Immediately after taking this village, General Hull ordered a proclamation (enclosed) to be issued which has already done harm. Lt.-Col. Circumstances have since occurred which seem materially to change the future prospect. August 10, Downing St. Draft of a letter to Prevost. (No. 5.) Despatches received. Since his letter of 4th July, the Prince Regent has received intelligence that war is declared. His Royal Highness anxiously hopes that when his intentions respecting the repeal of the orders in council are known in America tranquillity may be restored. Owing to the extended warfare in which Britain is engaged, the means for defending Canada must be limited, but trusts to the known valour of the troops and their commander should Canada be invaded. Great satisfaction felt at the way in which Canadians have shown their anxiety to protect their country. The Prince Regent feels perfect confidence in confiding to him (Prevost) the command of the Canadas. 32

August 10, Downing St. Draft to Prevost. (No. 6.) The Prince Regent has given his sanction to the levy of a corps from the Glengarry emigrants; clothing to be forwarded. The establishment is to be limited to 800, and land is to be allotted to each man when the regiment shall be disbanded. The 103rd must by this time have landed in Quebec. Trusts he (Prevost) has despatched the 100th to Halifax. Has received a letter from Sir George Beckwith from which it appears that the 4th Battalion of the 60th arrived at the Barbados, and that the Royals had been embarked on the same transport for Quebec. It is left to his own discretion whether or not the 41st be kept in Canada; the 95th Regiment is on its way to reinforce the troops under Sherbrooke, who found it impossible to dispense with the 98th, therefore sends the 102nd to strengthen Bermuda. Brigadier General Horsford is to exercise both civil and military duties to allow Sir James Cockburn to return to England. Holds out no hope that the requisitions for specie can be filled. Is aware of the awkwardness caused by the want of it, but necessity prevents. Heard with regret that the transport which sailed last autumn for Canada has not arrived. At the time he received the communication, two transports were just sailing for the Mediterranean with arms, etc., thinking that the service might admit of some delay he had obtained the Prince Regent's consent to change the destination of one of them, the "Lady Shore," with arms, &c., for 10,000 men. It is now under orders to sail for Quebec. On the declaration of war had directed the Commissary in Chief to fill requisitions for provisions. Trusts he (Prevost) will believe that the utmost has been done to reinforce the troops in Canada. The method of employing the Indians. Estimates for barracks to be considered immediately. Should

The same to be communicated to the Executive Government, and if disapproved of when countermanding the order for defensive measures, a period of four days would be allowed to elapse before hostilities could commence. Had consented to this arrangement. Dearborn stated that he had no direct control over Hull, but would write him and recommend a similar line of conduct. Has furnished Dearborn with orders for the commanders of the Canadian frontier posts to be on the defensive only. General Dearborn strongly deprecated the employment of Indians in the contest. He also objected to the agreement being drawn up in writing and copies exchanged. 163

General Brock, fully aware of the importance of that post, had previously strengthened it in every way in his power and on the news of the invasion made all preparations for marching to its relief. Part of the 49th proceeded from Montreal to Kingston to be followed soon by other troops. Has given Major General Sheaffe a temporary employment upon the Staff in Upper Canada. Our Naval supremacy has helped to ward off the fall of Amherstburg and will no doubt enable reinforcements to reach it safely while the surrender of Fort Michillimackinac will give Brock great advantages. The present safety of the Upper Province is to be ascribed to the energy of that officer. Is enabled now to relieve him somewhat since the Army Bill Act has passed. The frontier line from Montreal to Kingston appears secure at present. Arrangements for disposing of the troops. Hopes the measures he has adopted will meet His Royal Highness's approbation. Proceedings of the Executive Council, York, 3rd August, 1812, respecting the Militia. 187

August 17, Detroit. Brock to Provost. The enemy crossed the Detroit on the 12th ultimo, occupied Sandwich and ravaged the country as far as the Moravian town. Particulars of the surrender of Detroit; encloses copy of the capitulation. The force giving themselves up cannot be estimated at less than 2,500 men. The Indians under Elliott and McKee took an active part and their conduct was highly satisfactory. Has appointed Col. Myers to the command at Niagara; Capt. Glegg his aide-de-camp, will deliver this, he is charged with the colours taken at Detroit and with those of the 4th U. S. Regiment. Encloses copy of a proclamation which he issued immediately on taking possession of this country. Capture of the "Adams," a fine vessel. 223

(In Prevost's No. 7, of 1st September.)

August 24, Montreal. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 4.) Since his despatch of the 17th respecting the surrender of Michillimackinac, Hull has made three attempts to approach Fort Amherstburg, in all of which he was repulsed and forced to return to Sandwich. No movement of importance against Upper Canada has taken place. It is now evident that Hull remains inactive from want of reinforcements and supplies, which he is daily expecting. Our forces on the contrary have been able to detach a body across the Detroit River into the United States. The mode of acting upon the enemy's line of communication and supply has been attended with considerable success. A mail from Detroit was taken on the 5th inst., and another on its way there. It will be seen by Hull's intercepted letter how much that officer's hopes of conquering Upper Canada are diminished. As General Dearborn had not the power of including that part of the army under Hull, in the arrangement for a cessation of hostilities he has not thought it necessary to restrain Brock. Has therefore used all possible means to forward him supplies of men, money and stores. Has reason to think Brock reached Amherstburg on the 12th with reinforcements, which, with those from other quarters ought to be sufficient to compel Hull to give up his ideas of conquering Upper Canada. Has received no further word from the United States since Col. Bayne's return. The objects gained by a cessation of hostilities on part of the frontier. The Army Bill expedient has surpassed his most sanguine expectations. Hopes the measures he has pursued will be approved. 1[illegible]

August 26, Montreal. Same to same. (No. 5.) Encloses with great satisfaction a letter from Brock announcing the surrender of Fort Detroit on the 16th. In despatches Nos. 3 and 4, had detailed the operations which had taken place in Upper Canada in consequence of General Hull's invasion. Additional particulars; cannot withhold from General Brock the tribute of applause so justly due to him. His (Prevost's) aide-de-camp, Capt. Coore, will deliver this despatch. He is well qualified to give all information respecting the military resources of this command and also the state of politics in the United States, having lately been employed on a mission to Washington. 36, ush. Dearborn to Prevost. The President has received no official information from the British Government to warrant a continuance of the provisional measure, temporarily agreed on between Col. Baynes and himself. Therefore informs him that at the end of four days from the time this communication reaches Montreal, and copies to the same effect reach the frontiers, he will consider the arrangement no longer obligatory on either party. Has sent copies to the commanding officers of the U. S. troops. 224

(In Prevost's No. 6 of 31st August.)

31, d. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 6.) The accompanying letter from the Commander in Chief of the U. S. Army will show the disposition manifested by the President on the measure temporarily agreed upon between the two countries. The conduct of the American Government in directing the invasion of Upper Canada will fully justify Brock's offensive measures against an assailing army. Regrets having to send Capt. Coore off before the particulars of the Detroit affair reach here, but will forward them as soon as possible. 222

er 1, Same to same. (No. 7.) Enclosing despatches from Brock containing the particulars of the termination of Hull's invasion of Upper Canada. 227

er 12, Same to same. (No. 8.) The despatches which he has sent home since the declaration of war, will show that he could not consistently suspend the preparations for defence. The convincing proof given by the British Government in their declaration of 23rd June, of their desire to conciliate the United States, is not deemed sufficient by the President to restore tranquillity. All preparations are making by the Americans for the subjugation of the Canadas. Notwithstanding their defeat on the western frontiers, they are assembling in great numbers on the Niagara frontiers, and seem to meditate an immediate attack. Brock asks for reinforcements, which cannot be spared from Lower Canada, owing to the preparations of the enemy near Montreal, therefore, he asks for more troops for both provinces. The people are to be depended upon while we are successful, but doubts them in time of adversity. Stores and accoutrements not yet arrived. The want of clothing for the Glengarry Regiment is a serious inconvenience. Hopes the precautionary measures he has taken will be approved. 247

r 22. Same to same. (No. 9.) In his despatch, No. 7, had transmitted particulars of the surrender of Fort Detroit. Has now the honour to report that Brigadier General Hull, with the first division of the prisoners, 22 officers and 343 men, have arrived at this place, the remainder, about 140 men, to be forwarded as soon as possible. Hull has been allowed to go to Boston on parole, accompanied by his aide-de-camp, for the purpose of justifying his conduct to his Government. Has allowed the officers with families to go home on parole. The loyal and brave spirit shown by the militia leads him to hope for a satisfactory result should the country be invaded. The importance of the works he is completing on Isle aux Noix. About 150 Indians have been embodied and placed on this frontier. 251

September 24, Montreal. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 10.) The satisfactory operation of the plan for raising money by Army Bills. Indian presents not yet arrived, the importance of keeping the Nations in good humour. Page 254

September 30, Downing St. Draft of a letter to Prevost. (No. 9.) Transmitting copy of a letter from Mr. Jack, dated 20th August last, enclosing at the desire of the Lords of the Council for Trade, the draft of a Bill to amend, at the suggestion of the merchants trading to Canada, the schedule of the Act Geo. 3rd, chap. 39, which is to be laid before Parliament next session. Asks for his (Prevost's) observations thereon. 264

October 16, Downing St. Same. (No. 10.) Despatches No. 59, 3 and 4, laid before the Prince Regent. Brock's prompt measures in dissolving the Assembly of Upper Canada, and his determination to enforce Martial Law, are proofs of his judgment and decision which have not escaped observation. The Prince Regent desires that his approbation be conveyed to him. 267

October 1, Downing St. Same. (No. 11.) Despatches received. His Royal Highness approves of his having removed to Montreal. Reasons why His Majesty's Government are unable to comply with the requisitions for specie and provisions. Directions will be sent for the establishment of the Newfoundland Regiment to 1,000 men. The Prince Regent has also been pleased to approve of the proposal for raising a corps in New Brunswick. Is glad the Act lately passed for giving circulation to Army Bills has been of such assistance. As his (Prevost's) desire to avoid hostilities is quite in accordance with the wishes of His Majesty's Government, therefore the correspondence with General Dearborn is sure to meet with approval. Col. Bayne's conduct is satisfactory. 172

October 5, Montreal. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 11.) Suggestions respecting the Indians of the western frontier. 265

A P.S. states that he has transmitted a copy of the despatch to Sir John B. Warren, as the public prints say he has been appointed to negotiate a peace with America.

October 5, Montreal. Prevost to Rt. Hon. Sir John B. Warren. Encloses copy of his letter to Bathurst respecting the Indians on the western frontiers, together with the extract of letters from Brock on the same subject. Hopes from what is enclosed, the advisability of consulting their interests in any negotiations for peace will be obvious to him (Warren). 271

(In Prevost's No. 11, of 5th October.)

October 10, Downing St. Draft of a letter to Prevost. Despatch of the 26th August received and laid before the Prince Regent, who most highly approves of the judicious and decisive conduct of Brock, the zeal of Proctor and the intrepidity of the troops. By the exertions of this little army Upper Canada has been secured. His Royal Highness has been pleased to appoint Brock a Knight of the Bath. While giving due credit to Brock the Prince Regent wishes to remark how much his (Prevost's) exertions have contributed to this fortunate conclusion in Upper Canada. 219

October 13, Fort George. Major General Sheaffe to Prevost. Giving an account of the Battle of Queenston Heights and death of Brock. 281

(In Prevost's No. 13, of 21st of October.)

October 17, Montreal. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 12.) The troops of this neighbourhood have moved into winter quarters. Last accounts of the American Army state General Dearborn to be at Green Bush, near Albany, with about 3,000 men; Brigadier General Bloomfield to be at Plattsburg with 6,000. A force has moved towards Chateauguay and the Americans are making great exertions from St. Régis as far as Sackett's Harbour to interrupt our intercourse. Latest intelligence represents all quiet about Detroit. On the Niagara frontier both parties are acting on the defensive. The Americans are making great exertions to obtain a superior force on the lakes. The advantage of keeping up our Navy. War was declared on the 18th of June and hostilities quickly followed, while he (Prevost) struggled to overcome the difficulties arising from the want of specie and the lukewarmness of the Canadians. These obstacles now overcome. Great want of stores. The introduction of Army Bills has had the best effect. Page 273 er 21, eal. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 13.) Reports with satisfaction that the Militia and Indians stationed on the Niagara frontier have completely repelled a second attempt of the enemy to invade Upper Canada, and that a victory has been gained which has left in our possession 900 of the American Army with their Commander, Brigadier General Wadsworth, who surrendered to Major General Sheaffe. We have to deplore the loss of an able and most gallant officer, Major General Brock, who fell early in the battle. Refers him (Bathurst) for further particulars to Sheaffe's report herewith transmitted. Also encloses copy of a general order he has just issued to the British forces. Will send by the next opportunity a return of killed and wounded and of the stores captured, also the colours taken. Capt. Fulton, his aide-de-camp, will deliver this; he is able to give all information respecting the provinces. 278

er 22, eal. Same to same. (No. 14.) All American prisoners are to be sent on parole to Boston to be exchanged as soon as possible, in accordance with the President's desire, that the calamities of war be lessened as far as possible. Arms, accoutrements, and clothing for the militia needed. 296 mber 16, ning St. Draft of a letter to Prevost. (No. 13.) Despatches Nos. 8, 9 and 10 received. The preparations he has made for defence approved by His Royal Highness, who confidently expects that the attacks made upon the Canadas will terminate like the late attack upon the North-western Frontier, in defeat and disgrace. Every exertion to be made to keep the naval superiority on the lakes. Can give no hope of reinforcements at present, but will send troops as soon as they can safely be withdrawn from other quarters. It has not been thought expedient to sanction the measure proposed by General Des Barre, commanding Prince Edward Island, to raise a corps of 500 men, but he (Prevost) might use the resources of the Island for completing the Newfoundland regiment. Is surprised to find that clothing is expected for the Glengarry regiment, as Col. Baynes had stated that all but great coats had been provided at Quebec. Indian presents, arms and accoutrements have been sent to Halifax. The paroles granted to Hull and his aide-de-camp to return to the United States are approved. At the same time it is but just that a like indulgence should be granted to any British subjects who may become prisoners in America. The works at Isle aux Noix appear well calculated to impede the advance of the enemy in that quarter. 259 mber 8, ning St. Same. (No. 14.) Despatch No. 13 received. His Royal Highness requests that Sheaffe be notified of his entire approbation of his conduct, and that the title of Baronet has been conferred on him. The regret of His Royal Highness at the great loss the country has sustained in the fall of Brock. The death of Attorney General McDonnell a loss to the province. 294 mber 9, ning St. Same. (No. 15.) Despatches Nos. 11 to 14 received. The necessity of the co-operation of the Indian tribes during the present hostilities; how that co-operation is to be secured. The arrangements for putting the troops into cantonments approved. The 13th, 98th and the 2nd Batt. of the 41st have been withdrawn from other services and will be sent at once to Bermuda, to enter the St. Lawrence as soon as the season will permit. The naval means of defending the province to be increased by 200 sailors and a proportion of officers, to be sent to Quebec as early as possible in the spring. Reasons why the arms, &c., asked for by the requisitions have not reached Canada. The utmost will be done to place such means at his disposal as will lessen the difficulties of the situation and secure the province. Page 298

Enclosed. Memorandum of stores sent to North America or ordered to be shipped to that destination. 305

December 9, Downing St. Draft of a letter to Prevost. (No. 16.) Acknowledges receipt of despatch No. 14. Apprehends that the indiscriminate release of all prisoners of war on parole may increase the difficulties of the situation without a corresponding advantage, however, he (Prevost) being on the spot is best able to judge, as he can ascertain whether the American army does not derive strength from these prisoners, who have only undertaken not to join General Dearborn's force, but yet may join that of another Commander. At all events, objects to the prisoners being sent to Boston, as it is such a short distance from the headquarters of the American army. 307

Foster to Castlereagh. (Extract.) Enclosing copy of a circular letter sent by the Secretary of War to the Governors of the different States calling upon them for their quotas of 100,000 militia voted this winter. Genoral Harry Lee has accepted the office of Adjutant General, Colonel Talmage had refused both that situation and the Quarter Master Generalship. Mr. Lewis, the future Quarter Master General, has assured him that the returns of recruits amount already to 3,000 men. Doubts the statement. A Bill is pending laying such rigid restrictions on the Quarter Master and Commissary Generals as to prevent any respectable men from taking the offices. The part of the Bill relating to the appointment of additional officers in the U. S. Army struck out. A report is published of an armed British and Indian force being about to enter the United States, probably intended to irritate and to influence the New York elections. 290

May 7, Foreign Office. Castlereagh to Foster. Despatches received. The intelligence of the disclosure made by Henry and communicated in No. 13, has reached this country through the American press. The Prince Regent desires that immediately upon receipt of this he (Foster) deliver to Mr. Munro an official note, disclaiming on the part of the British Government any knowledge of the nature of the mission upon which Mr. Henry was sent by Craig until several months after the whole was terminated and after Mr. Henry was specially recalled from the United States, and that no authority or instructions were ever given by this Government to Craig to send any mission of that description into the United States. He is also to state to the American Government that when this Government was first notified of Henry's mission they understood that he was sent for the purpose of procuring information at a time when military preparations were actually making for the invasion of Canada. He is also to intimate that the Prince Regent was both surprised and concerned that the U. S. Government did not at once on receiving the information require an explanation through him (Foster) and not resort to the extraordinary measure of bringing forward a charge against the British Government. The Prince Regent hopes the explanation will be received in the same spirit in which it is made. Page 230

May 16, London. Joseph Cheniquy to Peel. States that while in Lisbon he fell in with an Italian who closely questioned him about affairs in Canada and pointed out the great advantage to be derived by that country if it could separate from Great Britain and that if the Canadians showed a desire the French would be ready to help. He wanted some prints of French victories to be sent to Canada, which he (Cheniquy) undertook to send out; being suspicious, informed the British Ambassador who caused the pictures to be seized and brought back to Lisbon. ber 26, treal. Prevost to Bathurst. Recommends his brother, a post captain in the Royal Navy, to be appointed for the purpose of organizing such a marine establishment as His Majesty's Government may deem sufficient for the Canadas. 2 ber 27, treal. Same to same. (No. 15.) The vacancies in the Legislative Council caused by the deaths of Messrs. Perrault and Boucherville, the advanced age and infirmities of some members and the absence of others, render it necessary that the number should be increased. Submits the names of James McGill, Jean-Antoine Panet and William McGillivray. Would have recommended McGill before, but thought he would object to attending at Quebec; on finding he does not, asks that the mandamus be antedated to give him precedence. 3 mber 5, treal. Same to same. (No. 16.) Despatches Nos. 3 to 7, inclusive, received. The several communications which he has had the honour of addressing to him (Bathurst) must have long ago shown that the conduct of the President has not corresponded with the just expectation of His Majesty's Government, and that the repeal of the Orders in Council which was made the ostensible object of the war on the part of America has not tended in the smallest degree to check its progress or to interrupt the designs for the invasion of the Canadas. Under these circumstances, it would certainly be regretted should the reliance placed by His Majesty's Government upon the good faith of America have induced it to withhold any part of the help so indispensably necessary for the defence of the Canadas. The contest could not long continue, as the foe can so easily augment his forces to almost any extent. Is led to make these observations as all hope of reinforcements before spring is gone. His despatch, No. 6, came too late for him (Prevost) to make any use of the regiments sent to Halifax and Bermuda. Nova Scotia does not need at present a regiment for its defence. New Brunswick stands little in need of help. Bermuda is well protected by the shoals and rocks, so that these regiments should have been sent to strengthen the sorely menaced Provinces. The small force he has must ultimately give in. Is satisfied that whenever the pressing exigencies in other parts of the world will permit, the Prince Regent will consider how limited the means for the defence of British North America are. Encloses returns of killed and wounded at Queenston and also returns of arms, &c., taken on that day. The colours have been committed to the charge of Capt. King to be laid at the feet of the Prince Regent. Last news from Sheaffe report no further attack on Fort George. Great preparations making by the enemy to obtain the superiority of the lakes; many ships building in their harbours on Erie and Ontario. Naval officers and seamen needed for the Canadian vessels. The disadvantages from want of specie are effectually removed. Transports with arms and ammunition received. Is glad that his (Prevost's) idea as to the employment of the Indians is so entirely in accord with his (Bathurst's). Will observe the greatest economy in every branch of the service. Page 5

November 18, Montreal. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 21.) In his despatch No. 50, of 8th June last, had the honour of submitting a statement of the debt due by Government to the Provinces of Lower Canada and of the manner in which the same had been incurred, at the same time stating that the amount of the debt might soon be called for. As the increased expenditure owing to the war has exhausted the Civil Chest, he has been under the necessity not only of repaying the sum of £25,000 due from the Government to the province, but of advancing the further sum of £15,000. Encloses a list of the salaries not provided for by the Legislature and for which he has directed the sum of £5,103 sterling to be issued to the Receiver General from the Military Chest. Draws attention to the inadequacy of the salary allowed to the bishop of the Catholic Church in this country. Has always received from Bishop DuPlessis the most cordial and ready assistance in forwarding the views of His Majesty's Government. Attributes the ready obedience of the militia and the facility with which the army bills were circulated in a great measure to the influence of the Catholic clergy. Transmits representation from Committees of Trade at Montreal and Quebec. 3[illegible]

Enclosed. List of payments made by the Receiver General of Lower Canada and not laid before the Legislature. 3[illegible]

vember 18, rning St. Draft of a letter to Prevost. (Private and confidential.) As the United States have appointed Mr. Mitchell to act as agent for prisoners of war at Halifax, and as Sir John Sherbrooke thinks he is also commissioned to communicate to his Government such information as he may from time to time collect, he proposes that an intelligent person be employed in a similar capacity in the United States. He (Prevost) is to consult with Sir John Sherbrooke on this subject. Should the United States refuse to receive an agent a similar line of conduct is to be adopted regarding Mr. Mitchel. 41 vember 21, ambly. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 22.) The enemy frustrated in their designs for taking Kingston. Great necessity for keeping the Naval superiority on the lakes. Vessels building. Recommends that the marine on the lakes be a naval establishment under the control of the Navy Board, and that proper officers be appointed by that board; till this is done the forces under his command will not be as efficient as they might be. The enemy's force encamped at Plattsburg is advancing to the village of Champlain with the avowed purpose of penetrating into the frontier. He has sent troops under Col. Baynes to the support of Major General DeRottenburg. The enemy has made several reconnaissances beyond the lines into the province, their army, though not large may be reinforced and therefore he is obliged to collect all his disposable troops near this frontier. The lateness of the season, &c., leads him to think that if not immediately reinforced they must in a few days retire. 43

vember 28, Prairie. Same to same. (No. 24.) Since his last report from Chambly the vigor of the enemy's operations against Lower Canada has gradually declined and terminated on the 22nd in a complete retreat upon Plattsburg, Burlington and Albany, where he is informed they intend to take up their winter quarters. Encloses copies of the general orders he has issued to the Militia of Lower Canada upon this occasion. The improvement in character and disposition of the Canadian peasantry is caused by their being called on to protect their own country. A small body of militia called Voyageurs, stationed at St. Regis, were taken prisoners by the Americans; he had thought proper to direct as a measure of retaliation that an attempt should be made to carry off an American party stationed in the Block House at Salmon River, which service has been most effectually performed; for the particulars encloses copy of general order issued on the occasion. The President's Message to Congress contains such strong evidence of the hostile intentions of that Government that he feels confident reinforcements, &c., will be afforded him (Prevost) to successfully terminate the war. 52

A return of the killed, wounded and missing, also sundry other documents, among them a proclamation by Brig. General Smyth. The character of the latter is such as to reflect great discredit on those connected in its publication. He (Prevost) will see by some of the accompanying papers that a want of confidence existed between the General and his troops. 118

Reports say that an army of 15,000 men is within forty miles of Montreal. All idea of an amicable settlement with our neighbours is at an end. 5,000 or 6,000 men and ten sail of the line in addition to our permanent force is the only way to put an end to the war. All their principal towns, accessible by water ought to be attacked at once. Page 167

Governor Sir G. Prevost, 1813.

Q. 121.

1813. January 15, Quebec. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 33.) Had opened the Provincial Legislature on the 29th ultimo. Encloses speeches on the occasion. Nothing particular has occurred on the frontiers since the enemy went into winter quarters: he has been principally employed lately in reinforcing the Upper Province and forwarding supplies for building vessels there. The different requisitions sent to England should be complied with as speedily as possible. Has been obliged to supply the embodied militia in both provinces with clothing till further supplies arrive. 2

From the report of this board has been induced to order Mr. Dickson to be reimbursed and also given £300 for his services in bringing forward the Indians to aid in the capture of Michillimackinac and General Hull at Detroit. Has drawn for the money under the head of secret service. Has appointed Mr. Dickson to the Indian Department as his knowledge of and influence with the Indians will be invaluable. 21

ary 7, Same to same. (No. 40.) Will give immediate orders for the levying of a corps of Fencible Infantry under Lieut. General Coffin in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, according to the Prince Regent's desire. Since the Glengarry levy has been approved he has raised the bounty money for that corps from six to eight guineas for each recruit to put it on the same footing with the other Fencible Regiments. Has also augmented the bounty to the Canadian Voltigeurs from £4 to £5. Hopes these measures will be approved. Asks to be allowed to extend the same indulgence in bounty and promise of land to the New Brunswick Fencibles as is granted to the Glengarry Light Infantry. Page 57

February 8, Quebec. Same to same. (No. 41.) Despatches 10, 11, and 12 received. The Prince Regent's entire approbation of Major General Brock's conduct and his appointment to be an extra Knight of the Bath would have been very gratifying to him had he not unfortunately fallen in action. According to the desire of the Prince Regent he has taken the first opportunity to signify to the Army in British North America his approbation of the judicious conduct of Major General Brock, the zeal shown by Colonel Procter and other officers, the bravery of the troops and the steadiness of the Indians under Col. Elliott and Capt. McKee and the humanity with which they treated their prisoners. This praise will have a stimulating effect. The satisfactory conduct of the Militia. As about 900 of the select Embodied Militia will be entitled to their discharges next June, he has ordered a draft from the Sedentary Militia of 2,200 men to replace them. The five battalions of select Militia will then number 4,000 men exclusive of Voltigeurs and Volunteer cavalry. Clothing is to be issued to them in April. Notwithstanding the season, four companies of the King's Regiment have marched from Montreal to Kingston. The new ship building there is rapidly being completed. The keel of a new vessel has been laid at Amhersburg. Seamen are needed. Eighty guns with their stores are on the way from Quebec to strengthen the posts at Prescott, Kingston and York. Lieut.-Col. Bruyères has been ordered to visit the principal posts in Upper Canada to give the necessary orders for strengthening them. As this is the only season when it would be possible to leave Quebec he intends to spend a few weeks visiting the Upper Canadian posts in order to form from personal observation an idea of their resources. Hopes to close the Legislature before leaving, after obtaining from them the liberal supply of money required for the Militia and the necessary Acts for carrying into effect certain measures. In obedience to orders, will direct Major General de Rottenburg to assume the Civil Administration of the Government. 59

February 8, Quebec. Same to same. (No. 42.) Circular of 12th September, stating the directions which have been given for applying the specie found on captured American vessels and deposited in the Courts of Vice Admiralty, received. The issue of Army Bills has to a great degree relieved the embarrassment caused to the public service from the want of specie. The additional Army Bill Act passed this session will be a great help. 66.

February 8, Quebec. Same to same. (No. 43.) Brigadier General Winchester, with upwards of 1,000 men, being the right wing of Harrison's Army, marching to attack Detroit, was completely defeated by Col. Procter, with a force not exceeding 500 Regulars and militia and 600 Indians. The result of this victory is the surrender of the General with about 500 officers and privates with nearly a like number killed and wounded. Encloses letter from Procter to Sheaffe with details. Encloses also lists of killed and wounded on our side and of the arms ammunition and prisoners taken from the enemy, the latter of which exceeds the whole of the Regulars and militia force opposing them. Major General Harrison, with the main body of his army, consisting of about 2,000 men, was reported about five days march from Winchester's division, advancing in the direction of Detroit. On hearing of the disaster he may retreat, if not, all reliance is to be placed on Col. Procter and his troops. Small reinforcements have been sent to Detroit. 68

y 16, Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 44.) He closed the Provincial Parliament on the 15th. Encloses copies of speeches on the occasion. The Army Bill Act has met his wishes exactly. Regrets that the Bill for amending the Militia Laws did not pass. Transmits exemplification of a Bill "for "granting certain duties to His Majesty towards supplying the wants of "the Province during the present war with the United States of America "and for other purposes." Has reserved it for His Majesty's pleasure; recommends it to favourable consideration. His journey to Upper Canada has been delayed, but hopes to set out on the 17th. 85

y 27, Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 46.) Left Quebec to visit the military posts in Upper Canada on the 17th inst., arrived in Prescott on the 21st and found the enemy were posted at Ogdensburg, taking advantage of the frozen state of the St. Lawrence to make repeated nocturnal raids. Judging it safer to dislodge the enemy, he ordered Major McDonell of the Glengarry Light Infantry to make the attempt. Encloses his report on the occasion. Speaks highly of the bravery of Capt. Jenkins and Lieut. Impey. Recommends them for consideration, both being wounded. Two stand of colours have been taken which will be forwarded to be laid at the Prince Regent's feet. 106

ry 27, Same to same. (No. 47.) On returning from his tour in Upper Canada he was met by an officer carrying despatches from Detroit. Col. Procter, in command there, states that General Harrison with his forces had precipitately retreated on hearing of the annihilation of Brigadier General Winchester's army. By last accounts Harrison was about eighty miles from Detroit but as the road is almost impassable in places, Proctor did not pursue him. The Indian chiefs Tecumseh, Roundhead and Norton with their warriors and a chosen band from the 41st Detroit Militia are employed in interrupting the communication with Harrison's army and intercepting his supplies and reinforcements. Hopes this movement will so work upon the American Army as to render it an easy prey to the Indian force coming from the Southward under Mr. Dickson. Hopes these measures will meet with approbation. 122

18, Same to same. (No. 48.) Despatch No. 16 of 19th December received. Regrets to find that the arrangements entered into with regard to the release of the American prisoners of war on their parole appear in any way objectionable. He (Bathurst) was perhaps not aware of the embarrassment which the large number of prisoners would have caused to the officer commanding in Upper Canada with his very limited means of guarding and provisioning them. Does not believe any of the prisoners have violated their engagements. The port of Boston, to which particular objection was taken, was chosen for the purpose of shortening the voyage. Encloses General Order by which it will be seen that an attempt was made by the American Government to consider General Hull and other officers as exchanged, notwithstanding his (Prevost's) assent had not been obtained. A letter of explanation, also enclosed, was immediately sent to General Dearborn. No answer received as yet. The General Order found its way into the American papers and the Court marshal on General Hull has been suspended. Page 126

March 19, Quebec. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 50.) Despatches received. Is gratified that the measures he has taken for the defence of Canada have been approved. Encloses copy of a report on the British Naval force on the Lakes, accompanied by a comparative statement of the British and American Marine upon these waters. Has conveyed to Major General Sheaffe and the troops under him the entire approbation of the Prince Regent, of their courage displayed at Queenston on the 13th October last, and his regret at the loss of the Attorney General McDonell. Has assured the Indians that they will not be forgotten. Is glad to hear that the 13th, 98th and 41st (2nd Batt.) are to be withdrawn from Bermuda and sent to Canada. The exportation of this reinforcement has enabled him to strengthen the posts in Upper Canada. Is looking forward to the arrival of arms, clothing and stores in the spring. Has much satisfaction in stating that the "cabal" in Upper Canada operating against the person administering the Government has been extinguished. 140

April 21, Quebec. Same to same. (No. 56.) Despatches 18, 19 and 20 received. Hopes the extraordinary efforts made by the enemy to obtain the ascendancy on Lake Ontario will justify his measures. Is glad to hear of the approach

1813. by land of several naval officers sent from Halifax, their assistance will be most opportune as the loss of the ascendency on Lake Ontario would immediately expose Upper Canada to devastation. To shield that province he has marched some troops from the lower, their place to be filled by augmenting the militia. Encloses a return of the Lower Canadian militia that the Prince Regent may be enabled to judge of the assistance afforded by the Canadians. The difficulties of forming efficient corps in Upper Canada are greater. The legislature there has increased the bounty to $8 and Sheaffe proposes a further augmentation to afford the recruit a reasonable outfit. Is pleased to hear that the number of British seamen ordered to Canada has been increased to 300. The observations in despatch No. 20 not all applicable in the present state of the country. After the battle of Queenston, Sheaffe lost a glorious opportunity of crossing the river and destroying Fort Niagara. He (Prevost) has hitherto carefully avoided any offensive movement upon the American territory except as a just retaliation; when the reinforcements from the Baltic arrive, he will be enabled to convert his defensive into offensive operations. y 2, York. W. Allan, Major 3rd York Militia, to Sheaffe. In obedience to orders, he, Lt.-Col. Chewett, and Rev. Dr. Strachan entered into terms of capitulation with the commander of the enemy's forces on the 27th ulto. (Encloses copy.) The terms were not ratified till next afternoon, during which interval the inhabitants were exposed to every sort of depredation and insult. After the ratification, his (Sheaffe's) baggage and all public stores were carried off, the public buildings burnt and the troops are now embarking, though every one seems ignorant of their destination. Few houses in the town escaped search and some were badly pillaged. Forty wounded men were left here without medical assistance. 217

y 18, Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 60.) Transmitting copy of a despatch from Sheaffe containing the particulars of a successful attack made by the enemy on York, on the 27th ult. The small Regular force at his (Prevost's) disposal and the decided superiority gained by the Americans on Lake Ontario in the last six months will show the gallant efforts made by the handful of troops at that post. The enemy left York on the 8th inst., and proceeded to Niagara, where they landed on the American side for the purpose of strengthening their army on that line, and probably with a view to a further attack upon Fort Erie or Fort George. The flotilla afterwards returned to Sackett's Harbour. The force there con-

May 18, Kingston. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 61.) Reporting the arrival at Quebec on the 5th inst., of Commodore Sir James Yeo with the officers and seamen under his command. The first and second divisions of officers and seamen have arrived at this post in bateaux from Montreal. List of the ships in which they will serve. In order that the instructions of His Majesty's government respecting the ascendency on Lake Ontario may be carried out, he has accompanied Sir James Yeo to this post so as to afford him every facility for the accomplishment of that object. 223

May 18, Kingston. Same to same. (No. 62.) Despatches 18 to 25, with enclosures, have been delivered to him by Major Coore. Is duly sensible of the efforts being made by His Majesty's Government to supply him with the troops so necessary for the successful resisting of the great efforts the enemy are making to conquer the provinces, particularly the Upper. The prospect of the speedy arrival of reinforcements from Spain and Ireland has induced him to send some troops from Lower to Upper Canada. The late systematic movement of the enemy on York, indicates a strong disposition to make a still more decisive attempt upon the province. Hopes to be able to successfully resist them with the help of the promised reinforcements and the seamen now on their way. 225

May 26, Kingston. Same to same. (No. 63.) Reporting the arrival at Quebec of troops, about 400 men of the 41st, and part of the 19th Dragoons, to be sent on at once to Upper Canada. The growing discontent of the mass of the people in this Province with the militia laws, and the considerable emigration to the United States have called for the best and reserved soldiers to support the positions on the Niagara and Detroit frontiers. Praises the bravery of Colonels Vincent and Procter. The enemy left Sackett's Harbour on the 20th inst., and have appeared off Fort George with sixteen vessels laden with troops which they disembarked the following day in rear of their Fort at Niagara. In case of immediate attack he has advised Sir James Yeo to sail with the vessels ready for service and reconnoitre the enemy's flotilla that he may form an opinion on the practicability of taking reinforcements to Fort George. Will accompany this reinforcement of 300 men and then return to Lower Canada, leaving the Civil and Military command of the Province to Major Generals de Rottenburg and Sheaffe. 227

May 31, Fort George. H. Dearborn, Major General commanding the U. S. forces on the Frontiers, to Prevost. Has been informed by R. G. Beasley, U. S. Commissary of Prisoners in London, that twenty-three soldiers of the 1st, 6th and 13th U. S. Regiments made prisoners and sent to England are held in close confinement as British subjects. Is instructed by his Government to put into close confinement a like number of British soldiers as hostages. Notifies him that he now has put twenty-three soldiers into close confinement as ordered. Page 269

John Norton to same. Assuring him of his loyalty and regretting the late affair was not as successful as might have been wished; this does not destroy his confidence, however. Wishes to increase and reward his followers. 271

Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 64.) The despatch of 26th ult., was scarcely closed when news arrived of the enemy's flotilla being off Niagara with a second reinforcement of at least 8,000 Regulars, besides volunteers and militia. Colonel Vincent has only about 2,000 men to oppose this formidable force. When last accounts left Fort George it had sustained a cannonade of twenty-four hours duration which deprived our troops of every building near the work, except the powder magazine and the splinter proof barracks. The critical situation of Upper Canada decided him (Prevost) to embark the principal part of the garrison of this place for Sackett's Harbour, where they arrived under Col. Baynes on the 27th ult. Arrangements were being made for an attack at dawn the following morning, which, as will be seen by the report of Col. Baynes (enclosed), was not a complete success. The gallant conduct of the troops on the occasion. A short account of the engagement. Though the enemy is constantly receiving reinforcements, none have as yet arrived to protect Upper Canada, of which a part may be lost unless help speedily arrives. 232

Vincent to Prevost. Enclosing a letter from Major General Dearborn and stating that permission is granted to the wives and families of the officers left behind at Fort George to embark for Kingston or York. Has reported his arrival here to the Adjutant General and his intention to take up a position till either reinforcements or instructions arrive. The troops are in great spirits, waiting an order to return to Fort George. Finds that the enemy has followed him with the advanced guard to the Fifteen Mile Creek; he received this information from a deserter, who states that the fleet sailed for Sackett's Harbour and that 2,000 men embarked on board in a great hurry. Is afraid Procter will be in pressing need of provisions. Is sending some cattle under charge of a detachment of Militia. As bills would not answer for this service, Col. Clerk of the Militia has sent him 500 guineas. He has already mentioned his wants to Col. Baynes. 265

Prevost to Bathurst. (No 65.) On the 27th ult., the enemy effected a landing about two miles from Fort George. Their superior force, notwithstanding spirited resistance, obliged Col. Vincent to retire to the head of Lake Ontario with his whole force. Encloses Col. Vincent's report. The British loss small. Considering that the appearance of the fleet might give additional courage to troops under him he has despatched Sir James Yeo with his ships. The enemy's fleet were reported yesterday to be returning to Sackett's Harbour. Learns that all their fleet is now in that port and that the whole of the naval stores there were burnt on the day of the attack. Regrets that he cannot report the arrival of any of the troops on their way from Cadiz, Malta and the West Indies. 248

June 6, Kingston. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 66.) Since last writing has received the enclosed intelligence from Col. Vincent relating to the British subjects taken in arms at Queenston in October last and sent to England. Has taken measures to reinforce the army at the head of the lake, with part of the 104th and Glengarry regiments, which is all that can be done at present. The Americans are pressing forward in very superior numbers for the conquest of Upper Canada. He is afraid his promised reinforcements will not afford the means for making one grand effort. Encloses letter from the Indian Chief Norton, addressed to him (Prevost) after the late unequal contest at Niagara, that the importance of his friendship may be seen. The British flotilla is on Lake Ontario with stores and reinforcements for Col. Vincent. Cannot learn that the American fleet has ventured out to contend for the ascendency on the lake. Specie urgently needed as paper money cannot now command the hidden resources of the country. Page 262

June 7, Kingston. Same to same. (No. 67.) Reporting an action with the enemy near Isle aux Noix which terminated in the capture of the "Eagle" and "Growler" from the enemy. The capture was made under the direction of Major Taylor. Captain Gordon, R.A., Lieut. Williams, Ensigns Dawson, Gibbon and Humphries, of the 100th, and Lt. Lowe, of the Marine, particularly distinguished themselves. In the contest, which lasted three hours, and a half, we had three men wounded and the enemy had eight wounded and one killed. 278

August 12, Downing St. Draft of a letter to Prevost. Despatch No. 66, enclosing a letter from Dearborn stating that twenty-three British prisoners have been put in close confinement as hostages for those confined by Britain, received. States that these latter were British born subjects taken while serving in the American Army, and that they now await a legal trial. He (Prevost) is to inform Dearborn that he has transmitted home a copy of his letter and in answer thereto has been commanded to put into close confinement forty-six officers and non-commissioned officers as hostages for the twenty-three British subjects imprisoned in the United States. Also that if on trial any of the soldiers be found guilty and sentenced to death and any of the hostages held by the United States be executed in consequence, double the number of the officers and non-commissioned officers confined here shall immediately be put to death. The war will be carried on with unmitigated severity, if after this notification the American Government should unhappily put to death any British soldiers who are now or may hereafter be kept as hostages for the purposes stated. 274

ust 25, David's, ara tier. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 88.) The danger to which the Detroit frontier was exposed in consequence of the enemy's superiority on Lake Erie decided him to move forward to the centre division under de Rottenburg, to be able to second Procter's movements which he undertakes under such great difficulties. Some account of matters on the Niagara frontier. Yeo is making every effort to bring the enemy's squadron to a decisive action but in vain. He, however, was fortunate enough to capture two of their schooners on the 10th inst. On the preceding night two others overset and sunk in carrying sail to escape the British. About 100 persons perished. Yeo has gone into Kingston, to refit and has seen nothing further of the enemy's fleet. He understands they are in Sackett's Harbour. The Americans seem determined to put off the decision of the Naval superiority. The safe arrival of Indian presents. The concentration of a large part of the enemy's force at Sackett's Harbour renders it necessary that he (Prevost) should immediately proceed to Kingston. 158

both commands from the temporary naval ascendency of the enemy on Lakes Erie and Ontario. The enemy's policy is evidently to prevent supplies, &c., being forwarded. Encloses extract of a letter from Amherstburg, showing the distress existing there. As the evacuation of that post would inevitably lead to the loss of the fleet on Lake Erie, he desires some bold attempt may be made by Capt. Barclay for the supremacy on that Lake to make an outlet for the supplies at Long Point. A large proportion of the officers and seamen of the "Dover" to be sent to his assistance. He (Yeo) is the best judge as to where Capt. Drury's services will be most useful. Page 173

September 15, Kingston. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 89.) Since the commencement of the second campaign he has faithfully reported all occurrences, not hiding the difficulties under which he labours. The time is fast approaching when a suspension of hostilities must take place. He (Prevost) has received no instructions since the commencement of the campaign as to how it was to be conducted. Encloses letter to Yeo, which clearly shows his (Prevost's) embarrassments. Has impressed on Yeo the necessity of deciding the supremacy on the Lakes as soon as possible. The captain and crew of the "Dover" serve on Lake Erie. Has collected £5,000 in specie for the centre and right divisions of the army. The movements of the enemy's squadron. September 21, Sandwich. Procter to Prevost. The enemy have been reconnoitred by an officer of the Indian Department. We must expect an attack soon. The sick, women, children and stores are on the Thames, the ordnance, except that for use on the field have been sent off. The enemy having command of the waters, he has decided to fall back on the Thames. Expects great help from the Indians; goods required for them. The enemy is advancing. Provisions urgently needed. Encloses extract of a letter from Lt.-Col. Murray making him (Procter) responsible for the loss of the fleet on Lake Erie. Proposes to pay as militia those accompanying the army as was done during the American rebellion. Hopes the measures will be approved. 265

September 22, Kingston. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 90.) States again as in despatch of 15th inst., the embarrassment caused by the supremacy of the enemy on Lake Erie, and his disappointment that the British squadron has returned with nothing decided on this lake (Ontario). Transmits with deep regret a letter from a letter from M. General Procter announcing our loss under Captain Barclay. Some particulars not given in that letter. How affairs stand in Upper Canada. Enclosing copy of letter sent to M. General de Rottenburg by the Adjutant General previous to the arrival of this disastrous intelligence. 177

October 8, Montreal. Same to same. (No. 91.) The reports that the enemy were assembling on the Montreal frontier induced him to repair to this place, where he learned that Major General Hampton with about 5,000 regulars, after overpowering one of our small piquets near Odel Town, had moved to the Westward and was encamped near the Chateauguay River. Sheaffe has taken precautions to resist the enemy's advance. Remarks on the Militia. The force assembled for the purpose of invading the province is greater than at any other period. Their numbers and disposition. The reinforcements in British seamen for Lakes Ontario and Champlain have arrived. Had they been available a few weeks earlier the Lake Erie disaster might have been avoided. Transmits Commodore Perry's official account of the loss of the squadron. Has required of Procter his reasons for allowing Captain Barclay to attempt such an action without waiting for the seamen on their way to assist him. It is a satisfaction to find that victory was at one time on our side before the loss of the services of Captain Barclay and other officers. By last accounts from Procter, he is still at Sandwich. Yeo sailed with his squadron from Kingston on the 19th ultimo, taking stores, provisions, &c., to the centre division of the army. He attempted an action with Chauncey but was obliged to make for an anchorage off Burlington Heights where the enemy did not follow them. Our fleet has refitted and gone in search of the Americans. Hopes by this time some decisive action has taken place. Has ordered a ship of 28 guns and a brig of 20 to be built at Kingston. Page 199

October 30, Montreal. Prevost to Bathurst. (No. 99.) Major General Hampton with his forces on the 21st instant, crossed the line, surprised a small number of Indian warriors, drove in some sedentary militia posted at the junction of the Outward and Chateauguay Rivers, encamped there, and is bringing forward artillery. On the 25th he commenced operations against the British advanced posts. An account of the action. The wise measures taken by de Watteville, the bravery of Lt.-Col. de Salaberry and the officers and men engaged. Reports say the American force was about seven thousand, while the British was only about three hundred. Enclosing a list of killed and wounded. October 30, Montreal. Same to same. (No. 100.) Encloses the only despatch received from Procter since the 22nd ult. Has been informed that he commenced his retreat from Sandwich on the 24th of September, after dismantling the posts of Amherstburg and Detroit and destroying all public stores, &c. About five miles from the Moravian village he was attacked by an overwhelming force under General Harrison. He (Procter) was obliged to retreat with the remnant of his army and reached Burlington Heights, the Headquarters of General Vincent. Tecumseh and the Prophet with their bands of warriors were of great service. He is as yet ignorant of the British loss. Procter has sent a flag of truce to learn the fate of the missing officers and men. Hears that the enemy instead of following up their advantage have retreated to Sandwich, followed by Tecumseh and his warriors. Five or six hundred Indians from the Right Division are reported to have joined the Centre. Regets to say he is still without an official report of Capt. Barclay's action on Lake Erie, which has been the cause of our relinquishing the Michigan territory and abandoning the posts in Upper Canada beyond the Grand River. Fears Capt. Barclay has died of his wounds. 262

Warren of the danger to which the Right Division of the army in Upper Canada was exposed through the loss of the fleet on Lake Erie, he (Warren) has sent ships and marines. By last accounts from de Rottenburg, dated Kingston, 28th instant, the enemy, though still threatening that post, have made no attacks as yet. The American fleet were within eighteen miles of that place. The state of the weather prevented Major General Hampton's attack on Lower Canada and Major General Wilkinson's on Kingston being simultaneous as was intended. Hopes the attack there will end as did that on Lower Canada. Page 293

He (Prevost) intends to concentrate the remains of the Right Division with the Centre, and place the whole under Major General Riall. The sickness amongst the troops is diminishing. The Newfoundland Regiment being so much weakened, he proposes that the remainder be sent to Newfoundland in the spring, to recruit there. Has just received Procter's official report of his retreat from Sandwich on the 26th September, and the disastrous affair of the 5th October. November 13, Montreal. Prevost to Barclay. Acknowledges letters. Encloses letter to Melville or the officer commanding at Burlington, by which it w seen that the American prisoners at Quebec had sailed for Halifax days previous to the receipt of the agreement. Even had th sailed he does not think he would have been justified in giving up prisoners, while the retaliating system is being carried on. In ca agreement be carried out, hopes assurances will be given by the A can Government that those taken on Lake Erie and under P should not be subjected to any retaliation whatever, but be retur the spring. It would be advisable to ma exchange of these officers. The removal of the prisoners to Ha was a matter of necessity. He has just learned that instead of proc to Halifax, they have, against his orders, been sent with the con England. This must have happened through a misunderstan Hopes the American Government will be convinced of this. Drs. and Scott will be permitted to return to the United States as s Mr. Dickson and other peaceful citizens made prisoners of wa allowed to return to Canada.

r 12. Same to same. (No. 115.) The signal defeat of the Americans at the Chateauguay River and Chrysler's Farm has relieved both Provinces of the invading forces under Generals Hampton and Wilkinson; the latter has given up his avowed project of passing the winter at Montreal. A detachment of troops on board some gunboats which he (Prevost) had ordered to Lake Champlain, burned a large building at Plattsburg and brought away some bateaux and stores. The severity of the weather compelled them to return. The lateness of the season has frustrated an attack on Burlington. Is assured that the two boats building at Kingston will be ready by the opening of navigation. 100

Hearing that the enemy were carrying off the loyal inhabitants and were bent on gaining possession of the country between Fort George and the advance, he had marched forward, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, frustrated their designs and compelled the enemy to evacuate this post; on hearing of our approach they laid the town of Newark in ashes and sent the stores, &c., across the river. Hopes this movement will save the district from a merciless enemy. 107
